Biggest Fire In Coventry Since '40 Blitz

Four Other Towns Send Firemen To Warehouses' Blaze

COVENTRY, England, Nov. 26 (Reuters)—Smoke-grimed firemen, led by a man in rumpled evening dress, today were fighting the biggest fire here since German aircraft rained down fire bombs and destroyed the centre of the city during a blitz raid in November, 1940.

The man in the white tie and tails was the Coventry fire chief, W. Greenhalgh, who had been called straight from a dance.

Fire engines from four other towns — Leamington, Warwick, Kenilworth and Nuneaton—were called out during the night to prevent the fire spreading to factories. The fire started in huge three-storey warehouses full of food, Christmas fare and cigarets.

Still Blazing

All night firemen, assisted by factory fire teams, toiled to keep the flames in check. Today the warehouses were still blazing, warehouses were still blazing, declared out of danger, and "outside" fire forces had returned to their home towns.

From the end of 1940 to April, 1941, Coventry was one of the main German targets. Worst raid was Nov 14, 1940, when Gecman bombers dropped 500 tons of high explosives, 30,000 fire bombs and killed 170 persons.

Hint Philip Fires Fussy Secretary

LONDON, Nov. 26.—(INS).—A young army officer who served with the dare-devil British intelligence in Palestine acquainted himself with a far less hazardous new job today—private secretary to Princess Elizabeth.

Maj. Martin Charteris, 36, an Eton-educated war hero, took over the job from Hon. John Rupert Colville, 34 — and London gossip columnists speculated the change was possibly the doing of Elizabeth's husband, Prince Philip.

Charteris was said to be the opposite of Colville, described by the Daily Express columnist as "precise, elegant and stuffy—tediously well informed on social etiquette."

Court circles were quoted as saying, "Maybe the princess wants someone a little less stuffy around."

Recalling that Philip, the prince consort, is something of a "card," the gossips intimated that he may have prompted the change of secretaries.

Court Drops Driving Charge

ORILLIA, Nov. 26—A careless driving charge against Harold Morris, apprentice driver, for Grey Coach Lines, was dismissed Friday for lack of evidence.

Morris was driver of a bus which overturned Oct. 21 on No 11 Highway, injuring 19 persons. One of the passengers subsequently died.

Bruce Sharpe, Toronto salesman, paid a $10 fine for driving without a license. Sharpe's car was demolished in the bus crash.

Mrs. Bowie 107, Dies Without Plane Ride

STRATFORD, Nov. 26 (CP)—Mrs. Jemima Bowie, 107, died Friday—still looking forward to her first airplane ride.

The aged Negro was offered the ride on her birthday Oct. 21 when she expressed regret at never having been up in a plane. She said she would snap up the offer just as soon as her rheumatism cleared a bit.

One of a family of 13, she is survived by her sister, Annie Louise Earl, 104, of Owen Sound, 100 miles north of here, before moving to this southwestern Ontario city recently.

Bojangles Robinson Dances Last Time

Great Negro Tap Dancer Dies In Sleep At New York Hospital

NEW YORK, Nov. 26—(AP)—Bill (Bojangles) Robinson danced his way upstairs again Friday night . . . for the last time.

Death came to the great negro tap dancer while he slept under an oxygen tent with a failing heart.

Once before, when asleep, Robinson had dreamed his famous upstairs-tap routine—and awoke to make a fortune with it.

"I was being made a lord by the King of England," he explained, "and he was standing at the head of a flight of stairs. Rather than walk, I danced up to get it."

Robinson, 71, had been an entertainer from the age of eight. He carried his nickname, "Bojangles" for almost 40 years. It meant happy-go-lucky.

Began As Stable Boy

He began as a little stable boy dancing for pennies in Washington beer halls, reached the top of his world on Broadway and in Hollywood, and made anywhere from $2,000,000 to $4,000,000.

But he was almost broke when he went to hospital two weeks ago, and his friends were arranging a benefit when he died.

Robinson never really retired. He kept on dancing until his eyes failed him three months ago and he could not longer see the steps of the old routine. To celebrate his 60th birthday, he danced 60 blocks down Broadway—backwards.

With him when he died was his second wife, Elaine.

Although he made up to $2,000 a week in show business and $6,000 a week in the movies, cash never stayed with him long. He gave lavishly to charity—both in money and benefit performances—and he liked to gamble. He was also a crackerjack pool player.

Charles Sisson Former Member Of Utilities Dies

Charles E. Sisson, Toronto, retired executive of the Canadian General Electric Company and a member of the Peterborough Utilities Commission in the early twenties, died suddenly at Stouffville Friday night.

Mr. Sisson was elected to the Utilities Commission in January 1920, following the retirement of T. F. Matthews. He was followed by Wm. T. Bradburn in the personnel of the Commission, and about the same time Mr. Sisson was transferred to Toronto by the C.G.E.

A graduate of the University of Toronto in electrical engineering, Mr. Sisson was in charge of the transformers section of the engineering department of C.G.E., as an assistant to Mr. L. D. W. Magie, works engineer of that time.

Subsequently he was promote to the post of works engineer of the Davenport branch of the company, continuing in that position until his retirement.

Mr. Sisson was the husband of Mabel Gillespie, of Peterborough, who survives him with their family, Mrs. D. Harwood (Hope) of Peterborough; Lt.-Col. T. Edward Sisson of Ottawa, and Howard Sisson, of Calgary. He also leaves his sister, Mrs. George Stewart.

Declare Vitamin E Test Used In Toronto Shows Treatment Flop

TORONTO, Nov. 26—(CP)—The long controversy over the merits of the Vitamin E treatment for cevrtain heart conditions was revived today with publication of a report that it was of little value. The two London, Ont., doctors who have specialized in this treatment promptly replied that the report was meaningless. The report to the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons, presented here Friday by Dr. William Greenwood, covered test treatment of 50 patients from congestive heart failure over a period of three months at the Toronto General Hospital.

Dr. Greenwood's report said that one half of the patients here given 300 milligrams per day of Vitamin E and the other half were given identical capsules containing only an inert oil. The report compared results with patients using the different capsules.

It said: "The administration . . . of vitamin E did not appear to influence the rate of clearing of heart failure in any way, nor did it appear to influence the incidence of recurrence of failure after discharge from hospital."

The report said that of 11 patients who died during the test period, six were on the vitamin capsule and five on the other. Of 44 instances where the patients became free of failures, 23 were on the vitamin capsule and 21 on the other.

Not Much Effect

Listing these and similar figures from the test, Dr. Greenwood's report said: "We do not feel that the administration of alpha tocopheral (vitamin E) in a dosage of 300 milligrams daily has ma-

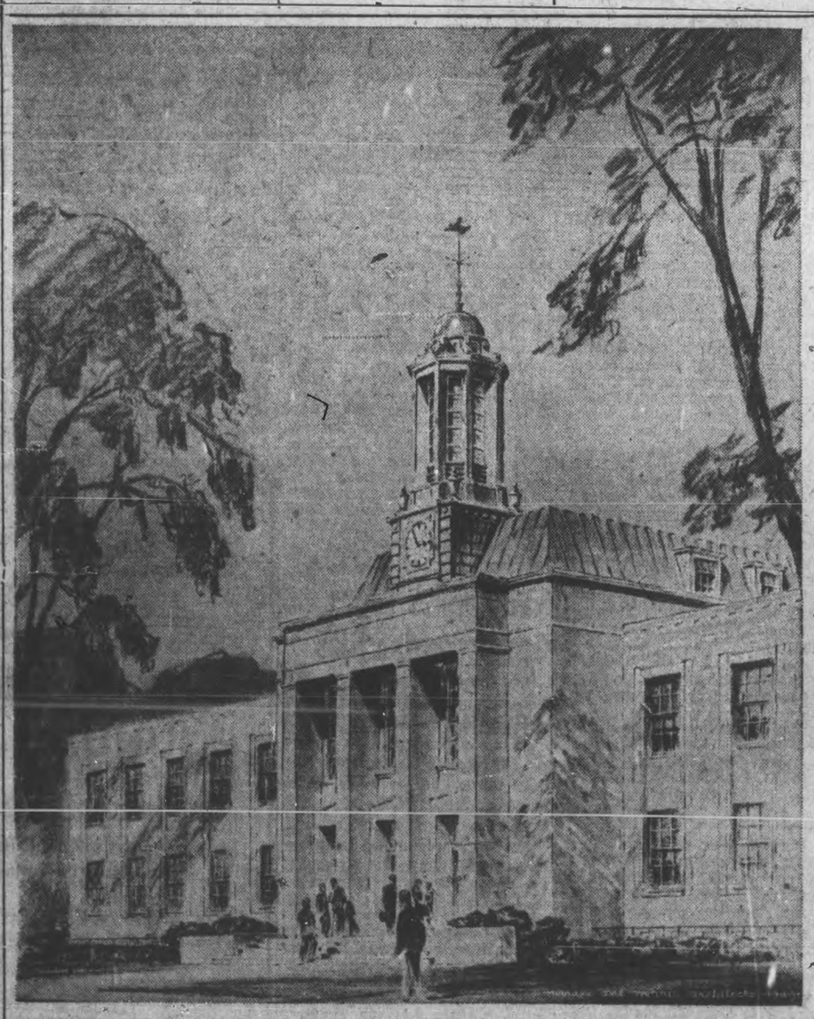
Clocks Lose Hour Tonight



By The Canadian Press

The confusion caused by standard time in one place and daylight saving time in another will be finally over tonight—for the winter months anyway.

The last Ontario cities keeping daylight time put the clocks an hour back to Eastern Standard Time tonight.

Most of the centres which adopted daylight time for the summer months switched back to standard time two months ago, but many others remained on summer time as a power conserving measure.

Reverting to standard time are Toronto, Ottawa, Peterborough, Belleville, Oshawa and Cornwall. The official time change comes at 2 a.m. Sunday

GEORGE STREET FACADE of Peterborough's new city hall, as shown in the architects' drawing. The plans of Marani and Morris, Toronto, are now almost complete; contracts will be let early in the new year, and work of demolishing existing houses and erecting the new City Hall on the library block site should be well begun by summer. For complete story and other drawings see today's Feature Page.

Report Assassination Of 2 In Liberal Party

BOGOTA, Colombia, Nov. 26—(AP)—An assassination attempt on Liberal party leader Dario Echandia was reported Friday night as Colombia prepared for a disputed presidential election tomorrow.

Echandia, his party's presidential candidate until it called for a boycott of the election, apparently escaped injury. But two party colleagues with him were reported killed and his brother Vicente and his bodyguard were reported wounded.

MAXWELL SWANSTON WAS returned to office as mayor of Peterborough by acclamation Friday night. This is his second term of office. One of the largest crowds in years attended the nominations meeting.

Ontario Position Uncertain On Decontrol of Rents

OTTAWA, Nov. 26—(CP)—A new way has been opened for provinces to choke off the Dec. 15 rental increases. Finance Minister Abbott has indicated willingness to maintain the rent status quo in any province that indicates it will take over rental controls next spring. Thus Mr. Abbott has agreed to eliminate the impending rent hikes for Saskatchewan which has informed the Finance Minister it will enter the rental fields next April 1.

There was little immediate reaction from other provinces as to whether they will follow Saskatchewan's lead. Some, like Alberta, Manitoba and Quebec, said they would consider the matter.

Mr. Douglas said Saskatchewan was entering the field even though it believed controls should remain in the hands of the Dominion, because of "unformity and other advantages."

But its faith had been shaken in the federal government's intention of staying in the rentals field, other than "in name only."

Position Uncertain

In the absence of Premier Frost an Ontario government official said Friday night that the Ontario government would cooperate to the limit with the federal government in bringing about an orderly decontrol of rents. But Ontario's official position remains to be formulated.

The Ontario government official declared that the manner in which the federal government is proceeding in decontrol "is bound to create indescribable confusion." He suggested that the federal authorities should "get the matter back to the status quo that prevailed before the war" and then turn it over to the provinces.

Declares Canada Best Friend

LONDON, Nov. 26 (Reuters)—Sir Stafford Cripps, repudiating recent press criticisms of Canada, said Friday night that during and since the war "we have had either no better friends than the people of Canada."

"It is wholly untrue to suggest that Canada has unloaded her difficulties on to our backs or that we have unloaded our difficulties on to her back," he said.

"We do thank our Canadian friends for the part they have played and we utterly repudiate those who are—whether they mean it or not—creating bad blood between the two peoples."

Sir Stafford was speaking at the centenary banquet of the Commercial Travellers' Benevolent Institution. Both Britain and Canada had been put into grave difficulties by economic changes consequent upon the war, but Canada had done many things to help Britain, Sir Stafford said.

Because sterling was not freely convertible into dollars, Canada was unable to finance her American imports from the sale of exports to Britain for sterling as before the war. That was why Britain, Canada and the United States had called the recent financial meeting in Washington.

Three Noronic Survivors Suing CSL For $351,784

NEW YORK, Nov. 26 (CP) — Three survivors of the cruiseship Noronic Friday filed suit for $351,784.68 damages against the Canada Steamship Lines, Limited, owners of the vessel which burned in Toronto harbor Sept. 17 claiming 118 lives.

The three plaintiffs are Ben Katz, Max Norman Fields, and John R. Singyla, all of Cleveland, O. There was no mention in the papers of the specific injuries received by the plaintiffs.

The suit charges that the fire "was due to the unseaworthy condition of the vessel." The papers allege that the unseaworthiness was due to the fact that the "walls were dangerously coated with paint, varnish and other inflammable materials."

Katz is asking damages of $150,000 plus $475 for personal property lost as a result of the fire; Singyla is asking $100,000 plus $619.01 for personal property and Fields is claiming $100,000 plus $690.67 for personal effects.

At Cleveland owners of the Noronic asked federal court to limit their liability in suits arising from the fire to not more than $448,400.

Canada Steamship Lines said that under Canadian Law their liability was fixed at $72.97 a ton or $448,400 for the 6,145-ton liner.

Under the United States law, the petition contended, their responsibility is limited to $60 a ton or $368,700.

The company said suits totalling more than $3,000,000 may be filed against it in the United States as a result of the Sept. 17 fire in which 118 persons died.

Party Of 11, Dead Body Marooned

Spend Freezing Night Aboard Boat As 2nd Launch Sinks

MIDLAND, Nov. 26—(CP) — How a party of seven adults and four children spent a freezing night huddled on a launch in Georgian Bay was told by Provincial Police Friday. The 11 battled a heavy snowstorm and fire in one boat to bring the body of a boy for burial at Penetanguishene near here. They had set out from Twelve-Mile bay, a few miles up the channel, with the body of the young son of Mr. and Mrs. George Courriere. When the trip started from Twelve-Mile bay, Andrew Courriere and his sister, Mrs. Wilson Isaac, were with the body in a 24-foot launch While the rest travelled in a 19-foot launch fitted with a cabin.

Barely a mile from the starting point the engine of the larger craft exploded and the boat caught fire. The two passengers and the boy's body reached the other launch in the small boat they had been trailing.

Battered By Winds

With the entire party on the one launch, increasing wind and snow forced them to take shelter behind Split Rock, some miles north of here in the channel that winds up the eastern shore of Georgian Bay.

They spent all Thursday night huddled on the launch with the temperature hovering around 10 degrees above zero.

At daylight Friday they started out again in heavy seas and managed to make Honey Harbor, 10 miles northeast of Midland. There the boy's body was transferred to a taxi for the remainder of the trip to Penetanguishene.

Rams Transport Curler Killed

KINGSTON, Nov. 26 (CP) — Clair Palmer, 50, president of J. W. Palmer Motors Limited, Kingston, was killed Friday night on Highway No. 2, six miles west of the city, when the motor car he was driving hurtled into the rear of a parked transport.

Palmer was returning from Oshawa where he had taken part in a curling bonspiel. His new 1949 sedan crashed into the rear of a transport owned by Chuckrows and Sons, Inc., of Troy, N.Y. and was driven by Henry Jones, 31, of Troy.

The truck also had an assistant driver, Sam Davis, 29, also of Troy.

Provincial Constable W. W. Alexander said the transport, loaded with 600 cases of eggs, had stalled on the highway.

"The driver informed me that he had run out of gas, I went to Kingston to get gas for them. When I returned Davis was just pouring the gas into the tank when there was a terrific impact. The front of the Palmer car went in underneath the rear of the transport, putting the rear wheels out of line. The car was crushed."

Alexander said "there were flares stretched 200 feet to the rear and in front of the truck."

Find Mental Patient Walking Junk Yard

TUSCALOOSA, Alta., Nov. 26 —(AP)—A patient at a mental hospital complained of a stomach ache. The doctors took and x-ray and decided to operate.

Still dazed, Dr. William A. Engelbert Friday listed the items he removed from the patient's stomach such as:

Fourteen cot springs, each 2½ inches long.
One spoon handle.
Two overall snaps.
One soft drink bottle cap.
Thirty-one pieces of wire, some of them eight inches long and sharp at both ends.
Forty-one rocks.
One bolt.
One nut.

House Passes Bill To Plug Combines Act

OTTAWA, Nov. 26. — (CP). — Prosecution of bakeries in three western provinces is expected to be the first test of Canada's revised anti-price-fixing legislation.

The Commons Friday wound up one of the bitterest debates of the session by passing a bill to plug loopholes in the Combines Investigation Act.

A number of bakeries in British Columbia, Alberta and Saskatchewan, have been charged with conspiring to set uniformly high prices, an offence under the Combines Act.

Justice Minister Garson has indicated that the government was delaying prosecution until the bill to tighten the Act had been passed.

W. J. Browne (PC-St. John's West) expressed the hope Friday that the bread industry will be prosecuted before the end of the two-year limit in which such prosecutions can be launched.

"If members will get busy and pass this bill we will prosecute right away," said Mr. Garson.

House Passes Bill

Within a few hours, the House passed the bill.

The main provision of the bill is one designed to overcome the difficulties encountered by the prosecution in getting incriminating company letters accepted by the judge as evidence.

Such letters are usually seized by the Combines Investigating Commission while it is investigating whether there is price-fixing in an industry.

The Commission is a branch of the government established for the specific job of investigating suspected industries with a view to establishing existence of an illegal price-fixing combine.

Last year some 1,800 documents of this kind were entered as evidence in a case against dental firms accused of attempting to eliminate competition in prices.

The judge said the prosecution must prove that any letters offered as evidence of price-fixing were written with the knowledge of the directors of the accused companies.

When the proof was not forthcoming, the case was thrown out of court.

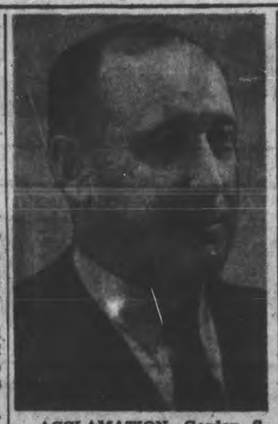
Envoy Holds Police At Bay

WARSAW, Nov. 26 (AP). — French Ambassador Jean Baelen early today held Polish security police at bay while the French woman embassy employee they sought to arrest escaped through the back door of her apartment.

Baelen took the woman, Miss Helen Loisel, to the embassy. She is a secretary and acting vice-consul there.

Two Polish-born wives of embassy employees, living in the same building with Miss Loisel, refused to open their door when the police ordered them out of their apartment.

Later the police stationed themselves outside the apartment building.



French Embassy officials believed Miss Loisel was wanted because she had been an assistant to Tymar de Brossin de Mere, embassy secretary and archivist, who was expelled from Poland Wednesday on espionage charges.

The attempt to arrest her was the latest in a series of incidents that have produced a severe diplomatic crisis between France and Poland.

The Poles first arrested Andre Simon Robineau, employed at the French Consulate at Szczecin, on espionage charges A second embassy attache was expelled with Brossin de Mere.

Chicago Opens Grain Exposition

CHICAGO, Nov. 26 (CP) — Agriculture's biggest show, the International Livestock and Hay and Grain Exposition, opened its doors today for its 50th annual eight day run.

Gathered under a single roof for the Exposition's golden jubilee are more than 11,500 head of cattle, horses, sheep and swine with an estimated total value exceeding $5,000,000.

Two dozen Canadians—mostly from Ontario—have entered livestock classes.

While a corps of livestock judges began the painstaking task of selecting the finest specimens of beef, pork and lamb on the hoof, a group of grain experts were pouring over some 3,000 samples of grain and hay including some of the finest from four Canadian provinces.

Many of the livestock and grain entries from the Dominion won top prizes at Toronto's Royal Winter Fair which ended last Wednesday.

Ferry Service Ends Dec. 31

COBOURG, Nov. 26 (CP) — The 42-year-old car ferry service hauling coal, automobiles and passengers across Lake Ontario between Rochester and Cobourg, will be abandoned Dec. 31.

The discontinuance was announced today by Mayor Joseph Smith, following conversations with Canadian National Railways officials, and was confirmed by R. E. Simpson, of Baltimore, Md. vice-president of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

The ferry service, consisting of two vessels, the Ontario I and the Ontario II, is owned jointly by the CNR and B and O, but is operated under Canadian registry.

Simpson said there had been a sharp decline in ferry traffic since the end of the Second World War, due largely to the CNR's shifting its coal supply sources. Bulk of the coal now purchased by the CNR in the United States, Simpson said, is being imported at Port Huron, Mich.

As recent as last September, B and O officials had voiced an opinion that "there always would be a ferry to Cobourg."

Mayor Smith said Cobourg estimated its annual tourist trade revenue from the ferry at $75,000.

Problem In Germany

WEISBADEN, Germany, Nov. 26—(AP) — Western Germans spend 60,000,000 marks ($16,500,000) a year on pornographic literature, the Evangelical Church of Hesse-Nassau said Friday. The church listed 71 west German novels, 18 booklets, 19 magazines, five nudist catalogues, 35 illustrated papers and seven weekly newspapers as pornographic.

Otonabee Gives 1949 Council An Acclamation

Unless the three vacancies on the School Board are contested there will be no election this year in Otonabee county.

Reeve, deputy reeve and the three Councillors were returned by acclamation at the nomination meeting held Friday afternoon in the Keene Town Hall.

21 years in Otonabee municipal

Reeve Harry Reid, a veteran of politics, was giv a second year. He succeeded W. W. Dawson as Reeve in 1949 after being defeated in a close race for the office the previous year.

The five men acclaimed are Harry Reid, reeve; R. R. (Dick) Stewart, deputy reeve; and three councillors —Norman McConkey, Dave McIntyre and Roy Spears.

They will have until 9 p.m. tonight to qualify.

Four candidates have allowed their names to stand for the three vacancies among the five trustees. They are Harry Stewart, Allan Davis, Tom Hope and Tom Weir. Should all four qualify it would force an election but it is understood, unofficially, that one of the men would withdraw rather than cause an election.

Term of office for trustees is two years. Wellington Sutton and Fred Hall have one more year to run.

About 60 Otonabee ratepayers turned out for the nomination meeting which was short and unexciting. For the previous years the open rivalry between Mr Reid and Mr. Dawson stirred up interest and controversy, feelings ran high.

On Friday afternoon the candidates each gave a short resume of the council's work for the year There were no verbal interchanges and few questions.

Several of the speakers stated this was an indication that the ratepayers of Otonabee were "pretty well satisfied" with Council's work for the year.

The few questions indicated some concern on two points: the progress in the county's equalized assessment under Stewart J Sparling, and Peterborough's notice that fire protection agreements with the townships would terminate at the end of 1949.

Eliminate Inequalities

Deputy Reeve Stewart stated that the new assessing going on in the county would eliminate inequalities, and eventually Otona-

terially altered the course of heart failure in this group of patients."

Dr. Wilfred Shute and his brother, Dr. Evan Shute, founders of the Shute Foundation at London, Ont., and long advocates of the vitamin E treatment, suggested that the vitamin was "misused" in the Toronto test, and asserted that the Toronto doctors were prepared in advance to bring in an unfavorable report.

Dr. Wilfred Shute said they had repeatedly advised that a start should be made with much smaller quantities than 300 milligrams daily. "No one would use such an experiment as was performed at the Toronto General Hospital if he knew anything about vitamin E," he said.

School 100 Years Ago

The guest speaker, Dr. Charles E. Phillips, University of Toronto, was introduced by G. M. Shouldice of the high school staff. Dr. Phillips is a lecturer in pedagogy at the Ontario College of Education and Canada's representative on the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural organization.

He gave a dramatic picture of the school of 1844 with its large fire place and pupils sitting on planks. He said that there were no blackboards, pictures, maps, nor globes. Home-made ink and quill pens were used.

"The teacher" he said, "had a pulpit-like desk with a closed top in which he kept a birch rod for the pupils and a bottle of whiskey for himself. He was generally an old soldier who was wounded and couldn't do anything else."

He said that sometimes an unruly urchin was placed on tip toes with his back up against a series of holes, one under the other, in the wall and kept under restraint by a wooden peg holding a strand of his hair in one of the holes. "However, a severe birching was the usual form of punishment," he added.

New Rope Tow At Belmont Club

Progress is being made on the new ski slope and rope tow at Belmont lake, just north of No. 7 Highway, between Havelock and Marmora.

Last winter the Belmont Ski Club built a beautiful log chalet with a stone barbecue fireplace and snack bar, and in spite of poor snow conditions elsewhere in the province, many enjoyable week-ends were spent at the club.

This year a rope tow is being installed by J. D. Cumming under the auspices of the Belmont Ski Club of Havelock. Clinton Melville, the winter sports expert of the Department of Travel and Publicity visited the hill and gave Mr. Cumming many helpful suggestions and advice on the design and installation of the ski tow.

To date the tow shed is nearly complete. A bulldozer has done an excellent job of taking off some small humps and filling in holes and hollows.

For those skiers who are not experts, there are many gentle slopes and bush trails through the pine woods. One of the most enjoyable features, unusual in Ontario ski clubs is ski-joring on the thick lake ice.

The secretary of the Belmont Ski Club is J. D. Cumming, Havelock.

Separate School Board Returned

The Separate School Board was filled for another year when six men were elected by acclamation to the six vacancies All but one of the newly-elected members of the board were the same men who had left the vacancies.

Martin J Roche retired from the board after serving 25 years and nominated Donald W. Hull to replace him. Those elected to serve the next two-year term were: Fergus O'Connor, Victor Mattucci, R. S. Hull, Dr. R. J. Epping, W. H. Toal, and Donald W. Hull.

No election for the Separate School Board has been held in about 30 years. Each year the number of nominations has just filled the number of vacancies.

Nomination day for the Separate School Board has been moved back one month so that it would coincide with the City Council nomination day If an election had been necessary, it would have been held December 5, the same day as the municipal Public School Board lections.

Murray Irwin Nominated

A candidate for the Board of Education, Murray Irwin, Ashburnham druggist, who served in the Royal Canadian Navy during the war, asked for the support of the electors in a neat little speech at the nominations meeting last night.

Mr. Irwin said he had never held any public office, but he was interested in educational matters because his father had been a school teacher.

"By that means I learned quite a lot about the teaching profession and school boards. Besides that I have a little girl who will soon be going to school. I have a definite interest in education, and especially education in Peterborough. If elected I'll endeavor to carry out my trust to the best of my ability. I hope the people make the best choice casting their votes, and that those who are elected will do the best job for them."

Freight Sets Record

SAULT STE. MARIE, Nov. 26. —(CP.)—The freighter Hochelaga, largest on the Great Lakes, Friday set a record for wheat cargoes passing through the Sault locks. The 640-foot Canada Steamship Lines ship, recently launched at Collingwood, carried 589,000 bushels of wheat en route from Fort William to Midland. The previous record of 574,000 bushels was set in 1928 by the Lemoyne.

Drew Suggests Full Rights Given To Indians

OTTAWA, Nov. 26. — (CP). — Members of the Commons, driving for prorogation by Dec. 3, Friday put in one of their most active sittings since the session opened Sept. 15.

The work ranged from adoption of a motion prolonging current sitting hours to passage of legislation aimed at plugging loopholes in Canada's Combines or Anti-price-fixing Act.

Members adopted a motion eliminating their half-holiday on Wednesdays and their Saturday holiday. They now will sit from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m., Mondays through Saturdays until prorogation, with two-hour breaks for lunch and dinner.

Prime Minister St. Laurent made one exception and said that for today the House will rise at 6 p.m.

Indian, Rights

On the Resources Department estimates, George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, urged establishment of a Royal Commission or a parliamentary committee to recommend ways of granting full citizenship rights and equal educational opportunities to Canada's Indians.

He said the Indian population is increasing rather than decreasing and no time should be lost in giving every Indian boy and girl educational opportunities equal to those of any other child in Canada.

He had met Indians all across Canada and felt that, given education and equal opportunities, they could take their full place in society.

In Ontario for instance, there were Indians prominent in various professions. It was examples such as these that showed that parliament had a responsibility to extend a full measure of citizenship to those whose background was so much a part of this country.

Must Move Slowly

Mr. Drew said he realized the move could not be made "rashly." Because of the type of training that already had been given, there were some obstacles in the way of the move.

Education was a provincial matter but more than mere education was needed. The education had to be given in surroundings where the Indians could feel that once they got out in life they would be able to put their learning to good use.

On estimates of the State Secretary's Department, State Secretary Bradley said the rate of promotion in the civil service from temporary to permanent status will be increased. There now are 45,000 permanent employees and 77,000 temporary.

Members passed a bill authorizing federal subsidy of $15,000,000 to assist in construction of an 83-mile extension of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway in British Columbia.

Jackson Park Creek Has Taken On New Grandeur With Freshly-Fallen Snow

Outlined by the freshly fallen snow Jackson Park Creek north of King St. is invested with unwonted beauty. The dark water against the white background and the bare limbs of the overhanging willows etched with the new snow might have been any little stream in a woodland setting. Its irregular course and shore lines would have appealed to a photographer's art. The creek babbled along as if conscious and appreciative of its brief glory, unmindful of its wretched companions of last midsummer, rusted cans, rubber tires and an occasional turtle wallowing in its shallows.

The creek looked like a new personality in its transformation, even if unheeded and unrecognized by the homebound passengers going that way from the late buses. Too bad, the Jaycees could not have seen it. Perhaps they would have saluted its scenic charm in the kindly half light of the night.

Houde Disappoints Gallery Tosses No Bombshells

By HAROLD MORISON

OTTAWA, Nov. 26—(CP)—Camilien Houde, colorful mayor of Montreal, has developed into one of Parliament's big surprises. Observers predicted before the session began that the rotund independent member for the new riding of Papineau would toss more than one verbal bombshell into the sombre chamber. Their prognostications proved wrong. Rather than toss a verbal bombshell, Montreal's chief magistrate has hardly thrown a firecracker.

He sits quietly in one corner of the chamber, saying little although the debate has turned from one controversial subject to another.

Friends and reporters have asked him when he expects to make his maiden speech. He merely smiles and shake his head.

Chances are, friends now say disappointedly, the mayor won't even make his maiden speech in this season. He'll merely sit it out, listening and watching.

But when the next session comes along, some time next January or February, the old political warrior who still appears to be feeling hi way into Parliamentary know-how, may make the fur fly.

Won't Commit Himself

Mr. Houde, who shies away from reporters, won't commit himself in so many words, but he leaves the impression that he'll have a lot to say on such matters as Dominion-Provincial constitutional relations and on rents.

In fact he appears to be just waiting until the Dominion-Provincial conference on the constitution gets under way here next Jan. 10 and to find out what Prime Minister St. Laurent, has up his sleeve.

An he appears to be hoping that when the next session rolls around, the Supreme Court of Canada will have given a verdict, or at least be holding hearings, on the question of Federal Rental Control validity.

Ask Better Treatment

CALGARY, Nov. 26 (CP) — The Dominion Government Friday was asked by the Alberta Coal Credit League to give sex criminals better hospitalization and psychiatric treatment. It said that jail terms seemed no solution.

It possibly was pneumonia, complicated by cancer.

The New City Hall

Illustrations of the design for the new city building which will begin to take form in stone and mortar next summer appear elsewhere in today's paper, together with an account of the plans. A study of the architect's drawings leads us to believe that the new building will be an excellent administrative centre, a dignified place for the city's court, boards and Council, and an architectural ornament.

* * *

There is little in the design that is venturous or will attract continental comment as a revolutionary piece of municipal architecture. Nor can it be said to be distinctly southern Ontario or Canadian. In fact, it strongly reminds us of New England town halls. To say this is not to detract from its worth, for New England has some very fine buildings. It is plain, useful, unpretentious and with a decent simplicity. These qualities recommend it to Peterborough. The clock-tower and cupola, and the fine main entrance relieve the building of any hint of the merely commonplace. Set back from the street, and with ample grounds (which we expect will be ornamentally landscaped) it will transform the whole Library block, and together with the two parks touching it, will give Peterborough at last an attractive, even splendid, civic heart of which we can be proud.

* * *

Peterborough's new city hall will be the first built in Ontario since the war of 1914-18, excepting the small, uninteresting town hall in St. Catharines, put up during Depression years as a relief project. On that score alone it is attracting wide Provincial interest.

More Houses To Relieve The Rental Pressure

The Government is gradually relaxing its rental controls with the intention of doing away with them completely as soon as practicable. Even the hoists in rent recently authorized were a step towards freedom from controls, for in some towns and with some types of houses the new ceilings are as high as prevailing rent now not under control. Only when there are enough houses to go around will the complete dropping of controls be relatively painless.

Proof that the Government is not completely out of step with the building program comes in the figures on new house-building during the first eight months of this year. In that period 55,435 new houses were built, 12,000 more than in the same period last year. There was an increase in all provinces excepting British Columbia. In Ontario 20,025 houses were completed in the period. This was an increase of 3,811 over the first eight months of 1948. There was an increase in Peterborough, from 158 to 291 in the 1949 period. Peterborough is in the lead of other cities of its size, excepting for Brantford, where 306 houses were completed, and Sarnia, where 394 were completed.

Disappearing Cheese Factories

The commonest mark of change and decay in the rural southern Ontario scene is the abandoned cheese factory. There it stands, a dilapidated sign of earlier industry, or reconverted to other uses, its original function forgotten by lads in the district even though they still direct strangers to turn right at the old cheese factory.

Many of these old factories encompass in their own walls the story of the rapid growth of the industry in Canada, its splendid peak, and its decline. None of them is really old, for the first Canadian cheese factory was established in Ontario as late as 1864. (It was not until 1873 that the first Canadian creamery appeared.) A large export market for Canadian cheese was found in Britain. This was exploited fully, but not well. Early standards were not good; shipping methods were poor, and even today many British people think of Canadian cheese as rubbery yellow mouse-trap stuff, to be used only if none other is available. Most Britons have not tasted our finest cheddar, as good as any produced anywhere in the world.

In 1863 Canada exported 6,141,570 pounds of cheese. The peak was reached in 1903, when 34,128,944 pounds were shipped overseas. Since then our cheese export has declined steadily except for a fillup during the war years. The reason for the decline is not chiefly that the British acquired a bad taste for Canadian cheese. The dairy industry found that it has other more profitable uses for its milk. The increasing urbanization of Canada has vastly increased the demand for whole milk. New processes have led to a profitable business in producing concentrated milk. And ice-cream, a strange delicacy in 1864, is now consumed by the millions of pounds. ($17,885,243 worth of the confection was produced in Canadian dairy factories in 1947.)

Although the number of dairy factories in Canada has decreased from 3,576 in 1900 to 2,068 in 1947, and cheese production has fallen off drastically, from 220,833,269 pounds in 1900 to 123,337,530 in 1947, fresh milk production has increased more than 200 per cent. and butter production has risen from 36,066,739 pounds at the turn of the century to 290,952,691 pounds in 1947 (the most recent precise figures). Peterborough County had in 1947, 14 dairy establishments employing 84 persons, producing $500,010 worth of butter, $243,540 worth of cheese, and no ice-cream. The total value of other dairy products such as condensed milk was $394,294.

Thus dairy production is booming, despite the decline in cheese-making and the disappearance of the old rural cheese factories. As a matter of fact, the government has deliberately hastened the disappearance by encouraging amalgamation of small cheese factories into larger, more efficient plants. The Federal Department of Agriculture pays a subsidy of fifty per cent. of the cost where two or more cheese factories amalgamate.

Dollars On Ottawa's Stone Heads

Somebody has been putting prices on Ottawa's statues, which is, we think, not exactly a courteous way to look at them. This stony-hearted person has estimated that the capital has $120,000 worth of them, valued only for their bronze, marble, cement and stone. Even if one is not affronted by this cold calculation, there is room for heated emotion over the prices put on the various carved heads. Is it just to value Sir Wilfrid Laurier at $25,000, and Sir John A. Macdonald at a mere $12,000? Must party prejudices afflict the two leaders even in their effigies? If these two dollar figures are correct, it would have been the part of a generous and understanding heart to explain that prices were lower when Sir John A. was erected, than in the post-Great War days when Sir Wilfrid took his place among the immortals on Capital Hill. No one in his right senses (unpolitical) should say that Sir Wilfrid was worth twice as much as Sir John A.

Next time we visit Ottawa we shall walk around the Parliament Buildings to see what price-tags have been set on Baldwin-Lafontaine, Thomas D'Arcy McGee, George Brown, Alexander Mackenzie, and even on Queen Victoria. Not that we are thinking of getting that Queen Victoria for Peterborough's Victoria Park.

Farewell To Dr. Moir

A new era in medical practice and care is coming into being in Peterborough, with the new Civic Hospital and the enlargement of St. Joseph's, with new techniques in treatment, new drugs, and also new doctors. This change is occurring at a time when several of our revered physicians and surgeons, after a life-time of devoted labour for the people of this city and district have withdrawn from active work. Dr. Archibald Moir is the latest of these to retire. He is shortly removing to Whitby, after continuous and arduous practice in the city since 1912 until last year when sudden illness struck him.

Dr. Moir is one of the district's most beloved citizens. His gentle nature, generous heart, and warm human understanding, endeared him to a whole Peterborough generation; his high professional standards, ministering skill and indefatigable labour of healing earned him the affectionate respect of all colleagues and thousands of patients. His good works were not confined to professional matters; he has served his church as elder, and the city as long-time member and sometime Chairman of the Board of Education.

He retires at a time of great changes in medical and surgical practice, and when wider scope for them in Peterborough is possible. He must have touches of regret that he is no longer able to practice under the new conditions. Yet when he first began his work in the city, there were new methods and the old Nicholls hospital was not then old; he shared in the development of surgery and medicine then forming.

The fond good wishes of this newspaper and of thousands of city and county people go with Dr. and Mrs. Moir as they take up life in retirement in Whitby.

The Marchbanks Correspondence

To Samuel Marchbanks, Esq.
Dear Mr. Marchbanks:

May I ask you a somewhat intimate question? What do you do with your empty bottles? For some years I have been accustomed to convey mine privately to a hardware store, which used them as containers for turpentine. But now, alas, they buy their turpentine ready-bottled, and a situation of the deepest embarrassment is pending in my cellar.

My bottles are, of course, of the type generally associated with vinegar.

Yours in perplexity,
SIMON GOASTE.

To the Rev. Simon Goaste, B.D.
Dear Rector:

I, too, have a mounting source of concern in my cellar. I know some people who drive by night to distant farms, where they dump their bottles. Yet others throw their bottles into nearby lakes. Quite a few people, the Librarian tells me, deposit their bottles in the alley behind the public library. But I, like yourself, have not as yet found any solution for the problem. Alack that the rag-bone-and-bottle entrepreneur has vanished from our midst!

My bottles, too, are of a sort that might well contain vinegar.

Yours unhelpfully,
S. MARCHBANKS.

To Samuel Marchbanks, Esq.
Dear S.M.:

Last night I was at a party at which someone commented on the premature greyness of Canadians, and at once three English people present hastened to attribute this to the great heat in our houses during the winter months.

I reflected that this theory about us and our hair has been held by the English for a century. Hearken to Susanna Moodie's opinion of our women, from "Roughing It In The Bush":

"The Canadian women, while they retain the bloom and freshness of youth are exceedingly pretty; but these charms soon fade, owing, perhaps, to the fierce extremes of their climate, or the withering effect of the dry, metallic air of stoves, and their going too early into company and being exposed, while yet children, to the noxious influence of late hours, and the sudden change from heated rooms to the cold, bitter winter blast."

Do you think there is anything in this? Are our women so early faded because of exposure to hot stoves, or exposure to the chilling blast of Canadian masculinity? Or to both at once? This is a matter upon which I ruminate.

Yours,
A. PILGARLIC.

To Samuel Marchbanks, Esq.
Honoured Sir:

You have been most indiscreet, Mr. Marchbanks, indeed you have! Now that Mr. Dandiprat's lawyers have been brought into the matter, I confess that I scarcely know which way to turn. Craven and Raven, whatever you may say to the contrary, are very astute. Indeed, they took a case to court and won it, so recently as 1924. I have consulted with the elder Mr. Mouseman, and also with Mr. Cicero Forcemeat, and we are agreed that we are pitted against some of the keenest legal talent in the country.

Oh, Mr. Marchbanks, why, oh why did you utter libel against Mr. Dandiprat? Before we know where we are this matter will come to court and, as I have told you before, anything can happen in court.

Your grieving attorney,
MORDECAI MOUSEMAN,
(for Mouseman, Mouseman & Forcemeat).

To Samuel Marchbanks, Esq.
Dear Marchbanks:

Will you lend me your Santa Claus costume? I want it for the annual party of the Rowanis Club, of which I am Grand Exalted Merrymaker this year. We are having a Christmas celebration, and I thought it would be an original idea if I dressed up as S.C. and gave everybody presents containing sneeze powder, white mice, dribble glasses and the like.

I hope you are not brooding about that little matter of the skunk? We have led the lawyers a fine dance, haven't we? Ha, na! Still, we are both men of the world, eh Marchbanks?

Will you send the S.C. suit to the cleaners right away, so that I can pick it up next week? I want to look well at the party, and those suits get pretty dirty when they are not taken care of.

Your neighbour,
DICK DANDIPRAT.

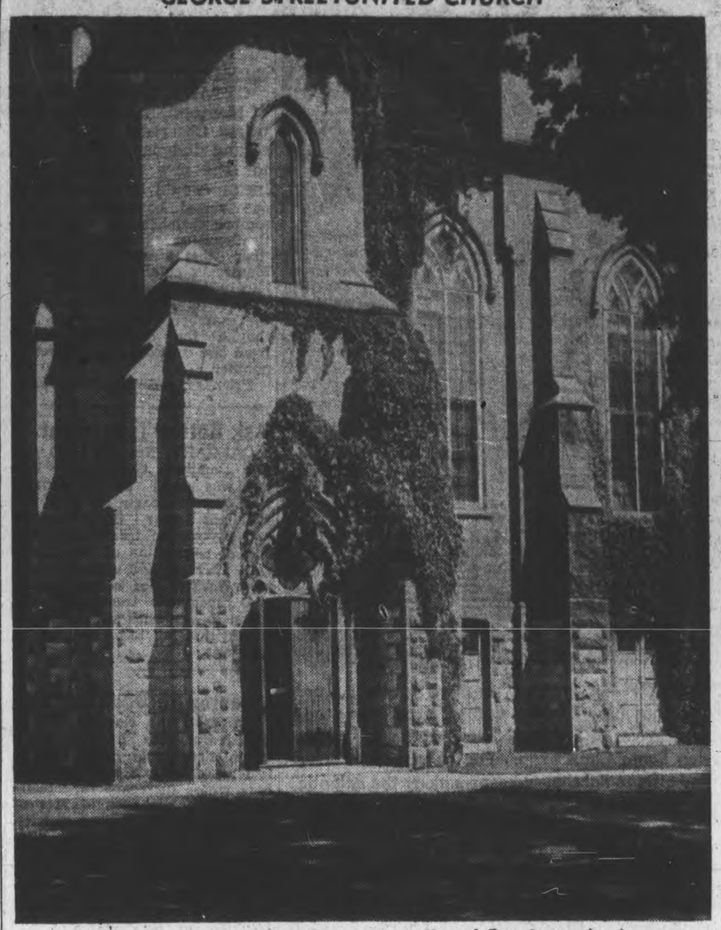
To Mouseman, Mouseman and Forcemeat
Dear Mr. Mouseman:

I am going out of my mind! That misbegotten ruffian Dandiprat has just written me a letter in which he virtually confesses that he put the skunk in my car!

Now Mouseman, what can you do to Dandiprat? Don't talk to me about the gallows; it is too good for him. Is there a thumbscrew anywhere that we can borrow? Or what about the Chinese water torture? Should I ask my laundry man if he will cooperate? Or what do you say to Mussolini's merry prank with a quart of castor oil? I warn you, Mouseman, if I do not have revenge I shall drown in my own gall! Get to work at once.

Yours furiously,
S. MARCHBANKS.

To Amyas Pilgarlic, Esq.
Dear Pil:



I don't suppose that you have noticed that Christmas Eve is a mere four weeks away? The Festive Season gapes to engulf us. As always I am at my wits' end about Christmas presents. The ideal present, of course, is money, particularly when you are receiving it. But if you start giving people money you inevitably find that you have to give them more (for the look of the thing) than you would spend on them in a shop. Anything under a dollar is likely to be sniffed at, by an adult.

But I have a plan. Canadians are just beginning to be conscious of Canadiana, and almost any old piece of junk counts as Canadiana. So I shall give Canadiana this year—an early washboard to one, a primitive coal scuttle to another, a hot water bottle (Early Canadian rubbercraft) to a third, an antique rag rug to a fourth—and with each I shall enclose a note explaining the charm and value of the gift.—"Thought you would appreciate this fine old piece of Canadian brasswork, originally used as a receptable for rejected chewing tobacco. Something of the atmosphere of an old-time livery stable seems to cling to it."—That kind of thing. I am doing all my Christmas shopping this year at charming little out-of-the-way shops on back streets. They are absolutely full of wonderful Canadiana, much of it priced under a dollar. Indeed, I picked up six wonderful pre-plastic toothbrushes, with real bone handles, yesterday for fifty cents. But don't beg to know where! We collectors must have our little secrets!

Yours in the Yuletide spirit,
SAM.

GEORGE STREETUNITED CHURCH

In The Examiner's series of camera studies of Peterborough places of worship the second is this picture of one of the entrances to George Street United Church. A distinctively Canadian organization, the United Church is a union of Methodist, Presbyterian and Congregational denominations, and to it may be applied the words of Edgar Dewitt Jones: "Get religion like a Methodist; conciliate it like a Congregationalist; pay for it like a Presbyterian."

Letter To The Editor

CLASSES IN FIRST AID

Sir: Your editorial on First Aid was good and timely. As a member of the St. John Ambulance I wish you had pointed out that both the Ladies and Gents Divisions are holding classes at present, teaching that very thing. The former at the Salvation Army Temple on Monday eve, the latter at Dixon House on Wednesday eve.

EDGAR D. CARSON.

LOCAL WORK IN FIRST AID

Sir: I would like to commend you on your editorial of the 21st re First Aid. You expressed exactly what the St. John Ambulance Brigade have been trying to put across for years, namely, not only knowing what to do at the proper time but what not to do as well.

In Peterborough we have two active divisions, an Ambulance Division for men and a Nursing Division for women. There is at the present time a class in both these divisions being conducted.

Several of our service clubs and some of our sporting organizations know the value of First Aid and ask for it. We try to have trained personnel at these activities, but sometimes we are forced to decline because we have not enough trained members, particularly in the Ambulance Division.

There are in Peterborough several men who have received this training in the past but for one reason or another have not kept on with it. These and any others who are interested would be welcomed to the brigade.

Any information required will be given by any member of the brigade.

Yours in first aid,
H. F. FERGUSON,
(D/S) Divisional Superintendent,
St. John Ambulance Brigade.

Please, Mr. Gordon

On one of the pool trains to Ottawa the other day a Toronto man and his wife were forced to stand in the draughty, narrow corridor of the dining car for 40 minutes before they could even get a seat at a table. It was another 20 minutes before their soup arrived. And this was in the middle of the week, not on a day when travel reaches peak proportions.

Surely the Canadian railways should be able to do something about this. During the war, of course, congestion was understandable. But now we are supposed to be living in normal times and apparently we can expect that a lot more people are going to be dining on trains than there used to be. That being the case the public will look for improvement.

We might learn something from Europe. On many of the express trains there, passengers desiring a meal are given a ticket and wait in their seats or chairs until their number is called. When it is, they find a table ready for them in the diner.

Perhaps this is something that Donald Gordon will look into when he takes over the C.N.R. The public, which should not expect Mr. Gordon to perform immediate miracles, will at least hope that if he can't speed up the meals he will make waiting more comfortable.—Financial Post.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Now it came to pass, when Sanballat, and Tobiah, and Geshem the Arabian, and the rest of our enemies, heard that I had builded the wall, and that there was no breach left therein; (though at that time I had not set up the door upon the gates); that Sanballat and Geshem sent unto me, saying, Come, let us meet together in some one of the villages in the plain of Ono. But they thought to do me mischief.

And I sent messengers unto them, saying, I am doing a great work, so that I cannot come down: why should the work cease, whilst I leave it, and come down to you? Yet they sent unto me four times after this sort; and I answered them after the same manner.

Then sent Sanballat his servant unto me in like manner the fifth time with an open letter in his hand; wherein was written, It is reported among the heathen, and Gashmu saith it, that thou and the Jews think to rebel: for which cause thou buildest the wall, that thou mayest be their king, according to these words. And thou hast also appointed prophets to preach of thee at Jerusalem, saying, There is a king of Judah: and now it shall be reported to the king according to these words. Come now therefore, and let us take counsel together.

Then I sent unto him, saying, There are no such things done as thou sayest, but thou feignest them out of thine own heart. For they all made us afraid, saying, Their hands shall be weakened from the work, that it be not done. Now therefore, O God, strengthen my hands. (Neh. 6: 1-9.)

Secrecy Overdone

Cabinet secrecy successfully prevented the people from learning that the Ministry had broken the law of the land in refusing to make public the Combines report on the flour milling industry. Thus preventing voters from knowing about this report prior to the election. It is just too bad there hadn't been a leak on that one. If the Cabinet, in secrecy, will break the law that is the best argument in favour of leaks. Else, what assurances are there against similar occurrences behind Cabinet doors?

In big law firms or private corporations, where private business is being discussed, there is reason for secrecy. But in a democracy, where Cabinet is discusing public business, secrecy easily can be overdone.

Protest Coming

London is justified in joining other major cities in Canada in a universal protest to Ottawa against a Government formula which leaves them unable to qualify for grants in lieu of taxation on Government properties.

In London as in most large cities Federal property assessment is less than the arbitrary four per cent. laid down by Mr. Abbott. This basis of calculation is considered unjust in many communities where rising costs are making civic administration a heavy burden.

A united protest should be made to Ottawa, the position of the cities fully explained, and a fuller explanation of Government policy demanded.—London Free Press.

A BRITISH OPINION

"If somebody don't quit doing overtime on that top 'Noel,' somebody's going to find himself redundant."
London Express Service

Remember that old character of fishing lodges, the guide? He used to mooch your cigarettes and whisky and pay for them in tall tales of whoppers he had caught. But he caught you very few until the last day, a sort of come-on for the next season. He not only burned your shore dinners but totalled up your final account with outstretched arms. He used to provide you and your friends with many a laugh each winter as you relived the carefree days at Lovely Lake where Old Bill ruled supreme and made you like it. Old Bill is through, outdated, for he and his sons are going to school. Yes, sir, Ontario's first school for guides will open at the Forest Ranger School, Dorset, on April 3. Guides are to be selected from all parts of the province and will be given instruction in all subjects relating to their profession. Following completion of the course, candidates will instruct others in their own districts in proper guiding procedure. No one will miss Old Bill. He was beginning to put a big crimp in the tourist attraction business. And his day is done.

Rice Lake For Musky Or Pickerel?

The Northumberland Fish and Game Association at a recent meeting in Cobourg proposed that the last two weeks of 'lunge fishing be eliminated and shore casting for pickerel during the present season from May 15 to June 1st be done away with in favor of drift fishing, to start June 1st instead of June 15. Department biologist Charles Weir tried to find out from them whether they wanted Rice Lake to become a spot for pickerel fishing or one for muskie and bass. They are on the spot now to state what type of fish they wish to promote. From the standpoint of feed, Rice Lake is now and always has been a natural for 'lunge and bass.

With far more hunters in the bush this year than ever before, the old order changeth for those who are used to hunting with dogs. A Harwood party told me that they lost more deer to strange hunters this season north of Peterborough than they could count; they were disgusted. "A man who takes a dog to hunt these days is nothing but a sucker," said one, "and lucky to get it home alive."

Brown-Faced Hound Home-Hunting

The Ray family hunters came back from their camp at Stoney Creek, above Lake Catchacoma, with two bucks and a doe and a stray hound that wandered into camp and wouldn't leave. They took it home out of kindness but don't want it. Any hunter missing a hound pup with a brown face, brown, black and white body may have same by calling Gordon Ray at 8006.

There is no age limit for deer hunters. In the Haliburton Highlands they start early, and as proof, 14-year-old Melville Miller of Wilberforce shot his first deer on opening day. At the other end of the span is an unconfirmed story of Harry Hubbell of Havelock, nearing 70, who bagged five deer during the first few days; he was the only crack shot in his camp.

A banded Canada goose was caught at the Jack Miner's Sanctuary in Kingsville recently that Jack had banded in the fall of '30. This indicated that the goose had made 38 flights on north-south flyways. Six, eight or ten-year recatches are not uncommon, say experts, but 19 years is rare.

The Final Check Off, Deer! Deer!

The city is alive with deer hunting yarns from hunters and Sunday highway observers. You hear that the Blank party got their quota and that Joe Doak and his gang found none. Others swear there were no deer anywhere in the county but Bill Smith said he counted all kinds of carcasses on cars during last Sunday's drive. It's all very confusing. Let us examine the actual picture from the cold statistics of road block Game Wardens in place of reporting old wives' tales. Here are the big check-off figures from the Burleigh-Buckhorn and Buckhorn village barricades.

During two of the four checking days 1,018 hunters came south bringing with them 160 bucks, 127 does, 64 fans, 5 bears, a total of 351 deer with a nice balance between sexes. Seventy-five per cent of these animals came from Peterborough County, the rest from farther north. There were more hunters than in '48 but fewer non-residents and where the estimate of one deer falling to each fourth hunter was foreeast before the season began, this year's figures show that one in every three hunters shot a deer. Diseased livers contracted by elk from eating a species of snail on wild fodder has shown up in deer livers. Cam Rowatt did a check on Sunday in the interest of conservation and science and found 50 per cent of his specimens diseased. This condition may have been going on for years and current study is revealing it for the first time.

NEW CITY HALL TAKES ARCHITECTURAL FORM

Let Contracts Early Winter, Plans Show Dignified Building

By A. J. THOMAS

A Peterborough bachelor's munificence is giving Peterborough its finest building. The bachelor was the late William George Morrow, a financier most closely associated in Peterborough thought with the Toronto Saving and Loan Company (whose main offices on George Street the Grey and Bruce Trust now occupy). The finest building will be the new City Hall.

Mr. W. G. Morrow died in 1939. By his will he left the residue of his considerable estate—at the discretion of his executors — to build for his fellow-citizens an official city building worthy of Peterborough's past and her expansive future. The monies so designated have now reached a total of half a million dollars. With the coming of next spring the building Mr. Morrow provided for will begin to rise.

For nearly ten years, most of them war years, the new city building was a remote dream. Then action was necessary, to conform with the terms of the will. After much heart-searching the Council decided on the site: the Public Library block, bounded by George, McDonnel, Water and Murray. Cheaper sites could have been found, but only the best and most appropriate site was deserving of the bequest. (Incidentally, the Morrow bequest was for the building alone, not for the site.)

Last year an expropriation by-law was passed to acquire the houses and sites in that built-up block. Early in the year Mr. W. H. Bosley of Toronto, an evaluator of continental renown, was hired to see what could be done in a reasonable way to purchase the land (and buildings to be demolished) for the City Building. He is now negotiating Where necessary, the expropriation by-law will be enforced, and purchase prices taken to arbitration. All residents in the block have been given notice to vacate by May 1st.

The silliest woman can manage a clever man; but it needs a very clever woman to manage a fool!

Rudyard Kipling

Earlier this year the architectural firm of Marani and Morris, Toronto, were engaged to draw up plans. They have now almost completed them. Illustrations of the building are shown on this page; also suggested in rough outline is the internal layout.

Calls for tenders will be made early in the new year, and there are indications that numerous construction firms are interested in bidding for the work. Actual work of demolition and construction is expected to begin before next summer.

No official estimate has yet been made public of the cost of acquiring the site. Nor is there an estimate of the building costs There is a reasonable hope that they will not be too far above the money available from the Morrow bequest.

THE building will take the form of a short-stemmed T, with the horizontal (north-south) main wing facing George Street. The north end of the T-top will be shorter than the south wing. In the remote future the Public Library (which architects consider a monstrosity) may be torn down, and that wing extended. In the more remote future the T may become an H, with a new complete wing added to the Water Street frontage.

The building will be of stone probably not of local stone. (Peterborough county quarries are mostly inactive, and not suited to a large operation such as this building would require.)

There will be two storeys, with a full basement, and a clock-tower and cupola. The basement is to be the same size as the super-structure, and not really a basement at all, for the ceiling will be as high as those of the upper storeys, and the illumination will be as good.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE outside appearance is suggested by the illustrations on this page. The only existing house in the block which will remain is the sound, rather pleasing building on the corner of McDonnel and Water. It is well that this building should be preserved Not only is it a good house; it has historical associations. It was built for Dr. George Burnham, probably by his father the Rev Mark Burnham, and is patterned after the Rev. Mark Burnham's bigger home in East City. The Rev. Mark was an early and noted Anglican cleryman in the city Dr. George Burnham was the father of Ham Burnham, M. P., whom many residents remember It has since been ocupied by a late Mayor, J. J. Turner, and his family, including Reg. Turner, who died this month.

This house will be used temporarily by the Department of Public Health. It is planned that it will become an annex of the Library, housing the Children's Library, when the new City Hall is completed.

LET us take another look at the outside, as the architect's drawings and the imagination picture it. The west-east stem of the T, running to Water Street, will be devoted exclusively to Police department. The building's main entrance is on George Street and adorned with pillars. There is a small third floor, in the clock tower. This was necessary to house the cooling and air system. It has been enlarged to provide a good apartment for the chief caretaker and family. There is method in this housing arrangement. A caretaker will always be present; insurance rates will therefore be lower, and a good type of chief caretaker will be anxious for the job.

The pent-house apartment should prove to be most attractive, giving a view to two parks

This clock-tower will be floodlit. Since new lamp standards are necessary on George Street, arrangements have been made so that special lamps will be attached to the standards to discreetly illuminate the whole of the new building.

Between the existing brick Turner house and the police end of the new building a new garage will be put up. There will be ample parking space along the Water Street front.

The main wing along George Street will be 223 feet long and 46 feet wide. The entrance lobby and the Police Department stem of the T will be 42 feet wide. This police stem of the T will be 70 feet long. Apart from the main entrance, the building will have five outside doorways.

The north (Library end) of the main wing will be 60 feet long; the south, Murray Street end, will extend twice as far from the main entrance. The building is set back 38 feet from George Street sidewalk.

THE basement is designed for offices, workshops, stolen goods, baby clinics, department of health, records and vaults. The heating system will also heat the Public Library. In the Police T-stem are ten cells for prisoners (eight of them equipped with toilets), policemen's kitchen and lavatory.

The ground floor contains the lobby, which will have a tiled floor map of Peterborough county and surrounding areas. To the north are offices, to the south public space and general offices, and the City Clerk's and Mayor's offices. The former's is 15 ft. by 20 ft. The mayor's is 20 ft. by 12 ft. not including private hall-way and cloak-room. The city tax collector and treasurer are also to have office space on that end of the ground floor. In spite of the number of lavatories in the whole building there is not one in the north wing of the ground floor, and only one in the south wing, one in the Police wing. Between the first and second floors, off the lobby, are what appear to be fine flights of stairs. These, with the step leading into the building and the public alley-way going off to the south wing, should make the immediate total interior effect imposing.

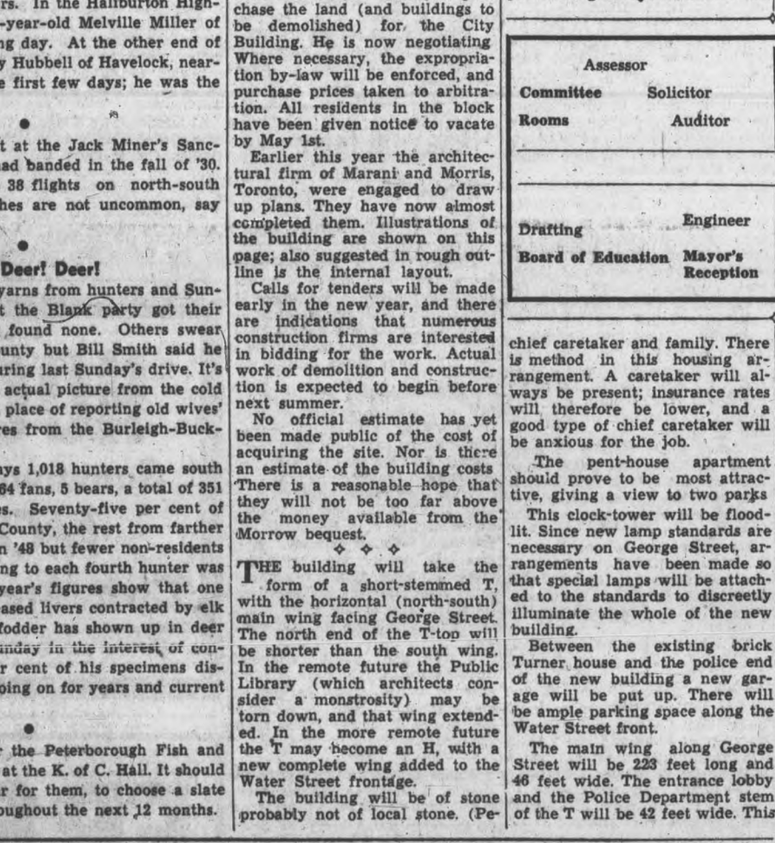
THE second floor is the key to the city's heart. Over the lobby is the council room. To the north, off it, is the Mayor's reception room; a most excellent thing to have. Let us hope that its appointments are fine. To the south, off the Council Chamber, is a spacious committee room.



On the second floor also, in the north (Library-side wing) are Board of Education rooms, including a Board Room. In the south (Murray Street side) are general offices of the Board of Education and other of its offices, and Public Health offices. The Board of Education's space has been enlarged, after protests, and brought up from the basement floor. In the Police Department wing are the Court Room and various offices having to do with that aspect of Peterborough life.

The sites of the new city hall is well chosen to display the building in the best light and surroundings. When all the houses except the Turner home on the McDonnel-Water Corner (shown faintly in the architect's drawing reproduced on this page in the upper middle) are razed, the city hall will have only two neighbours—The Library, and the Turner house, both public property.

Across George Street is Confederation Square, backed by public buildings; kitty-corner behind is Victoria Park, backed by the Court House at the top of the hill. A glance at the architect's illustration, which shows the city hall's ground space (which will be landscaped), and the imagination adding to it the two parks, reveal what a goodly total green belt will be formed by the three blocks. It will give the city's centre a new look, a most refreshing and pleasant one.

It may be noted that the new City Hall has a minimum (excluding the caretaker's apartment in the top) of 109 rooms, not counting the prisoners' cells and several rooms this scanner of the plans has been unable to count. It also includes 15 lavatory rooms, not counting eight toilets in the cells and one on the top floor; a total of 24.

First City Hall Built 1851

(Here is an account of Peterborough's first city buildings, and the laying of the corner-stone on September 27, 1851. It is taken from a hodge-podge history of the County published in Toronto in 1884. The compiler of this history was almost completely dependent on Dr. Poole's 1867 history of Peterborough for his local details.)

Peterborough continued for the first twenty years of its existence a mere village, for municipal purposes forming a part of the Township of North Monaghan. But from the date of its incorporation as a town, January 1st, 1850, it took a new stride on the road of progress, the pace of which she has never since relaxed. The population at that time was 3,180. The first Mayor was Thomas Benson, and the first Town Clerk, C. J.. Vizard.

Property increased in value, the old wooden buildings were demolished, and blocks of red and white brick took their place, public spirit was unanimous in the wish to promote every municipal improvement, a wish which was well carried out by the newly-elected council. A prize of $100 was offered for plans and estimates for a new town hall and market house, also for a uniform series of buildings to occupy three sides of the Market Square.

Plans were submitted by Mrs. Thomas, of Toronto, and by Mrs. Kivas Tully; those of the former gentleman were accepted, not without suspicion on the part of many that the council had been unfairly biased in their decision. The corner-stone was laid with much ceremony on September 25th, 1851, by the Mayor, Charles Hudson.

The following inscription, on parchment, was deposited in the corner-stone: "On the 27th day of September, A. D. 1851, Charles Hudson, Esq., Mayor, laid the founlation of this building, erected by order of the Town Council of the Town of Peterborough. Members of the Council: Charles Hudson, Esq., Mayor, James Harvey, Joseph Spenceley, John Reid, Thomas Chambers, Clark Spalding, James T. Henthorn, Edmund Chamberlin, Egerton Perry, M.D., Thomas Hutcheson, Robinson Rutherford, and John Haggart. Members of the Building Committee: Edmund Chamberlin, James T. Henthorn, Thomas Chambers, John Reid, and James Harvey, Esquires. Walter Sheridan, Esq., architect; Mr. David Taylor, contractor. (Signed) W. H. Wrighton, town clerk."

Petes Defeat Legionnaires In Rough Exhibition Fray

The Petes defeated Legionnaires 5-3 before a fair-sized crowd at the arena last night in a fast exhibition senior "B" tilt. The old feuding spirit between these two local squads threatened at different times to flame anew, and there were two fist fights and several more double roughing penalties handed out. The Petes drew 11 of the 21 penalties in the roughish and speedy struggle, and they earned the win. The count was 2-1 for Petes in the first frame and 4-3 for them going into the third. One long angle drive got by Ross Nicholls and the count probably should have ended 4-3. Ray Harding in the other net was steady throughout, and both defences worked hard. Murray Fife and Alf Griffin led the winners at bat with three points each, Ron Horton—who went good all the way—having two, and Freddy Harvey and Junior West one each. Joe Rochetta topped Legion with three points, Bill Crowley getting a pair, and Doug Mortimer one.

Petes Ahead

McMaster was gated for tripping and Toodie Greenlaw came close. Later, Hill, Vitarelli and Fife tangled and drew minors for roughing. They were back when Crowley got it for tripping and Fife followed for high-sticking. A Rochetta-Mortimer thrust was close before they returned. Fife put the Petes in front in close with Griffin aiding, the defence being sucked up. Rochetta got it back shortly on a forward from Crowley, D. Mortimer also earning an assist. Ross robbed West and Fife and Burns were gated for roughing it. Garvey again sent the Petes in front with a long angle shot on West's pass near the finish.

Play was fast, hot and even throughout the second. Collins and Montgomery hopped the boards for roughing and Fife scored from Griffin and Horton, the latter setting the play up smartly. Legrow and Doug Mortimer swung fists and drew majors. Two were back when Crowley counted a neat one in close from Rochetta, but Fife got it back smartly on a fast, lone rush and stab from the side. Hill was waved over for high-sticking and Fryia followed for slashing. They were two shy and the Petes poured it on, but Rochetta got a goal on a sudden breakaway. All were back when McMaster got the finger for charging, and Legrow went next for interference to leave the Foley flock short two Legion pressed some, but did no damage.

Griffin Scores

Burns drew the official nod for boarding to open the third and Griffin cashed in on it with a goal on Horton's pass inside. Burns got back and Griffin went off for holding but returned and play was hot and even. Jopling got it next for gentle boarding, but returned as Fryia-Hill thrust nearly clicked for the Ellis outfit. Jopling and Legrow made Nicholls hop and then Fryia and Legrow tangled in a fight and drew majors. They resumed it in the sin bin and spilled out on the ice, both being chased for the rest of the game. It was warm and pretty even the final few minutes.

Legion — Goal, Nicholls; defence, Burns and D. Mortimer; centre, Rochetta; wings, Crowley and Montgomery; alternates, Parnell, Stewart, Greenlaw, Hill, Coombs, Fryia and Vitarelli.

Petes — Goal, Harding; defence, Horton and Leonard; centre, West; wings Creighton and Garvey; alternates, Jopling, Conlin, Fife, Collins, Griffin, Coughlin, Legrow, McMaster, and Wasson.

HALIFAX—(CP)—A new device—green-shaded spotlights for night practices of the Wanderers senior football team — seem to have paid off. Two years ago the team didn't score a point; last year they didn't win a game; this year, using the lights for the first time, they made the semi-finals of the City Canadian Football League.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC PERDUE, Sports Editor.

Being a man of a few million words when bending o'er a typewriter, we can't speak worth a hoot on our feet. Too flat maybe. So we only mumbled a few words and sat down when called upon the other eve at the PMLA dinner. This is the speech we should have made: "Officers, coaches and managers of the PMLA—Thanks first for the invitation to be here, and thanks for the fine co-operation given the press throughout the past season. Congratulations to President Ken Kingston, Convener Walt Murphy and the other officials, as well as you chaps who coached and managed minor lacrosse teams, for an excellent job. You worked hard and your only recompense is that feeling of satisfaction for a job well done. Keep up the good work."

* * * * * *

And we could add: "Not only are you men doing a lot for sports and for lacrosse, you are doing a great deal for the youth of our city. You are taking care of more than 400 boys all summer, making them better and healthier young citizens. It is nice that the Recreation Commission gives you some $300 a year, but it might—as your work for recreation here is as important as any. It is nice, too, that the senior 'A' lacrosse club turns over five per cent of gates to minor lacrosse, and well it might. You are developing future senior players, advertising the game and educating many new fans. Lots of continued success in the coming year." That's about what we should have said.

Ask Grant For Minors

In line with this, we notice where the Ontario Sports Federation is requesting all leagues and sports' associations to endorse the Federation's request for an annual grant of $10,000 from the provincial government, commencing in 1950. This grant would be administered by the Federation and would be used to assist minor-age groups in all sports throughout Ontario. The best method of endorsement is to write both to the local M.P.P. and the Minister of Education. It is a comparatively small grant but would do a lot of good for youngsters of the province. Local league secretaries should get busy right away.

An item from the Kitchener sheet: "Something new has been added to the press box at Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens, a compartment for Conny Smythe, generalissimo of the Maple Leaf chain. It's quite an odd looking affair, having a top and front along the lines of pilot house on a cabin boat. There are blue curtains on either side to keep out peering eyes, while on the inside are a heater, telephone and seat cushion. All the comforts of home in Smythe's shanty." Pardon us, please, while we retch a bit. Next thing, the proud poobah of the Leafs will wear an illuminated shirt front—and to heck with Hydro—informing awe-stricken Torontonians that they are gazing upon Conny Smythe himself.

Martins and the Coys

There's many a feud that has continued long after the cause of it was forgotten. So it seems with the Petes and Legionnaires in their civil (or uncivil?) puck warfare. Guys like Fife, Legrow, Fryia and a few more—who weren't in on the old warfare at its start—are quite ready to carry on the tradition. And the older puckists, of course, forget friendships when they face each other on the ice. It as only supposed to be a friendly warmup exhibition last p.m. but there were 21 penalties, including two for fighting—one of 'em boiled out of the penalty box again—and four or five for roughing it up in pairs. Looks like a fine season for local fans if the players don't carve each other up first.

* * * * * *

The Petes earned the 5-3 win and showed they are coming back fast and will be a definite threat to all competitors this semester with their mixture of veterans and youngsters. Griffin and West of the young chaps looked good, while Harding, Horton and speedy Fife stood out for the more experienced fellows. The rest clicked well, too. Legion's defence worked okay, and the first front line showed to advantage most of the way. Parnell, also. Both teams played good early-season fast hockey, but spoiled it at times by this feuding business, going for the man instead of the puck. Rough play may attract fans, but penalties hurt the team. Godfrey of Legion was in Toronto and Tompkins of Petes was out with an injured toe.

Carveth Trade To Detroit May Boomerang

By VIC MORRIS, JR.
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Montreal Canadiens are still dubious about that trade that sent winger Joe Carveth to Detroit and brought Calum McKay to the Habs.

General Manager Frank Selke remembers only too well the cries of protest and the ensuing backfire that resulted in a trade that saw popular Buddy O'Connor leave the Montreal scene to become one of New York Rangers stars.

Selke admitted that the move "may have been a little hasty" but quickly added, "O'Connor benefitted from it, anyway."

But in the case of Carveth, a 31-year-old native of Regina, Sask., playing his 10th season in the National Hockey League, it may be a little different.

Following his trade to Detroit, the right winger unleashed a scoring spree that echoed surprised gasps along Montreal's hockey row. He scored five goals and three assists in three games for a total of eight points to give him eight of his total of 10 points so far this season in three games with his new bosses.

Had To Have Answer

Selke had to be ready with an answer this time. He remembers only too vividly the many occasions he ducked behind pillars to avoid the wrath of Montreal followers shortly after the O'Connor "boomerang."

He puts it this way:

Detroit's powerful checking forwards provide the proper foil for an old smoothie like Carveth. Joe, who has lost the spring in his legs, cannot bull his way around the younger defencemen, but if allowed to cruise unmolested he is certain to score some very important goals. When we made the switch to Detroit it was intended to send Carveth to one of the lesser teams in the Detroit chain.

I ventured the opinion if given a real trial with the Red Wings, Joe would score at least a dozen goals before the end of the season. He scored three big ones against Toronto . . ."

Tonight the six teams will all see action. The league-leading Detroit Red Wings will play hosts to Chicago Black Hawks. Boston will visit Toronto Maple Leafs and Canadiens battle the Rangers at Montreal.

Again Sunday night the teams will all be in action.

Canadiens will move over to Detroit, Toronto plays at Chicago and Rangers visit Boston.

Nurses-Neill's Get Wins In Cage Loop

Nurses Srs. took a 32-20 victory over Nurses Jrs. while Neill's coiled to a 34-16 decision over Black's in Girls' Basketball League fixtures in the YWCA gymnasium last evening. Plenty of action was dished up as the scores mounted in both tussles, though not too many fouls were called in the speedy going. Another lasses' twin bill is listed for there next Friday night.

The initial tilt was a fast one and a good game to watch with plenty of passing. The junior Nurses turned in a fine effort against the seniors, trailing 23-13 at the half and being outscored only 10-7 during the hot last half. Agnes Bowler and Joan Plunkett were effective going up the floor for quick long shots, with G. Wiechocek and Joan Smith also going well. V. Latondresse, Marion Dugan, Bev Gamble and Betty Sutton all showed to advantage for the juniors, who had four foul shots to six. Teams:

Nurses Jrs.—V. Latondresse 7, B. Sutton 4, R. Green, B. Gamble, P. Boadway, S. Brooks 2, J. Brown 1, M. Dugan 4, B. Wiley, K. McElroy, S. Langdon 2.

Nurses Srs.—A. Bowler 13, J. Plunkett 12, G. Wiechorek 6, J. Deyell, J. Smith 2, G. Fleming, S. Townsend, F. MacKenzie, S. Wilkinson, J. Bulmer.

Second Game

The nightcap of the twin bill was a fast affair with the victorious Neill's squad earning the decision with good offensive work. They racked up a big early lead and were coasting in front 22-8 at the intermission, but Black's battled hard in the last half to make it a game. The victors whipped the ball around and shot well with Dot Callan leading the snipers with 12 points, Wix, Floyd, M. Freeman, J. Vass and J. Dunk also being effective. Ruth Hewitt was good under the hoop for the losers and the whole team worked hard. Teams:

Neill's—P. Stewart, W. Floyd 5, M. Freeman 6, G. Post, J. Vass 6, D. Callan 12, F. Floyd, J. Dunk 5, D. Saunders, J. Millard.

Black's—A. Hickling, M. Beggs 2, C. Ferguson, J. Caverly 2, L. Nayler, R. Beard 2, M. McKee, R. McInroy, M. Laing, D. McNeely, R. Hewitt 7, M. Knox 3.

Here And There In Sports . . .

By The Canadian Press

Toronto Varsity won an easy 5-1 victory over McGill University Friday night in the Montreal opener of the senior Intercollegiate Hockey League before 2,500 fans, who pelted the ice with tennis balls three times during the fixture.

The slow-moving McGill squad had a two-man advantage four times—twice each in the second and third periods—but they were unable to offer a challenge to the smooth-playing visitors.

Ernie Frey scored Varsity's first tally at :53 of the opening period while McGill's Jack Hennessy was serving a tripping penalty. Bob Marshall, former Stratford and Oshawa player, tied the count a short time later to give Montreal its only score of the game. Vernon added another for the visitors.

Walters and Baldy Tourcott broke through the weak McGill defence in the second period to boost Toronto's lead to 4-1 and Moore added another in the final session.

Young Lester Felton of Detroit floored Ross Virgo of Rochester, N.Y., three times Friday night as he pounded out a 10-round decision before 7,818 fans at Detroit's Olympia Stadium.

Felton got a unanimous decision in contrast to his previous two fights that touched off a lot of debate.

In one of those Felton won a decision over Kid Gavilan of Cuba in a bout that led to a state investigation of rumors that the fight had been fixed. The boxing commission said no evidence was uncovered to support the rumor.

Felton had to settle for a draw with Tony Pellone of New York in a Nov. 9 fight here. Most of the fans thought Felton had won that one.

Two long shots finished in a photo for place and the judges gave second to Shimmer, which returned $45.60 and $20.40. Cacique gained third and paid $16.40.

Senior Marlboros Crush Owen Sound Mercury's 11-2

By The Canadian Press

The two Toronto Marlboros entries in the Ontario Hockey Association still are going strong. A goodly supply of scoring power was the keynote Friday night.

In the senior A loop almost the whole team had a hand in the win as Marlies went on a scoring splurge and crushed Owen Sound Mercurys 11-2. The Junior Dukes came through in the final period to down a scrappy bunch of Barrie Flyers 7-5.

In other games last night, Kitchener-Waterloo drew to within one point of second-place Owen Sound by blanking the last-place Hamilton Tigers 3-0 in a senior tussle at Hamilton. In other games Windsor climbed to a second-place tie with Toronto St. Michael's College, the only idle team last night, by defeating Guelph Biltmores 3-1.

The last-place Stratford Kroehlers had to be satisfied with a 3-3 draw with Oshawa Generals, and Galt Black Hawks staged a last-period drive to down St. Catharines Teepees 8-5.

At Toronto, Marlies surged into a 4-1 first-period lead on goals by Johnny McLellan, Johnny McCormack, Don Rope and Red Johnson. Bruno Favero counted a singleton for the Mercurys in that session.

All Toronto

The third period was all Toronto. Counters were cegisted by Frank Sullivan, Chuck Blair, with his first of three, and Al Buchanan. Hugh Bolton, husky Toronto rearguard, counted the 11th goal for the winners before Jack Ingoldsby sailed in with the Owen Sound marker. Blair tallied two more and Bob Hassard got one to end the scoring.

At Barrie, the Marlies had to come from behind to win. Enso Aannatta Jerry Toppazzini and Real Chevrefils flashed the light in the initial frame for Flyers while George Itken and Lorne Pirie turned the trick for Toronto.

Toronto grabbed the lead in the second on goals by Danny Lewicki, George Armstrong and Jack McKenzie, but Barrie came back to tie it up, Stan Long and Rick Hogg counting.

Larry Regan's pair of goals in the final session gave the Dukes the hard-earned win.

Blow Chance

St. Catharines blew their chance for a second place tie when Galt tallied five times in the third period to win 8-5. Teepees were leading 3-1 at the end of the first on goals by Mel Mullen, Jack Andrews and Wayne Brown against George Ford's single for Galt. Then George Ford tallied his second and Jack Hill counted once in the second to tie it up.

Teepees took a one-goal lead on Bill Altoff's goal in the third but Galt came roaring back with Pete Conacher, Jack Lumley, John Green, Bronco Horvath and Godfrey rapping the rubber home.

Teepees made a belated comeback attempt but it produced only a single by Bill Altoft, his second of the game.

In the game at Guelph, Windsor sprang into a two-goal lead as Glen Skov and Bob Rawlyk whipped counters in for the Spits.

Biltmores counted their lone counter in the middle frame. Vic DiMarco, who turned in a creditable effort through the whole game, was the marksman. Windsor closed out the scoring in the final period, Mike Delich picking up the point with a solo effort.

Oshawa and Stratford played through a scoreless first period. O'Hearn clocked in the second with his first goal and Dinny Flanagan followed up with one a minute later to put Kroehlers two up. Don Hall and Marcel Clements knotted the count in the third, Clements clicking with less than a minute remaining.

Both teams counted in overtime play. Ted O'Connor scored for Oshawa and O'Hearn for Stratford.

Lear Anxious Use More Balls

TORONTO, Nov. 26—(CP)—Coach Les Lear of the Calgary Stampeders doesn't "get the idea" of using only one ball in today's Grey Cup final against Montreal Alouettes. And he is determined to do something about it in a pre-game huddle with Alouette officials this morning.

The one-ball-a-game system is a custom, not a rule, in senior Eastern Canadian football.

"Let's smarten up and use two or three balls as we do out West, particularly if the field is wet," he said in an interview Friday night. "If the field is a bit wet, but still good enough footing for pass receivers, the passer shouldn't be hampered by trying to handle a wet ball. He should be given at least a 50-50 chance of completing the forward and it makes for a good ball game."

There's an even chance Montreal will see eye to eye with the defending champions on the subject. If it turns up a bit slippery —and there's that possibility — Montreal probably would go for the Lear idea just to prove Flinging Frankie Filchock can out-toss Calgary's Keith Spaith.

Hull Volants were held to a 5-5 draw Friday at Stockholm by a Swedish all-star hockey squad. The touring Canadian team led 3-1 at the end of the first period but the Swedish team came back strong in the last two stanzas of the see-saw contest.

Taking First Step Towards Becoming False Prophet

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, DD.

Into a city there came a man to be the minister of a particular congregation. Members of this congregation held a doctrine not commonly held by Christians in general, and referring to this the new minister said, apparently not considering that there was anything reprehensible in the remark, "I'll give it to them, and I'll give it to them strong."

The man may have been in otherr espects a good and well-intentioned minister, but in this he showed the unquestionable mark of a false prophet. There was no evidence that so far as he was concerned he believed at all strongly in that particular doctrine. In fact the implication was that he did not, but was speaking out of voice of expediency and worldly wisdom. When a minister sets out to please his people primarily, and to say what they want him to say, rather than above all things to declare the truth of God that in his hearts of hearts he knows he ought to declare, he has taken at last the first step toward becoming a false prophet.

There is a story of a prominent church member, in a front pew, who interrupted his minister as he preached, to protest, "It is not food you are giving us." The minister turned on him, as he replied, "No, it is not food, brother, but it is medicine; and you need it."

Now, of course, only a competent physician has a right to decide when a patient needs medicine instead of food; and professed physicians of the soul may be as incompetent and subject to error as physicians of the body. Nevertheless there is point to that story.

The prophets of ancient Israel had to utter truth that was not only unpalatable to those who heard them, but who so angrily resented the prophets' words that they inflicted the most horrible forms of persecution upon them, as in the case of Jeremiah.

There is, of course, he type of false prophet who seems to take a delight in uttering perverse things. I knew one such who never seemed to be happy unless he was insulting somebody. The true prophet, in contrast, has a deep sense of restraint and responsibility. The man who would speak for God must consider his words. Love for those to whom he speaks is as essential as his disregard of their judgments when he speaks with conviction.

Deep in the Hebrew prophet, besides his faithfulness to God, was his intense love of his people and nation. When he saw the kings ruling unwisely and the people plunging toward disaster, it was with pain rather than pleasure that he sounded his warning. His was the true patriotism in contrast with the false patriotism of those who had only honeyed words and boasting.

There are many today having the same spirit as did Jeremiah when he wrote (Jeremiah 8:11): "Peace, peace, when there is no peace."

The true prophet, religious, political, and social, is concerned with realities, not appearances, and with healing the nation's ills, not slightly ,but effectually.

Dr. Moir, Cherished Surgeon Leaving City For Whitby, Retirement After 37 Years

By HARRY THEOBALD

Peterborough and its people are much in the thoughts and memories of Dr. Archibald Moir these days. They are parting thoughts, associated with recollections of his long practice of surgery extending from his arrival here in 1912. For, Dr. Moir is about to leave for Whitby where he and Mrs. Moir have taken a house to be near their daughter, the wife of Dr. Edward Cuddy "I sincerely regret leaving Peterborough," Dr. Moir told the Examiner yesterday. "I know I shall greatly miss my old friends. Peterborough has been a delightful and good place, and I like the people of this community more than I can say."

A modest and reserved man, and reticent about his personal affairs, Dr. Moir recalled in a general way his service to Peterborough and also his preparations for it. The dream of his youth as a boy on the farm was to be a doctor. Eventually that ambition took more definite form of specialization in surgery, and Dr. Moir came to Peterborough in the ripe years of his young manhood with a broad background of study, training and experience in Toronto, London, England, New York and Dunnville.

He is now departing in the retirement which in earlier busy moments of his career he may have contemplated fleetingly but without any belief that the luxury of rest was possible for him. Through more than three decades in Peterborough he applied his skill and abilities selflessly; not wisely for his own well-being, for his professional time has been foreshortened but well for his patients.

The place he attained in the esteem of this city is one of the intangibles that will remain here after he and Mrs. Moir have settled in their Whitby home.

A little unguarded remark suggested the reflection of Dr. Moir's attitude and devotion in duty.

"Often I could not sleep, wondering about the condition of some patient seriously ill."

Toll of Work and Years

And so, there were many nights of bedside vigil, followed by days of scant rest, at times into the second and third day. The mounting years of strenuous work were a gradual but unperceived tax on Dr. Moir's physical well-being until a year ago last spring when he was taken suddenly ill in his office.

That was virtually the end of his professional services. Although its accumulated toll of impairment of health cut short Dr. Moir's practice, its rewards and satisfactions over the long middle span of his life confirmed the judgment and the desire of his boyhood.

"If I were a young man again, I'd still choose the profession of surgery," was Dr. Moir's tribute to the profession which he has honored and in which he has found honor in the high ideals with which he carried on his practice.

Dr. Moir is presently in fair health and frequently about the clinic and down town where he is greeted with affectionate esteem by friends and hosts of former patients.

Born on Farm

Dr. Moir was born on a farm near Fergus in Wellington county. When he was four years old his parents moved to the Niagara peninsula, three miles out of Dunnville. After High School he decided to take up pharmacy as a stepping stone to medicine. He became an apprenticed druggist, worked in stores in Brantford, Paris and Dunnville, and then went on to the Ontario College of Pharmacy, graduating as a gold medalist in 1898.

Graduating from the medical school of the University of Toronto, Dr. Moir won a silver medal and the Dr. Reeve scholarship which gave him a year's tuition at the University under Prof. A. B. McCallum.

Dr. Moir practiced for some time in Dunnville, and then decided to specialize in surgery, giving up obstetrics, "work with children, "and things like that." He went to England, joined the staff of the London Hospital in Whitechapel where he obtained his degree in surgery.

Parents Need To Gang Up On Children

A program of sex education in the schools, which is being carried out in London, Ont., on a scale probably unequalled in any other part of Canada, was described to Peterborough University Women's Club Friday in Queen Mary School auditorium by Miss Winnifred Ashplant, girls' health counsellor of London secondary schools.

After tracing the emotional development of children from birth to adult life, Miss Ashplant told of some of the discussions held in secondary school class rooms among children above grade 10.

There had always been a conflict between the generations, Miss Ashplant said and if parents wanted to exercise any influence among their children, they would have to gang up as the young people did.

If parents wanted children of a particular age group to return home at a certain time at night, they would all have to agree that every child in the party kept the same time. Otherwise, if there was one child who had to be home earlier than the others, he would feel different from his friends and that would cause unhappiness.

Parents had been telling young people for so long that now was the happiest time of their lives, that teen agers felt that if they did not have everything out of life now, they never would have another opportunity for happiness. Miss Ashplant pointed out, from the age of 13 to 21 was a far shorter time than from 21 to 90 and if there was to be any happiness during adult life, restraint would have to be exercised during the earlier years.

An attitude of indifference was growing among school pupils, she said. Young people felt "you should not be a brain" and that if a child was eager to answer a question in class he was trying to show off.

The parable of the talents was an applicable answer to this attitude.

Want Mature Adults

Sex education in the schools was not confined to anatomy and physiology but also to social relationships. The program was designed to bring up young people to become emotionally mature adults.

When the meeting was opened to discussion a member of the audience said that in Peterborough schools, girls who asked boys to a dance were expected to go with the particular boy to the exclusion of others and were regarded as two-timers if they were seen with someone else. This was happening among children in grade nine and over.

Miss Ashplant agreed it was a difficult situation to overcome and thought that one of the causes may have been the precocious remarks made by adults about young children and their boy or girl friends.

Must Decide Themselves

Drinking and smoking were questions discussed in class and as with almost every other question, it had to be dealt with in a rational manner. It was no good telling young people they must not drink or smoke. The pupils themselves had to decide why they would, or would not do these things and then make the decision for themselves.

Miss Ashplant referred to sex education films which were shown in the schools. One dealt with the adolescent development of girls and had been shown to both girls and parents. As an experiment she planned to show the film to the boys because she felt it would create a greater respect among them for girls.

General feeling among members of the University Women's Club was that a similar program to the one carried out by Miss Ashplant in London would be beneficial to Peterborough schools.

Mrs. J. E. Watters was chairman and the speaker was introduced by Miss Earla MacVannel, president of the Club. The vote of thanks was proposed by Miss Margaret McCulloch.

Mayor Swanston Reviews Major Work of 1949 Council

Mayor Swanston presented a review of the major works of the council this year in his address at the nominations meeting Friday night in which he thanked the citizens for the acclamation they had given him for 1950. The council engaged last February architects, Marani and Morris, to prepare plans for the new city hall building. Before the end of December, the completed plans should be in the hands of the council. "I believe this has been a year of accomplishment by the council. We have begun works which had for years been talked about or were in the planning stage. It has been a period of decision."

"On May 2 last we passed the by-law authorizing the borrowing of $1,500,000 in debentures in order to complete the erection of the new Civic Hospital. This included the addition to the east wing of the building. It is hoped by the middle of next year to have the hospital completed.

"In September your Council let the contract to the Robertson Construction and Engineering Co. of Niagara Falls for the nurses' residence of the hospital. It calls for completion by July 1, at which time it is hoped the whole hospital may be in operation.

Mayor Swanston said the Council let the contract in May for the icemaking plant of the Civic Arena, and artificial ice was ready for use early in October. "It is expected that revenues from the Arena will be sufficient to pay off the city's investment in the icemaking plant and flooring within a few years, and that at no time will this expenditure be a charge against the taxpayers."

"The Council authorized the issue of debentures for $200,000 required by the Utilities Commission for the extension and improvement of their waterworks system, and for $28,000 for the Board of Education to enlarge the Parkhill Public School.

"The Parkhill School was secured at very small cost from the government, and this addition will increase its usefulness in the growing area it serves."

Site for Collegiate

The Council acquired for the Board of Education a 20-acre lot on Monaghan Road, south of McKellar Street, as a future site for a High School.

"One of the long-deferred projects done this year was the laying of a sewer across the river at Burnham's Point, connecting the Ashburnham sewers to the main system of the city This will completely overcome unsanitary conditions which have existed in Little Lake for years."

Mayor Swanston also recalled that the Council had made an agreement with Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation for an additional 100 houses for ex-service men and their families. Sites for 50 were bought west of Monaghan Road, south of McKellar Street, and for the remaining 40 on McFarlane Avenue in Ashburnham

The contract for the enlargement of the sewage disposal plant was let in September "This is another major project which has been under consideration for more than 20 years. Although its cost is almost double the original estimate three years ago, when the ratepayers gave their almost unanimous endorsation that the work should go on, your Council could see little likelihood of costs decreasing."

Mayor Swanston mentioned secondary jobs also done this year. There were 23,028 feet of sewers laid, most of them to serve new housing sub-divisions, and an additional 1,650 ft. of sewer to serve Civic Hospital. The council also gave a contract for 6,444 feet of street paving; in addition 5,422 feet of sidewalks were laid. All this work was done on the local improvement plan.

His Worship thanked the citizens for the support they had given the policies adopted by the council.

"We are making a sincere effort to grapple with civic problems and to get action rather than continued delays. With the great expansion of the city in recent years, there has been necessary expansion in all municipal services. This, combined with the new hospital, additional schools, the sewage disposal plant, which might have properly been done years ago, has resulted in a steadily rising tax rate."

Mayor Swanston thanked his associates of the city council for their diligent and efficient help.

Re-elected To Utilities

Gordon Matthews, returning by acclamation to the Utilities Commission, said the mayor had stolen part of his thunder in mentioning several of the projects which the Utilities Commission had completed.

"I think the main reason why I have been re-elected is the swell job that has been done by our employees of the Commission," Mr. Matthews said. "Incidentally, Mr. Tuggey spoke of his attendance when he was a member of the council. May I say that I have missed only one meeting of the Commission in 24 years."

Mr. Matthews said the Commission had so far managed this fall to meet the power restrictions without much disturbance to local conditions. "But, the situation in eastern Ontario is becoming more serious as shown by the radio appeal tonight for a saving of five per cent of power all over the system. We have had five rather dark days, and there has not been much rain in the Ottawa valley. So, there has got to be some power saving made in the next three weeks."

Three Mishaps Send Patients To Civic

A 13-year-old Roseneath boy, Donald Towns, slipped and fell on a patch of ice and fractured his forearm Friday. He was taken to Civic Hospital here, treated and sent home.

Mrs. Bruce Freelove, 469 Rose Ave., fractured her ankle in a fall on ice and is now in the Civic Hospital.

Mrs. Edgar Armson, 559 George St., caught her arm in a washing machine wringer Friday crushing and lacerating it. She was taken to Civic Hospital for treatment.

12 Below Zero Low For City

Peterborough with a low of 12 below zero was one of the coldest spots in Canada last night. White River, Ont. was just as cold and the only other city with a weather station which went below zero was North Bay which was six degrees below zero.

At 9 a.m. today it was still a very snappy 10 below zero here and motorists were wondering why they had trouble starting their cars.

People who are looking for the warmest spot in Canada to spend the winter had better start west for Victoria, BC. That city had a low of 45 degrees last night. Toronto's low was four degrees.

WIN SYKES TROPHY

Coming down to the finals in the curling tournament staged in Oshawa on Friday, Gar Braund's Peterborough rink captured the Sykes Trophy on Friday. Others on the rink were Ernie Braund, H. Hamlin and Cyril Giroux.

CRASHES INTO TREE

Clare Pomery Havelock smashed his car against a tree at the north end of Water St. Friday. He told police he braked to avoid hitting a car which pulled out of a service station in front of him and his car went into an uncontrollable skid.

Standard Time In Effect Sunday Morning

The change from Daylight Saving Time, or Summer Time, to Standard Time, is coinciding happily with the advent of winter. Venturing forth into the streets before the sun has risen has been the unhappy lot of Peterborough and district residents in recent weeks, as the result of the decision to cling to the summer clock longer than in any previous year, except during the war.

But fall has turned into winter and this week has brought seven inches of snow overnight, while the clock has lingered behind defiantly.

This week-end brings the clock and weather into line, however, and Sunday morning at two o'clock the clock will stand still for one hour.

THE PARK'S LIT UP

Four new street lights were installed and lit for the first time on Thursday on the riverfront road of Lakefield Park. Home owners had petitioned for this added utility for some time and were glad to see the lights turned on, especially on such a stormy night.

PRACTICAL PLANS FOR THE HOME YOU WANT AND HOW TO PLAN IT

HOUSE, NO. 148—Reduced to its basic shape—without garage or sunroom—this simple rectangular house contains approximately 22,750 cubic feet. And there is just about as much living space at reasonable cost packed into such a plan as is possible. Its style is straightforward, without embellishments, and its appeal should remain unimpaired through the years. Exterior walls are painted white; the first storey being brick, with clapboard above. Roof and shutters are green. Layout of rooms on the first floor follows conventional planning except that the stairs to the second floor are placed well back from the front door. All rooms have good proportions, and are unusually bright. Access to the front door from the kitchen is provided through the hall. Upstairs are three bedrooms—two of medium size insulated from each other by a wall of closets. The master bedroom is spacious and has its own bathroom and a large, well lighted closet. Science and Art Necessary In Furnishing of a Home

Not infrequently, homemakers find the all-absorbing task of furnishing the home by themselves becoming a rather complex problem as they proceed This is largely due to the fact that furnishing a home (which for want of a better term we call "interior decoration") involves both science and art principles of which it is necessary to have at least some knowledge.

It is quite logical for the uninitiated to ask, "What is interior decoration?" especially if they have at any time viewed some of the atrocious interiors occasionally seen, masquerading in the name of "interior decoration" and done by so-called "professionals."

If one has sufficient means to employ the services of a reputable interior decorator who possesses practical and consistent ideas in keeping with small home furnishing, the idea is highly commendable. Beware, however, of the "curbstone" decorator who intrigues the unwary with "wholesale prices" bait.

The vast majority of homemakers, however, are not in a financial position to employ professional aid with the result that they must do the job themselves with possibly the aid of magazine and book information and some retail store home advisory service.

First, to answer the question, "What is interior decoration" will probably help to enlighten many homemakers on an important subject. Emphatically, we wish to dispel the erroneous idea held by many, that interior decoration means "spending money excessively." Nothing could be farther from the truth. Many a lavishly furnished home of palatial magnitude may be a very poor example of what constitutes good interior decoration while conversely, a cottage of unpretentious size furnished in a simple and inexpensive manner may be a perfect example of excellent interior decoration.

Fundamentally, interior decoration is the art and science of decorating and furnishing interiors for the sake of beauty, comfort and convenience according to definite and well-established art principles. It involves the proper co-ordination of such elements in art as color, design, texture, size, proportion, balance, contrast and so forth as applied to the architectural background and furnishings of an interior.

Make a Plan First

Let us assume that our reader is about to furnish a home. The first thing to do is to make a scale plan (one-fourth of an inch to each foot in the room) of the floor and elevations (four walls) of the room to be furnished. This means of procedure obviates all "guesswork."

The next step is to make traced copies of the original plan, to be used for experimental furniture layouts or "tryouts" as to selection and arrangement. With this start, and a good knowledge of the retail furniture market (attained by repeated shopping tours through local stores months in advance) one is ready to begin carrying out interior decorating principles. To do this, one must consider carefully the following outlined conditions.

First: What is the purpose of the room? The purpose or functional use of a room will govern the correct choice of furniture, background treatments (walls, woodwork and floors), kinds of fabrics to choose for upholstery, and draperies, lamps, pictures and other accessories as well as the arrangement of the room's furnishings.

Second: What is the size of the room? Is it large or small? This element governs the size and style of furniture and the number of pieces to use. It also guides the choice of "value" in color scheme. Colors of lighter "value" are necessary in a room of small size, particularly on the walls and woodwork to make it appear larger. If the room is small, one must choose furniture of small scale consistent with the wall and floor areas. The rug design should be inconspicuous, preferably in an all-over symmetrical pattern and in "low" color-key or "value." Then, too, upholstery and drapery designs should be consistently small with some plain fabrics introduced for the sake of variety and repose. Avoid heavily piled, dark toned fabrics such as velour, plush or furred-effects. They absorb light and give added weight to a small room.

Third: What is the exposure of the room? If it is north or northeast it will not be a "warm" appearing room, so it will be necessary to choose as major colors those of "warm" hue; namely, those colors possessing red, or yellow abundantly, such as rust, copper, coral yellow, rose, burnt sienna, etcetera. Should the room be of south exposure the major colors of the scheme may be of "cool" colors or those possessing some proportion of blue, such as mauve, plum, orchid, green, turquoise etcetera.

Fourth: What is the period style or character of the room? It is the general style or character of a room that should govern proper choice of furniture styles. For instance an ornately carved Elizabethan oak dining room suite would be very much out of harmony in a small dining room of English Georgian style or late Colonial. Likewise would a strictly 20th century contemporary or "modern" suite be incorrect. A room's background should be in perfect decorative harmony with the furnishings adorning it.

Private Stations Submit Plan For Good Radio

MONTREAL, Nov. 26—(CP)—An administrative plan for Canadian radio that would "assure a lively element of enterprise broadcasters controlled both against reaction and stagnation" was urged today before the Royal Commission on Arts, Letters and Sciences.

The plan was contained in a brief submitted by the Canadian Marconi Company, operators of station CFCF in Montreal. It envisioned a Canadian broadcasting structure "based on three primary elements."

Two of these elements, "the enterprise broadcasting station" and the nationally-owned broadcasting system existed at present. But the third, "an independent authority whose sole purpose and desire would be to ensure that Canadian radio listeners got the best and most diversified radio service possible," was lacking.

"The lack of the third," the Marconi brief said, "is a matter which must be remedied if the stresses in the present structure are to be relieved and progress made possible."

Hear Radio Submissions

The commission devoted most of the day to hearing submissions dealing exclusively with radio. Eleven such briefs were scheduled for presentation.

It heard a CBC French network brief referring to the need for expansion providing further funds were available.

Andre Forget, a Montreal lawyer appearing as a private individual, said the CBC's control over private stations should be transferred to an independent body under a cabinet minister while the CBC itself should get out of advertising and abandon its "monopoly of affiliations to U.S. chains."

A spokesman for station CKAC in Montreal, owned by La Presse Publishing Limited, declared that "excessive taxation, unfair competition, excessive bureaucracy and excessive government control" were hampering radio's service to the public.

Recluse Loses Battle With Severe Cold

ENGLEHART, Nov. 26 (CP)—The story of how Damyn Batelitz, 80-year-old recluse lost a battle to survive after becoming paralyzed from the hips down in his cold, shabby homestead was told today by Provincial Police. Batelitz's body was discovered by a neighbor who became anxious about the recluse when he saw no smoke rising from the homesteader's shack on the outskirts of this northern Ontario town 22 miles south of Kirkland Lake.

Police said an autopsy on the body showed Batelitz had suffered a brain hemorrhage which left him partly paralyzed. They said superficial wounds on the body, torn clothing and overturned pieces of furniture indicated attempts by the man to keep a fire going in sub-freezing temperature and get himself food.

They estimated death came 48 hours before Batelitz was found.

Approve Pension Bill

State Secretary Bradley said the amendment would extend the provisions of the Act to employees of existing or future subsidiaries of the companies incorporated under the companies act.

Consider 40-Hr. Week

OTTAWA, Nov. 26 (CP) — State Secretary Bradley told the Commons Friday night a 40-hour week is being considered for employees of the government printing bureau. The government, he said, was awaiting the outcome of wage and hour negotiations in private printing companies in Toronto and Montreal before changing conditions at the Government Bureau.

More Squalls Predicted Over Merger of US Forces

By GEORGE KITCHEN

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26—(CP)—The gusty squalls over the unification of United States defence forces appear to have blown themselves out, but observers say that's just the quiet before the storm. They expect the unification troubles will start blowing up again when Congress returns in January. The legislators, they say, will want to know a number of things. They'll want, for example, to know why Admiral Lewis E. Denfeld, Chief of Naval Operations, was fired shortly after telling a Congressional committee probing the unification squabble that the Navy was "not accepted in full partnership in the national defence structure."

Denfeld was ousted despite a warning by members of the Congressional committee that there must be no "reprisals" against Navy men for their testimony. President Truman, in removing the Admiral, said he acted on the advice of Navy Secretary Matthews that the action should be taken "for the good of the country."

Denfeld was replaced by Vice-Admiral Forest Sherman, Commander of the U. S. Mediterranean Fleet.

Story of Bitterness

The unification battle is a story of bitterness and friction within the U.S. armed services, a story of deep-rooted disagreement over the best way to lick Russia in case of war.

Basically, the dissension developed from the Navy's feeling that it is being slighted. It thinks the Army and the Air Force have ganged up on it. It thinks the Air Force, especially, is getting a better deal in money to spend on the kind of warfare that is wrong, a kind that goes in for inter-continental atom bombing.

The Army and the Air Force say they aren't trying to sink the Navy. But they saw that a war against Russia wouldn't be the sort of amphibious job which the Navy did so well against Japan. They opposed the building of a super-carrier for the Navy. Construction was halted.

Canada, too, has her unification task but, by contrast, it is proceeding quietly and without headline fuss and fanfare.

A Canadian Defence Department report tabled in the Commons last month said that Canada has proceeded further in military unification "than any other country." Unification already is established in service colleges and an increasing degree of co-operation is developing in medical and dental services, training films, uniforms, service libraries and registration.

Pass Nationalization

OTTAWA, Nov. 2 (CP) —The Commons Friday adopted a bill providing for the nationalization of external telecommunications systems operating in Canada. The bill incorporates the Canadian overseas telecommunication corporation. The Crown company will take over the assets of the Canadian Marconi Company and the Canadian interests of Cable and Wireless, Ltd., a United Kingdom company.

Open Building In Windsor For New Nursing Experiment

WINDSOR, Nov. 26 —(CP)—A new building, dedicated to a new approach in training nurses, was formally opened here today. The three-storey building, housing the Canadian Nurses Association's School of Nursing, was erected by the city at a cost of $435,000.

The new approach is the idea—now in operation here since early 1948—that nurses can be trained in two years instead of the customary three, and they can become skilled clinical nurses without serving as unskilled aids to practising nurses during training.

Nettie D. Fidler left the directorship of the University of Toronto's School of Nursing two years ago to come here and direct the local school—the Metropolitan School of Nursing.

Now when her first class —.11 girls who began training Jan. 19, 1948—is about ready to graduate, she said in an interview:

'This educational experiment is a success. For the first time in the history of nurses' training, a course has been directed solely at making a skilled clinical nurse This school is also the first nurses' training, a course has been directed solely at making a skilled clinical nurse. This school is also the first nurses' training school I know of anywhere that has achieved recognition as an educational institution in its own right."

$40,000 Grant

In 1948 the Canadian Red Cross Society gave the Nurses' Association a $40,000 annual grant to finance an experimental school for four years. Windsor was selected because it had a suitably-sized general hospital which then had no school for nurses and because it assumed responsibility for supplying a building. It was erected this year.

What will become of the school at the end of the four-year experiment, Miss Fidler says she does not know. Either it will remain as it is—an independent training school subsidized by the city of Windsor or some other group—or it will change back to the old-type school.

She said she thought it now has set a precedent from which retreat will be difficult.

During the 25-month course, which costs the girls about $250 each, training is divided between medical and surgical subjects here at the Metropolitan Hospital, and a three-month course in psychiatric nursing at the Ontario Mental Hospital at London; one month at the Essex County Tuberculosis Sanatorium; and another month at the Toronto Hospital for Sick Children.

Nurses from here will be eligible for the registered nurses degree and will be able to enter post-graduate training in almost any Canadian University.

Choral Society Debut In January

Peterborough Choral Society, formed by Bill Simms in the latter part of the summer, plans to present its first concert Jan. 23 and has announced a list of concerts for 1950 which includes opera, oratorio and programs of smaller works.

The first concert is to include solo songs, quartettes and the trio and finale from Gounod's opera Faust, in addition to a number of other items.

For accompaniment the Society has purchased a Hammond organ

A stage presentation of Gilbert and Sullivans Mikado is scheduled for March 7, 8 and 9.

Shortly after the opera performance, the choir will present Handel's Samson, the date having been set as March 24 and on Good Friday, April 7, The Messiah will be presented.

Horticultural Society Plans Social Evening

Horticultural Society is holding a social evening Monday Nov. 28 at the Y.W.C.A. It is mentioned by W. C. Wilks, secretary, as an opportunity for the members to become better acquainted. A program of quiz, bingo, music and refreshments offers 11 prizes plants suitable for house culture, flowering and foliage. Members and friends are invited.

Mr. Wilks reports increasing interest in cacti with enquiries for treatment. These plants require little attention during the winter. They should be kept watered, about once a week, and in the morning. A sunny location helps, but not dry heat.

Cacti are planted in small pots with a good soil of leaf mould, sand, garden soil and well rotted manure in equal quantities. Their only enemy is the mealy bug. Which may be checked by the use of Volck.

HAPPY ENDING—John Wolford, 45, of Windsor, is fed soup by Mrs. John Kerr in Little Current hospital after his rescue by an RCAF plane and an Ontario provincial police search party. Wolford became lost while hunting on Manitoulin Island and was without food for six days.

WILDERNESS RESCUE— John Wolford (arrow) stands near an isolated cabin in which he found refuge during six days of wandering in the isolated Wikwemikong Indian reserve. The 45-year-old Windsor automobile worker strayed from a hunting party on the southeastern tip of Manitoulin Island. He had no food until spotted by an RCAF plane which dropped supplies and directed a search party to the scene. This Toronto Daily Star photo shows the "COME" and "FOOD" signs he tramped in the snow.

Coventry Singers First Recital To Be On CHEX

On Tuesday night at 9.30 The Examiner will introduce a new Peterborough musical organization in its music appreciation series of programs. This is the Coventry Singers, a small choir under the direction of John Hooper. The Coventry Singers will give four half-hour recitals of Christmas Carols at the same time on each Tuesday night between now and Christmas.

The Coventry Singers have chosen that name for their choir because its origin was in a group of singers who joined Mr. Hooper to provide accompanying music for performances of the Coventry Nativity Play in St. George's Church during the Christmas seasons of 1947 and 1948. Attracted by the possibilities of unaccompanied singing by a small choir, the Coventry Singers have been working during the whole of 1949 to develop a repertoire and an individual style of singing. They have not had any public performances in mind; they have met to sing for their own pleasure. However, The Examiner has persuaded the choir to allow the radio public to hear it in the four programs of Christmas music which will be presented over CHEX every Tuesday night at 9.30 between now and Christmas.

A Capella Art

Unaccompanied singing is a complex art, and demands long stretches of rehearsal before the unmistakeable sense of "singing together" is achieved. A collection of good voices is not enough to make one of these "a capella" choirs. (The expression "a capella" applied to this sort of singing means "in chapel style," and refers to the fine choirs which performed in cathedrals and private chapels in an earlier day.) When there are comparatively few voices singing together a standard of musicianship and interpretation must be reached which is not the growth of a few rehearsals.

The Coventry Singers, after a year of work, will give their first performances this Christmas over CHEX, and under the sponsorship of The Examiner. This newspaper is proud to introduce a new musical organization of the highest standards to the Peterborough audience, and is confident that in doing so it will fully uphold the standard which it has set by its series of music appreciation programs.

First City Hall

It will be noted as a mark of social difference between Canadian manners of 1851 and 1894 how the title of Esquire is lavished on the members of the council, while plain "Mr." is good enough for David Taylor, the contractor! So in Dr. Poole's book every man who has opened a country tavern is dubbed Esquire, while the "mere farmers" are Mr. Tom, Dick or Harry. The tendency at the present day is to equalize all to the plain "Mr.", except when for convenience a professional prefix is used.

Great were the rejoicings at the ceremony of laying the cornerstone. They included the good old ceremony of roasting an ox whole fro free entertainment of the public. Unfortunately the ox while being roasted as in the case of the oxen of the sun god whom the sailors of Ulysses had profanely attempted to roast, disappeared suddenly from the spit by unknown agencies! Strange to relate, the parties who worked this miracle were never found out!

At the same time the council made a wise decision in resolving to memorialize the Governor-in-Council in respect to the wild lands in the rear of the county, and prayed that these lands might be offered for sale at low rates to actual settlers, and that the proceeds of sales of such lands might be spent in opening uproads through the back country. Their request was at once acceded to, and the work of settlement in new townships much promoted thereby.

Sewers To Be Modern 'Human Rats' Will Go

MONTREAL, Nov 26 (CP) — The day of the "human sewer rat" is over, as far as Montreal sewers are concerned.

City authorities have decided that in future the disagreeable type of work which caused sewer maintenance men to give themselves that unsavory title is to be done with machinery

Heretofore, a special gang of men, picked for their small stature, was retained for working in smaller sewers They often had to work on little "flat cars" which rolled through the sewer, scraping the sludge before them

Now the city has tried out a type of machinery which does the job mechanically, and workers will stay in the fresh air to operate the machine

Author Got Nothing For 'Mademoiselle'

LONDON, Nov 26 — (CP) — E C. H. Rowlands, 65-year-old movie theatre manager, never made a penny out of his song, "Mademoiselle From Armentieres," sung by Canadian, British and Allied soldiers in two World Wars.

"That is because I foolishly did not copyright the song," Rowlands said "I knocked it off on the spur of the moment to entertain the troops in 1915, and it became one of the biggest song hits of all time.

"I wrote only eight verses. Since then about 150 have been added by others."

Front Line Service Is Soldier's Pride

LONDON, Nov 26 — (CP) — A soldier's proudest claim is that he fought in the front lines, says Viscount Alexander in a foreword he has written for a history of the Irish Guards.

The book, by Major Desmond Fitzgerald, tells the story of the regiment in the Second World War.

The Governor-General of Canada has this word for the combat soldier: "When it comes to this business of fighting, the proudest claim a man can make is that he is a front-line soldier

"I am glad that in my earlier days my front-line service was with the Irish Guards."

Women's Symphony Orchestra Proving Popular In Montreal

By ALBERT HUNTER

MONTREAL, Nov. 26 (CP)— No "hen parties" or "crying jags" are allowed when dark-haired Ethel Stark wields the baton.

"It's strictly music," she said of her Montreal Women's Symphony Orchestra, unique in the musical world.

No one has ever disputed their title—the only women's symphony, directed by a woman, in the world.

But despite their individuality and international recognition, they are laboring under a two-fold handicap.

"There's the old bugaboo, lack of finances, and secondly, inequality of treatment," the attractive conductor said in an interview.

Come For Music

"We're a novelty," she said, "but only for the first time. After that, the public comes to hear our music, not to see us."

"We don't want people prejudging us because we're women,' she added, her grey-green eyes flashing. "We're content to stand on our own musical record."

When asked how the women stand up under the strain of practice and public performances, she replied:

"I've directed both men and women, and I'll take the women any day. They're hard, willing workers, and can stand the strain better than men."

The hard work paid off in 1947 when the orchestra played to a packed Carnegie Hall, the first Canadian Symphony ever to play there. Since then it has received "stacks of offers" from all parts of the world, requesting performances. But so far, the cost of travel and maintenance has been prohibitive.

Miss Stark—the only unpaid member of the orchestra—recently returned from a European tour as guest conductor and soloist in England, France, Italy, Switzerland and Austria.

Crocodile Omelette Professor's Dinner

SALISBURY, Southern Rhodesia — (CP) — When Professor Frank Debenham, of Cambridge University, was carrying out a survey of the Bangweulu swamp in Northern Rhodesia, one of the things he tried was crocodile egg omelette.

Speaking to the National Affairs Association here, the professor described the omelette as being greenish-yellow in color, but with a distinct egg flavor and reminiscent of the egg powder in Britain during the war.

Contrary to what his cook boys assured him, he neither died nor turned into a crocodile. The omelette was made from about 30 new-laid eggs taken from a nest of about 120 eggs.

The six winners then ran an obstacle race on a path strewn with light bulbs and plates. Mary Gorman was first to reach the finish line. Late in the evening lunch was served by M. Hickey, J. Rose, V. Minicola, J. Blodgett, S. Minicola, Jackie Rose and Mae Lindsay. Thanks was expressed for the guests by Jim Pilkington who extended an invitation for Peterborough to spend Tuesday evening, December 6, in Lindsay.

THIS DISTINCTIVE HANDWORK is some of the worthy effort to be self-supporting by people of Labrador and northern Newfoundland. Each year at this time Peterborough Branch of the Grenfell Labrador Mission conducts a sale of the goods. In the background of the left picture are closely hand-woven floor mats showing the log cabin and flower block design and the familiar log-cabin pattern often made up by pioneer women right here in Ontario. The Puffin Bird that makes its home on the rocky coast of Labrador inspires the very attractive bath mat design. Upper corner shows after-ski socks that have a woven sole, similar to the mats, and a braided edge. Beneath are a zippered purse with Labrador rose motif and warm woollen mittens. Sailing ships, flowers and gulls are other favorite subjects and they are presented in the colors of their natural setting. On the right is some woodwork which is mostly done in the Newfoundland Mission. The ship picture plaque is the first of its type received here. Any home would be happier with this Puffin Bird Knocker on the door and draw tickets are being sold to give everyone a chance to have him. The stoic Eskimo's expression has been nicely reproduced on the bookend at right. These articles are at the home of Miss Linden Hall, 17 Fleming Place, where there are piles of socks, gloves, slippers, pictures, rugs, handbags, knitting bags, chair seats, table mats, coasters, in various Labrador designs. Sweet grass and raffia baskets, brooches and ivory scarf holders, teapot cosies, tea towels and bridge tallies of Grenfell cloth, typically embroidered, hand-woven scarves, and wooden letter or serviette holders. On December 1 there will be an afternoon tea at the home of Miss Clara Morris ,483 Homewood Ave., where all of these things may be seen and purchased. Contrasting Cap of Hair Novelty of Short Trim

LONDON, Nov. 26 — (CP) — Britain's "two-color" hair style was applauded at the annual congress of the Syndicate Haute Coiffure in Paris.

Introduced by Riche of Mayfair, it is a Coolie Cut—short- brushed up ends and no parting, the hair coming from the crown in a Catherine wheel fashion to form a front fringe.

The novelty of this style is a Juliet cap for evening wear made of contrasting hair. The cap is combed and blended into the real hair and finished with a wimple of black velvet circled with gold ribbon

Paris' contribution to the false-hair styles is the "lacquer-curl." Short, softly brushed urchin day styles can be glamorized for night-time by addition of a fine spring band to which is attached perfectly matched curls that have been lacquered stiff and shiny.

Many styles can be achieved by this additional band—the wind-blown look, the club cut, the side-brushed shingle, the symmetrical look and the winged Grecian line.

Getting Shorter

So, whatever the women of Britain do about it, hair styles are definitely getting shorter. For smart women, these short styles are a "must" with the high-collared winter coats and tiny skull-shaped hats.

Both Raymond and Steiner—two of Mayfair's exclusive coiffeurs—are concentrating on short cuts.

Raymond's semi-shingle flip is smoothly brushed with a side-parting, softly brushed-up sides and slight back turn-up.

His "choirboy" style is a smoothly brushed Napoleonic shingle—cap with winged sides and small fringe. His asymmetric style is a straight-cut short fringe style on one side, with the stepping-ston halo of roll-curls on the other side.

Steiner's "Peter Pan" cut follows the new off-the-forehead trend. It is brushed smoothly back to a tiny knot of short curls at the nape of the neck. For day or night wear you just change the curl ornament from combs to bows, jewels or flowers

The new length is anything from three to six inches in front and much shorter at back, sometimes the hair is only half an inch to an inch long at the back. It may be softly turned up or cut in a mannish shingle.

Two of the most popular shingle cuts are the smooth, cap-shingle with winged sides and short straight fringe and the second, formed by brushed-back waves with softly brushed curls high on the forehead.

Soroptimist's Fourth Year Marked at Dinner Meeting

Fourth birthday of the Soroptimist Club of Peterborough, marked at the regular dinner meeting Friday evening, will be memorable because of the presence of two prominent women members from outside points. Miss Margaret Kerr of Montreal came as the guest speaker for the occasion, and Miss Winnifred Ashplant of London, Ontario, in the city to address another meeting, was a guest. Both are past presidents of their own clubs and now engaged in extension work.

Miss Kerr is this year chairman of extension for Eastern Canada region and has worked with untiring eagerness toward her slogan "50 Clubs by 1950." She told the Peterborough members there was no doubt the goal could have been attained if they believed in Soroptimism sufficiently to go into action for it. Many clubs in Canada have been organized in places where the population is less than 5,000, she pointed out.

"Magic of action" was the title Miss Kerr gave her address. "For action that is praiseworthy, you must have knowledge and sincere conviction" she stated. These come with extensive reading on the subject, knowing the facts and believing in ideals.

Reviewing several points of Soroptimist history, she said 367 clubs had been formed since organization in Canada 28 years ago, far exceeding in clubs and membership the other women's service clubs. Five splendid ideals are given in the Soroptimist pledge, but next to sincerity of friendship and joy of achievement, Miss Kerr would add "magic of action."

First a Hobby

Miss Ann Thomson was responsible for bringing the speaker here and also introduced her, speaking of Miss Carr's work as editor and business manager of the publication "The Canadian Nurse" and advised that its output had been doubled since she took over in 1944. As a hobby she took on Soroptimism and as charter and immediate past president of Greater Montreal Club, is anticipating the formal organization of six new clubs in the city's area, evidence of the "magic of action."

Miss Ashplant briefly outlined her work in London as health councillor in secondary schools. Her lectures are to girls only and she endeavours to build up good mental health and give proper sex education. She has two assistants and they have charge of the nursing service. She believes that all Boards of Education in the province will shortly become interested in "how" and "when" to introduce this form of education.

President Mrs. May Thompson read birthday messages from Toronto and Belleville clubs who were unable to be present. A birthday cake was decorated in blue, and four blue candles were on the head table.

Miss Mary Ross expressed appreciation to the speakers.

Variety Program By Knox Church Draws Big Crowd

Knox choir sponsored and assisted in a variety program Friday evening in Knex lecture hall which because of its lively timing skilful presentation and the variet numbers, was highly entertaining. Peter McCombe acted as compere, directing the concert.

After introductory remarks by the Rev. H. G. Douglas, the program opened with a comedy song scene, MacNamara's Band, presented by John Donaldson and chorus. This was followed by a stage sketch, "Mayor's Nest," a timely aldermanic take-off, given by PeterMcCombe, Vera Tasker, Harry Tasker, Molly and Bill Wright, of the 20 Plus Theatre Group.

Knox choir, conductor William Potter, sang "The Old Woman and the Pedlar" and the "Ash Grove." Following this the compere announced a surprise item, Mrs. Sherington, sister-in-law of Rev. Douglas, who is on a visit to Peterborough. This young lady sang "The Road to the Isles" with much spirit, and then danced a highland dance, to the piping of Pipe Major Alec Milne of the CGE pipe band. Both were in full regalia.

Knox Junior Choir sang two items, "Fly Away Little Bird to Your Nest" and "Three Little Mice" conducted by Mrs. Ross Williamson. Jack Flagler, tenor, then sang "A Little Bit of Heaven," followed by a song scene "Hush-a-bye Rose of Killarney" assisted by Miss Kaven Wood and a chorus of ladies.

Followed a tap dance by Gail and Sandra Wood. Mr. Wm. Potter then entertained with the solo box, an ingenious combination of piano and solo instrument, which aroused much interest on the part of the audience. After a short interval John Donaldson and chorus then gave "The King's Navee" from "HMS Pinnafore" by Gilbert and Sullivan.

Cartoonist Entertains

An interesting item then took the stage when Gord. Bailey, cartoonist from the staff of the Peterborough Examiner gave a very racy entertainment, combining cartoon drawing with humorous patter. Prudence Peterborough, The Old Trapper, and a number of others, including a series of very unflattering ones of the compere flowed from his pencil to the delight of the large audience.

A trio of ladies, Mrs. Ross Williamson, Mrs. Johnston and Mrs. Mitchell, accompanied by Mrs. Flett rendered three short items of part singing with great competency and feeling. The orchestra composed of Mrs. Foster, and Messrs. Seidel, Wardle, Smith, Rowe, Metter, Sage and Johnston then gave a short program of music, which was greatly enjoyed by the audience.

Miss Jean Jackman with ladies' chorus then sang "Moonbeams" while the stage manager manipulated the lights to produce many beautiful color effects. The concert concluded with the performance of a play "The Tangled Web" with Ed. Stephenson, Lindy McIntosh, Dennis Brockman and Harry Tasker, all from 20 Plus Theatre Group, keeping the audience in a hilarious mood for half an hour.

Ray Gillies was stage manager.

Of Interest to Women

DOROTHY DIX

Growing Old Gracefully An Art To Be Studied

"I devote a great deal of time and study to the art of growing old gracefully," said a woman to me the other day, "because when I reach the 70's and the doleful 80's I do not wish to be like so many of the disagreeable forlorn old creatures I see about me.

Dorothy Dix

"I don't want to be one of the tyrannical, selfish, tight-fisted old women whose children sit around waiting for them to die, nor do I wish to be one of the meddling mothers who stir up trouble werever they go. I could not bear to be like the garrulous old ladies who bore everybody to tears, and from whom people flee as they would from the plague, or the lonely old souls who fasten themselves, like the old woman of the sea, on the necks of their family and friends.

"Therefore, I watch my step a hundred times more carefully than I did when I was young, for I am determined to avoid as many of the pitfalls into which age tumbles as I possibly can. I am not going to follow the example of so many old people I know who make age a blanket excuse for being a pest.

"To begin with, I have maintained my own independence and individuality, which not only insures the respect of every one, including my own children, but promotes their affection. For it is a lot easier to love those we see occasionally than it is those with whom we live and with whom we are brought in daily and hourly conflict.

"When my husband died, my children dutifully invited me to come and live with them, but I declined with thanks. I didn't want to be 'poor mother,' who would always be a little in the way and who would drag around in the back of the automobile, and consequently even my in-laws are glad to see me.

"Loneliness is the curse of age. So many women concentrate every thought and desire on their little family circle, and then when it is broken up, as it is bound to be by death or by the children marrying and going about their own business, the mothers' lives are left absolutely empty.

"I have not made this mistake. I have kept up with my old friends and cultivated agreeable new acquaintances. I belong to clubs and take an active interest in all sorts of movements, and so I have no lack of companionship, or of keen and vital interests. Also I bear in mind that when we are old we are not so personally attractive as we were when we were young and beautiful and gay, so we have to throw in something besides ourselves to make people seek our society. Hence I entertain a lot and am not niggardly about food and drink.

"Most old people are bores and given to reminiscing about the past. I keep a hawklike watch on the face of very person with whom I talk, and when I see his or her attention begin to wander I drop the subject as if it were a hotcake that was burning my fingers.

"I have never permitted myself the luxury of acquiring 'ways' that have to be catered to. Nor have I let myself annex any set prejudices that every one has to gumshoe around. I can change my mind as easily as I can my hat, and I devote a lot more attention to keeping my opinions flexible than I do to keeping my knees supple.

"I have also supressed in myself the besetting vice of age which is the egotism that makes one believe that because one has lived 60 to 70 or 80 years one automatically becomes a Solomon. Therefore, I do not harass my children with unsolicited advice and suggestions. Nor do I sit in judgment on the young and condemn everything they do because it was not done in my day.

"In a word, I am trying to keep myself likeable, for if we wish to be popular we must make ourselves agreeable to our fellow creatures, and this goes double for age. Which is a fact most old people ignore."

For Quick Cough Relief, Mix This Syrup, at Home

You'll be surprised how quickly a bad winter cough can be relieved, when you try this well known recipe. It is universally used throughout Canada because it gives such gratifying results. It's no trouble at all to mix, and costs but a trifle.

Into a 16 ounce bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex; then fill up with granulated sugar syrup to make 16 ounces. Syrup is easily made with 2 cups of sugar and 1 cup of water, stirred a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed. Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup. This makes four times as much cough medicine for your money. Never spoils and tastes fine.

Quickly you feel its penetrating effect. It loosens the phlegm, helps to clear the air passages, and soothes the irritated membranes. This explains why it brings such quick relief.

Pinex is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well known for its soothing effect on throat irritations. Money refunded if it does not please you in every way.

Burt Lancaster Has Avoided Going Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS.

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 26 (AP). —Burt Lancaster tells how he was able to avoid "going Hollywood."

"I was luckier than most," he said. "I didn't come to Hollywood until I was 32 years old.

"You might say I had my abnormal days before I came here. The very young people who come here are intoxicated with the excitement and glamor. Hollywood has never bowled me over.

"The only think I have gotten out of Hollywood is a better living. And I am doing the kind of work I like.

"I don't separate my carrer and marriage. Why should I? That is the reason a man gets married—to share his work with his wife Hollywood is no threat to our marriage.

"My kids are too young yet to be affected either way by Hollywood. No doubt some day the fact that their father is a movie star will influence their lives somewhat I can just hope that they will be intelligent enough to overcome it."

Closed Sets

Do you know what a "closed set" is? Well, it's one of the occupational hazards of a movie reporter. It happens when the producer, director or star puts a "no admittance" sign on the stage door.

Naturally, I'm agin 'em. But there are two sides to every issue and here is the actor's, as presented by Joseph Cotten:

"Visitors are okay when you have a large set with several people working in the scene. Then the spectators have plenty to look at without concentrating on one object, or actor.

"But it is tough to be doing an intimate shot and have people constantly bobbing up and down in your line of vision.

"Love scenes are especially hard to do on a crowded set. Visitors are naturally keen to see the hero plant a big kiss on the girl's rosy lips. They crowd in closer for a good look.

"For example, the other day I was playing a love scene with Joan Fontaine in 'September' We were playing to a packed house and the visitors kept moving in closer When we came to the climax, I almost found myself kissing a school teacher from Milwaukee."

Woman Doctor Sees Food Threat

WINNIPEG, Nov. 26 — (CP) — An average family income in India of $10 a month, matched against a 400 per cent increase in the cost of living, is a serious threat to the health of India's children, says Dr Helen Hanson, who visited Winnipeg recently on a tour of Canada

Dr Hanson is the medical officer in charge of St. Luke's Hospital for Women in the Kangra Valley of the Punjab. The hospital is the only medical agency serving the valley, with a population of about a million persons.

Dr. Hanson said that food in the valley is in short supply and milk, so necessary for the growth of children, is very costly. Rickets and malnutrition are widespread.

A descendant of an old Scottish family employed by the old East India Trading Company in the 18th century, Dr. Hanson was born and educated in India. Her present tour marks the first time she has been away from her homeland.

Cornel Play Panned On Broadway

By PAT USSHER

NEW YORK, Nov. 26 —(CP)— Katharine Cornell came back to Broadway this week in a play which, alas, does not merit the fine acting and lavish production she has devoted to it.

"That Lady" is a drama based upon the romance of a duchess which rocked the Spanish empire four centuries ago. The time is late in the 16th century; the reign that of Philip II, who sent the armada against England, the ill-starred duchess in Ana de Mendoza, Princess of Eboli.

Miss Cornell is splendidly alive as the widowed duchess who arouses Philip's wrath by her affair with his secretary of state But the play as it slowly unfolds the romance and its tragic sequel, fails to capture the grandeur of Spain at the zenith of its imperial grandeur. It is tedious and talky, only attaining dramatic quality during the closing scenes

Most New York critics, like those in Toronto where the play was seen earlier, commended the acting but criticized the vehicle Richard Watts, Jr., in the New York Post said: "'That Lady' is a routine costume melodrama with the melodramatic excitement left out and a plethora of words substituted." Brooks Atkinson in The Times said: "apart from acting, directing and production, 'The Lady' is ordinary stuff." Even more scathing was Howard Barnes of The Herald Tribune, who wrote: "'That Lady' is dressed to the nines but it is a woeful play, indifferently staged and acted."

Savage Tragedy

August Strindberg's savage tragedy of married life, "The Father," has been given a third New York revival.

With Toronto-born Raymond Massey in the title role and directing, the 62-year-old drama is frequently eloquent. But it is a dated conversation piece in which too much of the talk has little sense and dramatic meaning.

"The Father" is the story of a malevolent wife who deliberately drives her husband insane in a contest for control over their only daughter.

Sharing the acting honors in the production at the Cort Theatre is Mady Christians, who is robustly evil as his wife.

Opera Season

The Metropolitan Opera season opened this week with Canada's Edward Johnson in his last term as general manager. Johnson, from Guelph, will be succeeded in the Post by Britain's Rudolf Bing. The company includes one Canadian newcomer to its ranks—Denis Harbour, a bass-baritone from Oka, Que. Harbour sings tonight in "Tosca." Included in the chorus of the opera company is a Canadian namesake of the general manager, Edward Johnson of Hamilton, a tenor.

6—In Memoriams

BROOK—In loving memory of my dear son, Jimmy Brook, who was killed six years ago, November 24th, 1943.
Nothing can take away
The love a heart holds dear
Fond memories linger every day
Remembrance keeps him near.
—Ever remembered by his mother.

HEIGH—In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Norman Heigh who passed away Nov. 27, 1947.
Memory lane is a lonely path,
Where hearts are ever true,
A path we travel again and again
Because it leads to you.
You left us beautiful memories
Often secret tears
But you will always be with us,
As we journey through the years.
You are always in our minds dear,
No matter what we do,
All the time within our hearts
There is a thought of you.
—Ever remembered by his wife and family.

WATKISS—In loving memory of a dear mother, who passed away Nov. 27, 1948.
Sweet memories will linger forever
Time cannot change them it's true
Years that may come cannot sever
My loving remembrance of you.
—Gladys, Bill and family.

WATKISS — In loving memory of Florence Watkiss, who passed away one year ago, Nov. 27, 1948.
Yes, she sleeps but not forever
In a lone and silent grave
Blessed promise she shall waken
Jesus died the lost to save.
In the dawning of the morning
When the troubled night is o'er
All the buds in beauty blooming
Will rejoice to see her more.
—Ever remembered by Leonard and family.

WATKISS — In loving memory of Florence Watkiss, who passed away one year ago, Nov. 27, 1948.
Peacefully sleeping, resting at last
The world's weary troubles and trials are past
In silence she suffered in patience she bore
Till God called her home to suffer no more.
—Ever remembered by granddaughter Shirley and Bob.

Expect To Spend 34 Million During Festival

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

LONDON, Nov. 26 (CP)—Britain will go gay to the tune of more than £11,000,000 ($34,100,000) during the 1952 festival of Britain.

London will go continental with floodlit parks, ornate fountains, open-air cafes and music. Provincial cities will be gay with new paint, towns ablaze with bunting, village greens alive with carnival.

Centre of the festival, which will run from May 1 to Sept. 30, will be the 30-acre exhibition site on the south bank of the river Thames between Waterloo and Westminister.

On the amusement side alone festival officials expect to lose £100,000 ($310,000) in the conversion and operation of 40 acres of London's Battersea Park as festival gardens. Gross expenditure on the gardens will be £660,000, but the revenue is not expected to exceed £670,000.

No One Worried

No one seems very concerned about that—perhaps because the millions of tourists entertained are expected to contribute vast revenue to Britain in other ways.

Attractions planned for the gardens include floodlighting, fountains, a riverside restaurant, a tea house, a music hall and a dance floor, an aviary, a special picnic centre and a creche where visitors can leave their children.

There will also be sideshows—a "robot" acrobat show, a caterpillar maze, a petrified forest and a waxworks.

Elsewhere in Britain every community has been asked to arrange special events during the festival, and to incorporate and amplify other attractions, such as the Edinburgh Festival, the Welsh National Eisteddfod and the British Industries Fair.

Travelling exhibitions will carry a breath of the London show to all parts of Britain.

"Chief aim of the festival will be to give Britain a much-needed boost," the official said, "but it will also mark the centenary year of the great 1851 exhibition, which was an outstanding success."

Says Recreation Responsibility Of Municipality

Municipal recreation is fundamentally the responsibility of local government, not service clubs or other interested agencies, Jack Dane, Peterborough Recreation Director, said in an address to the Kinsmen Club.

While extending high praise to the work done by these other organizations he said that the cost must be met out of tax funds for the benefit of all people, "regardless of age, race, religion, color or creed."

He felt that the problem of community recreation was similar to other municipal responsibilities such as education, health, fire, police, and other services paid out of taxation.

And the financial expenditure on recreation should be placed on the same basis, in his opinion.

He linked the subject with education asking his audience what was recreation if not "education in leisure time?"

Then he introduced the theme of his address, "The Role of the Service Club in the Community in Respect to the Recreation Program."

Job For Service Clubs

Because the leisure-hour activities of people are so complex and because government cannot provide all the recreation services and facilities, a large gap remains that service clubs can fill.

At the moment it is being filled by ommercial, private, semi-private and public agencies.

"Because it is a democracy in which we live and because it is the wish of the members and as well as the function of a service club to fill a need that civic administration is unable to care for, recreation is being provided on a large scale by service clubs everywhere."

At the moment in Peterborough there are eight service clubs, said Mr. Dane, and these are comprised of about 500 members. Those interested in providing healthful activities for both adults and children during their spare time must ask themselves a number of searching questions.

"If the service club is providing recreational facilities how is it to be maintained? Who is going to provide continued leadership?"

It is doubtful if service clubs should enter into long-range projects, he suggested.

Changes in personnel and changes in policy might vitally affect the operation of such projects as maintaining parks, club houses, swimming pools and similar facilities.

Should a depression arise the service club might be expected to revert to its original work of providing for the needy, Mr. Dane warned. And the taxpayer should not be made to carry the heavy maintenance expenditures which some enthusiastic service club had originated.

Under such unfavorable circumstances as that, it would have been better had the club not undertaken its project.

Peterborough similar to other communities can stand only so much recreation, he contended.

"As the concept of recreation changes the pattern must precede that change. It can stand only so much of such type of recreation; because of the different ages and interests. Active, passive, athletic, cultural and social activities must be considered and a balanced program developed where there will be no overcrowded or idle facilities."

"The major need is for some kind of co-ordinated planning on a long term principle," he said, "with the major survey being the basis of action in any community."

In Peterborough he suggested that all service clubs, Recreation Commission, YMCA, YWCA, Board of Education, Library Board, and other interested organizations join with the City Council in planning the future of recreation.

This problem would be met, he felt, in three phases: determine present recreational facilities, compare them with what are needed, and then develop a plan to meet the needs.

Mr. Dane gave a brief review of his recommendations when he first accepted the job in Peterborough and described how much had been accomplished.

The speaker was introduced by Wilfred Langan and thanked by Fred Ash. President Harley Weir was in the chair.

Dr. Moir

patients a day, and the capacity of the hospital was between 2,000 and 3,000," Dr. Moir recalled. "I did a great deal of work among the outpatients, people who came to the hospital mostly for surgical treatment. I walked the streets of the Whitechapel district thousands of times, and although most people have probably heard unfavorable things about that area, I remember it as being usually as orderly as our own Brock St."

Dr. Moir continued his post-graduate work in New York, and finally in 1912 he decided to come to Peterborough.

In that important step he may have been influenced by Mrs. Moir, a south Monaghan girl, Edna Byers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Byers whom he had met as a nurse at the Sick Children's Hospital, Toronto. Their introduction was only an incident of Dr. Moir's student days. He was doing dispensary work at that hospital and studying medicine at the same time. After his graduation from the University of Toronto they were married in 1903 and lived in Dunnville.

Dr. Moir retains a vivid impression of John Ross Robertson the publisher of the Toronto Telegram, whose rich endowment financed the Hospital for Sick Children.

Large Peterborough Practice

The new doctor in Peterborough soon became established in a large practice, and in the custom of that time was at the call of patients day and night. In the long run, Dr. Moir achnowledges now, it would have been wiser if doctors had tried more effectually to regulate the demands on their time and energy.

Dr. Moir is leaving the Peterborough medical scene at the beginning of its greatly enlarged and modern phase of hospital accommodation. That improvement for the benefit of the people of the city and its surrounding district is the most notable change in local conditions during his experience.

"The new Civic Hospital and the enlargement of St. Joseph's have greatly improved the situation here of taking care of the sick," Dr. Moir said. "The accommodation appears to be more adequate than it has ever been, and with new equipment and especially the new drugs we should have the conveniences here for the treatment and care of all the people of the district."

The sulpha drugs, penicillin, streptomycin and so on had been great aid in medical practice, and a boon to both doctor and patient.

Dr. Moir said he had himself witnessed great progress in medicine, but in compliment to his own generation, its equipment and training, he remarked: "We had good technic in surgery 40 years ago."

Different Modern Conditions

The increased hospital accommodation in Peterborough, and generally throughout the country, was the effect of a cause which Dr. Moir had seen develop gradually.

"There is a greater readiness of the people to get early treatment, and even to go to a hospital than there was when I began practice."

The new provision of insurance to meet hospital costs of patient care was plainly a factor in this change and has become an advantage to the people and also to the profession. The improvement of X-ray efficiency in diagnosis, the discovery of the cause of diabetes twenty-five years ago and its satisfactory treatment and results since then "have meant a great deal in the saving of lives".

A Founder of Clinic

It may be almost forgotten in the broad development of the city during the last quarter of a century that Dr. Moir was one of the founders of the Peterborough Clinic at Charlotte and Reid Streets. Associated with him were Dr. G. S. Cameron, Dr. J. Malcolm McCulloch, the late Dr. Frank C. Neal and Dr. J. H. Eastwood.

Apparently the idea had been in the minds of the individual members of that professional group. When it was actually suggested they found themselves in agreement, and in 1919 the Peterborough Clinic became an additional centre of medical science in this community. Its service was accepted at once, and for the last thirty years its facilities have been used by the sick and injured with gradual expansion of its staff and the scope of its beneficent and enterprising aid to many thousands of people.

Peterborough Indebtedness

Peterborough will extend to Dr. Moir a reluctant and grateful farewell as he closes the long and distinguished chapter of his life and work here. He is leaving the community in his debt as an estimable citizen and as successful surgeon whose contribution to the welfare of the city and the well being of its people will remain a bright memory of his practice, his abilities and his kindly and friendly personality.

When the new Civic Hospital opens its doors to the sick and infirm, and when the new wing of St. Joseph's Hospital in finished, it should be remembered that Dr. Moir was a member of their boards and a daily practitioner during years when their equipment in rooms and beds, appliances and accessories lacked many of the refinements that are now in the making.

A new and splendid medical estate is coming into being. It is an enlargement of the good estate so faithfully and skilfully cultivated by such men as Dr. Archibald Moir, Dr. Malcolm McCulloch and others who have retired from active practice. In a real sense, it is a fruit of their work.

Teachers Choose R. K. McKee 1950 President

R. K. McKee was elected president of Peterborough Teachers' Institute at the annual meeting Friday in Queen Mary School auditorium. H. R. Wilson is the new vice president.

P. D. Windrim, Inspector of Public Schools and last year's president, was chairman of the all day conference.

Throughout the year the public school teachers have been engaged in research in order to be able to make recommendations before the Government's proposed change in mathematics curricula is implemented. Miss Marjorie Oliver, Peterborough public school teacher, had prepared a paper on curriculum research in mathematics. Owing to illness she was unable to attend the conference and her paper was read by Miss Beryl Hart.

Books for teachers and pupils were displayed by 10 Toronto book sellers.

The afternoon session was devoted to discussion groups when teachers of each grade met in separate rooms to discuss problems peculiar to their grades.

Bomber Clips Electric Lines

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26 (AP) —A United States Airforce B-17 plane clipped an electric line while approaching Bolling Field Friday night and plunged a big area of the city into darkness but the six men aboard landed safely.

The Congress Heights and Bellevue sections of Southwest Washington lost all power. Service was restored about two hours after the accident.

Capt. William J. Lookadoo, public relations officer at Bolling identified the pilot as Lt. Col. W. H. Campbell, 32. The plane was from Offutt Base, Omaha.

One eyewitness said the plane apparently missed an apartment building by about 15 feet before hitting 4,000-volt wires, 40 feet above the ground.

The power interruption occurred just before the supper hour.

Port Hope Council Fights Closing Peterborough Line

PORT HOPE, Nov. 26 — Railway freight rates in this Central Ontario district will take a sharp jump if a threat of the Canadian National Railways to close the Peterborough-Port Hope branch line, gets the sanction of the Board of Transport Commissioners.

Revelation that the rates would likely take a jump came from a fairly reliable source this week.

The source indicated that rail freight from Peterborough would have to be re-routed around through Belleville and up to Cobourg and Port Hope. Freight rate costs are based on mileage, the source said, so that it is clear there will be a hoist in charges.

Meanwhile, the Port Hope council, has decided not to take the threatened closing of the north-bound lift-lock city line, sitting down.

"They didn't get too far down in Cobourg over the ferries," council thought, "but we might as well do our best to have them stop this move."

Reeve E. B. Lingard described the proposed discontinuance of the line as "the CNR chopping a lot of dead limbs out of the tree these days (apparently referring also to the proposed discontinuance of the Ontario Car Ferry service)," but the reeve said he didn't want to see limbs looped off which still had life in them.

"I don't think we should throw up our hands and let this thing drop, gentlemen," Mayor Rowland W. Jex said.

Reeve Lingard returned: "I think the township of Hope could be made interested in this thing, they receive an annual grant so long as the line's kept in operation."

Starving The Line

Councillor William Roach was in no mood to see the CNR close down the line without a fight. He charged, "They're starving the line. I understand they've been routing freight from Peterborough and Lindsay to Port Hope, that should have come over that line, down through Belleville and up through Cobourg. They're not putting the trains on to make the line pay. I can remember when I was a kid—and I'm not very old either—when there used to be 20 trains a day coming in over that line."

"No, I don't think we should stop now," Councillor Moore said. "We should protest this matter some way."

Someone told the council that now, only one freight train a week came into town from the north over the line. "They used to have a moonlight special every night, not long ago," Mayor Jex observed.

Get Other Towns

Council agreed there was no use in the town alone protesting the matter. "No," Deputy Reeve Lorne Giddy concurred, "We should get them all on it—Millbrook, Cavan, and all the places right clean through including Peterborough." Everyone thought that Peterborough would be "very interested in doing something about the line.

The one hope, council is relying on, is that it can in some way hold the CNR to their 99-year agreement to run a service over the line.

Reeve E. B. Lingard, Councillor George Philips and Councillor W. N. Moore were appointed a committee to take the matter up with the Town Solicitor and the Durham county member of parliament and to attempt to interest neighboring communities in the problem. They will meet Monday night. Mayor Jex will sit in on the session.

190% Increase In U.S. Income

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26 (AP) —A 190 per cent increase in total consumer income between prewar 1939 and the third quarter of this year was erroneously stated as 90 per cent increase in an Associated Press story Thursday.

The error resulted from a reporter's misreading the 190 per cent increase figure in a Federal Reserve Board table as an index figure of 190.

The reserve board often uses the index system, taking pre-war data to represent 100. In such circumstances a 90 per cent increase would be shown by using an index figure of 190 for 1949.

The board's consumer income data, in this case, however, was compared on a straight percentage basis instead of by the idex figure system. The misinterpretation resulted in identical errors for comparisons of specific types of income, such as wages and salaries. The change from 1939 was understood by 100 per cent in each instance.

Canada's Population Still Shows Increase

OTTAWA, Nov. 26 — (CP).— Canada's population is still increasing, but the rate of natural increase is slowing down.

There were fewer births, fewer deaths and fewer marriages during the first three months of this year than in the same period of 1948, the Bureau of Statistics reported Friday.

There were 82,814 live births in the Dominion — equivalent to a rate of 25.5 per 1,000 of population for the whole year—compared with 84,915 live births—a rate of 26.5 per 1,000—a year ago. Deaths totalled 30,689, a rate of 9.4 compared with 32,728, a rate of 10.2, leaving the actual increase in population for the quarter at 30,689 compared with 32,728 last year.

There were 15,245 marriages, compared with 16,160 in the same period last year.

Stock Markets Drift Down During Week

By The Canadian Press.

Stock markets drifted downwards this week under pressure of profit-taking sales.

Activity clowed to a crawl on the downtrend and increased when prices tried to continue their five-month advance.

Year-end tax selling was a minor factor in the New York market. Many of the expected year-end extra dividends were announced during the week.

The Associated Press 60-stock average closed the week at 68.1, a loss of .4 from the previous Friday.

Canadian markets also sagged in five comparatively dull sessions.

Industrials slipped steadily in Toronto with activity slowing to a standstill at times. A few issues featured following the release of annual reports or declaration of year-end dividend increases. The group lost 1.35 on the Exchange's index of representative stocks.

Golds Lower

Golds were also pushed lower with some support appearing for senior producers late in the week. The list dipped 1.54 on the index.

Activity in base metals was comparatively dull as the group dropped .097. Western oils encountered considerable selling for a loss of 1.03.

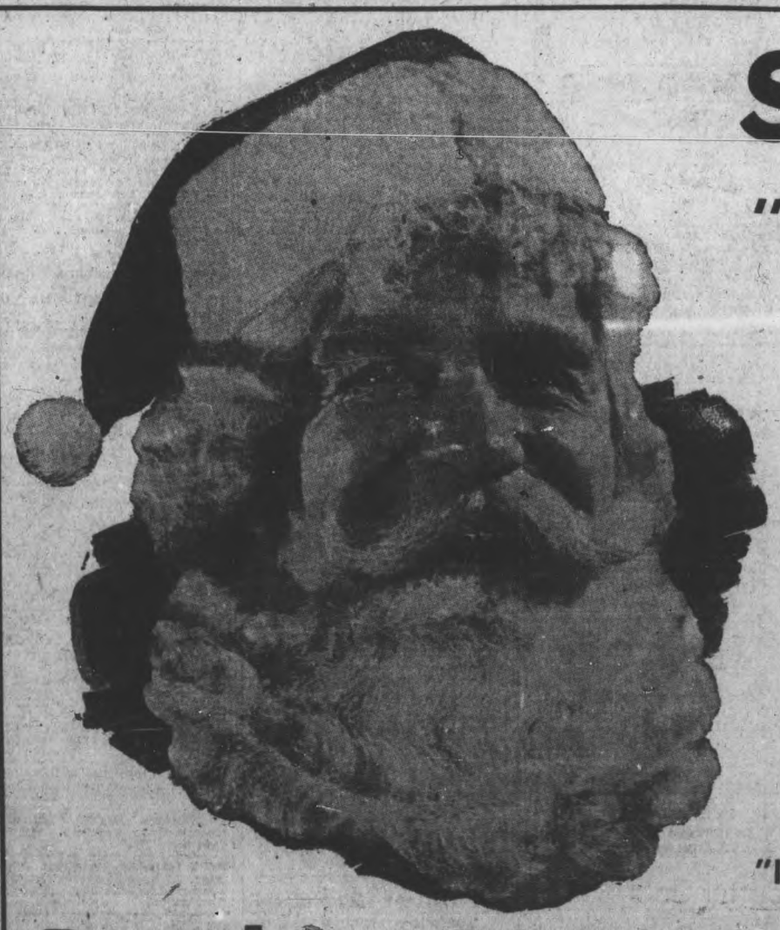
Volume for the five days was 4,232,000 shares, compared with 4,825,000 shares the previous week.

Papers held their ground against an otherwise downward trend in Montreal. The group gained 0.99 on the averages.

Losses were: Banks .1, utilities .2, industrials 1.2, combined .8, golds .5. Industrial volume was 294,694, as against 363,449, and mines 756,995 as against 1,009,447.

Montreal and Toronto resume normal trading hours next week. Resumption of standard time in Toronto removes the necessity of having an extra hour of trading in order to close at the same time as New York.

In both Montreal and Toronto trading hours will be 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. EST.



Grain markets were stronger from last Friday. In Chicago, December wheat, corn, soybeans, oats and rye showed gains ranging up to 6 cents. In Winnipeg, December oats and rye tightened.

Acclamations Probable In Belmont Twp.

HAVELOCK, Nov. 26 (ENS)—Belmont and Methuen Townships nominated candidates for municipal offices on Friday at the Township Hall and indications after the meeting were that there was a possibility of an acclamation for the reeve, council and school boards.

Five candidates were nominated for the Reeveship. They are. Reeve Ross Barrons, W. E Griffith, Carl Purdy, C. F. Sicenburgh, and Richard Sanderson. Mr. Barrons was the only one to sign up at the meeting.

W. E. Griffith the veteran campaigner of the township who entered municipal affairs 40 years ago, indicated that unless there was going to be an election for councillors he would not contest the reeveship.

Mr. Barrons, who first contested the reeveship in 1949, defeated Mr. Griffith by a majority of 138. Mr. Griffith however, was elected reeve for 1948 over Carl Purdy by a majority of 32.

Five For Four Seats

There were five nominations for the four seats on council.

The four members of this year's council were nominated: George Newton, who has served ten consecutive years on the council; Robert Wrightly, Norris Whitney and Donald Anderson. Alfred Cunningworth was the new candidate.

All signed up with the exception of Mr. Anderson, who has until 9 p.m. today to do so.

For School Board

School Board nominations were as follows:

Area No. 1—Four nominated for three seats for two-year terms: E. J. Pollock, Max Post, Donald Newton, George White. The first two named have signed

Area No. 2—Four nominated for three seats for two-year terms: Walter Van Steenburgh, Everett Toms, Carman Ellis, John Maloney. The first three mentioned are the retiring members and have signed up. Mr. Maloney indicated he would not take part.

RETURNED TO COUNCIL—Dave McIntyre (left) and Norman McConkey (right), two of the councillors in the Otonabee who were returned by acclamation on Friday afternoon. The third councillor, Roy Spears, also received an acclamation.

Twp. Nominates Eleven Men For New Council

MARMORA, Nov. 26 (ENS)—Eleven were nominated for the four seats on Marmora and Lake Townships Council at the nomination meeting in the Council Chamber Friday.

Last year's councillors nominated were George Davidson, Chas. Kelly, Irwin McCoy and John Wilkes, and additional names were George Fox, Albert Leonard, Everett Barrons, Arthur Sheridan, Everett Derry, Gordon Jones and Ross Carman.

John A. Bell, reeve for the past 13 years, with two years as a councillor preceding that term, was renominated for the reeveship and also nominated was Irwin McCoy.

For three Area school trustees, four names were submitted including the three retiring trustees, Percy Carman, Raymond Bonter and Wilbert Jones, with Gordon Moffatt as a new nominee.

There was a large attendance of voters and animated discussions on various subjects of interest to the municipality followed the presentation of reports and the views candidly expressed by the nominees.

Reeve To Retire?

Reeve John A. Bell left the impression that he would not be seeking re-election but it is anticipated that by the qualification hour on Saturday, sufficient will have qualified as nominees for council to cause an election on Dec. 5.

Thomas J. Bateman was returning officer.

The nomination meeting for Marmora Village took place in the same chamber in the evening, with Village Clerk E. C. Prentice presiding.

Nominations were as follows: Reeve, V. M. Lynch; Council, J. R. Reynolds, A. Walker, F. S. Johnston, Ritchie Wells, (all members of the retiring council) and P. Gray.

Nominations for the three Public School trustees were: D. P. Marett, W. D. Lavender and R. Wright.

Hydro Commissioner, F. R. Wells.

Attendance of ratepayers at the meeting dropped a little below that of recent years.

At the close of the nominations speeches were heard from the reeve who received acclamation and other nominees. The reeve spoke of the harmonious support of all village officials and also from the other nominees present.

Second Term

municipal nominations Friday night for twelve positions of voluntary civic responsibility that are automatically becoming vacant at the end of the year.

The muster was a great deal larger than might have been expected from the compatatively few names of prospective candidates mentioned about town in the last week. The net result was the acclamation of Mayor Swanston and Mr. Matthews and the prospect of elections for the City Council and Board of Education.

Ratepayer Concern

The large attendance and the interest displayed through the period afforded to nominees for addressing the assembly were reassuring signs of ratepayer concern for good government of the city.

City Clerk Outram announced that the nominees were required to qualify before 9 p.m. Saturday, and that election day was Monday Dec. 5 with 56 polls open from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. He was appointed chairman of the general meeting at the close of the hour for filing nominations. Mr. Outram called upon the speakers in the order of their nomination. Some of those who received sponsorship were not present at the time.

Ald. Doug. Miller, confirming his announcement that he would be a candidate for the council, said he did not wish to make any promises about his future service to the city, if re-elected. "During the last two years I have tried to serve the citizens to the best of my ability, and if elected again I shall carry on the work in the same manner as in the past."

Ald. P. J. Anglesey said he felt that his two years' experience in council would benefit him in continuing it, if he was elected for a second two years.

Important Problems

Ald. Hugh Waddell, with four years in the council behind him, said Peterborough was faced with important problems as outlined previously by Mayor Swanston. "I shall be delighted to have a part in the work of the city and the council if I am elected."

Fred T. Tuggey declared that he would stand for election "because I think we need to let the people know what is going on in connection with the city's business. A lot of money is being expended, and I would like to hear an outline of the costs of the projects that have been mentioned."

Mr. Tuggey said that from 1945 to 1949 the city's taxes had advanced 5 per cent. "That's just five years, and we've just got the hospital started. The money has got to be raised for these works, and I think the time has come for a little more consideration of the expenditure in keeping with the burden the ratepayers have to carry. Let us cut out a lot of unnecessary spending."

Mr. Tuggey expressed the belief that some of the spending was contrary to the municipal law.

"I assure you that my experience in the council and my knowledge should be worth something to you as one who will look to the tax rate you'll have to meet. If it keeps on you might be paying your taxes monthly instead of in three instalments a year. I want you to think that it is your money and your property.

No Unnecessary Spending

The promise I will make is that I will not be a part to anything unnecessary or contrary to the wishes of the people. My record is outstanding in behalf of the ratepayers. I was seven years in the council, and I never missed a meeting of the council or committee, and I was never late. If you trust me with your vote, I'll do my duty as a man. I represent no organization, only the citizens as a whole, without fear or favor and with no special privileges to any one."

Norman Graham said he intended to accept nomination, "and if I am entrusted by the citizens I'll give a square deal to all." Mr. Graham recalled that his father, the late James Graham, had been a member of the city council for some years.

Ald. Grant Miller told the citizens he was leaving the city administration with some misgivings. He had taken part in the beginning of some of the major projects, and would like to have seen them through. But, he had to make a decision because of the pressure of his own business.

"I wish to thank the citizens for electing me two years ago, and giving me the experience I have had in that time," Ald. Miller said. "I'll treasure it as long as I live. Every young man, if possible, should avail himself of that kind of experience. I also thank the members of the council for their courtesy and their co-operation in the various committees. Many times we did not see eye to eye, but we always left the council chamber in good spirit. I wish the new council every success, and to the new aldermen I suggest that they put aside any inferiority complex, so to speak, and come out of their corners fighting."

Do His Best

Harry Yudin said briefly that he appreciated the honor of being nominated for the second time, although it might be his last. He was accepting the nomination and hoped that the citizens who voted for him last year would renew their confidence. If elected he would be very grateful during the two years and give his best efforts to the citizens.

Louis M. Brooks said he was not yet decided whether to stand for election. "If I am elected I'll give you as much ability as I can. In my travels around the west, I was convinced that Ontario is the best province, and I still think Peterborough is the best city in this province. If I put my name before the people I'll do all in my power to see that the management of the city is carried on to the best of my ability."

Mr. Pitchford, candidate for re-election to the Board of Education said he intended to qualify because he liked the work. Association with the members was always pleasant. He considered it a privilege to serve the citizens in any capacity.

"I believe that my experience of four years on the Board should qualify me for re-elecaion. In that time the Board has done a lot of work. In the last two years I have served on every committee, and this year I was appointed vice-chairman."

Mr. Pitchford said costs had increased, as indicated by the total of $750,000 of which $600,000 was for salaries, or $50,000 a month a large potential buying power in itself. As announced by the Minister of Education a few weeks ago local boards were to be faced with larger responsibilities. "We must attack the problems of today as they appear. I am in favor of providing the best equipment so that our young people may start in life in the best way through our school system."

Mr. Borland said his experience on the Board was of value to him as a candidate. He had developed a deep interest in the work. "If you desire me to continue, I shall be very happy to accept the job again for the next two years."

Mr. Adamson said he was keenly interested in all civic matters and especially in the work of the Board of Education.

Enrolment Up

Congratulating the citizens on their presence, G. W. Craw said it was the largest nomination meeting he had attended. As a member of the Board of Education for ten years he had sought to serve the ratepayers and the interests of education to the best of his ability.

There is no better proof of the growth of a communuity than the increase of enrollment in the schools, Mr. Craw said. In the last ten years the number of children attending the Public Schools of the city had increased from 2,600 to 4,000. Twenty-eight class rooms had been added to the school's accommodation. In the last three years two additions had been built, and Mr. Craw recalled that he had been chairman of the committee studying plans in the last four years.

In spite of the new building "we have only kept pace with our requirements." With the number of children now in the primary schools it was obvious that plans had to be considered years in advance.

"Hence, the Board in the last year has bought property in Ashburnham for a new school there; on Monaghan Road in the west end for a new junior school, and in the southwest end other property for a Collegiate Institute that will be needed in the future."

The problem of the Collegiate Institute was shown by the fact that the accommodation for 1,200 now available was occupied to capacity, and with crowded conditions in the lower schools, other provision would have to be undertaken some time.

Mr. Craw said he was greatly interested in the work of the Board of Education, and would like to continue the job of getting the necessary schools built. If re-elected, he said he would give the best possible service in the new schools we hope to build. I trust that I will have the opportunity of serving the citizens for another two years."

bee would benefit from the revision. A talk with County Asessor Sparling had indicated the equalization of assessment might take as long as three years, he said.

No definite plans have yet been proposed to cope with the fire hazard raised by Peterborough's declaration that the city's Fire Department would no longer attend fires in adjoining townships.

This would be a major problem that would have to be faced immediately, Mr. McConkey said.

Several speakers praised the progress of the Keene rink and Peter Mather, one-time Reeve of Otonabee, claimed he had not seen one in Ontario to compare with it. Mr. Stewart said it was the "greatest project ever undertaken in this township."

Grant to Hospital

Mr. Mather also said he recalled that the original county grant, amounting to $150,000, for the building of the new Civic Hospital, had been made on the understanding it would be a 265-bed hospital.

He offered no adivce on whether or not the County should give an increased grant but indicated the original $150,000 donation included the County's share for the 265 bed hospital complete with a nurses' residence.

R. M. Short, Otonabee road superintendent, gave resume of his department's accomplishments.

They included seven road construction projects; 62 new culverts and 26 repaired; 3½ miles of brush sprayed; four miles of weeds sprayed; four bridges repaired; 15,700 cubic yard of gravel used on roads; and $2,128 spent on snow plowing of which $1,000 was a standing charge.

CGE Worker Killed, Hit By Train

Brother Driving Car For Warren Ferguson Struck At Aylmer St.

Warren W. Ferguson, 30, of 293 Bethune St., was killed instantly by a CPR passenger train early Saturday afternoon at the corner of Aylmer and Townsend Sts. when his car, driven by his brother Sidney, was smashed on the right side by the train's engine.

Sidney escaped with only a small cut on the face. Warren had no visible cuts or injuries. Coroner Dr. Herbert N. Young said he had probably died instantly of internal injuries. The victim was crushed against the dashboard of his car.

Sidney told police while he was driving south on Aylmer St., he looked back for a moment to check a ladder on a trailer they were pulling. When he turned around to the front, he said, the train was right on top of them. He said he swung the car to the left hoping the train would hit only the trailer, but he was too late.

The 1930 model car was pushed about 40 feet by the seven-car train and was a total wreck. Witnesses said they did not know why both brothers were not killed.

Wig-Wag Signals

The crossing is a level crossing with wig-wag signals. The train was the Toronto-Ottawa train which was arriving from Toronto at 1.08 p.m., 28 minutes late. The train's engineer was Leon Breen Toronto.

The brothers, who lived in the same house at 293 Bethune St., were on their way to fix the chimney on a house Sidney had bought for his wife and three children. They had moved about two weeks ago to a lot on Braidwood Ave. Although Warren owned the car he was riding in the right front seat.

Warren, a carpenter at the CGE, was a veteran of World War II who spent five years in the Provost Corps. He had not married. He lived with his brother's family.

His parents died more than 11 years ago. He had one brother, Sidney, and a sister, Mrs. Vincent Dineen (Betty).

Dr. Young said probably an inquest will be held.

Bandits Flee Angry Woman

TORONTO, Nov 28 — (CP).—Mrs. Florence M. Crawford, 60-year-old grocery store proprietress, chased a gang of armed 'teen-age would-be bandits to the street on Saturday night, waving a long butcher knife.

The four youths, one armed with a black revolver, fled in terror, one tripping another in his haste, as Mrs. Crawford reached for the knife instead of the cash drawer when the youths snarled "It's a hold-up."

Conservative Captures Colombian Presidency

BOGOTA, Nov. 28 (AP)—Colombia's Conservative party won the country's presidency for another four years Sunday in a tense but quiet election boycotted by the Liberal opposition.

Nearly all the votes seemed to have gone to Conservative Laureano Gomez, the only candidate The Liberals withdrew their nominee, Dario Echandia, after Conservative President Mariano Ospina Perez three weeks ago proclaimed a state of siege, a modified form of martial law, to suppress political clashes.

No violence was reported election day. In recent months 500 or more persons had been reported killed in political clashes.

(Because the government had halted cable communications from 10 a.m. Sunday to 8 a.m. Monday, voting returns were delayed in reaching the United States. But the Bogota radio, heard in New York Sunday night reported Gomez had received virtually all the 512,945 votes cast in 377 out of 850 of the country's municipalities.

2,000 Perish In Mine Fire

BERLIN, Nov. 28 (AP)—The British-licensed newspaper Telegraf says today 2,000 persons perished in a uranium mine fire in the Soviet Zone last Thursday. The paper says it was one of the worst mine disasters in history and charged that it was due to negligence.

In an early edition, Telegraf says 600 German miners died in the blaze, which occurred in a mine in the Erz Mountains, on the Saxony - Czechoslovak border, near Johannesgeorgenstadt. In its evening edition, it says later reports have revised the casualty list upward to 2,000. Only 300 miners were reported rescued. The bulk of the workers, says Telegraf, were political prisoners.

Telegraf says the fire spread from one mine to two nearby workings and that an explosives dump detonated, wrecking a mine hoisting tower. It says the blaze started when worn insulation on mine electric cables caused a short circuit. The deaths were said to have been caused by fire, smoke and gas.

The paper says rescue teams from all nearby cities in Saxony were at the scene and that up to Friday night, 968 bodies had been recovered.

Trans-Canada Highway Finished By 1957—Winters

OTTAWA, Nov. 28—(CP)—Reconstruction Minister Winters today set the early spring of 1950 as the starting point for a $300,000,000, two-lane trans-Canada highway and said it should be completed by 1957.

He moved in the Commons for second reading—approval in principle—of a Bill "to encourage and assist in the construction" of a 5,000-mile highway that will extend from Victoria to St. John's, Nfld., and take in Prince Edward Island.

The Minister stressed that Ottawa will bear not only half of the cost of new construction but will give the provinces 50 per cent of the cost of existing roads which become part of the route.

He said, too, that a Dominion-Provincial conference to clear up "all matters of technical detail" will be called once the present legislation is passed.

Mr. Winters said Federal absorption of half the cost of existing roads that become part of the highway "will have the effect of making the Federal Government's contribution toward highway remaining to be completed considerably more than 50 per cent."

The minister said 10 basic proposals put forward by Ottawa "were well received by the provinces." These include provision for "a modern, first-class, hard-surfaced road following the shortest practical East-West route consistent with the needs of the provinces and Canada as a whole."

The provinces would select the route and arrange for execution of the work except in national parks. The highway would remain the "property and responsibility" of the provinces. The Federal contribution would be 50 per cent of the costs to the provinces.

The provinces would bear "all ordinary maintenance costs." Tenders and specification for contracts in the building "would be subject to review by the Federal Government." Ottawa also would have the right to inspect the road and audit costs.

Milder Weather Latest Forecast

By The Canadian Press

Warm Pacific air is expected to bring mild weather to Southern Ontario by tomorrow.

Rain, possibly changing to ice as it hits the ground, is forecast for tonight, with temperatures in the low 30s. But, after the rain, the warm air flow from the west is due to raise the mercury to 40-50 degrees, more than 10 degrees above the average maximum during the weekend.

Cloudy and milder weather was the general forecast for Ontario today. There was no sign of more snow in the immediate future. The snowfall Sunday reached eight inches in parts of Western Ontario.

All main highways were reported clear, but heavy and slippery in many sections. At Windsor police reported 26 accidents during the week-end, mostly caused by icy streets when higher temperatures followed the late Saturday snowfalls, with another colder snap late Sunday.

About three inches of snow fell around Windsor, up to eight inches at London, six inches at Goderich and eight inches near Stratford where rural roads were blocked. Brantford had about seven inches.

The snowstorm late Saturday reached blizzard proportions at some points, notably Hamilton, where some cars were embedded in snowbanks after skidding off the streets and traffic up and down Hamilton mountain was slowed to a crawl.

Woman Has Baby Girl In Raging Snow Storm

HAMILTON, Nov 28 (CP) — "Mother and baby both doing fine"

That was the terse comment of St Joseph's Hospital officials today on the story of a Smithville woman who gave birth to a five-pound girl-baby in a blinding snowstorm on a lonely country road early Sunday morning

Dr. A. W. Bond, of Smithville, received an emergency call late Saturday night to go to the home of Mrs. Charles E. Hardman, one of his patients.

He and the prospective grandfather, George Hardman, settled Mrs. Hardman in the doctor's car and set out through a blizzard on the 25-mile trip to St. Joseph's Hospital here.

At 12.30 a.m. Sunday while the snowflakes swirled down on an isolated country lane, Mrs. Charles E. Hardman gave birth to her fifth child, a girl.

Australia's Rocket Range Hush-Hush Desert Spot

SYDNEY, Australia, Nov. 28—(AP)—The most hush-hush spot in Australia is in the middle of a big red stony desert.

The British Commonwealth's long-range weapons establishment at Woomera, 250 miles northwest of Adelaide, is known generally as the "rocket range."

It's shrouded in secrecy. The Australian public knows they test rockets out there, but that is all.

Recently Australian newspaper men were taken on a tour, only the second since construction began three years ago. They talked with range scientists and engineers. They were not much wiser when they left.

One writer from the Melbourne Argus said that when he returned to Melbourne he was treated as the man from the rocket range, with as much awe as if he had been the man from the moon.

Actually the range is still in its infancy. The present length has not been announced, but eventually it will stretch 1,200 miles across the desert centre of Australia to the northwest coast. From there it will be extended, if required, another 1,500 miles across the Indian Ocean towards Christmas Island.

Weapons now being tested are small. Biggest rocket the newspaper men saw fired was a three-inch one. The British Army was using a similar type six years ago.

Range engineers say other test missiles have been fired but are still on the "secret list."

The range is divided into two parts. One is the prohibited area at Woomera where workers, service personnel, and their families live. Outsiders are not allowed in and security measures are strict.

Suicide Idea Symptom Of Disease

Neighbors All Testify To Devotion Of Victim's Husband

COBOURG, Nov. 28 (Special to Examiner)—A doctor said today that Mrs. Irene Kilbon, found fatally shot at her home near Bailieboro Nov. 1 in what police said at the time appeared to be a mercy-slaying, had been suffering from an incurable disease which "renders victims utterly helpless eventually."

Dr. A. L. Russell testified at the preliminary hearing of the woman's husband, Ralph Kilbon, 56, on a murder charge, that Mrs. Kilbon had Huntington's Chorea. He said that the disease sometimes gives rise to suicidal impulses.

Mrs. Kilbon was found with one gunshot wound in her chest and another in the head.

Magistrate R. B. Baxter is presiding with Harry Deyman acting for the Crown and J. J. Robinette for the accused.

Nine witnesses were to be called today.

Mrs. Viola Barnard, South Monaghan, who lives a quarter of a mile east of the Kilbon home, said she had known the Kilbons ever since they moved there about two years ago.

"I was at home on November 1 and received a phone call at 8:20 a.m. DST from Mr. Kilbon. He said "Could Charlie come over right away?' Charlie is my husband. I asked if he wanted me to come and he said no, just Charlie. I got my husband at the barn and he left for the Kilbon house. I said to him to hurry as Mrs. Kilbon might be sick. He took the car and went over to their house."

To Mr. Robinette she said that she and her husband worked the farm with the Kilbons. Mrs Kilbon, stated the witness, was mentally ill. "I could tell she was ill mentally. She had twitching tremors in one arm and had to be helped on with her coat and hat. I heard rumors from their relatives that Mrs. Kilbon had threatened to do away with herself. Mr. Kilbon was very kind to her. Nobody could do more," she testified.

To a question from Mr. Deyman she said she heard nothing of Mrs. Kilbon's suicide tendencies until

Heroes Welcome For Stampeders

CALGARY, Nov. 28—(CP)—Although they lost out in the defence of their Grey Cup title, Calgary Stampeders will be given a heroes' welcome when they return from Toronto.

Sports and civic officials have mapped preliminary plans for a "welcome home."

Harry McConnachie, chairman of the Welcome Home Committee, said "we want 20,000 to 30,000 people out to meet the train men it pulls in Wednesday afternoon."

"We're asking for a special half-holiday to be declared for the schools," he said. It was also hoped to have a civic half-holiday.

Ask Power Cut

TORONTO, Nov. 28—(CP)—A general appeal went out to the southern Ontario hydro system today to aim at a five-per-cent reduction in electrical power use over the next three weeks. An official said municipalities were given the five-per-cent figure as a voluntary target. R. H. Saunders, Chairman of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario, said in a statement that in three weeks production from steam plants and increased production at Decew Falls possibly would give Hydro enough power to meet demand.

Pick Up 250,000 In New Union Carey Reports

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 28 (AP)—The strife-born Electrical Workers' Union (CIO) opened its founding convention today with CIO president Philip Murray expected to issue an anti-Communist blast in his keynote speech.

Murray's theme was not known for certain. He'll speak off the cuff. But what many convention delegates expect will be Murray's dominant tone was sounded in advance by James B. Carey, acting leader of the new right-wing organization—The International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers.

Carey's statement, distributed to delegates today, was in reference to the CIO's recent ouster of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America on grounds of being Communist controlled. Said the statement:

"The Congress of Industrial Organizations took action at its 11th constitutional convention in Cleveland less than a month ago to purge itself.

"It purged itself, not of a union, but of a small group of ideologically-enslaved men who had gained control of the apparatus of our great labor union and who sought to conduct the affairs of our union so as to pervert political democracy and democratic trade unionism. . ."

In another pre-convention statement, Carey—as chairman of the union's administrative committee—announced the organization will seek $100 a month pensions and a fourth round wage increase for its members.

The IUE will attempt to obtain wage raises, Carey said, to "at least partly compensate for existing inequalities and for increases in working productivity."

The new union opened its convention with the claim that in the few weeks since its inception it had picked up approximately 250,000 members.

Declaring it had issued charters to 134 locals representing a total of around 225,000 members, the union announcement added:

"This total represents more more than one-half of the membership of the UE at the time of its convention six weeks ago in Cleveland."

UE spokesmen have challenged all of the IUE's membership figures.

Albert J. Fitzgerald, president of the UE, said in a statement on Saturday that an "overwhelming majority" of his union's members are remaining loyal and "are not stampeded into the company-union type of organization which CIO top officials have set up to make back-door deals with employers."

Five Outside Fire Departments Send Aid To Weary Firefighters; Exploding Ammunition Scatters Crowd

BROCKVILLE, Nov. 28—(CP)—Damage was estimated at $1,000,000 in the spectacular Saturday night blaze that destroyed four stores and damaged six others in a downtown business block, but today shelter had been found for all the 100 persons forced to evacuate apartments above the burning stores. The Brockville fire department was aided by men from five other fire detachments, one coming by ferry from Ogdensburg, N.Y., across the St. Lawrence River. It was the arrival of the big aerial ladder from Ogdensburg that enabled firemen to pour water into the heart of the blaze after making little headway earlier.

Brockville Fire Chief John Hartley suffered a heart seizure at the height of the fire and was taken to hospital, but later on Sunday he was released and went home where he was said to be resting comfortably. Fireman Charles Shorpey was overcome by smoke.

None of the apartment dwellers were injured as they rushed to safety while flames tore through the big block.

Stores Destroyed

Listed as destroyed by fire were Smart's hardware store, where the blaze is believed to have originated; Reynolds' grocery store, Sheridan's furniture store, and the district office of the National Employment Insurance Service.

Damaged were two plumbing firms, operated by N J. Brown and by the John Semple Company, whose premises suffered heavy loss by water. The block contained altogether 10 separate establishments, and the remaining four were damaged to less extent.

Four boys returning late from a movie noticed smoke coming from the door of the hardware shop and notified Constable John McLean, who turned in the alarm at 11:30 p.m. The blaze was brought under control three hours later, but firemen were still pouring water on the smoul-

Take Drastic Steps To Conserve Water

GEORGETOWN, Nov. 28—(CP)—Drastic steps to conserve the water supply in this town 25 miles west of Toronto were ordered Sunday night by an emergency session of council. It was hoped that three local factories employing 800 workers would be able to continue operation.

The main reservoir was down to one foot of water due to dry autumn weather followed by a freezing spell.

While a loudspeaker toured the town warning housewives not to do their weekly washing Monday, Mayor John Armstrong announced that trains will cease obtaining water supplies here; all local garages will be prohibited from washing cars, and production of artificial ice for the arena will stop.

Fire Chief H. Savings said a secondary reservoir had only enough water to enable firemen to fight any blaze for two hours.

Chinese Reds At Outskirts Of Chungking

TAIPEH, Formosa, Nov. 28 — (AP). — Chinese Nationalist sources here tonight said Communist troops had fought their way to the outskirts of Chungking, provisional capital of China.

These sources said they got their information by telephone from Chungking, where Generalissimo Chiang Kia-shek was reported directing the fighting.

The Red vanguards reached South Springs, 12 miles from Chungking and a suburb of the city, Nationalist sources said. South Springs is on the Yangtze River.

A Nationalist counter-attack at 9:30 p.m. local time recaptured South Springs, these sources said.

The Nationalist Government was reported to have already moved to Chengtu, 170 miles to the north-west of Chungking.

A handful of top officials were still in Chungking at nightfall. Among them was Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek. Most had planes waiting to whisk them to safety.

All Shops Closed

All Chungking shops were closed. Owners feared looters. Silks, furs and cosmetics were hidden. They feared Communist confiscation of these items.

Lights were out. Government buildings darkened.

Troops moved in great surges through the city. Soldiers were in a wide variety of uniforms, green, blue and khaki. Some had shoes. Some had none.

Some wore summer uniforms in the dreary cold.

A rigid curfew was proclaimed. Anyone caught disturbing the peace will be shot on the psot.

300 Prisoners Queue For Trial

TORONTO, Nov. 28—(CP)—The queue of prisoners lined up for court appearances—almost 300 persons—was so great today that the cases had to be handled in relays.

A total of 140 arrests during the week-end, for infractions ranging from drunkenness to obstructing police, plus almost as many more persons appearing following remands from last week-end, was the reason for the jam up.

Officials said the 140 arrests in a 48-hour period was unusually large. They said the greatest number are usually found on holiday week-ends in the summer when 100 to 150 drunks face the four magistrate's on duty.

Sutton School Razed By $40,000 Fire

SUTTON, Nov. 28 — Sutton Public School, built in 1869, was completely destroyed by fire on Saturday night. Loss was estimated at $40,000.

Volunteer firemen from Cannington and Sutton battled the blaze four hours. They were able to save a small building beside the school which contained manual training equipment.

The fire was blamed on an overheated furnace which workmen had been repairing just before 5 p.m. Saturday.

Mrs. Carl McLaughlin discovered the fire when she looked out her bedroom window and saw smoke coming from the school.

Canadian Army Pals Of Santa Claus

Two Irish Lads Send Soldiers S.O.S.; Regiment Comes Through

OTTAWA, Nov. 28 (CP) — So far as two Irish lads of nine are concerned, you reach Santa Claus through "Canadian Army Headquarters Canada" and they aren't far wrong. Come Christmas and—thanks to Toronto's Irish Regiment—you'll never be able to convince them otherwise.

Their names are Sean McKay and Jimmy Cochrane and they live at Ballylugh, Annsborough, in County Down near the mountain of Mourne. They want to start a band and they have only one "fiuit" and they got to wondering how they could augment their instruments.

Then Sean's mother read in the paper that Santa Claus lives in Canada and that was the clue. He wrote this letter:

"Canadian Army Headquarters, Canada.

"Dear Sir:

"My mammy read out of the Belfast Telegraph to me and my little chum Jimmy Cochrane that Santa lives in Canada. I wonder would he sent me a nice pair of bag pipes too drums and stocks to play them as my daddy teach the band in Ballylough Hall he died in February left Mummy and I lonely. I would like to have a nice band of my own. I am nine years old. Jimmy loves music to. Many allous Jimmy and I to play a fiuit but we want more than one fiuit. I would like it to come by post and be surprise to.

Watch Out For Mountain.

"If Santa comes over by plain tell him to watch the Moren Mountain it is very high. We live near Moren Mountain. My uncle live in Canda Patrick Charley. Mammy gets letter from them. We will be waiting for post man to bring us a big parcle. You will not forget."

Jimmy wrote, too, and the Christmas spirit promptly budded at this end. The Irish Regiment promptly volunteered for active service in Santa Claus' army.

The result: A large "parcle" will be on its way shortly from Toronto to the Emerald Isle. Exact contents, of course, are a military secret, but it contains something extra special that will make a lot of noise.

Pacific Storm Lashes B.C. 15 Fatalities

105 MPH Gusts Hit Western Coast All Rail Lines Cut

By The Canadian Press

Fifteen persons are dead and property damage is heavy in the wake of a weekend storm which lashed British Columbia and the United States Pacific northwest in a furious sweep over an area 1,000 miles wide.

Today the giant storm, spawned last Wednesday off southeast Japan, blew with greatly diminished force across Ontario and the midwestern United States. The prairies escaped its deadliness, except for an Alberta dust-storm.

Gusts reached a peak velocity of 105 miles an hour at Cut Bank, Mont., in British Columbia, an 85-mile-an-hour blast at Sandspit in the Queen Charlotte Islands was the height of the gale. But most of the damage, mounting steadily into millions of dollars, was caused by floods, rock-slides and washouts caused by the torrential rains accompanying the storm.

Rail Lines Out

In British Columbia, where seven of the deaths occurred, this was the picture:

Transcontinental rail lines to and from Vancouver were blocked by rockslides in the Fraser Canyon. Service will be restored late tonight.

A four-boat ferry service was the only artery out of west Vancouver, where that municipality's 13,000 residents were isolated after Saturday noon. The rains had washed out the Capilano River bridge, only link to the Lion's Gate bridge leading to Vancouver. At least 100 Canadian army engineers toiled through Sunday night to erect a Bailey bridge over the swollen Capilano. Completion was expected by noon.

A 20-year-old rain record was shattered on the north shore, where 9.2 inches of rain fell between 8 a.m. Saturday and 8 a.m. Sunday.

At Squamish, the southern terminal of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway, flash floods cut rail and highway communications and temporarily isolated 250 persons.

Highway Washed Out

At Princeton, B.C., in the southern interior, streams swollen to unprecedented fall levels washed out a large section of the new $12,000,000 Hope-Princeton highway. A dredge carrying $20,000 worth of placer gold was ripped from its moorings, carried 1½ miles down the Tulameen River, and wrecked against the rocky shore.

Six of B.C.'s seven known dead were crew members of the 72-foot tug George McGregor which was capsized off Victoria Saturday. The seventh was John Gordon Fullerton, 24, drowned while sandbagging raging water of the Capilano River in North Vancouver.

Whipping across the Rocky Mountains with hurricane-force gusts, the region's first major storm of winter streaked across British Columbia, Montana, North Dakota, South Dakota, Utah and Wyoming.

A heavy blow was predicted for the Great Lakes today.

Washington Hit

Hardest hit was Washington State. Hundreds of families were evacuated as the broiled waters of the Skagit River in northwest Washington isolated five towns in the Skagit valley. Four other communities were threatened as five inches of rain fell during a 24-hour span in the upper valley.

The immediate threat appeared, however, to have passed. Early today the normally-placed waterway hit its crest with about a foot to spare at Mount Vernon where rain-drenched sandbag crews of from 300-500 men worked frantically to keep the river within its dikes.

Water lay six to eight inches deep over eight square blocks of the city which lies about six feet below the level of the river.

The towns of Lyman, Concrete, Rockport and Marblemount also were isolated. Conway, Burlington, Avon and Sedro Woolley were threatened.

The storm snapped an 826-foot radio tower in two at Spokane. The control tower at Geiger Airfield, Spokane, was abandoned when 85-mile-an-hour wind gusts were recorded.

Protest 'Rights' Given New UE

Local 524 UE has written CGE officials for an explanation of why they continue to grant the officers of the IUE-CIO similar rights as those extended the UE.

The UE is the certified bargaining agent for the Peterborough workers until such time as the Ontario Labour Relations Board decides otherwise, they say. And in view of this, the left wingers contend, the Company owes an explanation to the union members for special rights accorded John G. Morton, acting Canadian director of the IUE.

"Mr. Morton is on Union business with another union than the one which holds the contract and the bargaining rights with your Company," a letter addressed to Ian F. McRae and signed by T. P. Davies, president of Local 524 UE, states.

"The existing agreement between your company and the UE and its Local 524, provides for leave of absence to employees elected by or appointed by the bargaining agent, the UE. Mr. Morton doesn't come under that heading."

Mr. Davies claims that Mr. Morton has been engaged full time on the work of the IUE since November 3, and has spent "very few hours" at his job.

House Approves National Trade Mark Bill

OTTAWA, Nov. 28 (CP)—Attendance reduced by the combination of the session's first Saturday sitting and a Dominion football final in Toronto, the Commons struggled through a mass of legislation Saturday in a drive for prorogation.

Voting down C.C.F. opposition, it gave final approval to a bill establishing a national trade mark and guaranteeing standards for products using the trade mark.

It got its first look at bills to eliminate two government departments nad distribute their functions among three new departments.

It also:

1. Heard Prime Minister St. Laurent consent to a debate tonight on the government's rent-control policy.

2. Gave final approval to a relatively-minor bill extending the export-import act — providing controls on some strategic commodities—until July, 1951.

3. Gave first reading to bills providing increased tax returns to Ontario and Quebec and broadening the activities of the Federal Industrial Development Bank.

Torn Two Ways

The members reluctantly left their radios—and the Grey Cup football game—to trickle into the chamber for the afternoon sitting. A few minutes after the House opening, only some 30 members out of a possible 262 had arrived. A few minutes later, many others turned up.

The Commons approved the trade-mark bill—already passed by the Senate—after rejecting a C.C.F. amendment requiring users of the mark—Canada Standard or "C.S."—to meet certain wage standards.

The bill provides for voluntary use of the trade mark and for accurate labelling of articles for sale.

With practically no opposition in sight, the House gave first reading to three separate bills to set up three new government department — citizenship and immigration, mines and technical surveys and resources and development. They will replace the present reconstruction and supply and mines and resources departments.

The prime minister said it won't necessarily involve an immediate addition to his 21-member cabinet.

J. M. Macdonnell (PC—Toronto Greenwood) called the move an "unnecessary extravagance" and Gordon Graydon (PC—Peel) said the government could have found an easier way to give Alberta representation in the cabinet. Mr. Graydon said the shift would mean an extra member of the cabinet, already in danger of becoming cumbersome.

Break Up Work

The measures will break up the bulky resources department and transfer immigration and Indian affairs branches to the new citizenship branch of the state secretary's department.

Introducing the bills, Mr. St. Laurent said the government intends to give Indians full citizenship status "as quickly as that can reasonably be accomplished."

George McIlraith (L—Ottawa West), parliamentary assistant to Trade Minister Howe, piloted the trade mark bill through the House. He said the bill would replace inadequate existing legislation and "there will be a real advantage to both the domestic and export trade in the voluntary adoption by Canadian firms of the use of a national trade mark under conditions that will properly safeguard the quality of the goods to which the mark is applied."

Any firm may use the mark on its products if they conform with approved specifications.

The bill also requires that manufacturers must put accurate labels on their products to prevent public deception.

Wilfred Moncrieff Wins Speech Contest

Wilfred Moncrieff of Smith township, a student at the Collegiate Institute, won the district contest in public speaking at Canifton in Hastings county Saturday night. He qualified as the Peterough representative in the local competition for junior farmers at the Normal School Friday night.

Moncrieff is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Melville Moncrieff of Fowler's Corners. His next engagement is in the zone semi-finals here in Peterborough next Thursday night on the evening program of the one-day school for officers of local and county junior farmers' clubs dealing with leadership.

The subject of Wilfred Moncrieff's speech is "Youth and the Church".

Report Plane Crash

BOGOTA, Colombia, Nov. 28 — (CP) — A Colombian Airlines plane carrying 12 persons and a much-venerated statue was reported to have crashed Sunday night at Arboleda, 60 miles from Cucuta in north-central Colombia. All aboard the plane were Colombians. The nine passengers and crew of three were believed to have been killed in the crash of the DC-3. Aboard the plane was a statue of the Virgin of Fatima, sent by the Portuguese government on an air tour of South America.

900 Chickens Lost In Fire

NORWOOD, Nov. 28 (ENS)—Jack McKeen, who started a poultry business a quarter of a mile outside Norwood on No. 7 Highway three years ago, lost his entire stock of 900 birds Sunday when fire swept the poultry building next to his house.

The fowl were housed in a building which Mr. McKeen had taken three years to build at a cost of $900. He had returned to his house at 10 a.m. Sunday after feeding the fowl, when a man, believed to be a passing motorist, rushed into the house to tell him the building was on fire.

He released the birds immediately but they panicked, ran back into the building and were burnt. A new shipment of seed which Mr. McKeen had bought last week was also lost.

Fire started in the east end of the long building and wind, blowing from the east, fanned the blaze until everything had caught fire.

Norwood fire brigade went out to the fire, but nothing could be done to save the building and the men looked on helplessly, keeping watch in case the blaze should spread to the house.

Mr. McKeen is a war veteran and started his business on his return from war service. He had spent a considerable sum for what had only recently become a profitable concern. Insurance covers part of the loss.

Four Stores

dering block late Sunday.

In addition to the cross-river detachment from New York, the local firemen were aided by the firefighters from Prescott, Athens and Smiths Falls, while soldiers from the Royal Canadian Regiment came from their camp north of here to give aid and even seamen from HMCS Oriole, anchored in the harbor, turned up to assist.

Continuous Explosions

The fire fighters' task was complicated by low temperatures and continuous explosions of small arms ammunition in the hardware store, mixed with explosions of paint and oil drums.

A large crowd that gathered, attracted by the flames shooting high in the air, fled for cover as the explosions occurred. Within an hour of the outbreak the hardware store's front window was blown out, and two hours after the start the front wall collapsed, sending a shower of debris into the street and causing re-routing of traffic on the main interprovincial highway, which runs past the block.

Mayor Fred Reynolds announced late Sunday that the response had been "marvellous" to his appeals for shelter for those evacuated from the apartments. All were accommodated in private homes.

Narrow Escape

Alex White said Sunday night that "only an act of God" saved his family from being burned to death in one of the worst fires in the history of this Eastern Ontario city.

Mr. and Mrs. White and their daughter Phyllis were asleep in their third-storey apartment above Smart's hardware store, where the fire started.

Mr. White said he awakened about 11:30 p.m. and got up for a drink of water. He smelled something burning the moment he stepped from the bedroom and immediately aroused his wife and daughter. Clad only in night attire, the three raced from the building just as flames burst through from the hardware store basement and spread rapidly through the block.

They reached the street to find close to 100 other persons living in apartments in the block had already vacated the building.

The Whites were among the burned-out families taken care of by an emergency depot opened in the Town Hall. Members of the Red Cross Society, the Salvation Army and leading citizens handed out clothing and other necessities to those left destitute.

Under the direction of George Fulford, Liberal member of Parliament for Leeds, hot coffee and sandwiches were constantly supplied to the firemen, who fought the blaze in near-zero temperatures.

Small Supply Of Cortisone For Canadians

NEW YORK, Nov. 28—(CP)—Canada's health minister announced Sunday night that a small supply of cortisone will be available after Jan. 1 to Canadian researchers. Cortisone is the drug which promises almost miraculous relief to arthritic sufferers.

Paul Martin said that if further experience justified wide use of the drug it was hoped it would become available for general distribution.

He said startling results had been already obtained from the small quantities of cortisone now available, adding however:

"Those whose hopes have been raised by stories about this magic drug must remember that it is still in the experimental stage and that arthritic sufferers will probably require continuous treatment.

"It is possible, however, that cortisone might befo und to control arthritis as effectively as insulin controls diabetes."

Announces Arrangements

Martin said he would announce within a few days, arrangements for research distribution in Canada of ACTH (adrenocorticotrophic hormone). ACTH also is employed with dramatic promise in relieving pain and other symptoms of rheumatoid arthritis.

Martin said that, while in New York as a delegate to the United Nations Assembly, he had discussed the effectiveness of the drug with its co-discoverers—Dr. Edward C. Kendall and Dr. Philip S. Hench.

The Canadian minister said he had been advised by Merck and Company Ltd., of Canada that a small supply of the new compound will be distributed in Canada after Jan. 1.

ACTH is a hormone of the pituitary gland which apparently stimulates the adrenals to manufacture cortisone. It is also extremely rare.

Suicide Idea

after her death. A Mr. Cox from Toronto told her.

Charles Barnard said he worked the farm with Ralph Kilbon. He knew of Mrs. Kilbon's condition.

Grows Worse

"In the last two months before her death she became considerably worse from her nerves Mr. Kilbon did most of the house work to help her. On November 1 after the phone call, I went to the Kilbon house. Ralph came out and said that his wife shot herself in the stomach while he was out for some water and that she was in such agony that he finished her off. He said to me to send for the doctor and the police," said Barnard.

Telephoned Doctor

"I said I would go for help and left. On my way home I stopped at Fred Perrin's and told him what had happened. Then I went to my house and phoned the doctor and police. After that I returned to keep Mr. Kilbon company. Mr. Perrin and Kilbon and I sat in the car to wait for Dr. Russell. Ralph said that Mrs. Kilbon had shot herself and he had finished her. We talked about farm matters to keep the subject of Mrs. Kilbon away from Mr. Kilbon.

"I was too excited to remember the exact words but they were that Mrs. Kilbon had shot herself and he had finished her. Mr. Kilbon seemed very calm. He was alway calm and I noticed that he was no different that day. I didn't go into the house at that time." Witness added that he knew that Kilbon had a rifle for shooting groundhogs.

To Mr. Robinette in cross examination witness said that Mr. Kilbon had a very fine reputation and was very devoted to his wife. "He looked after her extraordinarily well. I knew that for some weeks she was waiting to go to the Ontario Hospital at Whitby. I didn't hear about her being suicidal," testified Barnard.

Fred Perrin, neighbor of Barnard, testified that he heard about what had happened from Barnard. He and Barnard went to the Kilbon place.

Sits In Car

"Mr. Kilbon came out of the house when we arrived and he came over to the car. He got into the car and told us that Mrs. Kilbon had shot herself while he was out getting a pail of water and that she was in such agony that he shot her to finish her. When we went into the house, Mrs. Kilbon was dead in a chair by the kitchen table. On the table was a .22 rifle that had no butt on it. I knew two weeks before that she was going to Whitby Ontario Hospital. She had told us that she was waiting for a bed to be vacant at the hospital," testified Perrin.

Mr. Kilbon had always been considered very devoted to his wife and particularly in the last two months had waited on her all the time, he added.

Doctor Testifies

Dr. A. L. Russell of Baillebore, who was called to the Kilbon home said he had previously attended Mrs. Kilbon. In August of this year, he attended her for a nervous affliction which caused her arm and face to twitch.

"Her mentality was not quite normal but for the most part she was rational. She suffered from Huntington's chorea a disease which had a gradual onset. Judgment and thought suffers, and orientation or the relative position of the patient to other objects becomes confused. Fits of anger and extreme depression are other conditions which develop as the disease progresses," the doctor said.

In order to ease her he gave some sedative tablets.

"When I arrived on November 1, I went inside the kitchen. She was sitting in a rocking chair by the table and a rifle with no butt was lying on the table. She had a bullet hole in the region of the left breast. There was a brownish mudge with the bullet hole in the centre. There was no bleeding. She was sitting back in the chair with her mouth open. There was another bullet hole in her left temple and there was some congealed blood there. I would say she had been dead two hours. After I examined her I waited for the police. When I came in the house Mr. Kilbon said his wife had shot herself and that he couldn't stand to see her suffer and shot her in the temple. I was there a half hour before the police came."

To Mr. Robinette Dr. Russell said that the disease which Mrs. Kilbon had would create an inclination to suicide. At the conclusion of Dr. Russell's evidence, court adjourned until 1.15 p.m.

Autopsy Details

Dr. Harold Gold, Toronto pathologist gave details of the autopsy which he performed on Mrs. Kilbon at Port Hope on November 1.

"The abdominal wound pierced a large blood vessel in both artery and vein. The first wound was five inches above and 3¾ inches to the right of the umbelicus and then slanted 25 degrees downwards and 45 degrees backward and lodged against the inside of the skin of the back leaving a he morrhage against the soft tissues of the back. There was considerable hemorrhage in the abdominal cavity. The opening was discoloured around the hole from the bullet. The point of entry in the head was 1¼ inch in front and above from the ear lobe. The bullet went up 30 degrees and then straight across" testified Dr. Gold.

"At the point of entry of the head bullet hole there was a patch of hemohorraging and a little on the point of exit on the other side of the head near the ear."

"I think the abdominal wound was first because of the abdominal hemhorraging and I think she was alive when the second bullet was fired because of hemhorrage from the second wound. The abdominal wound would have been fatal in a matter of minutes. Immediate attention or within the first hour might have saved her from the first wound under the best of circumstances," said Dr. Gold.

Mr. Robinette, he said, that he would venture the second wound caused death.

No Election For Otonabee, Only 3 Qualify

When one of the four nominees for the three vacancies on the Otonabee Township School Board failed to qualify Saturday night it saved the ratepayers the expense of an election.

Reeve, deputy reeve, three councillors and three trustees have been returned by acclamation.

All but the members of the School Board had been decided Friday afternoon at the nomination meeting in Keene Town Hall. Four names were entered for that race—Harry Stewart, Allan Davis, Tom Hope and Tom Weir.

Mr. Weir let it be understood, unofficially, that he would drop out so long as the other three men qualified. When they did so he did not allow his name to stand.

Mr. Stewart, last year's chairman of the Board, is entering his eighth year as a trustee in the township. Both Mr. Davis and Mr. Hope are beginning their second two-year term.

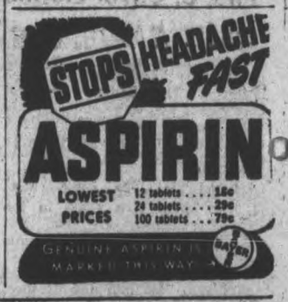
Here is the complete list for 1950 in Otonabee:

Harry Reid, reeve; R. R. (Dick) Stewart, deputy reeve; councillors Norman McConkey, Dave McIntyre, and Roy Spears; and trustees Harry Stewart, Allan Davis and Tom Hope.

In all there are five Otonabee trustees filling two-year terms of office. This year three vacancies occurred on the Board. The other two encumbents who must offer themselves next year are Wellington Sutton and Fred Hall.



Car Turns Into Ditch Three Escape Injury

Three Lakefield men escaped unhurt Saturday morning when the car they occupied skidded on the icy surface of the Stony Lake Road and turned over in the ditch.

The accident happened about 20 miles north of Lakefield, near the Nepheline Mine. Damage to the car was estimated at $200.

Driving was Alex Dunford with two passengers — Norman Montgomery and an unidentified man. The vehicle taking the trio to work was going north toward the mine when it hit the icy patch on the road, went out of control and turned over in the ditch.

Provincial Constables George Henderson and R. Pope investigated.

Firemen Burnt Fighting Chimney Fire

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 28 — (ENS)—Fire Chief Alex McDonald and his team of firemen battled a stubborn chimney blaze for nearly two hours at the home of James McKeown, Centre St., Sunday afternoon, before it was brought under control.

The heat was so intense that it fused the chains used to loosen the soot. Several firemen received burns on the hands and face.

To fight the tongues of fire that were breaking through the chimney, parts of the floor had to be torn up and plaster removed from the wall. There was also considerable smoke damage.

14 Contesting Cobourg Seats

COBOURG, Nov. 28 (ENS)—Voters at the municipal elections on December 12 will have the longest list of candidates from which to make their selection, in many years. Every municipal seat is being contested, with the exception of school trustees and fourteen are running for council.

The complaint used to be that the ratepayers did not take sufficient interest in public affairs. Often it was difficult to get enough to qualify for council to make an election, and more than once several posts went by acclamation. This year it is a different story and indications are that the election will be a hot one. The following have qualified as candidates:

Mayor—Harry Fisher and Joseph Smith. Reeve—Roy Dodge and William E. Cooper. Deputy-Reeve—George Galbraith and Joseph Delanty. Public Utilities Commission, two to be elected—Maurice Booth, George Campbell, Sr., Harry McGuire and Robert Love.

Council—J. Austin Maher, Alex. McKinnon, Reuben Jackson, John Lafay, Foster Russell, Arthur Steele, John Erskine, Sr., Alfred Knipfel, Charles Johnston, Harold Rawcliff, Mrs. Rhena Stephens, James Rollings, William Wenn, Delmar Moore.

School trustees, acclamations—Harvey Brent, centre ward; Mrs. Kathleen Spooner, east ward and Hubert Cooey, west ward.

Mrs. C. Oliver Elected Trinity WA President

HASTINGS, Nov. 28 (ENS) — The annual meeting of the Women's Association of Trinity United Church was held in the Church basement with Group Four in charge of the monthly program.

Rev. N. Cole took charge of the election of officers which resulted as follows:

President, Mrs. Cecil Oliver; First vice president, Mrs. G. Thompson; Second vice president, Mrs. G. Brown; treasurer, Mrs. J. M. Baker; secretary, Mrs. A. E. Metcalfe. Group Four served lunch.

Three Car Accidents Investigated By Police

Three cars skidded into the rear of other vehicles in three separate accidents over the week-end. No one was hurt in any of the accidents.

Friday night a car driven by John W. Wocker, 435 McKellar St., slid into the rear of a city bus driven by Fred J. Vilneff, 267 Simcoe St. as it stopped on George St. at Lake St. Considerable damage was done to the car but little to the bus.

A car driven by John Sloggett, Campbellford, skidded into the rear of a car driven by Francis Tickner, Ottawa, which had just stopped on George St., near Lake St. Saturday night. Sloggett told police he had not been able to turn out around the stopped car because there was traffic coming toward him.

A parked milk wagon was hit in the rear at Park and Romaine St. by a car driven by Harry Clapham, 291 Townsend St., on Saturday night.

Driver of the wagon was Thos. O'Rourke, 224 Dublin St. Clapham said he put his brakes on when he was 60 feet from the wagon but skidded on the icy road. Considerable damage was done to the front of the car.

Two days later he was back in Cobourg and under the influence of liquor, making a nuisance of himself panhandling, the chief said.

Blames Headache Tablets For Bad Driving On Highway

COBOURG, Nov. 28—(ENS)—Despite his story that he was suffering from the effect of sedative tablets to relieve a headache and that he was not drunk, Thomas Hughes, of Peterborough, was sentenced to seven days in jail for drunk driving by Magistrate R. B. Baxter. Defence counsel Arthur Fair, of Peterborough, said that he would appeal.

Provincial Constable Bill Baluk, of Cobourg, said that on Nov. 4 at 1.20 a.m. he noticed a car ahead of him near Newtonville and that it was going from one side of the road to the other endangering traffic. After several attempt to stop him in which the constable said he had to give way to avoid an accident, he drew alongside the car and stopped the driver, Thomas Hughes.

He was argumentative, his speech was thick and he was unsteady on his feet and also refused to get in the police car. As a truck approached Hughes flagged it to a stop but the driver Garfield Killenbeck, advised him to go quietly with the officer.

"While I was trying to get him into the car he tried to kick me in the groin. He went over to the fence but instead of coming back he disappeared. I radioed another police car and he was picked up not far from where he disappeared by two other constables," testified Constable Baluk.

Dr. W. E. Wilkins, of Cobourg, told of a test made at his office at four o'clock the same morning. Hughes appeared to have been drinking, but there were no definite signs of intoxication, he said.

Miss Verda Vincent, analyst of the Attorney-General's Dept., testified that the blood samples taken from Hughes at four in the morning by Dr. Wilkins allowed 2.2 parts per thousand or the equivalent of eleven ounces of whiskey. She estimated that the amount would have been 2.8 parts at the time of Hughes' arrest. 2.2 was definite intoxication, she said. Miss Vincent's statement was challenged by Mr. Fair who contended that in spite of a chemical test a man could be able to act in a normal manner with the same amount of liquor in his system.

Hughes told the court that he refused to go with the officer because he didn't want to leave his $2,500 car on the highway. He said that just before he was stopped he felt ill and that it was due to pills which he had taken for his headache. A friend had given him the tablets and he didn't know what was in them, testified the accused.

I just can't save money!

That's what I used to say, and it was true. Sometimes I'd dream of the day when I'd have time and leisure to do all the things I wanted to do, but I had to admit I wasn't doing anything about it except dream. I never seemed to be able to put anything aside.

Now, I know those dreams will come true. They're guaranteed.

Through a simple saving plan which, strangely enough, I've found involves no hardship, I am now saving money for the first time in my life.

Peterborough's First Drama Festival

On Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week Peterborough's first drama festival will take place in the auditorium of Queen Mary School. It will be a local festival, although a group from Lindsay will have a play in it. The festival has been organized by the Recreation Commission in order to encourage amateur drama in this city and the district around it, and to raise the standard of local dramatic work by some good-natured competition. We think that this is in every respect a fine venture and are delighted to lend it the support of our editorial columns.

* * *

The festival will consist of one-act plays, three of which will be seen each evening, and two on Saturday afternoon. The clubs which are engaged in these presentations are drawn from the city schools, from the churches, from social organizations and from drama groups; most people in Peterborough, we think, will know one or more persons who will be appearing in the festival, and we hope that the city will support it by its interest, enthusiasm and attendance.

* * *

The festival is not competitive, in the sense that one group will be acclaimed as the winner. It will, however, have the services of a very able adjudicator, Professor Arnold Edinborough of Queen's University, who will comment on all the plays at the end of each evening's performance. Professor Edinborough is a scholar in the drama, and he is also an actor and director of unusual accomplishment, and it is expected that his advice and counsel will be of great value to the competing groups. In addition to these qualifications, he is witty and practised public speaker, and his adjudications should be a treat in themselves.

* * *

To those who are unaquainted with drama festivals, we would say that they are as much fun as horse-racing. Not only is it pleasant to see the plays, but it is interesting to match your own judgement with that of the expert adjudicator. We hope that a considerable number of people will attend all the performances, and that those who cannot do so will attend one or two of them.

* * *

This drama festival is a new venture in Peterborough, and one which promises to be of great value to the actors and the audiences alike. This city was able to carry off unusual honours in the Dominion Drama Festival last April, and there are enough good players and technicians here to provide a festival of high quality. We hope that the people of the city and district, who are always encouraging to new ventures, will give the festival their warmest support. The festival is in no sense subsidized, and its success or failure will depend on its audiences.

Oh Say Can You See By The Dawn's Early Light?

Daylight saving ended in Peterborough Saturday night. Not all of the citizenry approved of the extension of the summer time device into winter snows, but one advantage was emphasized by Nature herself on the last morning of D.S.T. We seem to have been given an especially fine sunrise last Saturday. People—who ordinarily lie abed and slumber when the trumpet of dawn sounds were briefly broken of the habit in these late D.S.T. mornings of November. In the last week or two the sun has graciously delayed his rising so that the night-hawks or sluggards who do not stir from their coverlets until 7.30 or 8.00 could not help but see the dawn's early light, and revel in the unaccustomed display. Saturday morning's salutation of the dawn was altogether lovely and splendid.

Will such tastes of the most delicately coloured hours of the day not whet the appetite for more? Surely when these joys have been known, people will not forego them now that we are back to Standard Time? All they need to do is to get up an hour earlier (EST), in December. By January they shall have to rise two hours earlier, by March three, but who will begrudge two or three hours loss of sleep when they can have the pleasures of the dawn? What! is it not worth going to bed two or three hours earlier, so as not to miss the pageant of sunrise! At least, our present enthusiasm following upon last week's dawns says it is.

For the convenience of our readers who have now resolved to rise with the sun we note that the cheery fellow came over the horizon at 8.25 D.S.T. Saturday; started his diurnal round Sunday at 7.26 E.S.T., begins it tomorrow at 7.29. By December 21st, the shortest day in the year, the sun rises at 7.48. Although that Wednesday is the shortest day, and thereafter the sun begins his longer journeys, the early winter laziness is upon him, for he continues to get up later and later until the Thursday after Christmas when he rises at 7:52—eight minutes to eight. He goes to bed later, too.) Then he ponders his indolent ways and thinks about them from December 29th to January 8th, when he gets up at the same late hour of 7.52 every morning. By that time his New Year's resolution seems to take effect; he throws off the covers of darkness at 7.51 on Monday morning, January 9th, and from then until late June keeps rising earlier and earlier.

By the end of January the sun rises at 7.26; by mid-March he is up at half-past six, and by mid-June at half-past four. By that time, of course, people who indulge in sunrises may have tired a little of the spectacle and thought it not worth while to get up quite so early merely for the pleasure. They may console themselves for not attending the trumpet of day by saying, Oh, well, we shall hear it next December again.

U.S. Diplomatic Language Changes

Certain unnamed "Washington observers" are said to be worrying about the unusual bluntness of the language used in recent official communiques sent to Russia by the United States State Department. This plain speaking, they are said to feel, violates the classic definition of diplomatic language as "that guarded understatement which enables diplomats to say sharp things to each other without being provocative or impolite."

These defenders of diplomatic language apparently would prefer the form of double talk common in the history of diplomacy. They probably would like to see a return to speech like the reply of U.S. President McKinley, when the Ambassadors of Great Britain, France and Germany jointly asked the United States to refrain from doing anything which might bring on what eventually became the Spanish-American War. McKinley's answer follows:

"The Government of the United States appreciates the humanitarian and disinterested character of the communication now made on behalf of the powers named, and for its part is confident that equal appreciation will be shown for its own unselfish endeavours to fulfil a duty to humanity by ending a situation the indefinite prolongation of which has become insufferable."

The diplomatic representatives of the three European Powers knew, of course, what McKinley was saying. It was "No". There may have been many readers of the reported speech who failed to realize that, but wherever diplomatic language was spoken there was realization that war would likely be the result.

We dislike intensely the bureaucratic jargon which has developed in recent years, but we are not altogether prepared to place the language of diplomacy in that classification. An urbane and skilful method of conveying a meaning is not necessarily to be condemned, nor is bluntness necessarily a virtue. Both, we think, have a place in the language of diplomacy.

NOTE AND COMMENT

If people had as many diseases as they have symptoms, there would be far fewer worries about overpopulation.

National Cheese Week is reported to have been a success, though we missed the usual picture of meaty young woman, three parts naked, entitled "Miss Big Cheese of 1949". No cheesecake, in fact.

The Chairman of the Atomic Energy Control Board, Dr. C. J. MacKenzie, has told the Commons Committee surveying A-matters that the time has come for Parliament to decide on "the next major step forward in the atomic field". We are glad that it is M.P.'s and not ourself who have been invited to step on the dangerous field. Never can tell what sort of radiations will emanate, or what sparks will fly from that kind of ground.

The Secretary of the British Food Ministry is quoted as saying that "wanting a steak is just a bad habit, and anyone who has it should see a psychiatrist". We must remark that the illusion of hunger is a very common neurosis in democratic countries, and we ourselves suffer from it approximately four times a day. Maybe socialism on the British model is the cure.

Musical Notes

By PETER PIPER

IT is a pity that so much of our listening is to broadcast music and recording. Orchestral concerts are unknown in Peterborough, and those of us who cannot afford the time and money to run up to Toronto and elsewhere must needs rely on mechanical reproduction. We are apt to forget what a real live orchestra sounds like and to treat the sounds coming out of a little wooden box as equivalent to the real thing. One might as well judge a masterpiece of painting from a picture postcard reproduction, that Aunt Ethel sent home from Italy. Even the best reproduction is only a shadow of the original: some are merely caricatures. I remember hearing a broadcast performance of Berlioz's Requiem, surely one of the most unsuitable work for radio ever composed. It is a work of Babylonian proportions requiring soloists, chorus and an immense orchestra, including sixteen kettledrums tuned to different pitches and four brass bands placed at the four corners of the auditorium and enclosing the audience in a box of sound. How can a single diaphragm speaker possibly give anything but the vaguest idea of such a colossal work? We listeners too often forget the limitations of broadcast music and are apt to judge a work on a radio performance which could not possibly do justice to it. In an orchestral concert which is being broadcast the most important person is not the conductor but the modest technician who sits in a corner at the control panel and attends to the volume control. Without him the soft passages would be inaudible, and the loud passages would be a confused jumble. He has therefore to bring out the soft passages and to tone down the loud ones. This is necessary because the range of intensity obtainable on the radio is only about 10% of that in a large-scale orchestral work, and the whole thing has to be scaled down and evened out to make it feasible for broadcasting.

ONE of the more recent ventures of the Public Library has been the acquisition of the nucleus of a Library of gramophone records. Record lending libraries have been established in many Canadian cities and are working well. Unfortunately the authorities have not yet decided what to do with the records, and they (the records) are lying idle in their shelves. They would be of great value to students and music-lovers, especially if scores of the works were also available. There is already an interesting section of books about music but no actual scores.

BELIEVE it or not, there is still a sales tax on books and music. Soft drinks were expempted at the last budget, but refreshment for the spirit was significantly left on the list of taxable semi-luxuries. Will the Royal Commission on the Arts have anything to say on this barbarous tax on knowledge?

❖ ❖ ❖

GENTLE reader, have you ever been bored at a concert? I have frequently, and I am quite prepared to admit that the fault lay often with myself. But not always. Even Homer has been known to nod, and Shakespeare himself has a few dreary tracts. We cannot blink the fact that Bach, Beethoven and the rest have their weaker moments. It is hard to believe that the "Battle of Vittoria" and the Quartet in C sharp minor issued from the same fecundating intelligence unless we face the full implications of the axiom that Beethoven was mortal. Surely the second subject of the early B flat piano sonata is a musical platitude of unexampled dreariness. Chopin's Waltzer, full as they are of inexhaustible variety of treatment, usually sag in the middle, as though all his powers had gone into cutting the slices of bread and he had lost interest in the filling of the musical sandwich that musicians call "ternary form". The Bach "sewing machine" (to continue the domestic similes) sometimes chugs along with remorseless efficiency while audiences droop. A good deal of Mendelssohn and Schumann is tainted with cozy Teutonic "Sunday afternoon on the Rhine" sentimentality. The list could be prolonged almost indefinitely. Composers, like other mortals, have their off days. Most of them have a number of juvenile productions to their names (though Brahms in a moment of ruthlessness destroyed all his early works). Many of them had to write pot-boilers. There are dull patches even in the middle of masterpieces.

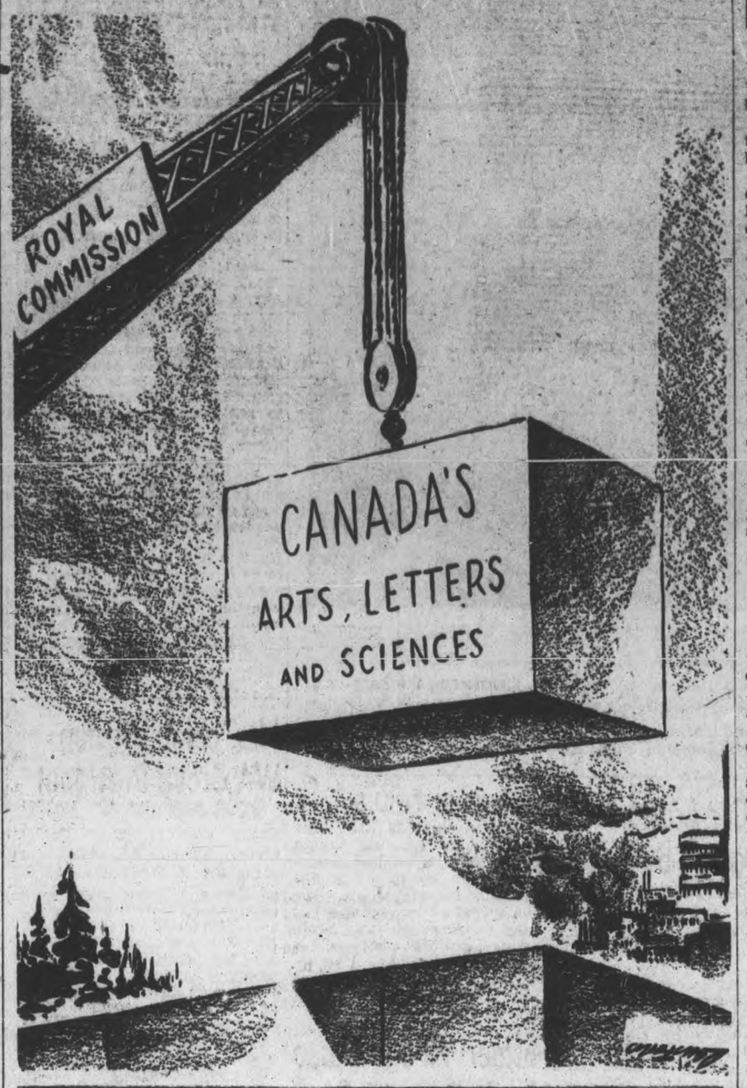
SCALES are probably the most unpopular subject in the young pianist's curriculum, and yet they need not be so. They can be made much more interesting (and useful) if the rhythm is varied. Instead of da-da-da-da try tum-ty tum-ty or mer-ri-ly merri-ly up and down. There must be perfect evenness of time and tone, and to accomplish this the hands and arms must be quite steady—the fingers must do all the work. Fingers must of course be curved, otherwise the thumbs will never reach the keyboard. Try letting your arm fall loosely to one side. Look at your fingers, they will have automatically assumed the best position for normal playing. Sometimes start softly, then crescendo to the top of the scale and diminuendo to the bottom. Then try starting loud and getting softer, finishing loud. It is said that Casals, the famous cellist and conductor, can make an ordinary scale played slowly into an unforgettably lovely musical experience. You can do the same too if you use your heart and your head.

Unconsidered Trifles

"You must think I'm a perfect idiot."

"Well, perhaps not perfect; but you're doing quite well."



❖ ❖ ❖

As they propped themselves up against the bar, Thompson remarked:

"I say, old man, when your wife's away do you have to tell her everything that you do."

"Not at all necessary," he replied. "She tells me that she always gets a more reliable account from the neighbors."

Letters To The Editor

LET WOMAN RETURN TO THE HOME

Sir: Just as Eve plummeted mankind into the Clutch of Satan, as she by gynocracy, urged petitions, boycotts, biased opinions, artificialities, contributes to confusion, shortages, frustrations; but assisted by strikes, demands for shorter hours, higher pay, sport, and education; aided perhaps too by the emphasis, placed on Bible quotation, 'man shall not live by bread alone', He (Christ) also asked (after the Resurrection) have ye no meat?

But His religion was realistic as well as spiritual; ours is nondescript, frozen, castrated and effeminated.

The world is hungry body and soul, and that hunger sows communism, socialism bondage and concentration camps—weeds of today, miseries to reap tomorrow.

But in the breathing space today we still have a 'fighting' chance, but first make our religion a living, active, realistic, united, spirited actuality, masculine like its God, but with the love of a woman, a Madonna.

So then will man kind come into his own; master, provider, kind, relumined, and rationalized, and she (Eve) will go back to her home a help meet (not a help defeat) awake slight, unafraid and satiable.

And the demons, of greed hate, satyric, egomania, will vanish like a mad dream.

COUNTRY RIVER

A WORD ON RETIRING

Sir: I am writing to express my thanks and appreciation of the very generous editorial concerning myself which appeared in the Examiner on Tuesday, the 15th inst.

This editorial has given a great deal of pleasure, not only to the members of my own family, but to many citizens who have been good enough to speak to me about it.

Regarding anything that I have done in a public way for the City of Peterborough, I have always felt that I was honoured in having the privilege of serving. So far as the Board of Health is concerned, there has been great satisfaction in seeing the Department being built up to its present position. The City is fortunate in having the services of Dr. Kelly, whom I consider to be a very efficient M. O. H. and to the members of his staff, I desire to express my appreciation for their loyalty and cooperation in carrying out the policies of the Board. In leaving the Department, I have one regret, namely, that it has not been possible to effect to the coordination between the health services of the city and of the Board of Education. I think this amalgamation is long overdue, and I cannot help feeling that, had it been brought about, the health services of the city would have been very much more to the public advantage.

Your sincerely
JAMES DUTTON

WHO IS RESPONSIBLE?

Sir: We would like to know why every year we have to put up with such horrible conditions on the south side of Gilmour St. from Park St. to Monaghan Rd. and why something is not done about it. It has been brought to the attention of different members of the City Council, also to the City Engineer, but we have not had any results so we appeal to our local paper to see if they can get improvement of winter conditions. The residents on the south side of Gilmour St. generally keep their sidewalks clean and take a pride in so doing. Usually after they clean their walks and main side walks and even after the snow plow cleans off the sidewalks, along comes the City road plow and throws the snow off the road onto the main side walk and half way up on the walks leading into the homes.

As there are several aged people and widows who are unable to keep going out and clean up the work that the City is responsible for, I think something should be done to clear this matter up once and for all time.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

When the morning was come, all the chief priests and elders of the people took counsel against Jesus to put him to death . . . And they crucified him, and parted his garments, casting lots . . .

Now the next day, that followed the day of the preparation, the chief priests and Pharisees came together unto Pilate, saying, Sir, we remember that that deceiver said, while he was yet alive, After three days I will rise again. Command therefore that the sepulchre be made sure until the third day, lest his disciples come by night, and steal him away, and say unto the people, He is risen from the dead; so the last error shall be worse than the first.

Pilate said unto them, Ye have a watch; go your way, make it as sure as ye can, So they went, and made the sepulchre sure, sealing the stone, and setting a watch. (Matt. 27: 1, 35, 62-66.)

In the end of the sabbath, as it began to dawn toward the first day of the week, came Mary Magdalene and the other Mary to see the sepulchre. And, behold, there was a great earthquake; for the angel of the Lord descended from heaven, and came and rolled back the stone from the door, and sat upon it . . .

And the angel answered and said unto the women, Fear not ye; for I know that ye seek Jesus, which was crucified . . .

And as they went to tell his disciples, behold, Jesus met them, saying, All hail. And they came and held him by the feet, and worshipped him . . . Then the eleven disciples went away into Galilee, into a mountain where Jesus had appointed them. (Matt. 28: 1, 2, 5, 9, 16.)

And it came to pass, while he blessed them, he was parted from them, and carried up into heaven. (Luke 24:51.)

Atlantic Ocean Tells Its Age

"Where is the nearest land?" asked the terrified passenger on a storm-wracked ship.

"Only two miles away—straight down", replied the captain.

The land beneath the sea—more than twice as much land as there is above the sea—is huge but still little known asset for man, in his incessant hunt for more food, more metals, more oil, more chemicals — more of everything.

Oceangraphers of the Albatross Ocean Bottom expedition, headed by Professor Hans Petterson of Sweden, have just reported new facts about the Atlantic Ocean—that its age is about 500,000,000 years instead of a mere 70,000,000, as had been previously supposed, that its bottom is lined with a layer of sediment, which accumulates at the rate of one inch in every 4,000 years, was the basis for the new estimate of the ocean.

The thickness of the layer of sediment was measured by exploding depth charges and measuring the time between two echoes—the first which came from the top of the layer and the second from the bedrock.—UNESCO.

Low Neckline On Way Out Designer Says

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 28 (AP)—Here's bad news for the men have been delightfully bug-eyed over the ladies 'plunging necklines' the fashion is on the way out.

But here's a silver lining for husbands: their wives will be able to convert to 1950 fashions with little expense.

Source of this glittering information is Waspish Edith Head, the hep fashion designer at Paramount. She is just back from Paris where she previewed next year's designs.

"Necklines are going to plunge," she reported, "but only from side to side. No more bare bosoms, but there will be bare shoulders. In other words, clothes will be more provocative and less obvious."

She added:

'Next year's styles will be slim and draped, with lots of material but no padding of stuffing. briefly, girls will again be girls—not upholstered clothes horses with square shoulders and deceptive angles."

Beard no Disguise

Also back in Holywood is Benign Barry Fitzgerald, who has returned from a tour of Europe, including the ou'' sod. He reports that the Republic of Ireland looks prosperous and beautiful But he is not going to retire and live there with his sister as was reported here.

When will he return to work?

'Ah, maybe if I say quiet, they won't ask me to," he told me "Whe you get to be my age—I was just 62, you know—you're supposed to quit work and die But I find myself wanting to quit work and enjoy life."

Capsule Review

"The Inspector General" (WB) is hard to classify. It's a Russian satire done in Hollywood style Its values are somewhat time-worn but still funny gags and some fresh Danny Kay routines Sharper cutting could have made it a delight; it's still passable entertainment. The story is about a country rube who poses as an Inspector General. There's lots of Ka at his sharpest.

HOUDE'S HAPPY, TOO—Mayor Camillien Houde of Montreal hustled to the dressing room to congratulate Montreal Alouettes after they defeated Calgary Stampeders, 28-15, to win the Grey Cup in Toronto Saturday. Donald Gordon Gets Ready For Questioning

By FORBES RHUDE,
Canadian Press Business Editor.

Probably no man is bigger news when he comes to town than a railway president.

This seems to be true at least in Canada, a country made possible by railways, whose distances still are held together by them; where rumbling freight cars over thousands of miles of sparsely settled country are proof that a nation exists.

The life of nearly every community is tied closely to them; and so, when the president of either of Canada's great transcontinental networks makes a visit, he is, in a way, put on the mat; and also, he is listened to.

For who should know more about what is going on in every part of the country? and who should more about what good thing may be in prospect for each town he calls on?

Now, a new man is coming to call; new, that is, as a railway man but known to almost every household.

He is Donald Gordon, who directed price controls during the war; who now is deputy-governor of the Bank of Canada; but who, after Jan. 1 will be chairman and president of the Canadian National Railways.

Getting Ready

What a lot of questions he is going to have shot at him. Apparently he is getting ready.

He is given what might be called his formal presentation to the thousands of CNR men and women who will work with him, in the December issue of the Canadian National Magazine, in a pen portrait by Ken Wilson, Ottawa editor of the Financial Post. Says Wilson:

"Gordon has never had an easy pathway to fame or fortune. He's worked hard for everything he's got.

"Right now he's making an intensive study of the Canadian National Railways system—starting away back in the very earliest days of settlement and development."

He said to me shortly after he had accepted the National presidency:

" 'I look on the railway as an integral part of Canada and her development. Canada has no bigger challenge than her transportation system. It's always a job that's building and growing. It's something that goes either ahead of the country's development or hand in hand.

"I'm going to love it and I hope it's going to love me."

Science Unable To Reduce London Fogs

By DON GILBERT

LONDON, Nov. 28 — (CP) — London's fogs are not as terrifying as the pea-soupers of a generation ago, but science has made scant progress in reducing the economic effects of the murky invasion that costs about £120,000,000 ($372,000,000) every year.

The London fog season lasts from October to February, and the average is about 60 foggy days a year. It used to be that the cost of a day's fog approximated £1,400,000, but inflation like everything else, has increased the figure.

Nowadays a day's fog bill in London is close to £2,000,000 That is the cost of transportation tieups, damage to property, loss of business activity, and the higher bills for light and heat.

Smoke abatement during the last 20 years has done a lot to take the pungent smell and sulphurous taste out of London fog, and no visitation of recent years has rivalled the worst of earlier days.

Scientists say there is no way of preventing plain fogs, which in their natural condition are white and perfectly clean. But every year an estimated 2,300,000 tons of smoke particles descend on the land. Only a revolutionary change in fuel usage could take all the dirt out of the atmosphere.

London, built on a low-lying marshy site, has been notorious for its fogs since Roman times. Edward I in 1306 imposed a death penalty for burning smoky, fog-thickening coal.

Detroit Beaten Twice Leafs Lose One, Tie One

By HARRY ECCLES
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The pace-setting Detroit Red Wings lost two games over the weekend, and as a result their lead in the National Hockey League has been whittled down to the less-imposing five points. The double defeat for the league leaders may be set alongside the fact that the third-place Toronto Maple Leafs still haven't won in six starts.

Montreal Canadiens and Chicago Black Hawks each came up with two victories and as a result Detroit today has 27 points, Montreal 22, and Toronto and Chicago are tied for third spot with 18. Boston is fifth with 15, one more than New York Rangers in the cellar

Saturday the Hawks walloped Detroit 7-2, Montreal beat Rangers 5-1 and Boston tied Toronto 3-3. On Sunday the Red Wings were beaten 6-2 by the Canadiens, Chicago beat Toronto 6-3 and Rangers held Boston to a 1-1 tie.

The Canadiens were more than a match for the Wings at Detroit Sunday night. Elmer Lach and Maurice Richard scored in the first period, Roger Leger and Billy Reay in the second, and Norm Dussault and Leo Gravelle in the third.

Big Bill Durnan in the Canadien cage was beaten only by Sid Abel in the first period, and Jim McFadden in the last. The Canadiens matched the Wings in the fighting that marked the game, with a free-for-all in the first period and continuous outbursts.

Preliminary To Fight

A scrap between Grant Warwick, of Montreal, and Lee Fogolin, of the Wings, was a preliminary to the general fight. Warwick and Fogolin drew majors for fighting, and each drew two penalties for high - sticking. Eleven of the game's 16 penalties came in that frame.

Detroit's loss Saturday was their first in 11 games, when the Wings seemed to fall apart before the aroused Hawks in the final frame. The teams were tied 2-2 at the end of the second, Metro Prystai and Adam Brown scoring for Chicago while Sid Abel and Marty Pavelich scored for Detroit.

The blistering Chicago attack in the third period produced five goals. After Bill Gadsby made the count 3-2, Roy Conacher and Gaye Stewart scored within a minute and a half, with Metro Prystai and Doug Bentley adding to the total.

Canadiens didn't have much trouble beating the Rangers Saturday, and only Doug Fisher's score spoiled a shutout for Durnan. The Montreal goals were shared by Richard, who had two assists, Billy Reay, Tip Riopelle, and Norm Dussault and Lach.

The Boston-Toronto Saturday tie was a disappointment for the big Toronto crowd, who saw the Leafs leading 3-2 at the end of the second. Young Paul Ronty scored two for Boston and veteran Milt Schmidt got the tying goal midway through the last frame. It was his second goal of the present campaign. Gus Mortson, Ted Kennedy and Sid Smith were the Toronto goal-getters.

The Hawks were still travelling at top speed when they walloped the Leafs at Chicago Sunday night. Referee Butch Keeling called 17 penalties in the rough going.

The Hawks rang up a 3-1 first period lead on goals by Olmstead, Red Hamill and Roy Conacher, while Fleming MacKell scored for Toronto. After Max Bentley scored for Leafs in the second, Olmstead and Metro Prystai both beat goalie Turk Broda, making it 5-2. Max Bentley got Toronto's last goal and Prystai another for Chicago in the third frame.

At Boston Sunday Alex Kaleta scored for Rangers in the fifth minute of play and the Bruins did not get the tying goal until Johnny Peirson scored on a screened shot in the final period.

Henry Refuses Stanlee Bout

In an unsuccesful attempt over the weekend to sign Jim (Goon) Henry and Steve Stanlee for a rematch bout, Manager Jim Laidlaw had to be satisfied in pitting The Goon against Wladek Kowalski for Thursday night's mat show at the Brock. Henry refused to give "Golden Boy" Stanlee another chance to prove last Thursday's win by Goon was a fluke. He was agreeable to take on the Polish Giant, but no Stanlee. Fans will be pulling hard for a Kowalski victory.

So as not to disappoint a large following of supporters that Stanlee won for himself on his only appearance here Laidlaw has matched the fair-haired Steve against Joe Christie. On his showing here last week Stanlee should have little trouble disposing of Christie.

For the semi-final Wee Willie Davis, just back from Hollywood, will tangle with the Lindsay boy, Toar Morgan. Davis is reputed rougher than ever, while Morgan has been showing his old-time form of late. It should be an interesting match. As a matter of fact the whole card is well-balanced.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC PERDUE, Sports Editor.

Anybody want any cancelled Grey Cup tickets—ah, who wanted one last week, anyway? The annual football hysteria which hits so many—and so many who never see a grid game the rest of the season—at Grey Cup time has come and gone: Now we can settle down to the humdrum of hockey and Christmas shopping. We enjoyed the game thoroughly on Saturday in an easy chair in a warm room along side of a good glass of ginger ale. Perhaps we missed a lot of the color and noise at Varsity Stadium and a long-distance view of some footballers in action, but we missed a lot of frostbite, too. Or is that sour grapefruit? Glad to see Alouettes take it handily, and glad the Stamps battled all the way.

Petes open their schedule away tonight, travelling to Bella Villa to meet the Diesels-cum-Electrics in senior "B" competition. The Quinte crew took 'em twice in earlier exhibitions this season—and chuckled muchly about it—but playing for keeps is a different proposition from the practice tilts. The Petes beat Legion here last week (true, it was just an exhibition, too) and surprised a lot of local fans. They look like they've got a pretty fair bunch lined up for the present puck campaign. Murray Fife is a most important cog in the machine and the mixture of veterans and young stuff might well make the Foley flock a potent one ere spring comes.

Gans Play Legions

The big hockey joust so far this season is tonight at 8.30 in Civic Arena when the Legionnaires open their senior "B" schedule against Gananoque. The Gans were intermediate "A" finalists last year and have bolstered for senior "B" play this winter, whilst Legion won the OHA senior "B" title last spring. So, it should be a swell scrap and none of this exhibition stuff. This game counts and both sides will be hustling every minute for that initial win. Legion have fine pucksists in every position and they'll be tough to take in scheduled play. This game rates a really big crowd as OHA hockey is ushered in officially here for 1949-50.

* * * * * *

In OHA games there wil lbe a neutral referee — and neither team knows who he is still he skates out on the ice—and a home linesman. The latter merely calls offsides and maybe helps break up a fight, while the referee has the handling of all penalties. It's not a perfect setup but then most OHA clubs can't afford to pay for two neutral refs during the schedule, and most linesmen are pretty fair. We thought Herb Payne handled a good game the other night in a tough spot with Legion and Petes inclined to rough it up. He called them by the book. Tony Giardino also was on his toes as linesman. Officiating present-day hockey is a tough, tough job, and someone is always mad at you.

OMHA Holds Meeting

OMHA held its annual meeting Saturday in Toronto with O. B. Hardwick of Bolton named president. Vice-prexies are H. Parker of Stratford, O. Weichel of Elmira and R. Kinchsular of Whitby. Secretary is J. L. Christie of Toronto. Dr. Leon Hipwell of Toronto being treasurer, and executive including: Fred Norman of Simcoe, Bert Hick of Lindsay, Frank Doherty of Thorold, Vic Burr of Oshawa, Sam Curry of Tweed, Jack Oakes of Strathroy and Mike Buzek of Brantford. No Peterborough man on there yet. Various rules were discussed, particularly pertaining to provincial playdowns, and the PMHA can check any doubtful points with Bert Hick of Lindsay.

* * * * * *

Frank Buckland tried a convener's meeting in Lindsay yester aft but Markham and Stouffville delegates refused to co-operate. They now want in a setup of their own, including a couple of intermediate clubs, Georgetown and Brampton. George Panter of the OHA sent word that Markham and Stouffville would have to play in this senior "B" grouping as arranged recently, but the clubs still squawked and they will appear at an OHA executive meeting in Toronto on Friday to state their cases. Looks like they'll have to play up this way, though. The Meteors were quite willing to go ahead in this setup. So there'll likely be another convener's meeting here next week-end. Wurra, wurra.

Hither And Yawn

Something definite will be done this week toward lining up an OHA junior "B" grouping to include the IOOF-ers....The Loucks family and Don Veigel got but $20 each from the benefit puck match in Lindsay last Friday, a slim crowd attending ...Friday's fixture here is Legion at Petes, while Gananoque goes to Kingston....No PMHA info at the moment but we may get something later in the day.../Annual local cricket club meeting is at eight tonight in the Chamber of Commerce....AAU of C named Bill Parnell, Vancouver distance runner, Canada's outstanding amateur athlete for 1949.... Peerless Frankie Filchock played 58 minutes of brilliant football for Als and only left when Calgary didn't have a snowball's chance.... Stamps' officials went home grumbling about the condition of the field at Varsity Stadium, yet nothing is ever done about frozen or snow gridirons out west, either....Men cagers are rapidly rounding into shape here now and there'll be exhibitions shortly....At a Hastings meeting yesterday, important TVL rules were drawn up and are listed elsewhere tonight....Freddy the Frog didn't have a 10-gallon hat at the game Saturday, but he did wear a 40-ounce holster.

Lost Cost Money

MONTREEAL —(CP)—McGill University's $8,100,000 drive for funds was completed recently at a cost of $90,844, or 1.12 per cent the university announced. Principal F. Cyril James said it was "a notable record."

UK Steel Gains

LONDON (CP)—Production of steel for the first 10 months of 1949 is 12,900,000 tons compared with 12,200,000 tons last year. The industry showed a gain each month over the corresponding month in 1948.

Marlies Blank Barrie 4-0; Spitfires Win

By The Canadian Press.

Ontario Hockey Association Junior and Senior A standings came in for a minor reshuffling job after week-end games, but Toronto Marlboros, top teams in both loops, retained their leading ratings.

The junior edition of the Marlboro club kept their lead at seven points with a 4-0 victory over the fifth-place Barrie Flyers. The Seniors were inactive.

In other contests, Toronto St Michael's College Majors were deposed from second place by Windsor Spitfires, who belted the collegians 6-2. Galt held St. Catharines to a 5-5 tie, the single point lifting St. Catharines to a third-place tie with St. Michael's. The doormat Stratford Kroehlers laced Oshawa Generals 7-2 to draw into an eighth place stalemate with the same Gens.

In the senior circuit's only Saturday encounter, Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen passed Owen Sound to take over second place via a 5-0 blanking of Hamilton Tigers.

At Toronto, in the first game of a junior doubleheader, Marlies clicked for the only goal of the first period, reliable Jack McKenzie turning the trick. Larry Regan pulled the trigger on two goals, one in the middle session and one in the final canto. Dan Windley clicked for the other Marlie counter in the final frame.

Better Passing

Better passing and checking than St. Michael's could display sank the Collegians in the second contest.

Bob Rawlyk tallied twice for the Spitfires in the opening session and Glen Skov clicked for a single. The best the Irish could do was a marker by Bob Sabourin Bill Dineen opened the second period scoring and his goal cut the margin to one. Bob Rawlyk then scored his third and Earl Riebel potted another to make it 5-2. Ed Stankiewicz added a singleton in the final frame.

In the game at Galt, St. Catharines failed to hold a 4-1 lead after the first period. Galt outscored Teepees 2-1 in the second and then drove in two counters in the third for the tie. Bill Altoft was top man for St. Catharines with a pair of markers, while singles were racked up by Bob Knowles, Corky Corcoran and Frant Martin.

Pete Conacher and Bronco Horvath counted with two each in the Galt cause and Ken Green sank the other.

Stratford pulled a minor surprise by thumping Oshawa Generals 7-2. Both teams notched a pair in the opening session and Stratford clicked for three more in the middle period and another two in the final stanza. Doug French, Jack Ashley, Bibber O'Hearn, Dinny Flanagan, Jim Pernfuss, Dunnette and Doug Williams spread scoring honors around the Kroehlers while Gord Warner and Marcel Clements were the Oshawa marksmen.

The union wound up its annual meeting by adopting a report which calls for the organization of a new Olympic Association to handle Canada's participation in the 1952 Olympics.

DOWN GOES KWONG—Nineteen-year-old Norm Kwong, fast-stepping "China Clipper" of the Calgary Stampeders, is tackled hard by George Festeryga (62) of Montreal Alouettes in the Grey Cup game at Toronto, which Montreal won, 28-15. This photo also shows Calgary's Matheson (11), Strode (42) and Turner (29) and Alouettes' Trawick (86), partly obscured by Turner.

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

A great army team rose to the height of its awesome power on Saturday to crush Navy 38-0 in the most one sided beating ever administered in the 50 games played between the service rivals.

A shivering crowd of 102,443, including President Truman, packed into Philadelphia's Municipal Stadium, saw the rugged Black Knights drive to a touchdown from the initial kickoff and then, under the brilliant direction of Arnold Gallifa, rip and tear the Middies into abject submission.

Only once before in the history of the classic did a team take a mauling to compare with that absorbed by the Middies Saturday. That was in 1903, in the infancy of the series, when another army squad smashed Navy 40-6.

So completely outclassed were the boys from Annapolis that they penetrated Army territory only once, late in the third quarter, and then they were halted 47 yards and short of a score by the fierce tackling cadets.

It was in every respect a complete rout for the Middies, just as it was a sublime triumph for the huskies from West Point as they completed their 20th straight game without having tasted defeat. Army scored in every period and toward the end her reserves were batting the tars around with happy abandon.

A 30 yard placement and a converted touchdown in the second quarter was enough to give Montreal HMCS Donnacona a 9-0 victory over Dundas Blue Bombers in the Eastern Canada Intermediate Football final at Montreal on Saturday.

It marked the first Montreal victory over an Ontario Intermediate champion since 1929 when Montreal Westwards defeated Sarnia 6-0.

The Ontario Minor Hockey Association has intimated it would like to put a price tag on player releases.

The Association's annual meeting Saturday at Toronto accepted the suggestion of secretary Jack Christie that some arrangement be worked out with the OHA for the payment of players who are absorbed into OHA Junior, or higher series while still eligible in age for the OMHA.

The association's executive was given authority to arrange future playoff series to be either best of three or best of five.

Otta Hardwick, Reeve of Bolton, was elected president of the Association in succession to Harold Dunk of Nobel. Vice-presidents are Herb Parker of Stratford, Otto Weichel of Elmira and Remond Kinchsular of Whitby.

Lorne Main, 19-year-old Canadian Davis Cup player, has been chosen British Columbia's No. 1 tennis player by the BC Lawn Tennis Association.

Walt Stohlberg, 27, a team mate of Main's in the Davis Cup matches was named runner-up for the top men's singles ranking.

In the ladies' singles division the Association named 23-year-old Lois Reid of Vancouver queen of the courts. She won the BC clay courts championship.

Canisius University walloped the University of Western Ontario 60-24 Saturday night in the nightcap of the opening basketball doubleheader of the season at Buffalo before 5,243 fans.

Canisius raced away to an 8-0 lead and had no difficulty penetrating the Mustang's defence. At one point Canisius held a 42-point lead.

Heads Hockey Group

OTTAWA, Nov. 28 (CP) —J. M. Flett of Perth, was elected president of the Ottawa and District Amateur Hockey Association on Saturday, succeeding Emile Brisbois of Buckingham, Que. Secretary Cecil Duncan reported to the annual meeting that total registrations for the year stood at 4,472, about 180 down from last year's total. Registrations were made up of 2,540 minors, 967 juniors, 820 intermediates and 145 seniors. The Branch operated at a profit of $2,044 in the 1948-49 season.

Grey Cup Returns To Montreal After 18 Years, Down Fighting Stampeders 28-15

By JACK SULLIVAN

TORONTO, Nov. 28—(CP)—The Grey Cup, a much-travelled bit of tarnished silver resting on a slightly-nicked wooden base that has by-passed Montreal the last 18 years, returned to the Quebec Metropolis today. Its journey was speeded by the master football "moxey" of Frankie Filchock. The cup's resting place for at least a year was assured Saturday, when Montreal Alouettes, with the $10,000-a-year Filchock calling the tune, defeated Calgary Stampeders, defending Dominion Champions, 28-15. It was Filchock's big day before a sell-out Varsity Stadium crowd of 20,147 chilled fans. He powered the eastern champions with deadly-aimed forward passes, sent them scooting around the ends and through the middle on well-screened hand-offs and "smelled out" many Calgary offensives. He was in the right places at the right times. He did not score a point, but his field generalship was superb.

But it wasn't all Filchock, the Grindstone, Pa., quarterback, in the Alouette victory march on a field patterned by stretches of heavy going in the mud and treacherous patches of hard-packed snow. Led by fleet Bobby Cunningham, the entire Alouette team turned in its top performance on the big day.

Blast Poor Field

The game left a "rhubarb" in its wake—blasts by Calgary coach Les Lear and President Tom Brook over playing-field conditions. They contended game officials could have protected the playing field with a tarpaulin from the seven-inch late-week snowfall.

"The city of Toronto provided the plows to clean off the field before the game," Brook said. "It certainly wasn't the city's responsibility, but it came through when Varsity Stadium and Canadian Rugby Union officials failed to do anything about it."

Warren Stevens, University of Toronto athletic director, replied that a tarpaulin big enough to cover the playing field would cost around $15,000. He said the expenditure wouldn't be justified because cold weather would still freeze the field under the tarpaulin—"and no one has yet discovered how to defrost a frozen field."

Great Defence

The Stampeders, on the short end of the 7-to-5 betting odds, played heads-up ball featured by mighty defensive play of veterans Riley (Rattler) Matheson and Johnny Aguirre, who inspired their front-wall mates to outplay the Montrealers up front.

Sugarfoot Anderson, big Negro end with the tennis-racquet hands, cut in for good defensive play and loped across for the Stampeders' second touchdown—a 20-yard gallop after picking up a Montreal fumble. Harry Hood crossed Als line for Calgary's other major count.

Calgary trailed 11-0 going into the second quarter, but it was only hard luck they didn't score on a first-quarter march that put the ball on Montreal's one-yard line. An interference penalty moved the Stamps back 10 yards and their big chance ended there when Keith Spaith's forward just missed Hood in the clear.

"If we had clicked there, it might have been a different ball game," Lear said.

The hard-hitting Westerners picked up spark with a seven-point second-quarter drive manufactured on a long kick for a rouge by quarterback Keith Spaith and Hood's touchdown converted by Vern Graham.

Turning Point

The turning point of the game came before the half when Dusky Herb Trawick, 240-pound middle from Pittsburgh, bulled his way past aquirre, rocked Spaith as he was set toss a forward. The ball slithered to the ground and Trawick wasn't touched as he ran 35 yards into pay dirt with the fumbled ball.

That was it, although Calgary came close to getting back in the ball game in the third quarter when a Filchock-to-Wagner pass on the Calgary 25-yard line was intercepted by Rod Pantages who ran nearly 25 yards. But judge-of-play Jimmy Simpson ruled Pantages had interfered illegally with the receiver.

Lear and Calgary players contended a bad call was made on the play. As it turned out, Montreal went over for its fourth touchdown shortly afterwards to put the game on ice.

Virgil Wagner, import from Belleville, Ill., went over for two of Montreal's four touchdowns. Cunningham got one. Big Ches McCance came up with three converts, a placement and a rouge and Fred Kijek punted a rouge.

Cleveland Barons Win 12th Straight Victory

By The Canadian Press

Western Division teams stole the American Hockey League spotlight during the weekend.

The league-leading Cleveland Barons ran their unbeaten streak to 12 straight Saturday night with a 9-3 triumph over the lowly Cincinnati Mohawks.

And Sunday night these same lowly Mohawks came up with their first victory in 12 games by whipping the faltering Springfield Indians 3-1.

Two other Western Division teams, Pittsburgh Hornets and Indianapolis Capitals, enjoyed a prosperous weekend.

The Hornets picked up four points with a 2-1 victory against Buffalo Bisons Saturday and a 3-2 decision over Providence Reds Sunday. Indianapolis snared three points as the result of a 4-4 tie with Hershey Bears and a 2-1 triumph against New Haven Ramblers.

St. Louis Flyers, the only other squad in the Western section, played only one game and came up with a 4-2 win against Springfield Saturday.

Reeve Bell Retires

Developments were different in Marmora and Lake Township nominations. Reeve John A. Bell, who has held the office for thirteen years, retired in favor of Irwin McCoy.

The reeve-elect has served as councillor for many years, with an intercession of a few years between his two periods of office. He has been active in the interests of agriculture and in other matters affecting the welfare of Marmora district.

Among offices he holds are vice-president of Marmora District Chamber of Commerce, director of Marmora Agricultural Society, member of the newly-formed Crowe Valley Lakes Association and of Marmora's Recreation Centre Commission.

With 10 others, Mr. McCoy was nominated for the council. Of those 10, eight have decided to run for seats on the council, namely: Charles Kelly, George Davidson and John Wilkes of the retiring council, George Fox, Everett Barrons, Ross Carman, Gordon Jones and Arthur Sheridan. Everett Derry and Albert Leonard did not qualify.

Polling will take place Dec. 5 for the selection of the council.

With Gordon Moffatt declining to stand, the three School Area trustees to be given acclamation were Percy Carman, Raymond Bonter and Wilbert Jones.

Congratulatalons are in order to G. Braund, C. Giroux, H. Hamblin and E. Braund. They won the Sykes trophy drawn at Oshawa last Friday. This is the first all-week bonspiel of the year and judging by the reports it would appear that our boys are going to make things tough for all opposition. It's no small feat to come through a bonspiel of 64 entries and win one of the major trophies.

We believe several rinks from our club are playing in the Lindsay bonspiel this week.

Another nice crowd out on Saturday evening. We have an idea that these week-end events are going to prove as popular at the curling rink as they did up at the bowling green last summer. The winning skips were H. Baptie and N. Hamley.

Tonight we continue with the schedule and on Tuesday evening the Neill Trophy bonspiel and the Tankard and District Cup practice.

It's like the ALUMINUM business

PLANTS — all kinds of plants — need supplies to thrive on. This is true of plants in the garden, and true of plants which make articles of aluminum.

Vegetable plants draw their supplies from the soil and the air. The 1000 and more aluminum manufacturing plants across Canada draw theirs from us.

And just as different garden plants produce different leaves, flowers, roots and fruits, so these manufacturing plants shape our aluminum into a variety of useful forms—kitchen ware, garden tools, furniture, bodies for aeroplanes and trucks . . . all sorts of things which people want because they are light and economical.

We and these independent manufacturers make a team. They draw on us not only for aluminum but also for the technical services of our laboratories. And because we produce, here in Canada, a quarter of the world's aluminum, they are able to buy this metal at lower prices than anyone else anywhere.

VOL. XCIX. No. 125 — MONDAY, NOVEMBER 28, 1949

Cash Register Stolen, Thief Arrested

Pleading guilty to two charges of theft, one of a cash register containing about $100 and another of 12 cigarette lighters, two boxes of cigars and a cigarette case, Charles H. Bloxam, 23, of Peterborough, was remanded one week for sentence in police court by Magistrate W. R. Philp, K.C., today.

The cash register was stolen from the McGillis hotel early Sunday morning and was recovered and Bloxam arrested at noon Sunday. Police say Bloxam stole the lighters, cigarette case and cigars Saturday morning from the stock room of the United Cigar Store.

About three a.m. the night man of the McGillis hotel discovered the cash register of the men's beverage room was missing. Sergeant Gordon T. Puffer and Constable William A. Scott investigated immediately and found entry had been made through the window of a men's wash room. They discovered tracks in the snow on the roof of a shed directly under the window.

The following morning proprietor Don McGillis told Detective W. A. Clarke, while he was counting the cash in the men's beverage room, Bloxam, who had been working as part time waiter in the hotel, entered and asked if a lighter he had lost had been recovered. When Mr. McGillis said no lighter had been found, Bloxam left.

Find New Lighter

Later a new lighter, which had no fluid in it and had never been used, was found under the window of the men's wash room.

Detective Clarke suspected Bloxam and obtained a search warrant to search Bloxam's room where he was boarding. Sergeant Leo Murphy and Constable John F. Morrow executed the search warrant and found two boxes of cigars and a cardboard box half filled with pennies. Bloxam was not in.

In the meantime other constables were sent to hunt for the cash register. Constable Grant J. Gillespie found the electric cash register near King St. between two parked trucks. More than $18 was found still under the drawer. The register had been broken open.

Paid Back Rent

Bloxam's landlady told police Bloxam had paid her more than $24 back rent and had gone out early in the morning. She later told police Bloxam came into the house and left in a minute or two.

Two police cruisers and the police truck were immediately dispatched to the south end of town. They blocked off the area and in about half an hour captured Bloxam near an old shed near Western Ave. and Lansdowne St.

He had more than $44 in cash on him when searched. All the cigarette lighters were later recovered except one which Bloxam said he had thrown into the snow in the exhibition grounds because he suspected, after visiting his room, that the police were after him.

Sergeant Murphy and Constables Morrow, Dennis, M. Traynor, E. E. McDonald, and Traffic Officer Claire McGillen took part in the hunt.

19,432 Voters On City's List

Peterborough moved up to another statistical peak this year with an increase of 713 municipal voters.

City hall records compile the names of 19,432 men and women in the 1950 voters' lists as compared with 18,719 in the 1949 list. That obviously means that the number of persons who are qualified to vote in the municipal elections is 19,432. This gain of 713 in one year is another of the surprises the city's continuing to create in its expansion.

The composition of the list of voters is: number of owners who are Public School supporters, 7,817; and Separate School supporters, 1,740.

Tenants who are Public School supporters 4,272, and Separate School supporters 1,012.

There are also an additional 4,593 women who are the wives of owners or tenants.

The remaining names on the list represent qualified voters living outside the city. When properties are in joint ownership the names of the wives of the owners are now shown in the list.

NAME SCHOOL FOR HERO

Smiths Falls has named a new school "Kenneth Spooner Memorial School" commemorating the war sacrifice of Keneth Gerald Spooner, young townsman and RCAF navigator who was awarded the George Cross for bravery. He took the controls of his plane from its fainting pilot long enough for several of the crew to parachute to safety. The George Cross is second only to the Victoria Cross as a medal of gallantry. The school was formally opened by Premier Frost Thursday night.

Waste-lands In County Ideal For Growing Forests

In an address before the Rotary Club at noon today, Robson Black of Montreal, told of scores of Scandinavian rural townships creating high prosperity by growing forests from waste-lands no better than those lying idle in the Peterborough district. Sweden, Norway, and Finland, he said, with just a fifth of Canada's forest resources, had used shrewd management to create more employment from their timberlands and as great wood production as the entire Dominion.

Speaking as president-emeritus of the Canadian Forestry Association and president of the Canadian-Scandinavian Foundation, Mr. Black said that the Swedes and Norwegians had established their natural resources of soil, forests, and waters as a perpetual endowment. Destruction of woodlands by fire had been reduced to a few thousand acres annually, against Canada's average of 2,800,000 acres. By tending their forests as a continuous source of wood harvests, some Swedish farming communities had built up cash reserves of from two to three million dollars each, entirely from profits on municipally-owned forests. Such local 'forest funds' paid for all the highways, schools, public institutions, and paid all real-estate taxes as well.

No Communism In Sweden

Mr. Black said that communism had been virtually wiped out of Sweden by the courage and ingenuity of the labor unions. They had vigorously attacked Soviet theories and claims as the deathknell of trade unionism and had finally beaten communist campaigns to a standstill. Because of strict loyalty to arbitration principles and a high educational standard of labor leaders, no serious strike had taken place for eight years. All classes of society condemned labor-management warfare as unintelligent and wasteful. When collective agreements were submitted to the Labor Court at Stockholm, judgments were given by an equal number of appointees of both unions and employers. Last year out of 86 decisions of the Labor Court, 74 were unanimous, labor and management uniting time and again to give a common verdict.

The speaker suggested that Scandinavia's foremost lesson for Canada was its fixed ideal of scientific control of the natural resources. Farm soils were steadily rising in yield, forests were kept immune from fire and cultivated for maximum volume of wood production, watersheds guarding the power streams were maintained as a first essential to electric development.

While Sweden, said Mr. Black, was not yet a member of the Atlantic Defence Pact, it was the only nation in the European zone that had multiplied its defences from heavy domestic taxation without recourse to the United States.

STILL CALENDAR AUTUMN

If the present weather holds to the middle of the week it may be said of autumn that it has gone out like a penguin or polar bear.

Bethany Ski Tow Operated Sunday

Ski Club members took a holiday from work around their Bethany playground Sunday when the recent snowfall provided superior skiing conditions. For the past four week-ends the members have been preparing the grounds and the buildings for the coming season.

Not expecting the snow to be deep enough for good skiing only 50 members took to their skis on Sunday afternoon. Only the big tow was put into operation, the earliest it has ever been used.

Skiing conditions were described by most skiers as perfect, one foot of snow which was dry and fast. Both tows will be used next week-end as the snow in that area is deep enough for safe skiing.

In the Kemp's Hill skiing area the snow was not deep enough for skiing safely.

December 7 the Peterborough Ski Club will hold their annual Ski Night in the PCVS auditorium. The program will be similar to last year, movies and door prizes. The fashion show has been omitted from this year's program but some members of the club will be modelling this season's skiing togs.

400 Parcels Sent By Local Branch To Namesake City

Peterborough and District Branch of the United Emergency Fund for Britain has sent 400 parcels of the most needed foods to people living in Peterborough, England, and its district.

Now that Christmas is approaching, the local committee felt that many in this city and district would desire to do something for this great festival, and an appeal is made for that purpose, in which all are invited to have a share.

Last Friday another $600 was forwarded from the local account and this will mean that headquarters will be able to forward about another 120 parcels. This to people who get allowed only 3 oz. of butter each week, 3 oz. of lard for two weeks, and about 20 cents worth of meat each week, should prove most welcome indeed.

In undertaking to provide for the namesake city in England, the local committee has an ambitious objective, one worthy of the tradition that was established during the days of the local British War Victims Fund, because the population it endeavours to serve is greater than our own by at least 20 per cent.

Delivery By Christmas

At no season of the year is it more blessed to give, and through warehouse facilities established in Great Britain by the UEFB, it will be possible to assure that gifts to the local branch can be turned into gift parcels for Christmas. One lady at Bridgenorth sent in a donation to the local chairman during the past week, with an anxious enquiry as to whether something was not being done to help the people in Britain. Undoubtedly there are many like her, and the local Committee awaits their response to this appeal.

Donations may be left at any bank, or The Examiner, who will issue receipts for them. They may also be directed to committee members, Edward Humpage, George R. Melton, Melville H. Johnston, Gordon Monkman, or James L. Thompson (treasurer) and the chairman, Fred G. Mann, 199 London St.

Townships Vary In Nominations

Otonabee ratepayers have returned their municipal council by acclamation. North Monaghan's nominations are tonight at the Court House, but some of the townships are following the old schedule of nominations on Monday, Dec. 26. One of them is Smith and another Ennismore.

At the Court House today the arrangement for local meetings was not definitely known.

Chandos has an election on its hands. At the township nominations Friday Reeve Glen Nicholls and Gerald Ayotte were proposed for reeve, with six for council: George Tanner, Phillip Tanner, Edwin Everett of the present council and Louis Post, Theodore Post and Thomas Tucker.

It was reported today that they have all qualified. Mr. John Reynolds is retiring from the administration to become clerk and treasurer of Chandos.

Claim 85 Locals Bolted UEW With 144,230 Members

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 28 (AP) —The CIO may learn this week how much it can salvage from labor's biggest family fight in recent years.

About 100 union locals are expected to send delegates to the organizing convention of CIO President Philip Murray's new international union of electrical, radio and machine workers.

They may have trouble proving they're free agents. The recent Cleveland CIO convention expelled Albert J. Fitzgerald's United Electrical Workers Union for left-wing policies and set up the new group as a substitute union.

The UEW claims to represent 500,000 workers, but CIO convention reports showed it paid per-capita assessments on only 375,000.

Amid rumors that UEW adherents were planning to heckle the CIO group in its organizing efforts, Fitzgerald said in New York that an overwhelming majority of UEW members are supporting the UEW.

The rumors of heckling circulated in Philadelphia today. A CIO spokesman said he had heard that some UEW leaders are planning to embarrass the new group by picketing outside convention headquarters, and, perhaps, with demonstrations in the lobby.

A survey disclosed 85 locals, claiming total membership of 144,230, bolted the UEW.

Right-wing locals which bolted are sending delegates to the convention.

But the rebellious units still are virtual UEW captives. The parent UEW, to which they are constitutionally and contractually bound, refuses to let them go. And the national labor relations board is reluctant to allow collective bargaining elections while present UEW contracts are in force. The contracts don't run out until April 1.

The new union undoubtedly will try to clear up its status at its national debut, with Murray as keynoter. It was Murray's insistence that Communists must go from CIO which led to the UEW's expulsion.

CIO officials have claimed anywhere from 130,000 to 180,000 members bolting to the new union.

Nine Nominees Qualified For City Council Seven For The School Board

Nine candidates for city Council and seven for the Board of Education will comprise the ballots in the municipal elections Monday, December 5. Ald. Grant Miller, who had announced his retirement from the elective civic service, did not qualify. The names of the aldermanic nominees who accepted candidature are, in alphabetic order: P. J. Anglesey, E. C. Braund, L. M. Brooks, John A. Dewart, Norman C. Graham, T. Douglas Miller, Fred T. Tuggey, Hugh F. Waddell and Harry Yudin.

Three of the nine are members of the Council, Aldermen Anglesey, Miller and Waddell.

Seven candidates for the Board of Education are: W. Stanley Adamson, Albert E. Borland, G. Wilson Craw, Murray Irwin, Dr. J. Russell Morgan, Arthur Pitchford and Mrs. Paige Rowell.

Present members of the Board seeking re-election are Mr. Borland, Mr. Craw and Mr. Pitchford.

Voting hours Monday, December 5 are from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. at 56 polls. City Clerk Outram is mailing to each qualified elector the information as to place and time of voting. Each person is advised of the polling place at which he or she is listed.

New UE Applies As CGE Unit For Certificate

The IUE-CIO in Peterborough today made two announcements: it has applied to the Ontario Labour Relations Board for certification as the bargaining unit for CGE workers; and two delegates have been sent to the first IUE convention opening today in Philadelphia.

When James B. Carey spoke at a mass meeting on November 22 John G. Morton, acting Canadian director of the IUE, stated the right wingers had signed a majority of the workers. He did not elaborate at the time and refused to say at the open meeting how many cards had been signed.

A leaflet distributed to the CGE workers at noon today states that application has been made to the Labour Board, and it goes on to say the union "is hopeful of obtaining immediate certification."

Application has previously been made by the IUE groups at Cobourg (CGE plant) and Guelph (Leland Electric and Copperwire Products).

Two Convention Delegates

The two Peterboroaugh delegates to the organizational convention being held today in Philadelphia are Mr. Morton and Sam Agnew, member of the provisional committee.

Mr. Morton has previously stated he is acting as Canadian director only temporarily.

It is the first convention called by the new electrical radio and machine workers union since they were issued a charter at the recent CIO convention in Cleveland.

At that time the UE was expelled from the CIO for its left wing tendencies.

John Londerville Goes To Hamilton

John Londerville on the staff of the Peterborough Collegiate and Vocational School since September 1946 resigned today to accept an appointment on the staff of the Hamilton Normal School commencing on January 1.

A graduate of the Peterborough public schools, Collegiate Institute and the Normal School Mr. Londerville taught in Haliburton and in Douro before joining the Peterborough Public School staff on September 1, 1938. He was assigned to the King Edward School and in 1940 was granted leave of absence which was later renewed for 1941 to permit him to complete his studies at Queen's University where he graduated with his Master of Arts degree and as a specialist in history. In September 1942 he returned to King Edward school and in 1943 was appointed acting vice principal: In October of the same year he joined the armed services remaining in the army until 1946 when he joined the staff of the PCVS.

Mr Londerville has taken a very active part in the Peterborough Little Theatre and last week directed the senior play presented by the students of the collegiate.

TO RECEIVE DFC

Flying Officer Jack Thompson of Barrie and son of Mrs. Mae Thompson and the late C. S. Thompson of Peterborough will receive his Distinguished Flying Cross award on November 30 at an investure to be held in Toronto by Lt.-Governor Ray Lawson.

1,222 Hunters Get 479 Deer Nab Five Bears

Game wardens were the busiest people on highways and in the woods during the ten-day deer hunt. They were hard men to pin down for information until the week-end. Their records have revealed more interesting information now that the final count is over.

During four days of road blocks at Burleigh Falls junction and at Buckhorn, 1,222 hunters came south with 479 deer and five bears, the majority coming from the area west of the Eel's Brook Game Preserve around Haultain. The breakdown shows 229 bucks, 164 does and 86 fawns giving a ratio of one animal to every 2.55 hunters. The average bag during the first week was one deer to three and in 1948, one to four.

Game wardens throughout the province are attempting to collect 1,500 buck heads for the purpose of determining age and herd conditions.

G. W. Robert Trotter of Apsley has already stored a dozen heads to forward to the Department's cold storage plant in Toronto.

MAIN ST. TOPICS

AT GREY CUP GAME

Harold Dormer was one of the few football fans from Peterborough who had tickets for the football final in Toronto Saturday. As to the weather, he said he didn't have his gloves on during the first half. It was not so cold as he had expected.

CAR DAMAGE $200

Driving over the brow of a hill near Lakefield Sunday night Joseph Blewett of Lakefield ran his car into the ditch when it slipped on the icy surface of Highway 28. An estimated $200 damage resulted. Provincial Constable Earl Berwick investigated.

SALES JUMP

Christmas TB stamp sales to date total $661.22, Robert B. Arnold, manager of the Bank of Commerce and treasurer of the Peterborough County Tuberculosis Association, reported today. Sales Saturday totalled $385.

BECOMES MEMBER

Jack Dane, president of the Ontario Recreation Directors Federation and new director at Forest Hill village, has been asked to become a member of the consultant committee to the school of social work at the University of Toronto. The invitation came from Dr. Harry M. Cassidy of the university.

ENTERTAIN MEMBERS

During the past week new members of the YMCA have been entertained at meetings of clubs within the association. Guest speaker at the Y's Men's Club meeting and the Friday Night Club meeting was Arthur Buckley, one of the secretaries of the national council. Tuesday night the Triangle Club will be hosts to a group of new members.

QUALIFIED PROMPTLY

The name of Ald. Doug Millet as a candidate for city council was inadverdently omitted from the list of qualified nominees published Saturday. The chairman of the fire and light committee accepted nomination by signing his paper of candidature at the city hall before 11 o'clock Saturday morning.

TWO WOLF BOUNTY CLAIMS

Two more claims for wolf bounties have been filed with the Peterborough County Clerk and Treasurer and they have been forwarded to the Department of Lands and Forests for approval. Earl W. Lloyd, of Peterborough, shot a wolf nearly two weeks ago in Burleigh Township, near Eel's Creek; and the other was shot by Theodore Muskrat of Curve Lake on Friday in Smith Township, between Selwyn and Young's Point.

FELL FROM 14TH

After passing the unlucky 13th stair, Bruce Livingstone, 339 Aylmer St., a caretaker at the city building, fell from the 14th stair to the bottom of the flight at his home Sunday. He was taken to Civic Hospital where a fractured pelvis was diagnosed. Mr. Livingstone, whose age is 60, is reported to be in good condition today.

Matches Ignite Set Fire To Chesterfield

A lighted match that ignited a chesterfield chair Sunday afternoon caused about $300 damage to the living room and contents of the home of Robert Woodward, 179 Barnardo Ave.

Mr. Woodward and his wife Gladys received slight burns in attempting to stifle the blaze and carry out some of the flaming furnishings. Mrs. Woodward had her hair singed and a burnt right hand, while her husband received burns on both hands.

Firemen gave first aid to the couple. It was not considered necessary to call a doctor.

Their 12-year-old son, Robbie, was sitting in the living room reading, shortly before 1.30 p.m. Sunday. He told firemen his elbow knocked two matches to the floor that were lying on the dining room table.

In some manner they ignited. He blew one out, he said, but did not see the other as it rolled underneath the nearby chesterfield chair. Thinking there was no further danger he returned to his reading.

According to the boy's story he did not realize anything was wrong until the curtains were afire and the chair was burning.

Mr. and Mrs. Woodward came into the room to help put out the blaze but they were unsuccessful.

When Mr. Woodward tried to phone the Fire Department he found the blaze had already burned away the telephone wire and so he used the phone of a neighbor, Mrs. Lorne Mullen.

The chesterfield chair was burned and also the curtains and drapes; a rug was badly damaged and the fire also damaged the living room radio. A couple of sections of the hardwood floor were also burned.

"The entire living room will have to be re-decorated," Mrs. Woodward told the Examiner today. "The place is a mess."

She estimated damage to the furniture alone would be $250 and that $300 was the absolute minimum of their loss.

Churchill 75 On November 30 Still Trumpeting Challenge

By HAL COOPER

LONDON, Nov. 28 — (AP) — Winston Churchill, a landmark of our time, will be 75 years old Nov. 30.

The occasion finds the old warrior, as usual, trumpeting a challenge. He can hardly wait to get the ruling Labor ministers — "These little men," he calls them —into the arena of a national election.

At five years past the biblical three score and ten, the Conservative partly leader is ready and anxious to keep another date with his political destiny.

The old artistocrat may be headed for another stay at 10 Downing Street, or he may be riding for a fall, as he and his party did in 1945 only weeks after the end of the war in Europe.

Whatever may be in store, Churchill is charging into the battle with energy and enthusiasm of a man half his age. The years are closing in on him, but his aggressive spirit is undampened.

The stoop in his shoulders is a little more pronounced. He seems somewhat heavier.

Shrewd As Ever

But his eyes are as bright and shrewd as ever. He wears glasses only for reading. He clinches the ever-present big cigar in his mouth as a bulldog does a bone.

In Parliamentary debate and public speeches he plays his magnificent voice like a theatre organ. His invective retains the cutting edge of a razor or, if he thinks the occasion demands it, an ax.

With his big square bowler hat and old-fashioned clothes, he is John Bull brought to life.

The scope of his activities in the last 12 months was incredible for a man who has been living on the dead run for a half century or more. During the year he:

Published the second volume of his war memoirs, "their finest hour."

Worked up to four hours a night putting the final polish on the third volume.

Helps Form Parliament

Helped bring to life a fledgling Parliament of Europe, as a step toward a united states of Europe.

Put down a smouldering Conservative party revolt against his leadership.

Shuttled back and forth between Britain and the continent to further the cause of a united Europe.

Made a side trip to the United States.

Spearheaded a relentless Conservative party attack, in and out of parliament, against the ruling Labor party.

It was a hectic year. But Churchill weakened only once For two days in August he was abed with a cold at Lord Beaverbrook's villa in the south of France.

In February Churchill campaigned personally for the Conservative candidate in an election to fill a House of Commons vacancy in the important Hammersmith District of London. The candidate lost.

"They cheer for Churchill, but they vote for Labor," one well-placed Conservative complained to newspaper men.

Big Speech of Day

Rumors leaked of an undercover move to ease Churchill out of his role as the party's main policy maker.

July rolled around. The Conservatives held a big rally in Wolverhampton to touch off their election campaign. Still much in the saddle and cracking Churchillian phrases like a whip, the old leader made the big speech of the day.

By the time parliament began its new regular session in in October, talk of easing Churchill out of the driver's seat in his party had died to a whisper.

The Daily Express, owned by his friend Lord Beaverbrook, chortled in a page-one editorial:

"Mr. Churchill is not only the leader of the Tory party, he is The Tory Party."

Pope Raps Violence

VATICAN CITY, Nov. 28 (AP) —Pope Pius warned strife-torn Colombia on election day that its destiny "must not depend on sheer violence." He offered a fervent prayer for the triumph of harmony and reconciliation as the "only guarantee of authentic public welfare." Bloody violence has marked one of the bitterest presidential election campaigns in Colombia's history.

They Always Win

ST. ALBANS, Hertfordshire, England (CP)—Bishop Bernard Heywood told churchmen that bookies are always sure of winning. He said that "only one horse is running for you and the rest for the bookmakers."

HOMEWARD BOUND—Mrs. John Irving of Hamilton will leave soon for her native England to await the death from cancer which surgeons say may come within six months. When the 34-year-old woman expressed a desire to see her mother, a public fund was started and an air line offered her free passage to England. With Mrs. Irving will go her three small children. Her husband, also shown here, is a disabled war veteran. He gave permission for the two boys and the girl to be taken to England to be cared for by Mrs. Irving's mother and sisters.

Reds Refuse Visa

PARIS, Nov. 28 (AP)—The New York Herald Tribune's Moscow correspondent, Joseph Newman, has been refused a visa to return to Russia. The Soviet Government announced its decision in a note from the Russian Embassy in Paris, delivered to the United States Embassy several days ago, asserting that "since Mr. Newman lately has had printed in the press defamatory articles concerning the USSR, the Embassy considers it impossible to grant to him an entry visa into the Soviet Union."

House Debates Rent Controls In Night Session

OTTAWA, Nov. 28 — (CP) — The Commons tonight will debate federal rental-control legislation.

Prime Minister St. Laurent has set aside tonight for discussion of the government's method of seeking a Supreme Court of Canada ruling on the validity of controls.

However, debate likely will range over the whole rental field, particularly increases of 18 and 22 per cent allowed landlords effective Dec. 15, on unheated and heated accommodation, respectively.

The ceiling boosts, based on current rates are not mandatory. A government spokesman said it will be up to the landlord to decide whether to boost rents and by how much.

They can be applied by the landlord on leases which come up for renewal, but not on those which still have some time to run.

The 18 per cent increase allowed is for self-contained unheated flats, apartments and houses. The 22 per cent covers heated accommodation. The landlord is allowed to increase rents on rooms by 20 per cent.

One reason advanced by Mr. St. Laurent for picking tonight as the time for the debate is that the government's order-in-council asking the court to decide on the validity of the controls will come before a Supreme Court justice Dec. 1.

He told the Commons Saturday he would call the debate in order to give the House a chance to discuss the terms of the order "before it goes before a judge of the Supreme Court."

FLANNEL CENTRE

Newtown, on the bank of the Severn River, is the flannel manufacturing centre of Montgomery County, Wales.

The year was 1835 ...

... over 32 miles of primitive roads and tangled woodland trails walked six Canadian pioneers ... arguing fiercely as they went. Their purpose: to kill each other's vote!

Yes, these six early settlers knew they were evenly divided in opinion ... that three would vote for one candidate Dr. William Dunlop, The Canada Company's man ... and three would vote for the other candidate, Col. Anthony Van Egmond. Yet they made the gruelling march to Goderich, Ontario, there to cast their ballots in the 1835 election of The Upper Canada Legislative Assembly. Not one of the six said "There's no use my going—my vote will be killed."

When YOU cast your secret ballot at every election—municipal, provincial, federal—you exercise a duty and privilege planned, worked and fought for by your forefathers. Your vote protects the future of your children. To fail in this duty is to be less than a good citizen.

Looking Ahead In Ottawa

Say Federal Gov't Payroll Bigger In Few Months

OTTAWA, Nov. 28—(CP)—The Federal government's payroll, sometimes criticized in parliament for being too big, will be getting a bit bigger in the months directly ahead. Officials contend it won't get much bigger—some 120,000 persons are on it now—but some jobs are opening up, the best of them a deputy minister's post at around $15,000 a year.

They will number in the dozens rather than the hundreds.

The External Affairs Department has announced that it wants some more foreign service officers, college-educated men and women to go eventually to its embassies and missions abroad. There already are about a dozen women in the foreign service and women are just as eligible as men in the examinations that will be held in January to pick the new recruits.

The government's decision to add one to the total of its departments is going to open the way for some more appointments but officials contend that the manhunt won't be as large as might be expected. They say there will be one new Deputy Minister required but he may be chosen from within the Civil Service ranks.

Technical People

Other requirements will include Administrative and Technical people. No big need for employees at the lower levels is foreseen. The reason largely is that the three new departments the government is creating to take the place of two will rule over subordinate branches already in existence.

Examinations for the External Affairs jobs will be conducted by the Civil Service Commission, government hiring agency, in various parts of the country They are for the first two grades of Foreign Service Officers, the first with age limits of from 23 to 31 years. The second from 31 to 35 years.

Speed-Up

With only two weeks to go to tentative Dec. 3 date for prorogation, the Commons is expected to start speeding up consideration of some 23 government measures still to be passed.

The course of each piece of legislation is uncertain, but the more controversial bills appear to have been finished. Those were the combines act, the bill to abolish privy council appeals and the one to give Parliament powers to amend the constitution on Federal matters.

SENATE LEADER—Senator Wishart McLean Robertson, government leader in the Senate, also is a minister without portfolio in the federal cabinet. He was president of the National Liberal Federation from 1943 to 1945—the first years of his service in the Senate—but resigned as Federation president when he entered the cabinet in 1945. He was born Feb. 15, 1891, at Barrington Passage, N.S. His father was a speaker of the Nova Scotia legislature and his grandfather was a member of that legislature.

Gifted Lawyer Peter White Dies

TORONTO, Nov 28 — (CP).—Peter White, 77, whose keen mind and gift for debate helped make him one of the best-known lawyers in Ontario, died Saturday after a long illness. Noted for his part in murder trials, as Crown counsel or defence lawyer, he also acted as special counsel in many important cases and investigations.

He was counsel for the Royal Commission investigating the loss of the Gypsum Queen, the First World War reparations case. He acted as counsel for the Select Committee of the Commons investigating the Beauharnois St. Lawrence River power project in 1931.

Mr. White was also counsel for the commission inquiring into the affairs of the Toronto Transportation Commission in 1929.

Born in Pembroke in 1872, Mr. White was educated at Pembroke High School, University of Toronto, and Osgoode Hall Law School. He was called to the Bar in 1896 and created a King's Counsel in 1908.

He was Mayor of Pembroke in 1902, Reeve of Pembroke Township for many years, and a Warden of Renfrew County. A Conservative, he was an unsuccessful candidate for North Renfrew in the provincial election of 1903.

He is survived by one son and two daughters, all of Toronto.

Eastern Star Tea, Bazaar Attracts Splendid Crowd

A delightful event of Saturday afternoon, drawing a crowd that packed the YWCA Green Room from three to four o'clock, was the tea given by members of the Eastern Star Order . At this annual event they offer some fine handwork to Christmas gift seekers and samples of their culinary expertness, as well as an hour of pleasant sociability.

On display was their all-over embroidered quilt — something different in the way of handmade coverings that makes it suitable for a bedspread as well. Tickets on this were sold during the tea but the draw will not be made until late in the winter.

An iced cake was offered as a raffle prize for the day and Mrs. E. McIlraith, 277 John St., was the winner, her ticket being drawn by the newly installed Worthy Matron, Mrs. A. A. Munro.

For the tea table centrepiece a typical winter forest scene was created by Mrs. A. Spencely. Mininature teams of horses were pulling sleigh loads of huge logs across the white surface and from the woods behind a small deer in sight—safe behind the back of the driver who huddled in mackinaw coat and cap. Two deep yellow candles on each side gave the effect of winter sunlight.

A cloth of hand-crocheted lace medallions was lovely on the table, set with silver, and presided over by Mrs. A. G. Melrose, Miss Rose Sexsmith, Mrs. W. Anderson and Mrs. H. Jocelyn.

Servers were Mrs. W. Beggs, Mrs. I. Pruner, Mrs. H. Pomeroy, Mrs. O. Huggins, Mrs. E. Anderson of Lakefield, Mrs. D. Davis, Lakefield, Mrs. L. Bearne, Miss I. Elliott, Mrs. V. Smith, Mrs. C. Mrs. J. Baird, Mrs. W. Terrace and Mrs. A. Elliott.

Guests were received by Mrs. A. A. Munro, worthy matron, and past worthy matron, Mrs. H. Green. Their hostesses in the tea room were Mrs. W. Saunders, Mrs. W. Beggs and Mrs. R. Hutton. General convener, Mrs. K. Armstrong, who is mostly responsible for the success of this event, supervised the service.

On the bazaar tables there were many small things to attract, such as shell jewellery, children's knit wear, mittens, socks and aprons, also some larger items as a hooked rug and embroidered nursery quilt. Salesladies were Mrs. O. Kidd, Mrs. S. Agnew, Mrs. H. Beatty, Mrs. O. Williamson and Mrs. Richardson of Lakefield.

Mrs. P. Windrim convened the baked goods table and was assisted in serving by Mrs. F. Merrett, Mrs. W. Wheeler, Mrs. G. Webb and Mrs. Frankish of Lakefield. Home-made candy was for sale by Mrs. A. Newton, Mrs. S. Ward and Mrs. Brown of Lakefield.

Draw tickets on the cake were sold by Mrs. C. C. McIntyre, and on the quilt by Mrs. L. Hardy, Mrs. B. MacLean, and Mrs. Roth of Lakefield. Attendant at the treasurer's table was Mrs. J. W. Miles.

Ladies from Lakefield who were assisting have recently come into the local chapter.

How to Put Cranberries To Good Use

By MARY MOORE

There is a crumb of comfort for penny-stretching food buyers in the 100 per cent reduction in price of cranberries from last year's high of 50 cents per pound.

It behoves us, my friends, who do the buying and cooking, to put them to use, for they are a valuable fruit—especially at this time of year when we approach our lowest ebb in the Candian fruit-tide.

They have vitamins and minerals and flavor and color, and that valuable virtue—alkalinity. What more can you ask?

Recipes? Here they are, too. Save them, for you will want the cranberry sauce and cranberry jelly make up during Christmas week.

Cranberry Pot Pie

Scrumptious is the only word for this—apples to the appearance and flavor.

One quart cranberries, 2 cups sugar, 3 cups water, 1½ cups flour, 1½ teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, approximately ½ cup milk, 1 tablespoon shortening or margaine. Mix the sugar and water, bring to boiling and add the cranberries, and have this just at boiling point when you have ready the dough. Sift together the flour, baking powder, salt and work into them with the fingers the shortening or margarine, then add the milk to make a light dough. Roll out on floured board and cut them into small rounds or triangles or shape into round just a little smaller than pot in which cranberry sauce is cooked. Lay dough on top of gently boiling fruit, cover closely and simmer 25 to 30 minutes. (If this is baked it may be served at table from pyrex dish; if it is boiled on top of stove, lift off crust, pour cranberry sauce into serving dish, replace crust). Lovely if served with hard sauce.

Cranberry Tart-Pie

One quart cranberries, 1½ cups sugar, 1 pint water, pastry. Simmer the cranberries in the water until soft, stir in the sugar; while this is cooling line deep pie plate with rich pastry, then pour in the cranberries; cover with criss-cross strips of pastry, lattice-like. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. about 30 minutes. Lovely served with unsweetened whipped cream or Baumert cheese.

Cranberry Frappe

One quart strained cooked cranberries (boil 1 quart cranberries with 1 pint water), 2 cups sugar, juice of 1 medium-sized lemon, grated rind 1 orange. Add the sugar to the strained cranberries while they are hot, then cool. Add all of the remaining ingredients and freeze in trays of mechanical refrigerator, stirring as soon as it becomes mush. If desired when it first freezes to a mush you may fold in the beaten whites of 2 eggs or ½ pint heavy cream beaten stiff.

CRANBERRY JELLY

Four cups cranberries, 1 cup water, 2 cups sugar. Put cranberries through the food chopper, add the water, bring to boiling point and boil 10 minutes. Stir in the sugar and simmer 10 minutes. Pour into round or flat mould and let chill until stiff. Craberries are nic eleft in the jelly for they are very small, but this may be strained if desired. If moulded on shallow dish, this may be cut into interesting shapes such as triangles, diamonds, rounds or crescents or stars to garnish fowl platters.

Cranberry Sauce

One quart cranberries, 2 cups boiling water, 2 cups sugar, ⅛ teaspoon salt. Wash and pick over berries; boil water, sugar and salt together for five minutes, add berries, and cook uncovered, without stirring, until transparent—5 minutes' fast boiling is usually enough. Remove from heat at once, and cool without stirring.

Gilpin operated the candy table. A rushing business was done at the fishpond with Mrs. S. Oliver and Mrs. A. Allan in charge.

Of Interest to Women

DOROTHY DIX

Possessive Mother Wrecker Of Many Children's Lives

DEAR MISS DIX: Won't you emphasize the danger of mothers interfering too much with these so-called boy and girl crushes.

Dorothy Dix

My son, who is now 23, developed at 17 an infatuation for a girl near his own age, but because I wished to monopolize him I broke it off. Ever since he was a baby I had been developing in him the idea that I must always come first with him, my wishes must be law and my judgment unquestioned. Well, I broke off the affair after a terrible scene and it just seemed to wreck my boy. He lost interest in everything, neglected his studies, was in continual scrapes, couldn't settle on anything he wanted to do. And only the other day he left me to go to a far country, saying: "Mother, when you made me give up Marion, you made me appear spineless to her. Now I am going away where I can regain some backbone, if it is possible."

I cannot forgive myself for what I did to my son, and I wish to warn other mothers.

AN ENLIGHTENED MOTHER

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Many another women before you has lost her son through trying to hold him too tightly. Perhaps the hardest lesson that women ever have to learn is that the less they try to bind love, the more securely do they fetter it to them.

Has Best Intentions

Perhaps there is no other one person in the world who does more harm than the possessive mother, and the pity of it is that she wrecks her children's lives with the best intentions in the world and literally slays those for whom she would die herself. And it is selfishness that makes these possessive mothers never willing for their children to marry. They want to keep them for themselves. They always want to be first with their children. They can't endure the thought of their children caring more for their husbands and wives than they do for them.

These possessive mothers justify themselves in trying to dominate their children's lives by saying that mother knows best. But mother doesn't know best. No human being can know infallibly what is best for any other human being because each one of us has different talents, different tastes, different needs.

Many a man is a failure because his mother forced him into an occupation for which he was unfitted. Many a girl's life is blighted because her mother would not let her follow the career for which Nature intended her. It is a pity that mothers cannot understand that they have no right to their children's lives and that all that they have a right to do is to love them and sympathize with them and try to understand them and then leave them free to go their own way.

DEAR MISS DIX: I am about to secure a position which will bring me in contact with a good many people, and I wish to know if personal appearance helps one to succeed. I am a man of 32, well educated, dress neatly, but I am very bald. Should I wear a toupee?

P. A.

ANSWER: Why not? It has always been a mystery to me why men do not consider it worth while to use the artifices in improving their appearance that women do. No one for an instant supposes that every woman's hair is all her own, except by right of purchase.

The most amazing progress that has been made in our time is the advance that women have made in pulchritude. You hardly ever see a really ugly woman nowadays, and it is all because women do whatever they can to improve their looks and to camouflage their blemishes.

Why shouldn't men do the same thing? Certainly a bald head is no object of beauty, and why the unfortunate possessor of one should not hide it under a wig as a woman would and many women do, is beyond all guessing. Maybe it is vanity that makes men think they are so handsome that their shiny pates are just a high light in the pitcure. Maybe they are afraid that other men will poke fun at them, but for any reason they are making a mistake, and it is to be hoped that the time will come when every man will supplement nature with art and cover up his bald spot with ambrosial curls.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: What is meant by violating one's friendship?

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: That phrase can have many interpretations. One is being disloyal, or treacherous. Being a fair-weather friend who makes loud protestations of affection to one's face and stabs one in the back with ridicule. One who feasts with you in days of prosperity, but would not give you a crust of bread if you were hungry. The kind of friend who leads the applause when all speak well of you, but who would be the first to fall away when people spoke ill of you.

Also, those violate friendship who tell the things that a friend confides.

Noted Designer Molyneux Finds US Women Charming

By DOROTHY ROE

NEW YORK, Nov. 28 —(AP)— "What's wrong with American women? Absolutely nothing!"

This note is sounded by Capt. Edward Molyneux, distinguished designer of Paris and London, here for a look at New York art galleries and theatres. Unlike most visiting couturiers, the suave captain thinks American women are okay. Says he:

"I have no criticisms of the way American women dress, look or behave. I think they are charming."

This amounts to heresy in the lexicon of most European fashion bigwigs, who are fond of dropping in for a visit to the United States and expressing horror at the clothes, manners and culture of the average American woman.

The viewpoint which has come to be expected is that Mrs. America is over or underdressed; that she is too brassy or too self-conscious; that she uses too much perfume or uses too little; that she feeds her family from the corner delicatessen or is a slave to the cookstove; that she is generally a mess.

Braves Scorn

Molyneux dares to disagree, braving the scorn of his compatroit. He says:

"I like the way American women look, act and dress. They are brisk and busy, and their simple suits and dresses would be correct anywhere in the world. Fashion is international, and the well-dressed woman is the one who chooses her clothes to suit herself—not the one who tries to change herself to suit her clothes."

He adds that there are two kinds of designers — those who dress women and those who merely sell clothes.

As an example of American chic, Molyneux points to actress Lynn Fontanne as one who need not step aside in any parade of the world's best-dressed woman. Another American ideal of good taste in his opinion, is the Duchess of Windsor. He says:

"No one in the world dresses simply, yet with more perfect taste, than the Duchess of Windsor. She understands that important quality in clothes—understatement."

As to predictions of next year's fashions, the captain was wary. He would commit himself only this far:

"We've had enough extremes of fashion. Now I think things are settling down."

ENQUIRY COLUMN

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: I am writing to ask you if it is possible to have cakes and cookies quick-frozen and put in a freezer locker for a short time.

I don't seem to have time at Christmas especially to do any extra baking as my family are all away from home and try to get home for the holiday. Sometimes they have to work but would like a package of mother's' baking.

Should they be baked and put in, or put in without baking.

Hoping this isn't too foolish a question for you to answer.—Mrs. W. C.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: They should be made and frozen without baking.

For the cookies be sure to use a refrigerator-cookie dough. As I write this, it occurs to me you may not have a recipe for refrigerator cookies so I will include one.

Refrigerator Nut Cookies

One cup finely chopped nuts, ½ cup butter or margarine, 1 cup brown sugar, 1 beaten egg, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 2 cups sifted flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt. Cream the butter or margarine and sugar very well, and add the egg and vanilla. Sift the dry ingredients together, add nuts, and combine with first mixture. Stir well. Chill (or freeze) well-wrapped in double thickness of waxed paper, then in towel to prevent dough drying out. When ready to bake, slice with very sharp knife into cookie ⅛-inch thick and bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for about 10 minutes. Allow cookies to become crisp but not at all brown.

Some of the nuts may be replaced by chopped red candied cherries.

The cakes you make to freeze should not be light and fluffy butter cakes. Use recipes more like fruit cake or pound cake recipes for a starter, and until you find what works the best Cakes should just barely be defrosted before baking, and place them in oven 25 d. higher than you would use for cake baked when it is first made. The cold cakes chill the oven down much more than a cake at room temperature, yet if you allow cakes to thaw and stand until they become room temperature the baking powder or soda begins to act prematurely.

QUESTION: Received your letter about help on reducing and thank you very much for it, as I know it will be a help to me.

I did not know if I should take canned peas, canned corn and canned tomatoes; also should I have any canned soup like the vegetable soups. Is it alright to use cheese?

Thanking you for the help you give me.—Miss E.D.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Yes, you should have all of the foods you mention.

If you eat corn for your dinner do not have potatoes at the same meal. Canned tomatoes can be eaten to take the place of your green salad once per week, but may be eaten as often as you like —once per day if you wish. If you eat them hot, do not boil them, just heat them to nearly boiling point.

Sometimes canned soups are very thick with a toasted flour thickener used by soup manufacturers. If the soup you eat is thick do not eat potatoes, or more than one slice bread at the same meal. Thin soups may be eaten every day with 2 slices bread, with only one pat butter (for the whole day).

Cheese may be used in place of meat or eggs. If no meat is eaten for dinner eat 4 ozs. cheese, or 2 ozs. meat and 2 ozs. cheese.

QUESTION: Here I am again with my same old problem. Do you remember—I am the one who cannot make a fruit cake without the fruit all sinking to the bottom. I really believe though that the trouble lies with my oven, for the other week I made a white fruit cake and tried everything you told me last year; before putting the cake into the oven I laid almond halves on top; when I took the cake out, yes, you guessed it, the fruit had all sunk to the bottom, even the almonds had followed them down. Could you give me any help in this matter, Mary. I would be ever so grateful if you could, for this was a good recipe that I had and it would have been a lovely cake if only the fruit had stayed in its place.

I gave some friends a piece of the cake, and told them it was an upside down raisin cake—it is quite a joke at my house, but I would like to make just one that turns out alright.

Hoping you and your loved ones are all well.—Mrs. E.R.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: It is very thoughtful of you to think of my "loved ones." They are fine. I sometimes wish I were not growing older every year so that I could keep up the pace they do.

Now for this cake. This nonsense has to stop.

Could you do this: Make the cake, put it in the tins and ask your nearest and dearest neighbor to have her oven heated to 275 deg. Fahr. (if that is the temperature your recipe calls for) and bake the cakes in another oven. Then we will know if your oven is the culprit or not. If the cakes still fall I will have to have you tell me the brand of every ingredient you use in the cake, and try to analyze the trouble from that angle.

Make a small cake for this trial in your neighbor's oven.

Write to me as soon as you can, and then we can hope to solve this mystery before Christmas.

When Money Takes Wings
MONEY takes wings today faster than ever before. True . . . many people are earning more — but the cost of living uses up a much greater proportion. Few indeed can hope to accumulate large sums for future emergencies.
How, then, can you ever hope to lay aside enough money to provide for your family in case of your untimely death — or for the years when your earning capacity will cease?
The only sure way is through Life Insurance. It would take years to build an adequate savings fund for your dependents, but a proportion of your savings put into Life Insurance will immediately guarantee to them a monthly income in case of your death. At the same time it will provide for your declining years should you live to old age.

Craft Classes Start At YM

Artcraft classes were started Saturday morning in the boys' department of the YMCA. Interest charts on the back of the cards during the membership drive showed that craft classes were wanted.

Donald Duncan, boys' work secretary, reported the first class of the juniors had 12 out, while the pioneer and the other classes numbered about 40 in each.

The boys commenced by making plaster paris molds of Indian heads, cowboys and wall plaques, under the direction of Earl Dreury, who was program director at the boys' camp on Clear Lake this summer.

Negro Children Barred In N.S. School

MAROON HILL, N.S., Nov. 28. —(CP).—In a unique school at Maroon Hill, just a few miles from Halifax, a lone teacher has taken over the task of educating Negro children who have been denied the right to study in the community school.

Mrs. P. L. Caldwell has operated the school now for seven years, ever since she returned to her native Nova Scotia from other provinces and found Negro children in Maroon Hill wishing they could go to school.

It began in her kitchen with one student; now there are 19 attending grades one to seven. Classes have overflowed into other rooms of her home, and she now is recognized as a regular school teacher of the province.

The young pupils use the kitchen under the watchful eye of Mrs. Caldwell. The older ones are in another room by themselves because Mrs. Caldwell believes they are old enough to study without supervision.

Just why the Negro children of the area were not admitted to the public school has never been explained ,but now there seems to be little resentment among the Negro families. There is even keen rivalry between students of the two schools, just next door to each other. Mrs. Caldwell has found during the seven years of her school that any trouble that arises is usually the fault of both sides.

Obituary

EDWIN ROBERT CROSS

HAVELOCK, Nov. 28 (ENS)—Funeral services were held at Trinity United Church, Gravenhurst, on Tuesday for Edwin Robert Cross, 27, a former Havelock boy who died suddenly at Sunnybrook Hospital, Toronto.

Bob, as he was known to his friends and relatives, was born in Havelock in 1921. He was a son of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Cross, now living in Cobourg. His home was here for 12 years and after making several moves to different towns in central Ontario, he finally settled at Bala, Muskoka, where he married Olive Broadley, daughter of Mr and Mrs. Arthur Broadley of Walker's Point.

Joining the army in 1941 he went overseas with the RCOC and after two years in France, Belgium and Holland returned to Canada. Since that time he has made a home for his wife and family in Gravenhurst, where he was employed by Snider's Sales and Service as bookkeeper.

As a result of his war service, Bob contracted a lingering illness leading up to his sudden death on Nov. 19.

Surviving besides his parents and widow are two small sons, Brian 7, and Paul 15 months; two sisters, Miss Phyllis Cross of Toronto and Mrs. Gilbert Hudson (Evelyn) of Bala.

Burial was in Mickle Memorial Cemetery. Pallbearers were: Alton Snider, Harry Norman, James McCullagh, Robert Morrison from the Snider's Sales and Service and Jack Thomas and Eldon Goring of Gravenhurst.

Attending the funeral at Gravenhurst from Havelock were: his grandmother, Mrs. Rose Easterbrook; his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. William Forsyth and cousins, Miss Muriel Forsyth and Mr. Thomas Forsyth.

Scientists Make Sailor See Like Wall-Eyed Pike

TORONTO, Nov. 28.— How a U.S. sailor was made to see like a fresh water fish by a group of Rochester scientists was recounted in a lecture to the Royal Canadian Institute here Saturday night. The story which until recently has been hush-hush, was unfolded by Dr. Kenneth C. D. Hickman, Rochester research consultant, in an address on vitamins.

It had been found, he said, that when an ocean fish changes its habitat to fresh waters it acquires in addition to its usual vitamin A, a rare vitamin A2 which increases the visual purple of its sight range to adjust to the new environment. The theory was developed that if seamen were given this rare vitamin A-2 their vision would be increased in detecting submarine raiders in mist and dim light. A small quantity of the vitamin A-2 was recovered and fed to rats which promptly acquired fresh water fish vision 2 instead of their own.

The experiment was repeated on a sailor who volunteered for the purpose and who was fed the vitamin extracted from the livers of wall-eyed pike.

"He soon began to see like a walled-eyed pike," Dr. Hickman assured the audience. "His range of vision was extended into the ultra violet field and the infra red field. Then he was classified by the navy. He was declassified only recently and the account of the experiment appeared in a scientific paper a few weeks ago."

In moving the vote of thanks to Dr. Hickman, Dr. E. W. McHenry said that if the experiment had made the sailor not only see like a wall-eyed pike, but look like one, he would be careful of his vitamins hereafter.

Vitamin A-2 in such short supply said Dr. Hickman following the lecture, that no extended experiments have been possible.

Acclamations In Many Centres

By The Canadian Press

Qualification day ended Saturday night in numerous Ontario centres and a new wave of acclamations followed the deadline Nominations were held Friday for elections on Dec. 5.

Peterborough, Woodstock and Sault Ste. Marie are cities where opposition candidates for mayor failed to meet requirements in the alloted time. Maxwell J. Swanston in Peterborough, F. W. Milburn in Woodstock and Herbert Smale in Sault Ste. Marie were swept into office by acclamation.

Various towns also have mayors and reeves by acclamations, including Huntsville, Aylmer, Picton, Hespeler, Harrow, Petrolia, Essex and Ingersoll.

Townships again made the biggest number of acclamations, including Eramos, Minto, Peel, Mersea, Humberstone and West Luther.

Wyoming, a village of 600 in Lambton County, will hold another nomination meeting next Friday evening following the regular meeting last Friday when the public of Lambton was represented by one person—a 70-year-old blind man. Reeve Hall declared all nominations made at the last meeting not legal.

Admits Carrying Rifle Crown Game Reserve

A fine of $50 was imposed on Fred Whitmore, Burlington, Ont., by Magistrate W. R. Philp in police court today when he entered a written plea of guilty to a charge of carrying a rifle in the Peterborough Crown Game Preserve, Burleigh township.

He was discovered by Conservation Officer Robert H. Trotter in the preserve Friday.

Special 24-Hour Guard

NAPANEE, Nov. 28 —(CP)—A special 24-hour guard has been placed for the cell of Alfred Childs, 16-year-old convicted murderer, at the Napanee jail. Three extra armed guards have been engaged for the duty. Childs was sentenced to be hanged Feb. 10 after a Supreme Court jury convicted him of murdering Elijah McQuaig last June.

Takes To Air

LONG BEACH, Calif., Nov. 28 —(AP)—Before a crowd of 18,000, the C-124 Globemaster II, a four-engined transport designed to carry a 50,000-pound payload, took to the air Sunday for the first time. It stayed aloft 55 minutes. The transport was built to carry up to 200 troops or 25 tons of tanks and mobile guns.

US Ornithologist Illustrates Bird, Wild Life

Dr. O. S. Pettingill, a leading U.S. ornithologist, described many aspects of wild life in Northern Maine, illustrating his talk with color films, Saturday in Queen Mary School. He was delivering the second in a series of five illustrated lectures sponsored by Peterborough Nature Club.

The series is composed of screen tours arranged by the Audubon Society and is a means of bringing leading naturalists to audiences throughout Canada and the States.

Dr. Pettingill's address dealt with the study of various communities in nature, discussing relationships inside the communities and in relation to one another.

Marsh And Shore Life

Flowers and animal life in marsh, shore, field and forest were discussed by the speaker. He showed some excellent pictures of the killdeer, a shore bird. The bobolink was an example of field birds, and there was a great variety of animal life of the forest.

The chipmunk was shown stuffing its winter store of food into its cheek pouch; there were pictures of the oven bird, the only bird to build a roof to its nest; the racoon, porcupine, fox, redheaded woodpecker and tree swallow were among other inhabitants of the forest shown.

A delightful feature was a series of films showing how a bear was tamed into a domestic animal.

Dr. Pettingill was introduced by J. L. McKeever.

Record 'Quakes

LONDON, Nov. 28 — (AP) — E. W. Pollard, seismologist at nearby Dorking, said his instruments recorded earthquakes over a two-hour period Sunday beginning at 9:02 a.m. GMT (4:02 a.m. EST). He said they appeared to have originated a great distance away, probably in the Australia-New Zealand region.

39th Anniversary Special Services At Knox United

Anniversary services in observance of the church building's 39th year were held at Knox United Church on Sunday. Large congregations heard the special preacher the Rev. J. K Moffatt of Oshawa at both morning and evening services. The congregation of St. James Church worshipped with Knox in the evening.

Mr. Moffatt's subject in the morning was "Facing Up To Christ." He called on his listeners to consider what the challenge of Christ is, and to ask themselves whether or not, having heard it, they are responding. He remarked that Jesus was a man of joy and that too many professed Christians do not realize this aspect. Mr. Moffatt's sermon was personal and direct, of evangelic content, but without evangelic trappings. His theme was developed simply, logically, calmly and without dependence on oratorical flourishes and sentimental gushing.

Special Music

During the service J. M. Telford guest baritone, sang two solos, the second "One World" being specially timely. The choir of 35 sang "The Lord is My Light" arranged as an anthem. All music was under the direction of Wm. R. Potter, organist and choirmaster of Knox.

The Rev. William McDonald, minister emeritus of Knox, conducted the morning service and introduced the guest preacher He congratulated the present minister, the Rev. H. G. Douglas, and the congregation on another year of worthy progress.

Mr. Moffatt's evening theme was "What the Church Expects of Me." The choir provided special music and a duet was given by Mr. John Donaldson, baritone, and Mrs. Del Jackman, soprano. Sudden illness a few hours before the evening service prevented the visiting soloist, Mrs. F. G. Sherrington, from attending.

Meat Ration Up In Britain

LONDON, Nov. 28 (CP)—Britons got the happy news today that their meat ration will be increased from 1s 4d. (about 21 cents) a week to 1s 6d.

Food Minister John Strachey told the House of Commons the increase, effective Dec. 4, will last well through the Christmas and New Year period.

Britain has enough stocks now, he said, not only to grant a Christmas bonus for one week but to raise the regular weekly ration for a period.

Strachey warned, however, that the increased ration may not be maintained indefinitely, as imports during the first half of next year, when home killings will decrease, may not be large enough.

Strachey recentiy announced increases in the regular bacon and tea rations as well as a bonus increase of cooking fats for Christmas.

Game Wardens On Tip-Toe Don't Want To Wake Bears

HEARST, Nov. 28. — Game wardens caught themselves stealing about on tip-toe today, fearful of awakening the hibernating bears.

"They're off to dreamland until Groundhog Day at least," Warden A. Gagnon whispered guardedly. "Ah I glad. I never saw them so numberous." Bounty payments reached an all-time high, too."

Complaints were coming in from every quarter. At one pulp camp seven bears raided the meathouse just as the 60 workmen were coming out from supper.

Mr. Gagnon did not say how the invasion was repelled. From other sources, however, it was learned that the camp people, with $700 worth of foodstuffs in jeopardy, did not waste time by wringing their hands and wiring parliament for an amendment to the ban on firearms in timber camps. They dug up a contraband rifle and slew two of the marauders. The other five fled.

This pair of trophies raised the camp's summer total to 12. Other years they have considered themselves lucky to drop one bear.

Officials are still inclined to blame the Mississagi bush fire for the influx of wild life.

"They probably found this terrain congenial, so, they settled down and raised big families," Mr. Gagnon said.

Evangelist Draws Crowd

The auditorium of the Collegiate was filled for an evangelist meeting Sunday evening conducted by the Rev. and Mrs. T. H. Ritchie. Mrs. Ritchie played musical bells and glasses and the solovox and these of Mr. Ritchie's address was The Value of a Soul.

Mr. and Mrs. Ritchie will present tonight at the Collegiate a musical interpretation of the Life of Christ.

Marmora C of C Hears Report On Convention

MARMORA, Nov. 28 (ENS)—A concise and interesting report of the recent National Chamber of Commerce convention hel din Montreal was given the dinner gathering of the Marmora Chamber of Commerce held in the Royal Hotel on Thursday evening by James Fraser secretary of the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce.

The speaker declared it was one of the best conferences it had ever been his privilege to attend. There was an overall feeling of confidence for the future in evidence. The building up of communities for the national good was the great current thought of this four day conference. There were 60 Chambers from coast to coast with a membership of well over one hundred thousand.

Mr. Fraser told the Marmora Chamber that "One third of the Chambers are made up of members like yourselves". He contended that the Chamber of Commerce was the top research organization in Canada today.

The speaker was introduced by Rev. G. D. Young and thanked by C. R. Whittemore.

Marmora Chamber's Interests

President Alex Fraser extended welcome to visitors and mentioned that last year at this time, the village was rejoicing in the possession of its new rink, a movement which the Chamber had been behind. Now the new Fire Hall was about completed and this had received the backing of their organisation.

It was being seen that such things had added to the community and made it more attractive He instanced other improvements which had been inspired by deliberations of the Chambers.

Rev. G. D. Young then introduced the entertainers of the evening, Bob Sanderson of Marmora and Stan Hawthorne of Madoc. The latter furnished pianoforte accompaniment for his partner who gave three trumpet numbers. The sing song was led by Rev. J. M. Brownlie.

Following the address of the guest speaker, William Shannan reported for the Safety Committee drawing attention to the enthusiasm of its members. C. T. Nicholson reported the success of the Hallowe'en party. Doug Burdette spoke briefly on Marmora It was reported that flooding of the Arena had started and that season skating tickets would be on sale next week. On behalf of the Council, Reeve V. M. Lynch congratulated the Chamber of Commerce on its accomplishments this far.

ELDERLY OSHAWA COUPLE MURDERED

Rule Kilbon Stands Trial For Murder

Hearing Scheduled For Spring Assizes; Argue Over Bullet

COBOURG, Nov. 29 —(ENS)— Ralph Kilbon, 56-year-old farmer and former mining engineer, will stand trial on a charge of murdering his wife—an act he is alleged to have called a mercy-killing.

The calm-faced accused is charged with slaying his 54-year-old wife, Irene, in their rambling home at Bailieboro. He was committed for trial Monday, with hearing set for the Spring Assizes, in the Nov. 1 slaying.

Crown witnesses Monday, including medical evidence, indicated that Mrs. Kilbon had suicidal tendencies. J. C. Robinette, defence cunsel, put considerable emphasis in his cross-examination on whether the first bullet, believed to have been inflicted by Mrs. Kilbon, had been fatal or whether the second one, which the accused told police he had fired into her head, had been the lethal one.

Mr. Robinette cross-examined pathologist Dr. Harold Gold at some length on the question of which bulet was the fatal one.

Might Have Saved Life

Dr. Gold had pointed out that medical measures of "miraculous" nature, taken promptly had she been removed to hospital after the first shot, might have saved her life.

"Are you serious in suggesting that medical skill could have saved her from the first wound being fatal?" Mr. Robinette asked. Dr. Gold replied that an immediate

Open Army Huts For Fire Victims

BROCKVILLE, Nov. 29 (CP)— Donations continued to roll in on Monday night to the relief fund set up for victims of Brockville's $1,000,000 week-end fire, the worst blaze in the city's history.

The fund now exceeds $4,000 while clothing and footwear donations make the relief centre, the town hall, resemble a department store. More than 200 pairs of shoes, rubber boots and galoshes were donated.

Families made homeless in the fire will move into army huts in Brockville military camp today, Dr. J. L. Carroll, president of the Brockville branch of the Red Cross, announced Monday night.

With George T. Fulford, Liberal Member of Parliament for Leeds, he had appealed directly to Prime Minister St. Laurent for use of the Royal Canadian Regiment barracks to quarter some of the 40-50 persons left homeless.

Permission for use of the heated huts was received from the Defence Department. Beds, bedding and other furniture will be provided by the Red Cross for about 12 families. Others have found accommodation elsewhere.

Save More Power Or Cuts–Saunders

TORONTO, Nov. 29 —(CP)— Robert Saunders, chairman of the Ontario Hydro Commission, said today that unless voluntary savings of power, requested of southern Ontario municipalities last week, are affected "we may have to ask for cut-offs" similar to last fall's blackouts.

He said the criticial period of the day was between 4.30 and 6 p.m. and cut-offs if they came would be during those hours.

Mr. Saunders said the illegal use of space heaters in thousands of Ontario homes is seriously endangering the present available power supply.

Mr. Saunders said that all municipalities in the southern Ontario system had been officially warned that the next three weeks constituted a "crucial period" for the system and some municipalities may be ordered to "pull switches."

Lear Predicts Break With Rugby Union

Declares Football Big Busines, But CRU Too Much Dead-Wood

WINNIPEG, Nov. 29 (CP)— Coach Les Lear of Calgary Stampeders today advocated a complete break by all leagues from the Canadian Rugby Union, and added that such a break "is in the wind."

Passing through Winnipeg with the Stampeders on their way home from the Grey Cup final in Toronto, Lear said "football is going ahead while the CRU stands still."

"The union and its constitution are about the same as when the union was first formed. If we're going to get somewhere, we've got to have a new set-up."

Lear said football is "big business" now, and should be carried on in a "big-time" manner.

Dead-Wood Unions

"As it stands, there are a number of dead-wood unions which have been out of action for some time but still have representatives who carry votes at the CRU meetings," said Lear, only Canadian to make good as a player in United professional leagues.

"This just wouldn't be a good thing for the West, but for the whole of Canada . . . and some of the leagues in the east already are planning a break."

Due to his short stay and the swarming crowd of more than 1,500 persons who jammed the station to welcome Stamps despite their 28-15 defeat by Montreal Alouettes in the Grey Cup final, Lear wasn't able to give any details of what new set-up is planned.

To Pay 50% of Highway Cost

OTTAWA, Nov. 29—(CP)—The Commons to day voted 152 to 46 to uphold a speaker's ruling which blocked a C.C.F. amendment designed to increase the Federal government's share of the cost of the Trans-Canada Highway from 50 to 75 per cent. Deputy Speaker J. A. Dion ruled that the amendment increased the responsibility of the Federal Government. Since that responsibility was financial, the amendment was out of order. Under parliamentary rules only the government may initiate a measure involving increased expenditure of money.

The C.C.F., all but two Progressive Conservatives, and the Social Credit members voted against the speake's ruling. The Liberals and George Tustin (PC—Prince Edward Lennox) and G. S. White (PC — Hastings - Peterborough) voted to uphold the ruling.

Hazen Argue (CCF-Assiniboia) moved the amendment during clause by clause discussion of the bill to construct the trans-Canada Highway.

Won't Change It

It didn't involve increased expenditure, he said, because the ceiling on Federal outlay was $150,000,000 and this would not change it.

Stanley Knowles (CCF-Winnipeg North Centre) said the effect of the amendment would be to make it easier for provinces to get the Federal money.

Under the bill as it stood the provinces would have to put up $3 for every $3 they received from the Federal government to build the highway. The amendment would mean the provinces had to put up only $1 to get $3.

Mr. Drew said he was "alarmed" that the Federal government wasn't planning a policy conference attended by the various Provincial Highway Ministers. It was a necessary step in assuring complete agreement on the proposed highway.

Mr. Winters said he had spoken personally to all but one of the Ministers and it had been decided that the course of action selected would be best. The first step was to be legislation, now before the House. The next step would be a meeting of technical experts.

Any Recommendations?

G K Fraser (PC-Peterborough West) asked if the Defence Department had made any recommendations on possible use of the highway for defence purposes.

Mr Winters said that work on specifications has been carried out with the full knowledge of the Defence Department. He also told Mr. Fraser that normal provincial police patrol will prevail on the highway.

Besides paying 50 per cent of the cost of new work, the government will pay the provinces 50 per cent of the cost of existing highways that will form part of the route

Smythe Suspends Broda Three Others On List

TORONTO, Nov. 29—(CP)—Walter (Turk) Broda, veteran goaltender of Toronto Maple Leafs in the National Hockey League, was suspended today until he cuts his weight from 197 to 190 pounds. Managing Director Conny Smythe said that other suspensions may follow unless the Leafs start "playing like champions." Three other players—defenceman Garth Boesch and left wingers Harry Watson and Sid Smith—were ordered to cut weight or be suspended.

"We are not running a fat man's team," said Smythe who announced that Gil Mayer will be called up from Pittsburgh Hornets of the American Hockey League to play against Detroit Red Wings here Thursday night.

The Leafs have failed to come up with a win in their last six starts, losing five and tying one.

Get Common Sense

Smythe said of Broda, at 35 the oldest player in the NHL: Broda is away overweight at 197 pounds. He is off the team until he shows some common sense. He has been ordered to reduce to 190 pounds."

Bosch was ordered to cut from 195 to 190, Watson from 205 to 200, and Smith from 183 to 180.

"We have the highest salaried team in the league," Smythe said. "They receive $1,000 a man more than the lowest salaried team. I want them to start playing like the highest salaried players in the league."

Unsung Noronic Hero Asks $5,000 Damages

DETROIT, Nov. 29 (AP) — A $5,000 damage suit against Canada Steamship Line owners of the ill-fated Noronic, was filed Monday in Federal Court. The suit was the first filed here.

Frank W. Ralph, 40, described as an "unsung hero" of the disaster, asked that amount for permanent injuries to his hands in rescuing four women from the fire at a Toronto pier Sept. 17.

His counsel, Stanley Maples, said Ralph broke glass windows in the rescue. After falling overboard, Maples said, Ralph returned aboard ship to give further assistance to passengers. He finally was driven off the ship by the blaze and scorched his hands sliding down a rope.

South Africa Stages Walkout

LAKE SUCCESS, NY, Nov. 29 (CP) — South Africa's delegate to the United Nations walked out of a committee Monday in protest over the hearing given an Anglican clergyman who brought the charges concerning oppression of natives in South-west Africa.

Gerhardt P Jooste of South Africa told the UN Assembly's 59-member trusteeship committee that he has been instructed by his government not to take part in discussion of the question. He said there is a "hostile spirit" in the committee.

The committee answered quickly, passing a resolution expressing regret that South Africa had "repudiated its previous assurance" to submit reports on South-west Africa.

South Africa has repeatedly refused to bring South-west Africa under the UN trusteeship system. The territory, about the size of British Columbia, was entrusted to South Africa under a League of Nations mandate in 1920 after its capture from the Germans.

Considering the whole question again, the committee last Saturday heard from the Rev. Michael Scott, who appeared on behalf of the Herero and other tribes Born in England, he has served in the ministry in India and Johannesburg.

The minister charged that South Africans have burned the houses of natives in South-west Africa, confiscated their cattle, and driven them from their lands to live in virtual slavery.

No Statement Yet

TORONTO, Nov. 29 (CP) — Highways Minister Doucett today declined to state the position of the Ontario Government on the route through the province of the trans-Canada Highway. Although the government is studying some half dozen prospective routes, a Toronto paper said "it was learned from other sources that serious consideration is being given to the routing of the highway through Toronto, or at least, its immediate suburbs."

B.C. Train Service Restored Flood Damage In Millions

VANCOUVER, Nov. 29 (CP)— The slow recovery from a weekend deluge of wind and flood went on in storm-battered British Columbia today. The storm claimed at least 19 lives alone in the West Coast province.

Damage estimated in the millions to homes, roads, bridges, rail lines and dyke and sewer systems was being evaluated.

Both the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railway lines reported service virtually back to normal. The CPR said it would have its trains off detours within 48 hours although both inbound and outbound trains have been moving since Monday night.

North Vancouver, isolated by road until early Monday, will seek provincial government funds to dyke Seymour Creek, Commissioner M. E. Sowden said Monday night. A drive has been launched for funds to aid families hit by the flash flood.

The community was cut off when 40 feet of the bridge spanning the Capilano River washed out and traffic wasn't resumed till Canadian Army engineers threw up a Bailey bridge.

Possibility of throwing up a second emecgency bridge is being considered. Commuters still have to walk over the bridge from bus to bus and only lighter vehicles are allowed the one-way traffic.

Residents of Squamish, 35 miles north, all have moved back to their homes.

Telephone communications remained erratic to some points but most lines were back to normal. The Hope-Princeton highway will remain closed at least three days, provincial police said at Hope.

Last Plane Flees Chungking

HONG KONG, Nov. 29 (AP)— The last plane from Chungking tonight reported the Communists on the banks of the Yangtze River opposite the abandoned provisional capital.

Passengers said the plane was fired upon by the Communists as it took off from an island airport in the Yangtze River.

So swift was their exit from the beleaguered city, passengers said, that they had to abandon their luggage in order to get away. None was hurt.

Whether Chiang Kai-shek flew on to Chengtu, where the Nationalist government will seek refuge, was not known here. Chengtu is 170 miles northwest of Chungking. There was a remote possibility the Generalissimo might have been trapped in the doomed city by swift-moving Communists. But he was known to have a plane ready for immediate departure.

Find House Ransacked, Two Bodies

Neighbors Worried When No Sign Of Pair For 3 Days

OSHAWA, Nov. 29 (CP)—The battered bodies of an elderly couple were found today in a pool of blood in their ransacked home on Park Avenue in southeastern Oshawa. They were identified as those of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Katernyk, formerly of Canora, Sask.

The slayings were discovered by neighbors who broke into the house after becoming alarmed because the couple had not been seen since Saturday.

Chief of Police Owen Friend said the first person to enter the house was Mike Shody, who lives around the corner from the couple's home. Shody reported finding the house in a state of confusion, with the couple's clothing and personal belongings scattered around the rooms.

It could not be established immediately whether anything of value was stolen.

Well-To-Do

Police said Katernyk, more than 80 years old, came to Oshawa several years ago after retiring from farming in Saskatchewan. He was of Ukrainian descent. His wife was believed more than 70 years of age.

The couple, apparently well-to-do, lived in a comfortable home at 250 Park Avenue. Katernyk recently had an oil-burning furnace installed in the house so that he would not have to shovel coal.

The Katernyks were said to have many friends in the neighborhood, settled mainly by citizens of Ukrainian origin.

Police said the victims apparently were beaten to death in separate rooms. Nicholas Katernyk was found in the kitchen and his wife, Alice, on the bathroom floor of their three-room cottage. Police said their heads were "beaten to a pulp."

Hears Nothing

Lloyd O'Brenzki, 60, who lives in a one-room shack nearby, said he retired about 9 p.m. Saturday. At that time he had heard no sounds from the Katernyk cottage which still was lighted. He said he saw no one around the place Sunday or Monday.

Police quoted O'Brenzki as having told them Katernyk had tried to borrow $20 from him last Saturday.

"I don't know why anybody would want to kill him or his wife, either," said O'Brenzki. "I don't think they had much money."

Mrs. M. Maxymiuk, another neighbor, told police the elderly couple had been watched for some time.

"Neighbors had warned them that a car was driving up and down watching Mr. Katernyk," she said. "There was a rumor that they had a lot of money, and that was strengthened when they gave $200 to the church."

Police said the double slaying probably was committed Saturday night or early Sunday, and that Katernyk apparently put up a fierce battle to protect his wife and himself.

Agree On Defence

PARIS, Nov. 29—(AP)— Chief of Staffs of the armies of 12 North Atlantic-treaty countries met here today and were reported to have reached agreement on unified defence against any future foe. The military experts, a reliable source said, have now only to put "the technical experts to work" to complete North Atlantic defences.

Jackson Vetoes Suggestion Of Consent Vote

By DAVE WHITE

A flat "no" is the answer of the UE to the demand of Cyril O'Donnell, secretary of the IUE-CIO union in Peterborough, for a "consent vote" among the workers to make a new decision on who should be their bargaining agent.

Meanwhile the Company is withholding the November check-off cheque amounting to about $4,000.

"The UE and its Local 524 are the certified bargaining agents at CGE," C. S. Jackson, Canadian president of the UE told the Examiner today.

"They are recognized as such and are under no obligation to have to consent to a vote. If anyone wants to contest the status of the UE he can go through the regular procedure of applying to the Ontario Labor Relations Board."

Moreover, Jackson contended, it is an admission of defeat by the leaders of the right-wing group among the 3,200 production workers at the Peterborough works.

"The very fact they asked for a 'consent vote' is prima facie evidence they just haven't got the goods," he commented. "Otherwise they wouldn't have to ask our permission but would obtain it through the Ontario Labor Relations Board."

Claim Questioned

The red-haired left wing leader pooh-poohed the claim of the rival union that they had signed a majority of the workers to the new CIO-affiliated IUE.

"We contend Morton has not more than a quarter of the employees signed up in his union," he said. "And his supposed application to the Ontario Labor Relations Board cannot be bona fide."

O'Donnell, on behalf of the IUE, announced on Monday that the right-wing union has informed its legal counsel to apply to the OLRB for certification in the Peterborough plant.

In doing so they would be following Cobourg in the Canadian CGE chain which already has the notice of application posted up in the factory.

UE officials checked with the OLRB early today and up until that time no application had been filed. A Canadian Press dispatch states the IUE will make official application on Wednesday.

Assails Company

The Company too came in for a raking by Jackson. He accused it of withholding payment of the monthly check-off cheque "to create confusion," and declared it was an attempt to strengthen the hand of the right wingers.

34 Killed In Two Crashes In Texas And France; Death Toll 200 In Month

Plane Landing At Dallas Plows Into Plant 28 of 46 Aboard Killed, Airline Men Weep As Bodies Brought Out

By The Canadian Press

The month's death toll in major civilian and military air crashes rose to more than 200 today when new crashes at Dallas, Texas, and near Lyons, France. At least 28 died in the Dallas disaster and at least six in the crash of a Tunis-Paris airliner near Lyons. The French plane was reported carrying 37 persons, including a crew of five, and some reports said all aboard had perished. Today's crashes came only three days after a Lanza (Colombia Air Line) DC-6 plunged into a mountain top near Bucaramanga, Colombia. Last word was that the nine passengers and three crew members were believed dead.

28 Killed

At Dallas, Texas, an American Airlines plane crashed into buildings on the border of Love Field early today and burned. Twenty-eight of the 46 aboard were killed.

Fourteen persons were in hospitals and one was missing. Three others left hospitals.

The big DC-6 was en route to Mexico City from New York and Washington.

It struck a hangar and plowed broadside into a chemical plant after swooping over the field in an attempt to land. A crew member who staggered dazed and bleeding to a nearby house, said one of the engines was afire and he had stopped the other three.

Three of the crew members and 14 passengers survived.

Lt.-Col. A. F. S. Fane, a British Foreign Office courier, was among those presumed dead.

A justice of the peace, Pierce McBride, said he had viewed 28 bodies—those of 17 men and 11 women.

Organized Chaos

Colored flames from burning chemicals lit up the scene eerily. Nearly two hours after the crash officers described the situation as "organized chaos."

Firemen were still pulling charred and rigid bodies from the twisted wreckage.

Three of the five crew members were among the survivors, American Airlines said. There were 40 passengers aboard.

(In New York, American Airlines said there were 41 passengers aboard. The 41st was believed to be a baby.

(The Home Office said 45 persons had been accounted for. The Line said 27 bodies had been recovered, one died in hospital, four were in a hospital, 10 had been released from hospitals after treatment and there were three other survivors.)

Weeps Openly

A blue-uniformed representative of the Lines stood by the plane, weeping unashamedly as he kept count of the bodies brought out.

Flames licked the one-storey building into which the larger part of the plane crashed.

It was about 5.45 a.m. (COST) when the big plane struck the Magnaflux plant on the north-west edge of the field. The plant inspects plane engines by chemical means.

Both the plane and plant apparently burst into flames. Small explosions followed.

Wife Stabbed Police Charge RAF Veteran

NAPANEE, Nov. 29 (CP) — James Fosbraey, 28-year-old RAF veteran, today was charged with murder in the fatal stabbing of his wife Monday night.

He was scheduled to appear in court on the charge later in the day.

Police said they were investigating events immediately preceding the stabbing. They said these included a reported violent quarrel, a broken appointment with a Napanee lawyer and an attempt by a Salvation Army officer to effect a reconciliation between the couple.

Pretty 25-year-old Mrs. June Marie Fosbraey was found lying in the blood-stained snow Monday night about 100 yards from her parents' home where she was staying with her four-year-old daughter.

The woman, who had been separated from her husband for several months, had been stabbed through the heart. Police said Fosbreay walked into the county building here soon after the stabbing and surrendered.

They said Fosbreay led them a block-and-a-half from the stabbing scene to a garden where a new, leather-handled hunting knife was found. It had been tossed into the melting snow and was stuck into a furrow.

No Witnesses

There were no witnesses to the stabbing but neighbors in the vicinity on the outskirts of Napanee said they heard screams and rushed outdoors.

Mrs. Mabel Harden, one of the neighbors, said she heard two piercing screams. She and another resident, L. T. Spencer, ran outdoors and saw the figure lying in the snow.

Red Satellites Meet Secretly

MOSCOW, Nov. 29 (AP)—The leaders of the Cominform, spearhead of Russia's propaganda and economic war on Yugoslavia's Premier Tito, met secretly recently in Hungary, it was announced today.

A communique hinted that the Cominform (Communist International Information Bureau) leaders from eight countries discussed the tense relations with Yugoslavia.

(London sources attached significance to the meeting since at the last such conference, in June, 1948, Russia and her satellites broke with Tito's regime and started a campaign aimed at unseating the Yugoslavs' Communist ruler).

British Bacon Imports Decided By Dollars

LONDON, Nov. 29 (Reuters)— British bacon imports from Canada in 1950 will depend on the dollar situation and on the volume of goods and services Britain can sell for Canadian dollars, Food Minister Strachey told Parliament Monday. Next year's bacon imports would come mainly from Denmark, the Netherlands, Poland and the Republic of Ireland. There would also be some 10,000 tons from Canada carried over from the 1949 contract.

Princess Daring Gown Stirs British Court Circles

Queen Orders Plunging Neckline Hoisted

NEW YORK, Nov. 29 (UP). — Princess Margaret of Britain got a wicked Paris dress, but her mother would not let her wear it until she had the family dressmaker hoist its plunging neckline, it was learned here today.

And that is just part of "L'affaire where is a neck?" or "Should a Princess?" that has had British court tongues wagging for a month.

Most of the tirade is directed at the Parisian dressmakers who isarted the whole thing. Proper socialites were inclined to be tolerant of the gay 19-year-old of Buckingham Palace and leave the amount of her chest exposure up to her sensible mother.

Queen Elizabeth, it was understood, took care of that.

But the gown has stirred such a tempest there is no telling whether Margaret will ever dare wear it in public.

Dior Creation

The gown, a Christian Dior creation, was a gift. Royal circles were horrified at that, before they ever heard about the neckline.

Royalty just doesn't accept such gifts.

But critics were mollified on that score when they found the gift came not from Dior, but from the entire Poris couture, putting it on an official and permissible basis.

But the dowagers were not happy for long.

Almost before Margaret had a chance to parade her plunging presence before the raised eyebrows of the King and Queen, copies of it appeared in shops all over London.

Horror of horrors!

The Royal Family's gowns are made in London, mostly by Norman Hartnell, under the strictest fashion protocol. Sketches and models are destroyed.

The gowns are never duplicated.

Broad-minded Londoners figured the French just "did not understand."

Too Low Down

eManwhile Queen Elizabeth hustled Margaret down to Hartnell with the Dior dress. Too sophisticated, she reportedly told him, and too low down Hartnell reportedly hoisted.

Whether Margaret pouted was not known here.

Murray Blasts Red Element In Labor Ranks

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 29 — (AP) — Policy-makers of the new CIO Electrical Workers Union set out anew today to give American labor a blueprint for fighting Communism in its ranks.

The union, successor to the CIO-expelled United Electrical Workers, started the second day of its founding convention with the pattern sharply drawn by President Philip Murray of the CIO.

Speaking for a full hour Monday, Murray, his face flushed and his tongue bitter, attacked Communist leadership in the labor movement and warned that other left-wing unions, now affiliated with CIO, would go the way of the UEW He did not name them, however.

"Your greatest enemy is Communism," he shouted

"I have come here definitely committed to support you against all your enemies—and I care not who those enemies may be."

He warned the fight will be long and hard, and that "trickery will be used against us." But he was sure of victory.

Again and again the theme was taken up by other speakers in preliminary committee meetings and in lobby talk.

Struggle Against Reds

James B. Carey, acting leader of the new right-wing union, expressed what appeared to be a general convention view — that this is not regarded as a factional fight in the labor movement, but a struggle against Communist infiltration into trade unionism.

Besides the UEW, one other union — the Farm Equipment Workers—has been ousted by the CIO, The others are scheduled for hearings before CIO fact-finding committees. The first of these are expected to be called in December.

Meanwhile committees are settling down to work here. One of them will draft resolutions to be submitted to the convention later in the week. Officers will not be elected this week. Instead they will be chosen later, probably by referendum, over a period of perhaps five or six months.

Carey President

Many delegates felt the highest office—the presidency—would fall to Carey, whom Murray in his speech singled out for special praise.

Monday's sessions were smooth and decorous. But for days before the convention opened, rumors sped through the city that the UEW might try to heckle its adversary by picketing headquarters of the new union and by other demonstrations. No such incidents have developed.

But Murray's lashing of the UEW leadership did prompt a reply from Albert J Fitzgerald, the president of the ousted union.

Terming the new group a "company union in the electrical industry," Fitzgerald asserted "for a considerable period now the UEW has been carrying on a two-front fight, against union-hating employers on the one hand and against the bankrupt policies of the CIO on the other."

He scoffed afresh at the new union's membership claims and reiterated that an "overwhelming majority" of UEW members remain loyal.

The Sudbury Local of the United Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers, represents about 12,000 workers. Like the UE it is generally regarded as a left-wing union.

"Thibeault will tell the story of how his union has successfully resisted raiding by a CCL company union for the past two years," T. P. Davies, chairman of the Local 524 Provisional Committee, told the Examiner.

At the meeting 10 delegates will be elected to the special district meeting to be held this week-end in Toronto.

Five delegates to the Allied Labor Council will also be elected.

Among the speakers tonight will be C. S. Jackson, Canadian UE president.

CGE officials in a letter to the UE announced they were withholding the November cheque "because of the difficulty of knowing who are the authorized representatives."

The money involved averages about $4,000 a month, and it would be held, the Company stated, "until it is clearly established to whom we should turn it over."

"The Company has failed to abide by the agreement calling for the checkoff cheque to be made out to Local 524 and mailed to the Financial Secretary," Jackson said.

"The Company states it recognizes Local 524 as the bargaining agent. It knows that Morton, O'Donnell et al. have been enjoined from acting in the name of Local 524, and that these same people have publicly announced their membership in another union and their leadership in another union."

He claimed CGE management had no right to withhold payment.

"Our union can only conclude that the Company is desirous of creating confusion in the hope this will strengthen the case of Morton's union."

To Continue Rent Controls Until April 1951—Ottawa

OTTAWA, Nov. 29—(CP)—The Federal government believes it should be out of the rent-control field completely. But it won't withdraw before April, 1952, unless the Supreme Court rules that it hasn't the authority to continue the controls. The government's position was outlined in the Commons Monday night by Finance Minister Abbott and Justice Minister Garson. The House was discussing an order-in-council which will be placed before the Supreme Court Thursday asking a ruling on whether Federal rent controls are valid. The case is expected to come before the court in February. But there is no indicatfon of when the ruling will be made.

In a 2½-hour debate arranged to discuss the matter, the government received suggestions from the Progressive Conservatives and CCF on how it should proceed. Social Credit members did not take part.

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, suggested that the government postpone recently announced permission to hoist rents 18 and 22 per cent until the whole matter of controls is clarified.

M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader, urged that the allowed increases be withheld until April 1 next to give the provinces a chance to call sessions of Legislatures to discuss the question. Mr. Coldwell said that such increases had been postponed to that date in Saskatchewan to give that province time to organize rent-control machinery.

Suggests Revision

John Diefenbaker, (PC-Lake Centre) said the order-in-council should be revised.

Instead of a terse question about whether wartime rent controls still are valid, it should contain evidence that an emergency still exists. The validity of rent controls depends on whether or not the Supreme Court believes there is an emergency. Mr. Diefenbaker suggested the wording indicated the government was inviting the court to say the legislation was ultra vires—outside the jurisdiction of parliament.

Mr. Abbott said no one has yet given him "any good reason" why the Federal Government should continue to control the owners of housing accommodation when it does not control anything else.

"As honorable members know, more than four years after the end of the war we are out of all the major controls," he said. "We are out of price control, we are out of wage control and we are out of most of the other controls.

No Answer Yet

"In fact, I think steel control is pretty well the only one left. If anyone could give me a good reason why we should continue to exercise control over one relatively small group in the community —the owners of housing accommodation—I wish they would give it to me because no one has given it to me yet. . ."

Stanley Knowles (CCF-Winnipeg North Centre) said that was a "challenge."

He added:

"Scores, and in fact hundreds of thousands of the Canadian people are facing a real problem right now in view of this announced increase in rents, and I say one case, let alone the hundreds of thousands that now exist, should constitute sufficient reason for this parliament to ask that these increases in domestic rentals should not be permitted at this time."

Mr. Garson, replying to the various suggestions about procedure, said he had no doubt that they had all been considered before the members of his department selected the course contained in the order-in-council.

operation at a hospital might have saved her and defence counsel asked where the nearest hospital was. Somebody in the spectators spoke up and said "17 miles away", referring to Peterborough.

"To save her would have required miraculous attention?" asked defence counsel.

"Yes, I would say they would have to be that," agreed Dr. Gold. He was then asked if the brain hemhorrage could have occurred after death and he replied that the bleeding in the head indicated that at the time there had been a slight pulsation.

"You base that solely on the small patch of blood in the cerebellum?"

"No," replied Dr. Gold. "There were also traces of blood in the course taken by the bullet through the tissues."

Believed Alive

"Would you say she was alive from the presence of blood in the course of the bullet into the head?" was the next question.

"Yes," replied Dr. Gold.

"Does bleeding occur from an open wound after death?" the doctor was asked.

"If blood comes out of an open wound it merely oozes out. After death occurs there is no bleeding into the tissues as we found in the examination of the head wound," replied Dr. Gold.

"Could either wound have caused death instantaneously?" asked defence counsel. Dr. Gold replied that he believed so. Asked what he estimated the maximum time of survival from the first wound, he said that it might be a half hour. Then defence counsel asked how long she might have lived after the head wound and, Dr. Gold replied that he would not like to say.

The gun used in the Kilbon slaying was a .22 rifle which he had given Kilbon to shoot ground hogs, testified Harry Stabler, of Bailieboro. He recalled that on the morning of November 1, Kilbon called him on the phone to tell him that he was in a mess as Mrs. Kilbon had tried to commit suicide.

Policemen Testify

Provincial Constable Don Nicol of Cobourg testified that he and Corporal Douglas Wilson of Cobourg went to the Kilbon farm home around 9:30 on the morning of November 1. Mrs. Kilbon was dead in the kitchen chair. Kilbon entered the house and told the police that the dead woman was his wife.

"He said that he was to have taken her to Whitby that day. He said that he lit the fire and went out to get a pail of water and on his return found his wife lying on the floor in great agony. She asked him to lift her up on the chair and after that he shot her in the left temple. I told him we were police officers and also told him that he would be charged with murder. There were two cups on the table and he was going to pour himself some tea. He picked up one and said 'I wonder which one was her's. I guess it doesn't matter now.'

"I then repeated that he would be charged with murder and I read him a warning. I asked him if he wanted to give me a statement and he said he did. Mr. Kilbon was very calm as he dictated a statement to me which I wrote down. I went over each word with him and then he signed each page of the statement," testified Provincial Constable Nicol. His evidence concluded the Crown's case.

Mr. Robinette contended that the Crown must establish which wound was fatal. He said that in his opinion the abdominal wound was the fatal one and the Crown had not established that the head wound was the cause of death.

In reply, Crown Attorney Harry Deyman pointed out that Dr. Gold's evidence indicated the woman to have been alive when the second shot was fired and that Kilbon also had shown this when he said he had fired the second shot to put her out of her agony. The second bullet accelerated her death, Mr. Deyman said.

Magistrate Baxter in committing Kilbon for trial, agreed that the statement of the accused indicated his wife was still alive when the second shot was fired.

Young Burglar Gets Total Of 20 Years

ST. CATHARINES, Nov. 29—(CP)—Albert (Buddy) Yates, 21-year-old burglar who broke into a post office early this month and escaped with more than $300, Monday was sentenced to a total of 20 years' imprisonment.

He will serve not more than three years in prison because the sentences on the seven charges run concurrently.

Among the charges were those of receiving stolen goods and two other break-ins.

Sentenced at the same time was Robert Bruce Dunn, of Grantham township. He was given 2½ years on each of three charges, and one year on two other charges. All five sentences are to run concurrently. Dunn pleaded guilty to a number of the series of nuisance break-ins which recently plagued this city.

Break Safety Record

BOSTON, Nov. 29 (AP)—American Airlines said the Dallas crash today brought to an end "the best safety record ever established by commercial airlines."

"During the 45-month period between March 3, 1946 and today," the line said in a statement, "the American Airlines flew 10,869,000 passengers a total of 5,394,000,000 passenger miles without a fatality on its routes in the United States, Canada and Mexico."

Loses His Girl And His Money, Only Jail Left

TORONTO, Nov. 29 (CP) — Eric Willan, 25-year-old former Merchant Navy cook, said today he will ask to go back to jail at Welland if he cannot get a job in the next few days.

In the meantime he's still looking for the girl he said he proposed to—and a soldier who walked off with his money.

Here's the story as Willan tells it:

He came here from Liverpool, England, and discovered on arrival at Montreal he was an illegal immigrant. He had no passport. But immigration officials permitted him to stay while they made arrangements for him to stay legally.

After 10 weeks of waiting he came to Toronto where he met a girl he knew only as Yvonne, an orphan. A short courtship followed and they planned to marry Nov. 17.

On Oct. 27 they joined another couple on a visit to Niagara Falls, Ont. They decided to visit Buffalo. Others were granted entry to the United States but Eric was turned back because he lacked a passport. On his return to the Canadian border he was arrested.

In the meantime the other man in the party, a newly-discharged soldier, had left the girls in a hotel and departed with Eric's last $75 and his clothes. On his release 10 days later, Eric found his fiancee had disappeared. Now he's broke and out of work.

A seriously injured crew member staggered to a nearby home. While blood oozed from his mouth, he said: "I want to make a statement."

Frances Hudson, a grocery store employee, said she took this statement from the man, who described himself as the co-pilot:

"No. 4 engine afire on approach. Air opened the right hatch. The plane was on fire and I cut all four engines. The engines were off when we hit."

"I didn't get his name except 'George,' " she said. "His head was bleeding and his back was hurt."

The man who said he was the co-pilot collapsed on the porch at the home of J. M. Kiddy, about 100 yards from the field. He was taken to a hospital.

Mrs. K. C. Gullett said other survivors straggled into her front yard.

Pair With Baby

"A couple came up with a baby. The man was carrying the baby. The baby was bleeding and crying. . . In a few minutes an ambulance took these people away."

A wing was the nearest intact part of the plane. One part of the wing still had two motors on it.

The rest of the plane was a scrambled mess of wreckage.

Col. Harold Byrd, chief of the Texas Civil Air Patrol right at the scene, said "this is terrible. Just terrible. There is no other word."

The plane first hit the Magnaflux plant, a plant which inspects engines by chemical processes.

A series of small explosions sounded and many-colored flames indicated chemicals were burning.

Other Buildings Burn

The Dallas Aviation School, a hangar and combined office buildings and classrooms also caught fire and its walls collapsed half an hour later.

Smoke still was rising with an acrid odor an hour after the crash.

Firemen were pulling bodies from the wreckage.

As one body was freed, another fireman would shout "here!" A second body—charred and rigid—would be pulled out.

Shaken By Blast

Fred L. Sheaf, 28, who lives in a barracks 400 feet from the scene, told this story:

"The first explosion shook my bed. I ran out of the door thinking that one of the gasoline storage tanks across the street from the barracks had exploded. It was a rumbling, jarring explosion.

"When I got to the door, I heard someone holler 'A plane has crashed.' I put on my pants and a shirt and dashed down the street. I got to the scene three minutes after the explosion.

"The wreckage was strewn everywhere and the flames were high and billowing. They were blue and white flames.

"The plane had crashed into the Magnaflux plant.

"There were a series of small explosions just after I arrived.

"The Dallas Aviation School, the hangar and combined office building and classrooms, was also starting to burn.

"Wires were breaking overhead, and when the first people to arrive saw them, they scurried to get out of the way.

Walks Out Of Wreckage

"I should say four minutes after the explosion a man walked right out of the wreckage. He was white as a sheet and though he walked right out of the fire, he didn't appear to be burned.

"I have tried to figure out where he came from and the only explanation I can think of is that he was thrown out of the plane itself when the crash occurred, was knocked unconscious and came to when the heat hit him.

"His arm was bent and surely broken. He screamed — 'Don't touch my arm.' Then he said: 'Where is there a doctor?'

"'I was in the crash,' he said, 'where is there a doctor?'

"He was obviously in a state of high shock. Someone led him across the street into the airways cafe. And that is the last I saw of him."

An Air France plane with 37 persons aboard crashed just before it was due to land at Lyons France today. There were conflicting reports as to casualties, but at least six persons were reported dead.

An airport official here said the crew of five and one passenger had been killed in the crash. But at Orly Airport in Paris, from where the plane had taken off a short time earlier, an Air France official told Reuters News Agency all aboard the ship had perished.

The crash occurred at St. Just-Chaleyssin, a town of some 500 persons near this ancient city at the junction of the Saone and Loire rivers. Lyons is an intermediary landing point for aircraft flying between Paris and Marseille or French Mediterranean points.

The Bron Airport at Lyons announced that all five crew and one or more passengers were killed.

Find Wreckage Of Lost Plane

BOGOTA, Colombia, Nov. 29—(AP)—Rescue parties today were climbing a 12,000-foot mountain north of Bucaramanga toward the wreckage of an airliner which crashed Saturday.

Officials of Lanza, Colombian air line which owned the plane, said they had little hope of finding any of the 12 persons aboard the liner alive.

The plane, a DC-3, was en route from Bucaramanga to Cucuta, with nine passengers and a crew of three. Lansa said that contrary to first reports a statue of our Lady of Fatima apparently was not aboard, since no priest was listed among the passengers.

The plane lost radio contact with Bucaramanga eight minutes after take-off. The rescue partics left Bucaramanga Sunday.

Reeve Johnston Re-elected In N. Monaghan

Reeve Melville Johnston of North Monaghan Township has been re-elected to his 11th term of office. And both the Council and the School Board appear headed for acclamation in 1950.

At an uneventful meeting in the County Court building Monday night Reeve Johnston was returned unopposed. Five Councillors were nominated for the four offices and five were proposed for the five vacancies in the two school areas.

Mr. Johnston is second only to Reeve James Gifford of Ennismore in County Council seniority. Mr. Gifford has served 16 terms while Mr. Johnston has served 10. He is chairman of the County standing committee on education and equalization and assessment as well as a member of the agriculture committee.

While five men were nominated for the four offices of councillor it is understood, unofficially, that G. N. Moncrief who has served in that capacity for three years is likely to step down.

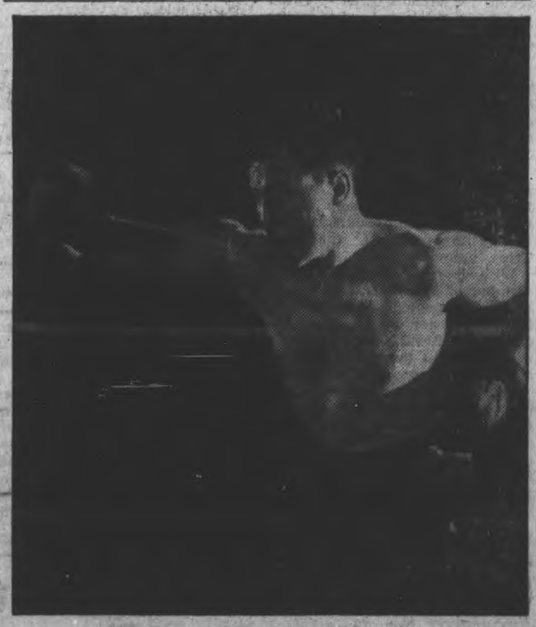
All those nominated will have until tonight to decide whether to stand or not.

Others Nominated

The four other councillors nominated are Archie Patterson who if re-elected will start his fourth year in that office; Lloyd Whittington, a present member of the township school board who has filled one year of his term, and is now offering his services in the larger field; and Walter Brown and James S. Roberts beginning their third year.

Mr. Roberts was previously a Councillor in 1940.

Eric Johnston will take the place of Harold Jonnston on the Board of School Area No. 1, and the other nominee is Fred Stinson.



Providing Lloyd Whittington qualifies as a Councillor Clarence Laing will run for trustee on School Area No. 2 to fill the unexpired year of Mr. Whittington's two-year term. It will be Mr. Laing's first term of office.

The other two trustees who seem likely to go back are George Whitfield and Henry Batten. Mr. Batten is also township tax collector and is beginning his 13th year of office.

Want Hastings And Percy Placed In Campbellford School Area

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 29—(ENS)—"Your resolution, passed by the United Counties Council, to review the Campbellford-Seymour and Brighton school areas, did not ask for the admission of Percy Township into your school district," said Deputy-Reeve Ralph Locke, member of hhe Consultative Committee of the United Counties Council, to the Board of Education Monday.

"We had a meeting with Hastings Council about two years ago," he continued, "and Hastings decided to go with Norwood.

"Sometime later," he said, "we met part of the Percy Township Council and the Warkworth School Board. Charles Booth, representing the Department of Education, promised to provide transportation for forms one and two to Warkworth school and forms three and four to Campbellford school for a period of ten years."

Deputy-Reeve Locke further stated that he could understand the antagonism that Warkworth feels towards Campbellford. "For years we have been going as far as White School, only two miles from Warkworth, and picking up pupils."

No Request Made

Reeve J. C. Anderson said that there had been no request from the Campbellford Board of Education for a larger school area. However, he thought that if the parents in North Percy, which lies close to Campbellford, were anxious to join the Campbellford-Seymour area it would add force to the resolution.

Could Be Enlarged

"I do not see why this school area cannot be enlarged," answered Deputy-Reeve Locke. "There is nothing to prevent Hastings and Warkworth from being incorporated in this area if they so desire."

"What is Seymour giving us? Nothing!" said E. C. McKeel.

Chairman George Nicholls thought it would be tragic if Seymour chose to transport her pupils to Brighton.

A committee was selected to interview the members of the Hastings School Board regarding their joining the Campbellford-Seymour area.

E. C. McKeel was chosen to represent the Campbellford school area on the conservative committee.

Principal H. R. Hendershot's request for curtains for the domestic science room was granted.

Why No Underground Wiring In Peterborough?

We again point out that new streets and sections are being opened up—areas like Brookdale, Parkdale, Weller Street west, Cadberley—water mains are being laid, hydro wiring installed, yet in none of these streets are the wires being laid underground. The same old methods of fifty years ago, the same unsightly poles, the same disfiguring overhead wires are being used. (One modification the Utilities Commission is permitting itself is to put some poles in the back yards intead of on the front lawns.) Are the old methods necessary? Has the local Utilities Commission given sufficient throught to laying the wires underground? What are its arguments against using this newer, proven method in Peterborough? Has the Utilities Commission considered that in ten, twenty, thirty years, underground wiring will be considered essential everywhere, the overhanging messy wires will be archaic, and the raffish poles relics of the dim 1900's?

* * *

Why are the new sections not being provided with the kind of wiring which good modern practice and future usage demand? The job that is now being done on the new streets will have to be done over in the foreseeable future. Why not put the wires underground now and have done with them? It would be inaccurate to say that the Utilities Commission is in a rut in this matter, for the overhead wires it is putting up are not down in the ditch or rut where many people with an eye to present comeliness and future use expect them to be.

The Film Board Mystery

The more we think about it, the more we feel that there is something very queer about the shadow which has been cast over the National Film Board during the past two weeks. On November 18 Mr. Claxton, as Defence Minister, said that the Board was not being used to make films of confidential military subjects, and would not be used for that purpose until all the Board's employees had been "screened". The screening—an investigation into the loyalty and secrecy of the Board's workers—began in May.

Presumably any confidential film work which is being done at present is being done by private film companies. Have they been "screened"? Has the Government some unquestionable assurance that the private companies are completely trustworthy? If it has not, there is surely some unfairness in the implication that the National Film Board requires this treatment.

Of course we are in favour of all proper precautions in matters which must be secret. But it is possible that Ottawa has picked up an infection from Washington, in which city a great deal of showy and objectionable "screening" has also been done. Is there any feeling that Canada must have a few screenings just to be in the swim?

There has been prejudice against the Film Board in some Ottawa circles ever since it was founded. The Board's workers are not all the usual sort of civil servant. Some of them are shaggy people, who wear corduroy pants, sandals and shirts of unusual hue. This is just the sort of thing which, in a country like ours, devoted to the ideal of superficial normality, creates suspicion in small minds. It would be nice to be sure that the Film Board is not being victimized because its outward and visible signs are taken by foolish people for an inward and invisible corruption. Highly placed people in the Government have put the Film Board under a cloud. In common justice, the people of Canada should be told what the cloud is made of—genuine concern for the country's welfare, or the prejudice of conformists against nonconformists?

Headaches are now blamed on ailments of the feet. This is carrying things from one extreme to another.

A British diet expert says that the meat of a single whale should feed an average family for three years. After six months they would all begin to spout.

Have The Cooks Said Their Say?

Before the Royal Commission on the Arts in Canada has finished its job, it is estimated that 350 briefs of roughly 200 pages each will have been put before it. That sounds as though every conceivable kind of artist, and quite a few inconceivable ones, would have said his say, and yet there seems to be one important omission; we have seen no suggestion that the cooks of Canada are making any protest to the Massey Commission about the low estate of their art in this country.

The Ottawa Journal says: "Probably it isn't so stated in any brief, but there is something truly cultural about a tender, well-cooked steak smothered in mushrooms". This is a profoundly true observation. If the purpose of culture is to raise the estate of man above that of the beasts, good feeding is cultural. And—we speak for ourselves, and we think that many others will agree with us—we are infinitely more receptive to the beauties of a fine play or a notable piece of music if we have been well-fed beforehand, than we are if we have been stoked with some such typically Canadian meal as embalmed chicken, mortified potatoes, denatured green peas, and ice cream made from vegetable oil, cornstarch and talcum powder, washed down with badly-made coffee.

The Massey Commission is being addressed by all those people in Canada who wish us to cherish the ear and the eye; why has nothing been heard from those who want us to cherish the gullet and massage the entrails with the masterpieces of the culinary art?

No Rent Increases Yet In Saskatchewan

The St. Laurent Government professes no desire to be dictatorial, certainly not about politically hot measures. This was demonstrated last Friday when it specifically excluded Saskatchewan from the new regulations increasing rent ceilings. The C.C.F. Saskatchewan government asked Ottawa for leave to take over all rent control measures in that Province. A year ago Ottawa had told the Provinces that it would relinquish rent controls to them anytime they asked for them. No province dared to accept this finger-burner, until Saskatchewan moved in last week. Ottawa lived up to its word, and Saskatchewan will take over in its own territory.

Provincialists who are fond of hurling the charge of "centralist" at Ottawa should urge their provincial government to follow Saskatchewan's example. They will see how fast Ottawa will shed its central authority over rents. As far as the Ontario Government is concerned, it seems to be quite satisfied not only with Ottawa's central control in this matter, but with the authorization of the rent increases. If it is not, it can do as Saskatchewan has done. We suspect that it will do nothing, since it is politically customary for the Conservatives to lean on property-owners, as it is for the C.C.F. to lean away from them. The C.C.F. Saskatchewan government could hardly afford not to take over, in view of C.C.F. policies.

The Saskatchewan move is not world-shattering. There is no real shortage of houses in that Province, compared with the shortage in Ontario or Quebec. There is little urban congestion. Rents are high but however much ceilings were raised, we suspect that they would not have resulted in higher rents in that province. People could move out, and into other houses. If rent controls were completely abolished Saskatchewan would probably be least affected. The taking over of controls was a gesture calculated to gain the C.C.F. some popularity at little cost, except for the provincial machinery to administer them.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Robbers who went to a Quebec farmhouse missed $100,000 which was hidden in two old buckets. Of course if they want to find money in obvious places they should take up robbing banks.

A number of people in Hollywood have recently married partners to whom they had been married once before. There is a nice spirit of tolerance about this, and also a suggestion of the salvage drive.

Some farmers near London, Ont., killed a large tomcat, mistaking it for a lynx. Anybody who has been clawed by a tomcat will understand exactly how such an error occurred. The wonder is that it was not mistaken for a tiger.

The turrets and minarets of the impressive pile of Kitchener's city hall will be bending backwards in shocked surprise that we omitted to mention that august building in our editorial last Saturday. We said that St. Catharines city building was the only city hall in southern Ontario built since the Great War of 1914-18, and that it was a relief project of Depression years. We did not intend to slight Kitchener, whose City Hall was put up shortly after that war ended.

Hungry Winter Will Test Tito Regime

By EDWARD CRANSHAW

LIFE in Belgrade is going to be hard this winter. There is a fuel crisis, and coal is rationed to one ton per household, which is nothing like enough, nor as much as it sounds. For practically nobody has gas in Belgrade and the electricity is poor—altogether too feeble to run anything but the smallest kind of hot-plate or reflector stove. Even if it were better, the appliances do not exist. So the people of Belgrade depend on coal for all their warmth and cooking.

* * *

THE first snow fell in the first week of November; and the fearful northeasterly gales that come tearing across the Hungarian plain from Siberia, so strong that sometimes for days on end you can hardly stand up against them and policemen on point duty lash themselves to lamp-posts with their belts, carry the extreme cold pitilessly indoors—unless you can keep up a fug in the Eastern European manner, which is impossible on one ton of coal.

* * *

AS well as being cold the people of Belgrade will be hungry—all but the privileged few (who will also manage to keep warm). Not starving, or anything like it, but peckish and undernourished, with no reserves to fight down the cold. So it will be a gloomy winter, and for the next six months morale will be low—with few outside interests to stimulate it. It will be a hanging-on-grimly sort of winter, and discontent will increase—the sort of discontent that in itself is already responsible for the fuel shortage, at least in part—because a great deal of this is due to absenteeism in the coal-mines.

* * *

THE mood, then, is grim; and it will be a difficult time for Tito and his Government, who will come in for most of the blame. There will be more food in the countryside than in the cities, of course; the peasants will see to that, as always, except in times of famine. And among the cities there is no doubt that Belgrade will be the hardest hit. But the general mood all over Yugoslavia, already subdued even in the mellow days of the unusually warm and beautiful autumn, will be low and, even if not actively rebellious, at least unconstructive.

* * *

THERE seems to be a widespread illusion in Britain and America that Marshal Tito it a sort of popular national hero round whom all the Yugoslavs have rallied and for whom millions would gladly die. This is a false picture. In many ways Tito has the makings of a popular hero, and his call to the Yugoslavs to unite and tighten their belts in face of the Russian menace is just the sort of appeal which brings out the best in those stormy people, whose obstinacy and bravery in defence of their country is unsurpassable. But this time, and from Tito, it has come too late.

* * *

THIS does not mean that, in the last resort, the Yugoslavs will refuse to rally round Tito. On the contrary. If the Russians, either directly or working through the Rumanians, the Bulgarians and the Hungarians, tried to use force against Yugoslavia, I have no doubt at all that the resistance would be bitter and effective; and that Tito himself, as the leader, would once more be built up into a legend and a symbol to die for.

* * *

BUT it would take an invasion to produce that mood and raise the temperature of Yugoslav patriotism to fever-heat. In fact, I think it is hardly an exaggeration to say that the best thing for Tito's domestic reputation would be a Russian attempt to turn him out by force. And it seems likely that the bleakly calculating creatures in the Kremlin realize this—and realize also that the worst thing for Tito is the mood of angry despondency in the people produced by too many shortages and frustrations continuing too long—a mood which the Cominform's economic blockade is carefully designed to foster.

* * *

WHEN I said that Tito's patriotic stand has come too late I was thinking of the years between the liberation of Belgrade in October 1944 and the break with the Cominform in the summer of last year. The outside world, increasingly caught up by the sheer gallantry of Tito's defiance of Stalin, certainly forgets that for three and a half years he was Stalin's most ardent and unscrupulous disciple and that the Communisation of Yugoslavia was pushed ahead more recklessly and ferociously than anywhere else. To understand the present mood of the Yugoslav people we have to remember this. We have also to remember that the break with Stalin has made no visible difference to Tito's drive towards communisation.

* * *

THE Yugoslavs do not forget this. They are are not allowed to. And in fact they are far more aware of it in their daily lives than they are aware of the Russian menace. It is Tito's Communist Government which conditions their whole Russian menace. It is Tito's Communist Government which conditions their whole attitude to life, not as too many of us think, the distant machinations of the Kremlin. And it is not a popular Government.

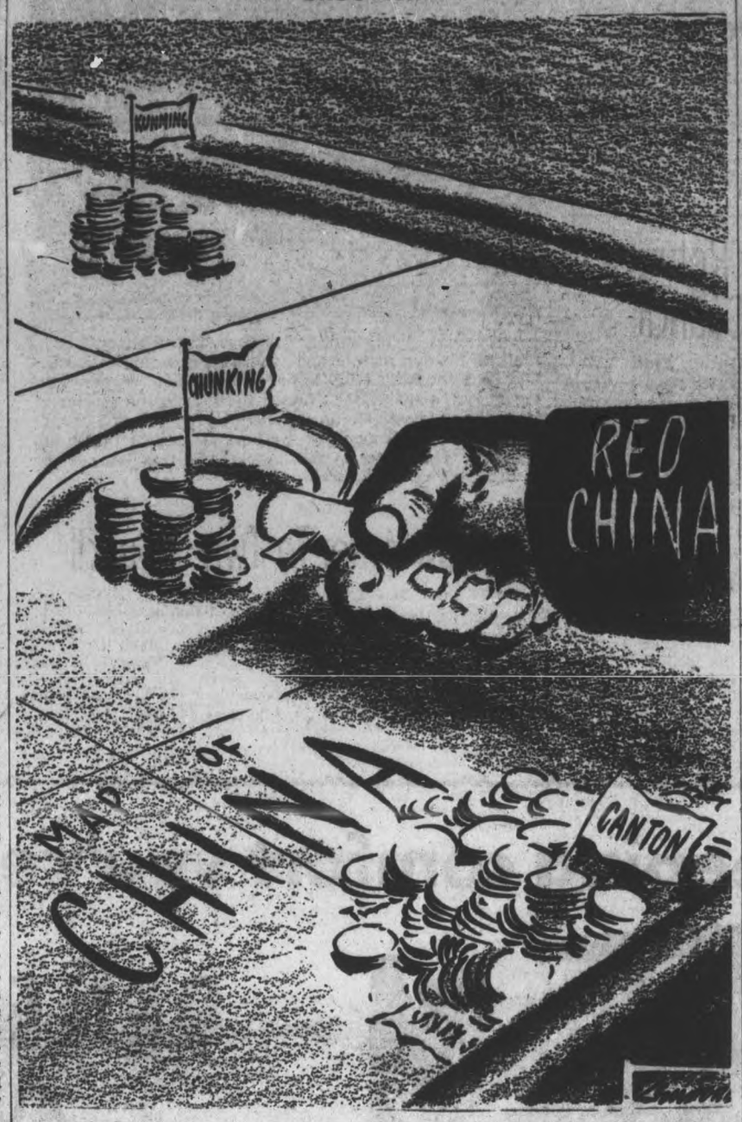
Unconsidered Trifles

On their way home after a lively night in town, the two warriors on leave paused on a bridge and gazed intently at the dark river below them.

Suddenly one of them spotted the reflection of the moon down there.



"I shay, old boy, what's that?" he asked.

His friend, not quite so much under the weather, retorted:

"It's the moon, you mug!"

"The moon? Then what on earth are we doing up here?"

Letters To The Editor

SMARTIES, BEWARE!

Sir: In this confab in 'Letters to Editor', over radio advertising the most important and vital to all concerned was left out—namely the price of feeds (as well as other costs—in nearly everything) has gone beyond the safety mark in production of the thing in question—eggs, chickens.

While we quibble, over pronunciation and grammar, education and culture 'our' very life—livability—is a hazard.

You who are so 'smart' in business and, lawyers, accountants, teachers etc.—and of course radio announcers—should put your heads to better use.

It could be that advertising is overdone.

SIMPLE SIMON.

A REPLY TO MR. TINKER

Sir: As a Canadian living in England, I have read with interest the third instalment of Mr. Tinker's observations on his stay in England.

While I appreciate that there is much shrewd observation and generous comment, there are, I feel, some of his remarks which are open to question lest they create a false impression of life in Great Britain. Your correspondent seems to have been irked by the rules and regulations which govern our parks and open spaces, but he has not appreciated that these rules are drawn up in order that the amenities may best be enjoyed by the largest number of people. Taking "short cuts" across the grass is discouraged to prevent the lawns being worn brown in summer or being reduced to mud in winter. Parks are closed during the night in order that they do not become a refuge for vagabonds and others, and to give the attendants an opportunity for clearing up the litter before the public is admitted. I am afraid Mr. Tinker was unlucky in the parks he visited where he was not allowed to sit on the grass as a feature of English parks and gardens, both in London and the Provinces during the summer is, as many of your readers must know, the spectacle of a large number of office workers who repair there for their lunch-hour sandwiches and relaxation sitting on the grass.

As for lounging in public buildings, I think Mr. Tinker would be the first to complain, as a visitor to Britain, if British art galleries and museums were to become a resting place for tramps and others to lounge and sleep to the annoyance of those people whose purpose is to enjoy the cultural stimulation which such places offer.

Your correspondent seems also to be most unfortunate in his search for refreshment. No one will pretend that the food in England is up to Canadian standards, but what there is is nothing like so hard to obtain as Mr. Tinker leads his readers to suppose. The tearooms and restaurants which he says close at 5.30 or 6 p.m. are mainly those situated in the business areas whose clients have left their offices by that time and for whom there is no further business. His statement that 95 per cent. of London's restaurants close at 5.30 p.m. is a great exaggeration; the dining rooms of hotels are open until a late hour: many restaurants serve early dinners for those going to the theatre, and others specialize in late after-the-show suppers.

It is now possible, too, for hotels and restaurants in central London to make application for a licence which will enable them to keep open until 2.30 a.m. In addition, at most 'pubs' one can get a sandwich or sausage roll, and the English coffee stalls, those booths on wheels, sell hot drinks and sandwiches until all hours. In London there are also certain popular restaurants which remain open all night long.

Yours faithfully,
MARGARET MOFFIT.

Woodskeeping

Cleaning up the fallen trees, and culling out the ones that show decrepitude is good woodskeeping. It has always been practised where the owner of the farm woodlot wanted to keep and improve his holdings. But if the pioneers could return, they would see their descendants' fires kept up with prunings and trimmings from the place where they laid low the forest giants.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Bless the Lord, O my soul. O Lord my God, thou art very great; thou art clothed with honour and majesty. Who coverest thyself with light as with a garment: who stretchest out the heavens like a curtain: who layeth the beams of his chambers in the waters: who maketh the clouds his chariot: who walketh upon the wings of the wind. . . .Who laid the foundations of the earth, that it should not be removed for ever. (Ps. 104: 1-3, 5.)

* * *

The heavens declare his righteousness, and all the people see his glory. . . .Light is sown for the righteous, and gladness for the upright in heart.

Rejoice in the Lord, ye righteous; and give thanks at the remembrance of his holiness. (Ps. 97: 6, 11, 12.)

* * *

But now thus saith the Lord that created thee, O Jacob, and he that formed thee, O Israel, Fear not. . . .

I am the Lord, your Holy One, the creator of Israel, your King. (Isa. 43: 1, 15.)

'Prohibition's Ghost'

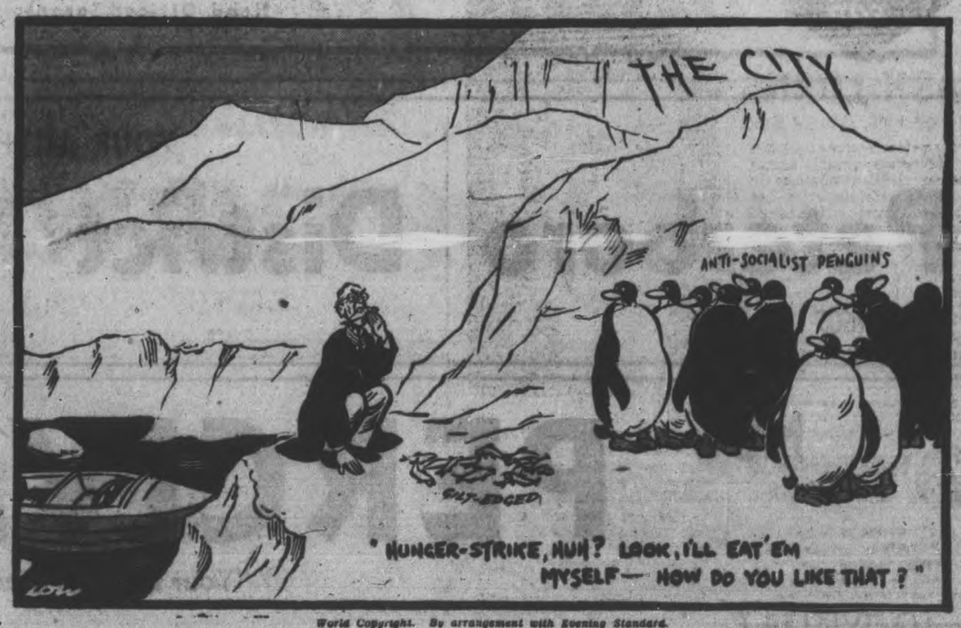
A writer in Collier's warns the people of the United States that if they don't watch out they will have prohibition again.

There have been, he says, "literally tens of thousands of local option elections" since prohibition was abandoned, and the Drys have won most of them. And he adds:

"They (the Drys) are working now almost entirely by this unspectacular method, so that their activities seldom receive notice outside the immediate communities in which they occur. That's the way they want it. Their aim is to avoid arousing the nation as a whole."

From 1940 to 1949 local-option elections involving hard liquor have been lost by the Wets in 533 places and won in 267, for a net loss of 266 places with total inhabitants of about 1,500,000. In 1948 alone 600,000 of the population voted out beer. In 1937 the percentage of Americans living in areas where the sale of beer is prohibited was 5.32; today the percentage is up 1?.1.

The Collier's writer views this situation with disquiet, remembering prohibition and assuming that its return is the real aim of the forces now working quietly through local option.



What the U.S.A. does about its drinking is its own affair, but Canada cannot be indifferent to the situation because if Uncle Sam reversed himself there would be strong demands that this country do the same.

Collier's says the campaign it sees organizing will be lost by the side making the most mistakes. The greatest possible mistake by Canadians who believe in a sane system for the sale of liquor would be the complacent assumption that the issue is settled once for all. No one should be unaware of the fact that there is a very considerable sentiment in the Dominion which would restore prohibition tomorrow if given the power.

Those who sell liquor, and those who use it, play into the hands of the prohibitions if they abuse their privileges.

Pastor Fights Injunction On Pulpit Bar

TORONTO, Nov. 29 (CP)—The Rev. Thomas Guthrie will continue his defence today against an injunction sought in the Supreme Court to bar him from the pulpit of the York Road Baptist Church, Guelph.

The hearing began on Monday of the injunction petition sought by five of the church's six deacons and all three of its trustees. A move to oust the minister from the pastorate of the church began after he was involved in a controversy last July.

It was alleged he had written one or more indiscreet letters to Mrs. R. Stitt, a Guelph housewife.

Before Mr. Justice Keiller Mackay it was argued by plaintiffs that despite action taken by a majority of the congregation to oust Mr. Guthrie he continued to serve with the support of a "splinter group."

The pastor also was accused of dismissing from church membership 37 church officers and members of the congregation who opposed him.

Andrew Brewin, counsel for Mr. Guthrie, opposed reading into the case an affidavit from Mrs. Stitt. She precipitated the minister-deacons' clash when she gave a letter she said she had received from Mr. Guthrie to one of the deacons.

Mr. Brewin demanded that the affidavit be stricken out as "scandalous and irrelevant" and described Mr. Guthrie's correspondence with Mrs. Stitt as "an indiscreet letter containing affectionate expressions. . ."

Mr. Brewin said Mr. Guthrie had resigned voluntarily from the Guelph church on condition his letters and all copies of them to Mrs. Stitt be destroyed. This condition was not kept, said counsel, and therefore Mr. Guthrie felt free to abjure his resignation.

Declared Insane

TORONTO, Nov. 29 (CP) — Grey-haired Mrs. Mary Ellen Thatcher, 45, Monday was acquitted by reason of insanity of a murder charge in the strangling of her seven-year-old daughter Mary Joan, in their suburban North York home July 9, 1947. At the time the girl's body was found, police said they were told Mary Joan had asked her mother to bring her breakfast in bed. The mother allegedly went into the bedroom, seized the child by the throat and choked her to death.

3 Doukhobors Guilty Plant Arson

NELSON, B. C., Nov. 29 (CP)—Three Doukhobors, members of the radical sons of Freedom wing, Monday were convicted of Arson in the 1943 burning of a jam factory.

The jury deliberated four minutes before convicting Pete Swetlishkoff, William G. Konkin and Anton Kolenikoff. They will be sentenced later in the Assizes.

The men said they burned the $300,000 factory at Brilliant, B. C., in the belief they were following the wish of their leader, Michael (The Archangel) Verigin. They said they were told by Verigin that he would not come to them until there is "a fire pole from earth to heaven."

That called for burning the factory, owned by the Land Settlement Board of British Columbia, the trio said.

British Sure Car Exports Will Continue

By FORBES RHUDE,
Canadian Press Business Editor.

A survey of the British motor car industry has been published by The Times of London in association with the Society of Motor Manufacturers and Traders.

Since last year's showing of Britain's post-war models, more than 200,000 of them have been sent to countries all over the world, and now the industry faces the twin question of ultimate capacity and the extent to which the export market will hold up.

The report on the survey recognizes the need for lower production costs and lower prices, and the difficulties put in their way by shortage of steel. It foresees increasing competition, but, at the same time, several factors favoring British cars. It approves concentration of small and medium sized models to reach what it considers an increasing market for low cost transportation. What it considers an increasing market for low cost transportation.

The big six—Austin, Ford, Nuffield, Rootes, Standard and Vauxhall—between them produce 90 per cent of the cars made in Britain.

The report adds:

"The British motor car industry faces the future with confidence tempered by realization of the difficulties facing the nation as a whole. . . The final output capacity of the industry is difficult to estimate, but it will certainly exceed 500,000 cars a year. . .

GOVERNMENT SUPPORT

The seller's market is over in many parts of the world. . . It is only to be expected that the government will do everything in their power to have the largest number of British cars shipped abroad, and they are unlikely to receive anything but support from the industry in this vital national task.

"The world shortage of dollars is reacting favorably for British industry in sterling markets, and some countries—like Denmark and Argentina—which were previously closed to British exports, now are being opened up again by trade agreements.

"Although world conditions, including the saturation of such lucrative markets as Switzerland, may make it difficult for British motor car manufacturers to maintain exports at their recent high level, there is no fear yet in the industry of any catastrophic fall."

Scots Mod Laments Demise Of Gaelic

INVERNESS, Scotland—(CP)—The Gaelic tonque is becoming a forgotten language in Scotland due to the drift of population from the Highlands and Island to the big cities, Dr. John Cameron said in a presidential address to the National Mod.

Scotland's population had risen from 1,500,000 to 5,000,000 in the last 150 years, but the growth was almost entirely in the industrial belt. The outlying areas had been stripped of younger people who preferred city life.

Because a good command of English was thought to be of supreme importance Gaelic is "retreating with alarming rapidity behind the bastions of the Outer Isles," Dr. Cameron said.

Industrial developments scheduled in the Highlands were unlikely to stimulate an interest in Gaelic.

"In my opinion, it is only youth that can now save our language, and the place for formal instruction of youth is the school. . It should be made possible for any child in the Highland area to begin the study of Gaelic at such age as expediency and the circumstances of the area demand."

Legion Puckists Run Wild To Wallop Gans, 22 To 3

Legionnaires opened their 1949-50 OHA senior "B" schedule at Civic Arena last night by trouncing Gananoque 22-3 before a fair-sized crowd. The provincial senior "B" champs were much too good for their ex-intermediate "A" rivals, who were on skates for the first time this season last evening. Clicking on all cylinders, the Legion racked up a 7-0 lead in the first heat of a clean contest, and led 10-1 going into the third. They used their sub goalie, Bud Heath, in the one-sided third canto. But six penalties were drawn, four by the visitors. Between the second and third periods, Mayor Max Swanston made the draw for the B'nai B'rith Club car, a Toronto man winning it.

Rolled It Up

All the Legion snipers fattened their averages in this tilt, with Bill Crowley and Chum Fryia leading the way, each being in on six markers. Bert Hill and Toodie Greenlaw were in on five each, going strong the last half of the game, while Keith Montgomery, Bob Parnell and Joe Rochetta were consistent throughout and each figured in on four goals. Dootch Vitarelli was in on three and Burns two, as Godfrey and Coombs got an assist apiece. Jackson got all three goals for Gananoque and Rines helped on a pair.

The visitors tried hard and showed flashes in spots, but they were outclassed as well as being in poor condition. Legion never let up but kept striking hard at every opportunity to roll up the count. They were strong from the goal out and didn't take it easy at any stage. The Ellis outfit looked good in this game, even though pitted against a soft opponent. The refereeing was good.

Gananoque, Goal, Burtch; defence, Compeau and McCarney; centre, Anderson; wings, Rines and Brown; alternates, Fair, Jackson, Hamilton, V. Keyes, Harper, Steel, Higgins, Leclaire and J. Keyes.

That some of the boys are taking this game seriously was clearly illustrated last night and we for one think that it is a healthy sign. They were discussing a certain rule, and as is always the case in these discussions, opinions differ. Joe gave his opinion, Bill his and we expressed ours. We could all be wrong and we will quote a little paragraph and let it go at that:

"The ultimate object of curling is to develop a manly recreation and to promote goodwill, kindly feeling and honorable conduct among those who take part in it, and this sentiment should influence both the interpretation and the application of all rules."

Jack Allan and his rink had a nice day's outing at the Lindsay bonspiel on Monday.

G. Braund, G. Putnam, E. Braund and H. Hamblin are playing in the High Park, Toronto, bonspiel on Thursday.

Today's quip:

MINOR HOCKEY

Optimist Bantams beat Trojans 5-0 as last night's minor hockey fray proved costly for the Trojans who were left at the blue line in scoring. Play was in their end most of the game and the efforts of the Trojan goaler was all that prevented the score from being doubled. Optimist goals were scored by Pollard, Gardner, Roberts with Brooks getting two.

In a tough battle with both teams evenly matched South End took a close one 2-1 from Marines. The winning marker was set up early in the third period. Quite a few penalties were handed out, most of them for body-checking in the centre ice zone, which is not allowed by OMHA rules. Dupuis set up the lone Marine goal with McGrath scoring for South End.

Players are asked to note that all games start now at 5:30 except Saturday games, which start at five o'clock.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC PERDUE, Sports Editor.

A great many folks were disappointed when Alouettes beat Calgary on Saturday—looked like everyone west of Toronto figured he was a westerner. In fact, Torontonians generally favored the Stamps, too, as they resented the patronizing air of the Montrealers who regard Toronto as a small town. Anyway, the Stamps and their followers were pretty blue. We are told that birds do not see a blue color, as tiny drops of rose-colored oil in their retinae act as filters absorbing the blue rays. Hence, it would have been interesting to see if the Alouettes—or Larks—had a blue look late Saturday if fortune had favored Calgary. Ah, well, just an idle thought.

It would appear that Oshawa Merchants will not have their starry import twirler for next season's COBL campaign—nor will that make Petes' batters peeved. Baz Phelan points out to us an item in the St. Louis Sporting News—pro baseball's bible—stating that one William Gingerich, presently attending a Pennsylvania college, has been signed as a free agent by Chicago White Sox for Hot Springs of the Cotton States League. While Bill was a capable COBL right-hand hurler, and bothered the men o' Murphy plenty last summer, we didn't think he was big league material. Though he may do okay in minor pro baseball.

Those Bodies Beautiful

You've got to see Steve Stanlee in a mat ring to appreciate his fine physique. Mr. America, or the Golden Boy, is a good-looking blond chap built like the physical culture ads. Made a big hit here last week in his first appearance, so they're bringing him back for the show at the Brock Thursday night. But Goon Henry didn't want to meet him, so Stanlee will be matched with rough Joe Christie, while the huge Goon goes against big Wladek Kowalski, another young muscular giant, in the main spot. Wee Willie Davis, who does strong man parts in Hollywood pictures, is back on an eastern tour and will wrestle Toar Morgan, now living in Lindsay, in the semi-windup bout. Three right promising grapple scraps for city and district fans.

Legion managed to yank out a decision over Gananoque here last p.m. to open their senior "B" schedule, the champs just winning by a 22-3 count. Or something like that. If any mistakes occur in the summary, the first one to spot 'em and let us know—writing plainly on one side of the sheet only—will win a pencil worn down to nearly an inch from a badly scuffled and tooth-marked eraser. It's all we can offer this close to Christmas. The ex-intermediate "A" Gans were on ice for the first time this season, but even at that the Legionnaires had a picnic. They all looked good, and we liked especially those bursts of speed Crowley and Montgomery turned on frequently. Fryia, Hill and Greenlaw went well, too, but then they all did.

Dropping A Tough One

Down in Bella Villa last gloaming, the Petes were riding into the last eight minutes of play with a 5-2 lead when the Diesels drove hard, aided by Peterborough penalties, to score four times and wrap it up 6-5 in their senior "B" opener. A real toughie for the Foley flock to drop, and it again shows that this team is one to be reckoned with this semester. Freddy Garvey had his sights adjusted and flipped the burnt biscuit into the Quinte cage three times. Junior West and Murray Fife got the other Petes' tallies, whilst Jim Conlin had two points, Gus Leonard one and West one. Whole team played well and gave their husky home opponents quite a scare before the winning marker was counted with a bit over three minutes left in the game.

An exhibition puck joust has been arranged for Civic Arena at 8.30 tomorrow night between the junior "B" Oddfellows and the senior "B" Petes. Good practice for both, the IOOF-ers in particular being anxious for games to keep in condition as they await formation of a grouping. This will likely be accomplished ere the week ends as Frank Buckland has been trying to line up a good district setup. The main sticker right along has been Oshawa, the "B" bunch down that way not drawing enough to break even in recent years because of junior "A" competition there. But something will be done shortly. And this tussle here tomorrow might be an interesting affair to see.

Petes Lose 6-5 To Diesels In Fine Game

BELLEVILLE, Nov 29—A savage third period onslaught that netted them four goals, three of them coming in 90 seconds, gave the Belleville Diesel Electric team an unexpected 6-5 victory over the Peterborough Hockey Club in the first game of the senior "B" grouping here last night.

The Diesel Electrics were on the short end of a 4-2 score going into the third period and appeared to be a well-beaten team when suddenly they came to life. The Petes, playing a close-checking game featured with clicking passes, had the game in the well-known bag and seemed headed for certain victory when Diesels struck from out of a blue sky.

Paced by 240-pound centre Vern Goyer, who fired home two goals and was credited with an assist on the third, the local Johnny-come-latelies poured in three goals in 90 seconds after Fife had given the visitors a 5-2 edge, and won the game when Jackie Wardaugh took Mulvihill's pass to score the fourth goal in four minutes.

It was one of those games you had to see to believe. It was clean and hard fought with eight penalties dished out by the officials, five of them going to the Belleville team. Collins and MacDonald drew majors in the closing minutes of the game when they fisticuffed.

The Petes drew first blood midway through the first period when Garvey took Conlin's pass to score. Diesels roared back into the picture with quick goals from Williams and Wardaugh to give the locals a period 2-1 edge.

Hed The Edge

But the Petes stole the limelight in the second period. They held at least 90 per cent of the territorial play and fired home three goals, two from Garvey and the other from West. The Belleville squad appeared to be well on the way to defeat, and that feeling increased when Fife rammed home another early in the third period to make the score 5-2.

Then out of the blue sky, Belleville came to life. It happened like that. Three goals whistled past Harding in 90 seconds and the fourth and winner with four minutes to play.

The Petes battled gallantly in an effort to tie the score but the Belleville defence for the first time in the evening held off their thrusts to win the game.

Garvey paced the Petes' attack with three goals and an assist. West and Fife scored the others. The Petes were by far the best team on the night's play with the exception of the sudden scoring orgy in the third period by the Belleville team.

Plumley, Belleville goalie, Wardaugh, Vern Goyer, and Mulvihill looked best for Belleville. West, Garvey, Conlin and Fife with Mortimer stood out for the losers.

The teams:

Diesel Electrics—Goal, Plumley; defence, Williamson and Woodman; centre, V. Goyer; wings, Wardaugh and Mulvihill; subs, Nolan, Schrieber, Bastedo, L. Goyer, Jones, Barrett, Williams, Moher, Macdonald.

Peterborough—Goal, Harding; defence, Jopling and Horton; centre, Fife; wings, Mortimer and Collins; subs, Leonard, West, Garvey, McMaster, Conlin, Legrow.

The summary:

Douglas Of Barons Sets Scoring Pace

NEW YORK, Nov. 29 (CP)—Les Douglas, veteran centre of the rampaging Cleveland Barons continues to set the pace in the American Hockey League's scoring race.

Douglas picked up five points during the last week to zoom his total to 37, seven more than Johnny Chad and Harvey Fraser of Providence Reds.

Douglas also leads the field in assists with 22 and is tied with team-mate Roy Kelly for top honors in goal getting at 15 each.

Kelly, Paul Gladu of St. Louis and rookie Kelvin Burnett of Springfield are in a three-way tie for fourth place in the scoring derby with 27 each.

Recruit goalie Gil Mayer of Pittsburgh Hornets continues to top the netminders. Mayer has allowed 53 goals in 21 games for a 2.52 average. Goalie Connie Dion of Buffalo and Terry Sawchuk of Indianapolis are tied for lead in shutouts with two each.

Indians' Bosses Have Headaches

CLEVELAND, Nov. 29 (AP)—The new bosses of the Cleveland Indians Baseball Club discovered today that they had inherited a pair of headaches from the Bill Veeck regime.

No. 1: Smooth-fielding second-baseman Joe Gordon has informed them he wants to quit and play in the Pacific Coast League. Gordon, who is 34, slumped last season but still socked 20 homers and batted .269.

No. 2: Satchel Paige, one of baseball's all-time top crowd attractions, is on the doubtful list. Manager-shortstop Lou Boudreau says the elderly Negro pitcher's bad stomach might make him a bad risk on the 1950 roster.

But considering the team in general, Boudreau talked optimistically after his first meeting with President Ellis W. Ryan and General Manager Hank Greenberg. He scheduled another huddle with them today.

"I definitely intend to play short next season," said Boudreau.

Lou shifted to Gordon:

"Joe's not washed up . . . I don't know what he has in mind, but I certainly hope he decides to come back."

Dutchmen Pound Mercurys 6-3 To Boost Their Lead

By The Canadian Press.

Kitchener - Waterloo Flying Dutchmen, the new second place team in the Senior "A" series of the Ontario Hockey Association, gave notice last night they are to be heard from before the season ends.

After displacing Owen Sound Mercurys from the runner-up spot during the week-end, the Dutchmen added insult to injury by thumping them last night 6-3 to increase their lead to three points.

In the only other game, the top rung Toronto Senior Marlboros had to fight to the last bell before downing a scrappy band of Hamilton Tigers 5-3.

At Waterloo, the Dutchmen completely dominated play in the opening stanza, rapping in four counters while holding Mercurys scoreless. Ted Grasser clicked twice and Art Hurst and Bobby Bauer counted singles. The Mercurys outscored Kitchener Waterloo 3-2 in the middle frame. Pat McReavy, Mike Bucheski and Harry Kazarian turned the trick in the Mercury cause. Mike Dzuira and Harvey Jacklin did the honors for the Dutchmen.

The teams played through a scoreless third period as both seemed to run out of steam. Sixteen penalties were handed out in the hard-hitting contest.

Use All Tricks

Marlboros had to pull all their tricks out of the bag before defeating Hamilton 5-3. The Tigers tied the count twice before Toronto could salt away the win. When the game ended, it was Marlboro's 13th decision in 17 starts.

Only one marker was recorded in the opening session, that coming off the stick of Don Rope for Marlboros. Murray Comfort got that one back for Tigers in the middle period. Marlboros put on the pressure and finally the old pro—Flash Hollett—came through with a marker to put Marlboro back in front 2-1. Johnny Conick, another veteran performer, knotted it again early in the third frame. He combined with linemate Clare Shillington to pull off the picture play of the night. Lee shoved Toronto out in front again and Johnny McCormack added an insurance marker to sink the Hamilton ship.

Betting On Canadian Tracks Reaches Highest In 27 Years

OTTAWA, Nov. 29—(CP)—The rustle of greenbacks and jingle of coins pouring through parimutuel windows this year created the biggest din on Canadian race tracks heard in 27 years.

Bettors sent $59,550,478 clanking through wickets in 1949, the Department of Agriculture reported today. It represented an increase of $3,371,987 over the $56,178,491 wagered in 1948.

The pari-mutuel take was the highest in Canada since the $59,865,623 wagered in 1922 and considerably below the all-time high of $75,110,551 that changed hands in 1921.

The increase this year over 1948 figures was partly due to the greater number of days set aside for bettors to throng race tracks from Montreal to Vancouver. There were 2,750 races run on a total of 355 days in 1949, compared with 2,632 races over 349 days the previous year.

Purse money for the owners of winning horses rose to $2,957,310, an increase of $171,610 over the $2,785,700 paid in 1948.

Some punters who rarely picked a winner may find it difficult to believe, but $48,544,664.45 fell back into the pockets of bettors.

Ontario Leads

Followers of the gee-gees in Ontario shelled out more than half the money that went into the machines. In 146 racing days they shoved $38,576,514 across the line, $1,210,299 more than the $37,368,215 spent in that province last year.

All six reporting provinces showed an increased pari-mutuel take over last year. British Columbia showed the largest increase $8,638,230 against $7,213,980.

The largest amount wagered at any ne meet was $2,629,382 laid down at the spring meeting of the Woodbine Jockey Club at Woodbine Park, Toronto. The smallest was $806 during a two-day meet at Red Deer, Alta.

Racing statistics for Ontario with last year's figures in brackets:

Days 146 (144), amount wagered $38,578,514 ($37,368,215), prize money $1,640,550 ($1,574,600).

Betting Drops 10% Across U.S.

NEW YORK, Nov. 29 (AP) — Betting at the horse tracks in the United States this year fell off 10.44 per cent as compared with 1948, but the owners of the racing plants generally are pretty well satisfied.

Many tracks, as in New York, had expected a drop of about 15 per cent in the amount of money shoved through the pari-mutuel machines.

A survey of thoroughbred racing by The Associated Press in 20 States—not including harness tracks—disclosed that attendance was down 5.29 per cent from last year. This also was generally less than expected.

However, for the sixth season in a row, betting topped the billion dollar mark, as 22,591,421 persons wagered $1,395,731,778 on the ponies in 1949. A year ago, 23,853,807 circulated $1,558,491,530.

The racing people also point out that there were 290 less racing days this year. In 1948 there were 2,437 racing days, compared with 2,167 this season.

Defenceman Bill Gadsby of Chicago leads the penalty parade with 36 minutes spent in the "cooler" in 19 contests.

Goaler Bill Durnan of Canadiens continues to hold a big margin in the netminding division.

Big Bill has an average of 1.63 goals scored against him in 19 outings. Toronto's Turk Broda is runner-up with a 2.85 average for 20 games. Durnan and Broda share shutout honors with three goose eggs each.

Following a tough week-end in which they lost two games, the league-leading Detroit Red Wings lost ground to the fast travelling Montreal Canadiens. Detroit, with 27 points made up of 12 victories, four defeats and three stalemates, are five points ahead of Canadiens. Chicago and Toronto share third place with 18 points. Boston follows with 15 and New York Rangers are in the cellar with 14.

Bookies' War Threatens Over Awards

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK, Nov. 29—(AP)—A bookmakers' war appears in the making following the disclosure of a big betting coup engineered by New Jersey operators at the expense of their gambling brothers in New York.

Some New York bookies, among those who lost bets estimated at half a million dollars in the recent most-valuable-player polls in baseball are crying "double cross" and refusing to pay off.

They claim that advance notice of the American League's choice of Ted Williams had leaked out and the betting boys from across the river pulled a fast one on them. On the other hand, the Jersey odds-jugglers insist they are entitled to the money they claim rightfully belongs to them.

That there was considerable money being wagered on the outcome of the most-valuable-player competition came to light Nov. 12 shortly before Jackie Robinson was announced as National League winner. The National League choice was made public Nov. 18 and the American League winner exactly a week later.

Some persons knew that Williams had won in the American League at least 10 days before the official announcement. The Associated Press sports department was besieged by phone-callers wanting verification of the Boston slugger's victory.

Expensive Ross

One Manhattan bookie is said to have bets that could cost him $40,000. It is reported another is down $20,000. A small Brooklyn bookie stands to drop $6,000.

Ken Smith, secretary of the Baseball Writers' Association of America, which conducts the poll, said the votes were tabulated Nov. 11 and the results were handed to the printer the same day. The actual voting takes place before the end of the season.

"A lot of people knew about it," Smith said. "I made no deep secret of it. I told any newspaper men who asked me, confidentially. I had no idea that people were silly enough to bet on such a thing."

Ford Frick, National League president, shocked at the news, proposed two changes in the method of conducting the polls.

"The betting stuff is highly dangerous," he said, "and we must kill it off at once . . . I propose that the polls be held after the close of the season. They have been conducted considerably in advance of the pennant clinching, and the system has not worked out.

"I also suggest that the names of the two winners be made public the moment the counting of the votes has been completed."

Canadian Oil Valuable

MONTREAL, Nov. 29 (CP) — Western Canadian oil would play a vital role for the democracies should the Soviet Union turn the cold war into a shooting war, C. O. Nickle, publisher of the Calgary Daily Oil Buletin, said Monday. He told members of the Canadian Club that the United States no longer is able to fuel a war and look after its own civilian needs at the same time, as it did in the Second World War.

Leads Merry Chase

TORONTO, Nov. 29 (CP)—Police fired often and drew lots of blood Monday but failed to halt the flight of a hefty steer after it cleared a stockyard fence in Toronto's west-end. The animal led police, stockyard employees and citizens on a mile chase through streets, open fields and backyards. Police said they fired 18 shots. The steer finally was cornered and toppled by a single shot from a high-powered carbine.

OPEN NORWEGIAN MINES

BLEKVASSLI, Norway (CP)—Pilot mines in the new zinc and lead fields at Blekvassli have produced 2,000 tons of ore in the last two summers. Tests have shown ores with an average of 15 per cent zinc and lead.

WINS GRIDIRON TROPHY — Carl Brioux was presented with the T. J. Cavanagh Trophy as most valuable player on the St. Peter's High School football team at a father and son dinner held by St. Peter's Athletic Advisory Club last evening in the Empress Hotel. Shown above, left to right, are: Johnny Armstrong, team captain; T. J. Cavanagh, trophy donor; and Carl Brioux.

Cavanagh Cup Presented At SPS Dinner

By FRED MAYBEE

Jack Fairs, assistant director of Physical Education at University of Western Ontario, addressed members and guests of St. Peter's Athletic Advisory Club at the father and son banquet held at the Empress last evening.

The speaker gave a detailed explanation of some of the plays and tactics employed at Western under the Metias system and later answered questions of the boys on different phases of the game.

"Football is a great game. After completing a play, the boy gains confidence and self-reliance. He also learns the value of co-operation with his fellow men—a quality he may carry over and apply in later life to good advantage," said the speaker. Fred Allore introduced Mr. Fairs.

Entertains Men

Jim Sharpe entertained the large gathering with two humorous recitations: The Battles of Hastings and Trafalgar, and received a big hand for a pleasing sidelight to the evening's show. Father Houlihan spoke briefly and congratulated the club on the good progress to date. President Roland Hull outlined plans for expansion of the club, dedicated to the promotion of sport among the youth, and announced a meeting December 8 to which interested fathers and others are invited.

Carl Brioux was presented by the donor with the handsome T. J. Cavanagh trophy as the outstanding football player of the season, combining good personal habits, team spirit and all-round drive and ability. John Armstrong was runner-up, receiving a special certificate. Certificates also went to H. Picard, T. Cavanagh, Jr., M. Fitzpatrick, J. Hickey, T. O'Leary, T. Fitzpatrick and H. O'Neill.

Dennis Fitzgerald, donor of S.P.S. letters to all regsitered members of the junior football team, presented these and was thanked by the club. He also thanked Mr. Fairs for his address.

Honorary Members

OTTAWA, Nov. 29 (CP)—R. K. (Andy) Carnegie, retired Ottawa bureau chief of The Canadian Press, and Arthur Beauchesne, retired clerk of the House of Commons, Monday were made honorary life members of the parliamentary press gallery. The honors were approved by unanimous vote at a general meeting of the press gallery and will be formally bestowed at a later gallery function.

By The Canadian Press

Philadelphia Phillies announced at Philadelphia Monday that Jack Sanford has been signed to manage Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League for 1950.

Sanford has piloted the Wilmington (Del.) club of the Class B Interstate League for the last two seasons.

At Toronto, Sanford will replace Del Bissonnette who resigned at the close of the 1949 season when Toronto finished fifth in the triple-A circuit.

Sanford never played major league ball but appeared in the International League in the 20s. He has been managing in the Phils' farm system for the last five seasons.

In 1947 his Terre Haute (Ind.) club finished third in the three-eye league. And his Wilmington teams wound up first and second in 1948 and 1949, respectively.

Sanford, a native of Birmingham, Ala., is a brother-in-law of Ben Chapman, one-time manager of the Phillies, which have a player agreement with the Toronto club.

Ted Williams of Boston Red Sox, elated that he was chosen the American Baseball League's most valuable player for 1949, said Monday at Chicago that three other players were as deserving—if not more so—of the honor than himself.

He named Phil Rizzuto, New York shortstop; Joe Page, Yankee ace relief pitcher, and Mel Parnell, Red Sox southpaw, as the men he thought should get the nod.

Williams, sandwiching in time for a banquet speech between hunting trips, said he was "very disappointed" in not winning the American League batting title. Detroit's George Kell shaded him with a .342.9 percentage to .342.7.

At New York, it is reported that a pair of proposals to bar foreign athletes from participation in national championships in the United States are among 53 measures to be considered by the Amateur Athletic Union at its 61st annual convention in San Francisco, December 8-11.

This type of amendment, in various forms, has been brought up time and again at the conventions and always has been voted down.

Foreign aces are big box office attractions in the United States, especially in indoor track and field events.

One reason for the proposal is that many other countries bar foreigners from national competitions.

Minneapolis holds the lead in the United States Hockey League with two of its players topping the scoring leaders, figures released at Minneapolis show.

George Agar, centre, had 33 points in games through Sunday, Nov. 27 to lead the list with 13 goals and 20 assists, an average of 1.83. His team-mate, Bill Warwick, shared second place honors with Hank Blade of Kansas City. Each had 27, made up of 13 goals and 14 assists in both cases.

A third Minneapolis player, Glen Sonmor, was tied in third position with Dick Butler of Tulsa, each with 25.

Gus Mell, 148½, of Montreal, was felled in the first round but came back to score a second-round knockout over Ben Jones, 150, of Tarboro, N. C., Monday night in the feature fight at Eastern Parkway Arena at Brooklyn.

Mell was floored for a seven count in the first round. But he opened up a second round assault that dropped Jones twice before the referee stopped the bout after a minute and 45 seconds.

At Kansas City, Joe Louis, showing a little paunch, demonstrated Monday night he still has plenty of punch in a 10 round exhibition boxing bout with Johnny Flynn of Rochester, N. Y.

The retired world heavyweight champion caught Flynn with a left in the ninth round and put the Rochester boy down for a count of eight.

Louis' weight was announced as 222 pounds. Flynn weighed 210.

Dick Miller, general manager of the Indianapolis American Hockey League club, said Monday at Indianapolis defenceman Al Dewsbury had been reassigned to the club by the parent Detroit Red Wings.

Dewsbury, a native of Goderich, Ont., who started the season with the Indianapolis club, will rejoin it for the Wednesday night game with Cincinnati.

Vessel Damaged

MONTREAL, Nov. 29 (CP) — A Canadian National Steamships spokesman said Monday night that the 7,907-ton vessel Lady Nelson had suffered "a fair amount of bottom damage" when she ran aground on a mud bank 40 miles upstream from Quebec Saturday night. He said the ship would undergo temporary repairs at Lauzon, Que., and then would proceed to Halifax where she will enter drydock.

160 Monks Have Developed Great Farm In Mountains

By MICHAEL O'MARA

DUBLIN, Nov. 29—(CP)—About 160 Irish, English and Scottish monks, priests and lay brothers, working and living in the brooding Knockmealdown Mountains of County Waterford, are showing that Cistercians—the great farmers of the middle areas—can repeat their ancient successes under 20th century conditions.. Inside the monastery on Mount Melleray, the gates of which are closed to women, six-inch, block-letter signs demand "silence." Talk is taboo here.

Outside the gates, where the monks cultivate a 1,000-acre farm, only the roar of giant tractor-driven reapers is heard.

About a century ago, a group of pioneer monks, whose graves lie near the fine new monastery church, came to this barren place to start the farm.

With picks and crow-bars they pried from the hills great chunks of limestone to build their home. With prayer and hard labor they set about cultivating their land.

Second to None

Now, expert agriculturists say, they have built up an establishment second to none among hill farms in the British Isles.

Its surplus produce finds a ready market because of its high quality and low price, while increasing mechanization is yearly boosting the farm's output. Grain and dairy produce are its staple products.

The brothers lead austere lives. Their 17-hour day starts at 2 a.m. winter and summer. Their diet is vegetarian. They must not speak without express permission, must read no newspapers, and hear no radio.

Michael Carroll, 66, walked into a Dublin bank manager's office a month before sterling devaluation was announced and asked for a loan of £1 (3.10).

The manager said, "I don't know you."

Carroll replied: "I don't know you either, but give me a pound and I will give you 10 shillings for it next month, because it is going to be devalued."

He was gven 56 days in jail for using abusive 'and obscene language when the manager refused.

When he had served 28 days of his sentence, the devaluation announcement came.

Mr. Justice Shannon, apparently feeling Carroll's prophecy had been vindicated, remitted the other 28 days.

U.E.-C.I.O. Applies for Certification

THE INTERNATIONAL UNION OF ELECTRICAL, RADIO AND MACHINE WORKERS - C.I.O. HAVE APPLIED TO THE ONTARIO LABOUR RELATIONS BOARD FOR CERTIFICATION AS THE BARGAINING AGENT IN THE PETERBORO CANADIAN GENERAL ELECTRIC PLANT. THIS INFORMATION IS OF VITAL IMPORTANCE TO EVERY CITIZEN IN THE COMMUNITY. IT IS OF PARAMOUNT IMPORTANCE TO EVERY GENERAL ELECTRIC WORKER.

How is Certification Obtained?

When an application for certification as the bargaining agent is sent to the Ontario Labour Relations Board an inspector is generally sent to check on the signed cards. The Board can decide upon the basis of that inspection to grant certification without a vote or it may decide a government supervised vote is advisable. Every employee in the bargaining unit is eligible to vote.

IF AN EMPLOYEE DOES NOT VOTE HE IS CONSIDERED AS VOTING IN FAVOR OF THE UNION HOLDING THE PRESENT CONTRACT RIGHTS, IN THIS CASE THE U.E.

THE MAJORITY OF GENERAL ELECTRIC WORKERS HAVE JOINED THE NATIONAL UNION OF ELECTRICAL, RADIO AND MACHINE WORKERS—C.I.O. (the U.E.-C.I.O.) because they realize that only a Union assured of the support of the Congress of Industrial Organizations and the Canadian Congress of Labor has sufficient bargaining strength to deal with industries such as General Electric.

Why have General Electric Workers turned away from the U.E.?

The majority of General Electric Workers in Peterborough have turned away from the U.E. because the U.E.'s Communist Leadership and Policies have resulted in the U.E. Being Expelled From the C.I.O. and Having No Voice On The Executive Council of the C.C.L. The actions of the U.E. have caused public opinion to turn against the U.E. Enlightened General Electric workers know that a Union operating under such handicaps as the U.E. has created for itself Can No Longer Serve The Interests Of the Members.

What can the U.E.-C.I.O. do for the General Electric workers of Peterborough?

The International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers C.I.O. will bring to the General Electric Workers a Union that will be an integral part of the Congress of Industrial Organizations and the Canadian Congress of Labor. It will give to the General Electric Workers the assurance of the collective strength and bargaining power of the C.I.O. and the C.C.L. It will bring to the General Electric Workers the benefits of a sound, Trade Union operated on free trade Union principles and not used merely as a pressure group to influence public opinion in favor of Communist propaganda.

The Outlaw U.E. Cannot Bring Contract Gains to General Electric Workers. The U.E. has isolated itself from the labor movement. Local 524 of the U.E. has as its present leaders people who have Never Negotiated with the Company. Local 524 of the U.E. has No bargaining strength—No Capable Leaders—it is supported only by Jackson's appointed followers and those who have not yet seen through the screen of Communist propaganda.

The U.E.-C.I.O. will endeavour to speed up the Conclusion of Contract Negotiations. It will NOT skim lightly over Seniority, Job Evaluation, Vacation Pay and Welfare Plans. The U.E.-C.I.O. knows that General Electric Workers are entitled to Reduced Hours and Wage Increases. The U.E.-C.I.O. will Not be handicapped in Negotiations by the Lack of Experienced Negotiators. The U.E.-C.I.O. CAN Win Contract Improvements.

THE U.E.-C.I.O. MEANS BARGAINING STRENGTH.

THE U.E.-C.I.O. MEANS FREE, DEMOCRATIC TRADE UNIONISM.

THE U.E.-C.I.O. HAS APPLIED FOR CERTIFICATION IN PETERBORO GENERAL ELECTRIC.

THE U.E.-C.I.O. RELIES UPON GENERAL ELECTRIC WORKERS TO HASTEN THE CERTIFICATION AND CONCLUDE CONTRACT NEGOTIATIONS.

Cesar Romero Parts Friends With His Studio

By BOB THOMAS.

HOLLYWOOD, Nov 29 (AP)—Cesar Romero and 20th-Fox have come to a friendly partly after 13 years of association.

"Actually it has been 15 years," the actor recalls, "because I was under contract to 20th Century for two years before it merged with Fox."

"There was no trouble between the studio and me," he said "I just wanted to get out of the rut. I had been doing some pretty bad pictures."

Romero is now playing a meanie in his first outside film, "The Iron Cage." He next plans a color musical which will be filmed in England and Scotland next year.

Cuff Notes

Betsy Drake is the happiest girl in town, now that Cary Grant is back "I've been homesick for him— or is it 'himseick?'" she remarked on the "Here Lies Love" set....

Snow Saves Life

TORONTO, Nov. 29 (CP) — Allan Cairns had reason Monday to feel thankful for Toronto's heavy snowfall last week. Police said he probably saved his life by jumping headfirst into a snowbank to put out the flames that enveloped his head from ignited gasoline. Cairns' car had run out of gas, and he was pouring some from a can when the fumes ignited. He suffered burns to head, face and arms.

Toronto Homes Get Tax Relief

TORONTO, Nov. 29 (CP)—Toronto homes assessed at $4,400 or less will get extra tax relief in 1950, city council decided Monday night. Partial tax exemption on these lower-class homes will be increased by 10 per cent.

The Ontario Municipal Board, in approving the higher exemption, has ruled that ratepayers are to ratify the move by vote on the 1951 election day, council was told.

Councillors said that smaller taxes on lower-class homes will mean increased taxes on others to balance the total. The tax exemptions, designed to help lower-income families, in 1950 will range from 50 per cent exemption on homes valued at $2,000 or less to 10 per cent on those valued from $3,851 to $4,400.

Story Of Britain To Be Shown In '51 Festival

By NORMAN CRIBBENS.

LONDON, Nov. 29 — (CP). — Aptitude of the British people for "living and working in groups, yet retaining their individuality," wil be shown in one of 30 exhibition buildings planned for the 1951 Festival of Britain.

"This section will show that we are a mixed race, the product of many invasions and assimilations," said Gerald Barry, director-general of the £11,300,000 ($34,030,000) Festival, who sometimes broadcasts to Canada on world affairs.

"It will show how our various ancestors lived, and what we owe them, in a series of vivid demonstrations."

Detailing plans for the Festival, Barr said another section will demonstrate how British character and tradition have been perpetuated in Canada and other Commonwealth countries.

"But our main purpose," he added, "is to tell the story of Britain and that in itself is so extensive that we shall not have room on the Festival site for a comprehensive picture of the Commonwealth."

Tell Story of Britain

While Barry was speaking, Henry Osborne, Labor member for Acocks Green, Birmingham, asked in the House of Commons if any plans were being considered for taking part of the exhibition "to other parts of the British Commonwealth, notably Canada—perhaps Toronto?"

"Would Toronto not be rather a good place at which to exhibit some of our products?"

"I will keep that point in mind," replied Herbert Morrison, Lord President of the Council, "but at the moment I have enough problems in taking it over Great Britain and the United Kingdom."

Speaking on Festival finances, Mr Morrison told how expenditure had been reduced from an original estimate of £14,000,000 to £11,300,000 for Festival expenses in London and other parts of Britain.

"I am satisfied," he said, "that with ingenuity, enterprise and care the Festival organization will be able to put on a first-rate effort for the money available.

House Approves Principle Of Federal Highway Grants

OTTAWA, Nov. 29 (CP)—The Commons Monday approved the principle of a bill providing for federal contributions to the construction of a Trans-Canada Highway.

While supporting the principle, some members urged that the government contribute more than 50 per cent of the original cost of the highway and assume the maintenance charges when the road is completed.

The debate occurred before second reading—approval in principle—was given to a bill authorizing the federal government to pay by half the cost of a $300,000,000, two-lane, hard-surfaced highway from Victoria, B.C., to St. John's, Nfld. It will take in Prince Edward Island as well.

At the outset of the debate, due to be continued today, Reconstruction Minister Winters indicated he expects work on the highway to start next spring if agreements can be reached with the provinces.

No province has indicated that it does not wish to proceed with its share of the project, said Mr. Winters. He said the highway would not be national in scope unless all provinces participated. Without such participation, the federal government would not be justified in providing the measure of assistance it planned.

National Aspect

The provinces had been informed that the federal government's contribution was being made by reason of the national aspect of the problem. Participation by the Dominion, he said, was contingent on the provinces entering into agreements with the Federal government.

When the federal legislation is passed a Dominion-provincial conference will be called to settle technical details of the proposed route. No date for the conference has been set.

Besides paying 50 per cent of the cost of new construction, the Federal government will pay the provinces 50 per cent of the cost of existing roads that will form part of the Trans-Canada Highway.

The Federal government is suggesting that the highway be paved a width of 24 feet and the minimum right-of-way be 100 feet.

Members of the three opposition parties and George Cruickshank (L—Fraser Valley) said the Federal government shou'd assume more than 50 per cent the cost.

Legislation Disappointing

Howard Green (PC—Vancouver-Quadra), terming the legislation disappointing, said the Federal government should contribute more than 50 per cent in British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan and Newfoundland where special construction obstacles had to be met. A. J. Brooks (PC—Royal) added New Brunswick to the list, saying it cost about $100,000 a mile for highway construction in that province.

Joseph Bradette (L—Cochrane) and Maurice Bourget (L—Levis) expressed surprise that Mr. Green, as a member of a party which constantly upheld provincial autonomy, should suggest federal interfence in the provincial field of highways.

Mr. Bradette took exception to earlier remarks by Mr. Green who, he said, had "imputed motives" to Trade Minister Howe. He lauded Mr. Howe's contributions to Canadian life.

There was no way of telling whether the estimate of $300,000,000 would be enough for the full cost of the road. There was no doubt that figure would have to be amended, possibly to the extent of another $50,000,000.

Stores To Take Boxing Day Tuesday, Dec. 27

While other cities are puzzling the position of Boxing Day this year, local merchants have decided that they're going to have a holiday, Tuesday, December 27. Through the Peterborough Business Men's Association the local store operators plan to be closed Monday, December 26, as a Christmas Day holiday and Tuesday as Boxing Day. Christmas Day actually falls on Sunday.

Other Ontario cities are still working over the Boxing Day problem which arises this year. The Windsor City Council passed a bylaw in 1939 which declared Boxing Day a civic holiday. No thought was given to the situation where Christmas Day falls on a Sunday, although a clause in the bylaw provides a holiday Monday for Boxing Day when Christmas falls on a Saturday.

Two schools of thought in civic circles there argue that since no provision was made for such a case as this year that no holiday was intended. The other group believe that since Christmas is on Sunday and Monday a statutory holiday, Tuesday should be a civic Boxing Day holiday. The case is in the hands of the Windsor City Council.

Long Week-end

Besides having to stock up on edibles for the long Christmas week-end, Peterborough housewives this year will be doing a repeat performance on New Year's week-end for the stores have decided to celebrate the arrival of the New Year on Monday, January 2.

Last minute shoppers are warned that the local stores will be closed at regular hours Monday and Tuesday, December 19 and 20. Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, December 21, 22, and 23 many stores will remain open until 9 p.m. December 24 the stores close at the regular hours.

There will be no half-holiday on the Wednesdays before and after Christmas.

Want Control Of Minnow Bait

A fair attendance of members of the Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association met on Monday evening to elect a new slate of officers for the coming season. President Campbell Rowatt resigned due to pressure of personal affairs and no one was nominated to head the Association. It was decided to leave the issue until the next meeting. Mr. Rowatt was elected to represent his Association on the steering committee of the proposed Cedar Lakes Recreational Area from which a Board of Directors will be chosen.

The most talked-of subject was the minnow bait problem confronting fishermen in the Peterborough district. A proposal is being prepared to conserve minnows from the present method of taking them at random from lakes, where they are natural food for growing game fish. It is felt by the members that commercial license holders who now net them for a nominal fee, be forced to raise minnows in artificial rearing ponds and not deplete game waters as the practise has been and still exists.

The conservationists feel that individual fishermen who net minnows for their own bait should stop this practice and buy from the operators of rearing stations. The practice of stripping lakes of natural fish food has reached alarming proportions, they say, and that such a method as they propose will go a long way toward curbing depletion. Charles Weir, Department of Lands and Forests, Lindsay, gave the members a report on the subject and told of control methods used on this problem in the United States.

Will Abandon Centre Site If Costs High

Expected bids for the foundation of the Memorial Community Centre at Rink and Townsend Streets should be accompanied for comparison purposes by alternate tenders on a normal site.

This proposal from the architects was approved by the council Monday night. The architects are W. & W. R. L. Blackwell and J. S. Craig.

A letter from Mr. Craig informed the council that tenders for the foundation of the Centre at George and Rink Streets would be called shortly.

"We have checked with our consulting structural engineers regarding the cost of preparing structural foundation plans for the building on a site which would have a normal bearing (three tons per foot). Preparing these extra foundation plans and obtaining alternate tenders would mean an extra fee of $500 over and above our fee as outlined in the contract between the city and ourselves.

"We do not believe that the obtaining of tenders for foundation at Rink and George Streets would be particularly valuable unless tenders for foundation on a normal site were obtained for comparison purposes.

"We estimate that the preparation of these alternate plans would take approximately one month after obtaining your approval of the extra fee and your authority for us to proceed with the preparation of the plans."

A comment by Ald. Adam Sands, who moved assent to the suggestion from the architects, seconded by Ald. Grant Miller, briefly explained the position of the council.

"If the foundation costs on the George St. site are exorbitant we'll pass it up," he said.

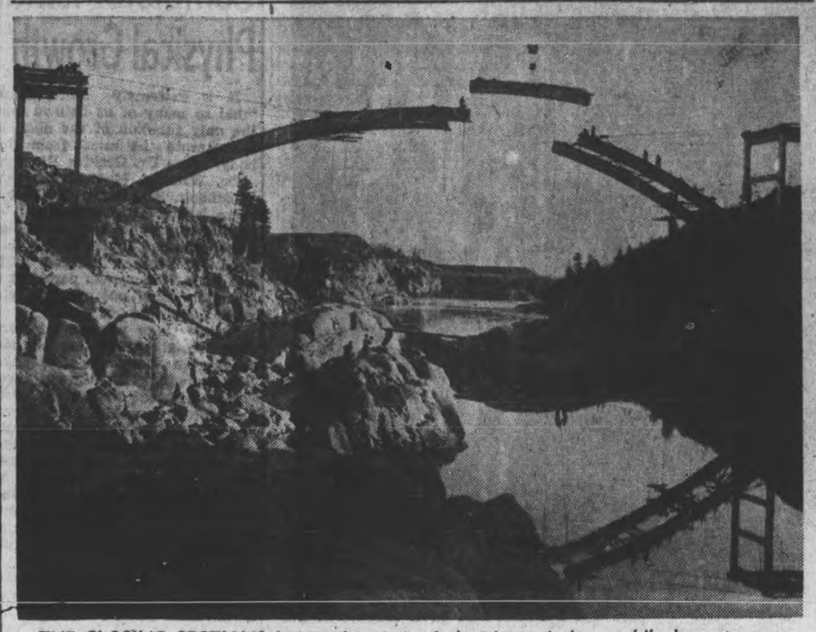
City council this year offered the Rink-George site to the Centre Committee. Previous consideration by the committee had investigated the doubts of subsoil conditions.

Borings to hardpan were said to involve heavy additional cost, and for that reason, as they determined it the circumstances below the surface, the committee backed away from that site. Others were then mentioned and examined, and finally the council returned to George St. and offered it to the committee again.

Want Two Estimates

Finally, instructions were given to get an estimate of the cost of foundation on that site, and the architects point out that an estimate of the cost of the Centre there would be of little purpose and value unless comparable foundation costs on a normal site were obtained.

Ald. Doug Miller recalled that a special committee had been appointed to get contractural cost of the proposed foundation at Rink St. It was hoped that several firms specializing in that kind of work would be consulted.



Mayor Sanston replied the architects now had ready their foundation plans for George St. "They think any tender we got for the foundation on that site should be lined up against the estimated cost of a foundation where they say conditions would be considered normal. What we are interested in still is the site."

Ald. Hurrell Dodds: "What we want is to get the difference in foundation costs at Rink St. and at some other where normal foundation would be needed. It would then be up to the Centre committee to look after the plans for the building."

Ald. Sands reminded Mayor Swanston that "unofficially you said the council would be responsible for the difference in foundation cost. But, we have to find out first what that difference is likely to be."

"That's right," Mayor Swanston agreed.

Presumably, however, the previous comment of Ald. Sands still holds, that excessive foundation cost at Rink St. would force the abandonment of that location.

THE CLOSING SECTIONS being placed in the arch of the "Arvida Bridge" over the Saguenay River in Northern Quebec. This all-aluminum bridge, 500 feet in length, is the first of its kind in the world. It spans the Saguenay River between the model City of Arvida and the world's largest power development at Shipshaw. Total weight of this bridge will be 200 tons as compared to 400 tons for a similar steel structure. It is expected that the bridge will be opened to traffic in the spring of 1950.

Work Started On Enlarging Sewage Plant

The George Hardy Construction Company has begun the first stage of their contract of enlarging and completing the sewage disposal plant. Machinery is on the ground and temporary buildings have been set up for office and storage needs.

City council Monday night authorized Gore and Storrie, consulting engineers, to order new motors and pump parts and to buy a fourth pump at a total cost of $22,000, which is reported to provide a saving of approximately $7,000 from the original estimate.

Ald. H. Dodds, chairman of the board of works, said that the alterations and improvements of the pumps and motors that are now in use would result in doubling their capacity. A fourth pump is required to provide increased pumping capacity as the city grows and also to meet unusual conditions such as heavier volume of water in the sewers following excessive rains.

Ald. Dodds said these changes in the pumping resources of the plant would eliminate an expected installation on the west bank of the river as originally contemplated for the purpose of pumping sewage to the plant on the east or south bank. His motion for the proposed purchases as recommended by the engineers was seconded by Ald. D. Miller.

Toronto Labor Council Would Oust Leftists

TORONTO, Nov. 29—(CP)—The Toronto Labor Council (CCL) Monday night asked the Canadian Congress of Labor to expel the leftist United Electrical Workers and seat its rival union the Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers. The UEW recently was expelled from the Congress of Industrial Organization, parent body of the CCL, for alleged Communist domination.

Car-Bus Collide Breaks 3 Teeth

Sixteen - year - old Douglas Johnson, 650 Armour Rd., had three top front teeth broken when his car skidded into the rear of a city bus driven by Victor Fairbairn, 9 Duffus St., about 7 a.m. today.

Johnson told Constable Douglas Farthing he was driving west on Hunter St. behind the bus. The bus stopped at Driscoll Terrace. Johnson said he put on his brakes but his car slipped on the icy road into the back of the bus. It is believed his teeth hit the steering wheel.

Both front fenders of the Johnson car were buckled; the radiator was pushed back and the anti-freeze leaked out, and the hood was twisted. Slight damage was done to the bus.

Keene YP Entertained By Deft Cartoonist

The regular Monday night meeting of the Keene United Church YPS was held in the church hall Monday night. After the devotional service Mr. Tom Gall, leader of the group, introduced Gord. Bailey, cartoonist on the staff of the Peterborough Examiner, who entertained the group with a series of humorous sketches. Mr. Bailey later called upon members to come to the platform and start a new drawing with a few of their own chosen lines, and he completed them with a few deft strokes into character sketches of human faces. Rev. George Murray moved a vote of thanks to the artist for an "unique and enjoyable evening."

Miss Isobel Murphy was in the chair and conducted the meeting.

Council Receives CNR Bid To Close Line

C.N.R. application to the Board of Transport Commissioners to close their line between Millbrook and Port Hope was read at the council meeting Monday night, with some passing comment, and sent on to the Industrial Commission and Chamber of Commerce.

"I have talked to some of the manufacturers," said Mayor Swanston, "and they don't seem to be greatly interested. The Chamber of Commerce is not much interested. The action of the C.N.R. would not affect many local interests."

Ald. H. F. Waddell: "Will the company take up the rails?"

Mayor Swanston: "Between Port Hope and Millbrook. The C.N.R. will look after anything between here and Millbrook."

City Clerk Outram said light express would be trucked between Peterborough and Millbrook, and once a week a train would be run to Millbrook if necessary.

Council Congratulates Editor Of Examiner

City Council's congratulations to Robertson Davies on recently receiving the Canadian Drama Award was expressed last night in a resolution by Ald. Hurrell Dodds, seconded by Ald. Doug. Miller.

"Our congratulations and appreciation of the success of Mr. Davies for his achievements in the drama world," was the phrasing of the council's recognition of the talents of Mr. Davies.

"We are all proud of his accomplishments," Mayor Swanston said in presenting the resolution to the council.

Ald. Dodds said the council was always happy in recognizing the prominence attained by Peterborough citizens. Tribute was most often paid to athletic groups for the honor they brought to the city.

But, Mr. Davies had risen to prominence in another field, that of authorship and the theatre. "His work, Fortune My Foe, is becoming widely known throughout the British Empire," Ald. Dodds said.

Stolen Car Recovered

A car stolen from Hunter St. near Aylmer St. was recovered by police about four or five hours later on Aylmer St. near Murray St. early Sunday morning. William May, 191 Antrim St., told police he left his car parked about 8:30 p.m. Saturday. When he returned two hours later, the car was gone. There were no keys left in the car. Traffic officer Claire McGillen and Constable V. A. McConnell discovered the car about 2:20 a.m.

Offer Fair Prices For Site Of New City Hall Rather Than Arbitrate

"We hope to avoid as far as possible arbitration with the property owners," said Ald. Hugh Waddell in replying Monday night to an enquiry by Ald. Doug Miller respecting progress of negotiations for the site of the new city hall. "Is the council going to review the offers of W. H. Bosley before there is any resort to arbitration?" Ald. Miller asked. "The reason I am asking this is because one of the owners told me he certainly didn't want to go to arbitration, but in his case he did not feel that Mr. Bosley was offering enough money."

Ald. Miller said this owner was receiving an income from the property that was more than he could realize from use of the sum that was being mentioned.

Ald. Waddell said Mr. Bosley had begun negotiations with owners and would first report to the special committee appointed to obtain options. "We are working on the principle that the city should offer a fair price. We don't want to buy at a sacrifice by an owner, nor do we feel that the city should pay an exorbitant price. We have one property ready for consideration and a few more are pending. Mr. Bosley has prepared his own values, and we also have the figures which the council received several years ago by the committee appointed for that purpose. So, we are going at it as thoroughly as we can. We are hoping that prices will be settled by mutual agreement. The committee has not had any definite information yet, but it will have."

Ald. Waddell said approval by the council was a detail of the procedure.

$30,000 Asked For 20 Acres Eyed By Board

Mrs. Nellie Conroy of Edmonton, Alta., formerly Nellie Zimmerman of Peterborough, is valuing at $30,000 the 20-acre property, part of which is occupied by the Tom Hughes car-wrecking business, on the west side of Monaghan Road.

Her claim was conveyed to the council Monday night by Hall and Hall, solicitors.

This property extends from Monaghan Road to Erskine Ave. in the vicinity of McKellar St.

Board of Education is interested in 18 acres as the prospective site of a Collegiate Institute of future requirement.

When the council was considering the project of expropriating the property it was said in their meetings that they were not certain whether it belonged to Thomas Hughes or to Mrs. Conroy.

Litter Fenced

About the same time, the council had delivered an order that the Hughes tangle of tin was to be cleared off that corner, and out of the city. The last that was heard of this gesture of cracking-down was that the wrecked cars were now framed by a high fence.

Objections to the council from residents on the east side of Monaghan Road, who had expended comparatively large sums in new houses, apparently fetched up on the high board fence.

Mrs. Conroy rates the house at $10,000 and the land at $20,000.

Petition Against Enlarging Dairy

A petition from residents of Sherbrooke-Reid Streets objected to enlargement of Campbell's Dairy. Increased traffic around the plant with more noise was mentioned as affecting property values and general neighborhood conditions.

Mr. Jacob Low, solicitor, supported the appeal to the council against granting a building permit.

Response of the council is that the corner is zoned for light industry, "and we can't do much about it." The petition is being referred to town planning committee "for verification."

Town planners are also being asked for an explanation of an obstacle encountered by Ernest G. Johnston in his intention to transfer his used car lot business from 437 Mark St. to Lansdowne St., south side, near the turn to the Locks bridge.

Mr. Johnston told the council town planners had placed a residential restriction on the locality because it is surrounded by business, garage, hatchery and so on.

"I appeared before the planning committee," Mr. Johnston said, "but they maintained it was a residential area."

Ald. Doug. Miller said he heard some one talking about building on the property.

A Dodds-Gillespie motion requests a report from the planning committee.

BLAME POOR VISIBILITY

Poor visibility for converging traffic at Bennett and Aylmer Streets is believed a contributory cause of a minor accident there Monday. A car driven east on Bennett by Earl Clark of Riverside Drive collided with another driven by James W. Throop, 634 Montrose Avenue. Neither man was injured, but there was a total damage of $60. Provincial Constable George Henderson investigated.

World Need Said Complete Mental Physical Growth

It is extremely unfortunate "that so many of us believe that the only function of the neck is to separate the mind from the body," says Dr. Griffith Binning.

Dr. Binning, Medical Director of Schools, Saskatoon, Sask., says there is increasing evidence that intelligence is not a static thing, nor should one expect it in childhood. Intelligence increases with age during the growth period at a definitely fixed rate provided adverse factors do not exist.

"When these adverse factors slow mental growth they are also adverse enough to slow physical growth," Dr. Binning says.

He states that distressing, local, national and world conditions are when summed up, the result of a world composed of individuals whose growth is immature. The crying need of the world is for populations composed of individuals possessing complete growth, full strength to meet the increasing difficulties of the times.

Health in childhood means uninterrupted growth, uninterrupted physical, mental, and emotional growth so that the child can be "big enough" for its tasks which lie ahead. But since growth is a dynamic thing—not static—its measure must be made through use of dynamic methods of measurement, through flow charts which show where the child is now in relation to the past and which will allow deduction where it is heading.

These charts must be simple, so that anyone can understand them, they must be sensitive enough to changes in physical, mental and emotional well-being so that they measure not only the major but minor ones as well, if these are affecting well-being.

Dr. Binning states that such a study requires a three dimensional chart where two common measurements are combined and then collectively plotted against time.

Local Painters On Display In Library Titillate Interest

Refreshing and pleasant is this sixth annual exhibition of the Peterborough Group of Painters, now hanging in the upstair gallery of the Public Library. There are few people who try to express Peterborough and its surrounding district in words, none who attempt it in music, but here are 14 people, some with no pretensions of being more than amateurs, a few whose work is good by professional standards, who are interpreting this district with brush and colour. For that reason alone, the exhibition is worth a visit.

There are, amazingly, 86 canvasses on view, and one frame of medals in bronze and gold plate by the Peterborough medallist Stanley Hayman. The paintings, generally modest in size, are well hung, and pleasingly varied.

Two Outstanding

Outstanding of course are Jack Hamer and Winnifred Lampman, with ten or a dozen paintings each. Mr. Hamer's work is a boon to Peterborough. I shall be surprised if half of his paintings do not sell like hot-cakes, because they are good, and also ridiculously low in price. Three appealed more than others: his Eel's Creek Mill, his Cache Lake (wonderfully serene and fine) and his water-colour Rural Garage. Mrs. Lampman has a fine feel for texture, and great competence. I liked her ballet dancer (one of the few figure paintings), the movement of her Windy Sky, and the delightful Nancy and Michael. Her Trilliums points her ability to convert texture as well as atmosphere in a limited subject.

Gertrude Cox is showing nine pieces, a tendency to purple hues (rather interesting, and particularly because others in the Group are going in this year for the same tinges—even to frames). The hue gets full prominence in Rainy October Day. Her rock and pine pattern is controlled and interesting. There is a large canvas Autumn Bouquet, which strikes the eye.

President's Water Colours

The late Alfred L. Hatton, until his death in October, President fo the Group, is represented by seven water-colours. His brush is sure and careful, his colours clean. I liked best his Roofs of Port Hope, for at long last somebody has caught the most distinctive graphic aspect of the town—its hills and roofs. His Bear's Creek Bush is warm, his Birches reminiscent. His ability in seascape is presented in unusual guise in Winter, Cobourg Beach, with a tilted sky-line. His Hagerman's Wharf in its detail and freshness gives a scene pleasantly familiar to us all.

Space does not permit of more than a cursory survey of the other painters represented. I here append their names, and rashly, canvasses which I thought at a rapid reading were most effective. I should mention that I found Maralin Munro's designs pleasing, and her Portrait interesting for its likeness and its colour mood: Bonnie Carlisle (Summer Sky—luminous); George de Long (Mill Pond at Fergus—repetition of style and theme of last year); Madeline Hamblin (cottages-pictorial); Mary Lee (Harvest—a plush, amorphous sort of thing); Margaret Londerville (Tiger Lilies—careful); John McKechar (in Lakefield Park—striking but not convincing greens); Helena Munro (The Harvest—serene, a fineness in style and technique of this painter); Betty Weir (Fishing Boats—derivative, but pleasant); Florence Wilson (Falling Leaf—technical demands overcame the good impression).

It is a show worth investigating. It comes down at the first of next week.—T.J.A.

Mine Casualties Slight-Reds

BERLIN, Nov. 29 (AP) — The Russian army newspaper Taegliche Undschau confirms today that a fire occurred at an eastern-zone uranium mine but says the casualties were slight—only 19 cases of light smoke-poisoning.

The British licensed Telegraf said Monday 2,000 miners died in a mine fire in the Erz mountains of Western Saxony. It said the blaze broke out last Thursday.

The British-licensed paper had reported the blaze broke out at the Johanngeorgenstadt and then spread to two more mines and set off a dynamite dump.

In its morning edition today the British Telegraf charged that wholesale arrests of German officials at the mine were being made by the Russians.

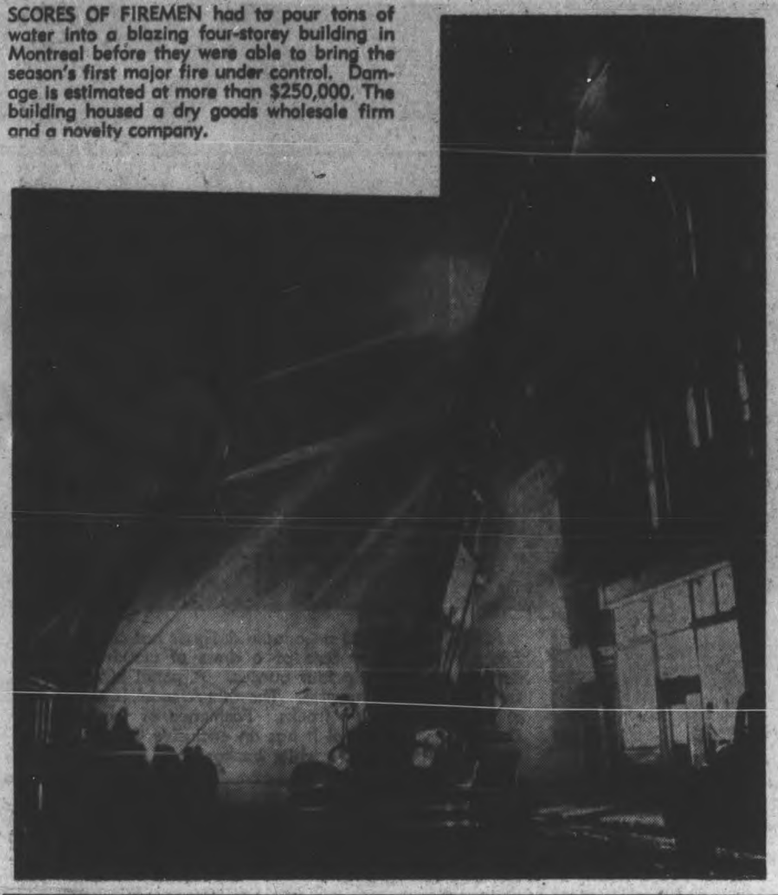
The Canadian Family owes much to... France

CANADA, land of opportunity, owes much of its strength and vitality, and the rich quality of its democracy, to the blending of racial and cultural heritages from many lands.



It is a matter of pride to all Canadians that so many races, without sacrificing their national characteristics, have united themselves into one great citizenship — the Canadian Family.

Ever since the days of Jacques Cartier, famous French explorer of the 16th Century, Canadians of French descent have played a leading role in moulding Canada's destiny. Today, French Canadians are our largest racial group representing almost one third of Canada's population.

Distinguished in the arts and sciences and outstanding in their chosen professions, they have made a major contribution to Canada's progress while their thrift and devotion have earned for "les Canadiens" the wholesome respect of their fellow citizens.

Growers Expect To Export 2,000,000 Christmas Trees

By IRVING C. WHYNOT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HALIFAX, Nov. 29—(CP)—An estimated 2,000,000 families in the United States will enjoy Christmas this year around a tree grown in Nova Scotia.

The Christmas tree business, started 16 years ago, now has grown to a full-sized seasonal industry bringing thousands of dollars into the province. It's difficult to estimate its exact value.

The 2,900,000 trees being shipper this year will bring about $106,000 to the growers, owners of the land on which they were cut. These growers are paid from two to 35 cents a tree, depending on size, shape and other factors, if they do the cutting. If the buyer has to cut the trees the price to the grower is about 15 cents a tree or less.

But that is only half the story. The men who truck the trees to the nearest railway siding make about $2.50 an hour. The tallyman, who keeps the records, gets another $6 a day.

Then sorters and others take over to separate the trees according to size and shape and tie them in bales. These emen receive about $8 a day but some, working on a piece basis, have earned as high as $17.50. Common laborers in the yards earn from $5 to $6 for burning scraps, cleaning up the yards and loading trees on railway cars.

Add all these jobs together, and it makes a flourishing little business.

Fall Contracts

The trees usually are sold through buyers who arrive from the United States far in advance of the cutting season opening late in October. They have received their orders previously from the wholesalers and retailers at home and know exactly how many trees to contract for.

Once across the border, the trees are sold through florists, service stations, fruit and vegetable stores and street corner salesmen.

The balsam fir tree, only type permitted to be cut for this purpose in Nova Scotia, brings from $2 to $4 for an eight-foot tree, the most-desired size. Fr others, the price ranges from 50 cents for table trees, to $15 and $20 for oversized ones for parks and other outdoor spots.

Contrary to the belief of some people, the lands and forests department of the province said this annual cutting of young trees will not ruin the forests "if sound forestry practice is carried out."

In a report tabled in the Legislature, District Forester R. R. Murray said he believed a "Christmas tree crop should be an accepted part of every managed farm wood-lot, bringing a yearly income from the forest and getting the farmers more interested in the farming and management of his woods."

But he suggested that the growers themselves make contacts in the United States and sell their trees direct to obtain a greater return for their work.

To Head Executive

OTTAWA, Nov. 29 (CP)—Dr E. C. Beck of the Ontario Health Department Monday was elected to head an all-Ottawa executive chosen at the annual meeting of eastern branch, Ontario Civil Service Association.

SIGN OF THE SEASON—United States demand for Christmas trees has developed a full-scale seasonal industry in Nova Scotia. An estimated 2,000,000 trees are being shipped to the United States this year. This photo shows some being unloaded from a truck at Chester Basin, Lunenburg County, for shipment by rail.

Police Turn Bloodhounds Loose On Jewel Thieves

EAST GRINSTEAD, England, Nov. 29—(AP)—Police Monday set a pack of bloodhounds on the trail of jewel thieves who made a £50,000 haul from the home of Col. Ian Anderson, wealthy company director.

The Anderson residence, Old Surrey Hall, was once used by Henry VIII while hunting in Ashdown Forest. It is surrounded by a water-filled moat.

The robbery occurred during a dinner party given by Anderson Sunday night for his family and eight guests.

Mrs. Anderson and her daughter, Ruth, discovered after the party that their bedrooms had been ransacked and the jewels taken.

Miss Anderson said the gems cost £15,000 before the war and would be worth more than three times as much now. The loot included two emerald and diamond bracelets, an emerald and diamond brooch and a diamond ring.

Anderson is chairman of Fortnum and Mason, London, luxury store, and a director of the Piccadilly Theatre.

In London, thieves took jewelry worth £800 Sunday night from the hotel room of Lord and Lady Sinclair. Lord Sinclair is a member of the King's Bodyguard for Scotland.

New Zealand Goes To Polls

AUCKLAND, N. Z., Nov. 29 — (CP)—New Zealand's (New Enterprise" National party makes an all-out effort at the polls tomorrow to oust a Labor government that has held office since 1935.

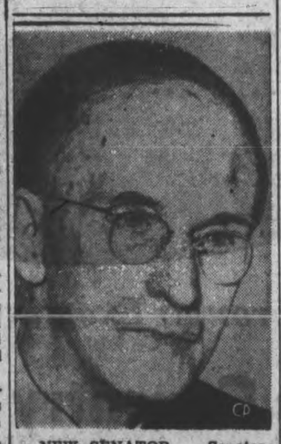
A nip and tuck battle is expected. After having its representation in the House of Representatives cut to 19 in the 1935 election, the National party crept back to a point where the 80 seats were shared almost evenly in the last election three years ago.

Side issues of the campaign have been largely subordinated to a major tussle between Socialism and Private Enterprise. The Labor party has plugged a "security for all" program while the National party his promised to reduce government controls and restore incentives.

Prime Minister Peter Fraser and opposition leader S. G. Holland both expressed optimism as the campaign drew to a close.

Crusty, Scots-born Fraser, 65, has accused the National party of seeking to reduce wages and social security benefits.

Holland, 56, a successful manufacturer who has worked ceaselessly to reorganize his party, says that what he wants is a reduction in the cost of living which would increase the value of wages and social security.



Living costs have climbed recently despite the government's stabilization program which maintains controls over wages, prices, rents and real estate and subsidizes certain essential commodities.

Exporting Anthracite

LONDON, Nov. 29 (Reuters) — Britain is exporting anthracite coal again to the United States — for the first time since the war — with a shipment of 3,500 tons sold in Boston, it was learned here today. Negotiations are under way for another two cargoes. New England used to buy up to 100,000 tons of Welsh anthracite a year.

Acquitted of Murder

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Nov. 29 (AP)—An unwed (Negro) mother who buried her new-born baby alive was acquitted Monday of a murder charge. Twenty-year-old Ida Roberts had been indicted July 13, five days after the child was buried in a shallow grave in her back yard.

Marriage-bent Girl Found Difficult To Set Aside

DEAR MISS DIX: I have got engaged to a girl. I don't know how or why because I don't love her and don't want to marry and I realize that she would not make me a companionable wife at all. Besides, I don't want to marry and I'm not in a position to marry if I did want to. I have told the girl this and she threatens to take some very drastic steps if I break the engagement. Can you suggest anything to do?

M. H. D.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: A girl who is that determined to marry is certainly a formidable proposition and she will get you if you don't watch out.

So, son, stand firm. Don't let her bulldoze you into marrying her if you don't want to, because marriage is no picnic even at its best and it is a hell on earth at its worst.

Regards as Meal Ticket

And certainly its worst phase is when a man is shanghaied into it against his will by a woman who evidently regards him as meal ticket. Because no woman of any delicacy of feeling would be willing to marry a man against his will or drag an unwilling bridegroom to the altar.

I should say in your case the best thing for you to do would be to play a waiting game and simply wear her out. You do not need formally to break the engagement, but you can make it so uninteresting to her and so hopeless of any results that you can make her break it. As long as you are not married to her she has no jurisdiction over you, so you can run around with other girls as much as you please. Nor has she any power by which she can compel you to make dates with her, so if you just quit cold and never go to see her anymore, what can she do about it?

Always you have the perfectly valid excuse that you are not financially able to marry and are in no position to support a family.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Seven years ago when I was quite young I was in love with a fine young man. We had a foolish quarrel and in the midst of it he was called away on business and I never heard from him any more. As I thought he had given me up, I married a good man, but he only lived a short time. Lately my first sweetheart has come back and has made my mother confess that she intercepted the letters he wrote me asking for a reconciliation. Now this man wants me to marry him, but he has two children whose mother was an immoral woman who ran away and left them, but I feel that I cannot take these little girls for fear they might turn out like their mother. Yet I cannot bear to give him up and the worry over it is killing me. What shall I do?

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Marry the man and forget the past. Be a real mother to these poor little motherless children and rear them up into being fine women.

Don't be afraid of their heredity. Environment works wonders, and, if you bring these little girls up in a clean home that is full of love and happiness and instill ideals of purity and honor in their minds, there will be no danger of their following in their mother's footsteps.

And think what a great missionary work you will be doing. What greater good could you do in the world than to take this poor distraught man, with his helpless little children, and give them a wife's and a mother's love and care and comfort? And I am sure you will get your reward in having your old romance come true at last after so many trials and tribulations.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a young girl working in a department ment store and love pretty things. One of my many admirers wants to give me a coat. My mother objects. We are not engaged. I want this coat very badly. Should I accept it?

FRANZ

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Certainly not. Girls should not take expensive gifts from men to whom they are not engaged. One good reason for this is that the man always expects to be paid for his gift.

McColl Couple Married 32 Years

APSLEY, Nov. 29.—(ENS). — Mr. and Mrs. Hugh McColl celebrated the 32nd anniversary of their wedding Friday. They entertained a number of relatives and friends at their home in the evening.

Their son, Chesel, showed several reels of motion pictures, some of the local scenes taken by himself.

Winners of contests were: Marion Roberts, Charles Alphy and Les McColl.

Lunch was served by the hostess, Mrs. Chesel McColl, Mrs. H. Leard and Mrs. Montgomery. Mrs. McColl Sr. passed the wedding cake to her guests.

Hugh McCol is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Alex. McColl and was born north of the village. Mrs. McColl was formerly Julia Earnshaw, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Earnshaw Sr.

Married In City

They were married in Peterborough and have lived in and around Apsley ever since. They have two sons, Chesel of Apsley and Leslie of Chandos. One son, Clifford, died a few years ago. There are two adopted children at home.

Mr. McColl has always followed the occupation of sawmill owner and carpentry.

Mrs. McColl is a valued member of St. George's Ladies' Guild and Apsley Women's Institute.

They are members of the congregation of St. George's Anglican Church.

The couple received many gifts of linen, chinaware and silverware.

Those from a distance who attended were Mr. and Mrs. John McColl of Norwood and Mr. and Mrs. H. Leard of Peterborough.

Regrets Card Omission In Christmas Parcels

Mayor J. R. Hall of Peterborough, England, has written regret that parcels from Peterborough, Ontario, were distributed without identifying cards which would have enabled recipients to return thanks to the donors.

"The cards were mislaid when the parcels were originally forwarded, and consequently the donors will receive no personal acknowledgment cards or letters of thanks," His Worship wrote.

Meanwhile 400 eight-pound parcels have also arrived from Peterborough. They are being forwarded, each with a card from the donor here.

"I have told Mr. K. S. Grills, executive director of the United Emergency Fund for Britain, that provided the parcels are addressed to The Worship the Mayor of Peterborough, Town Hall, Peterborough, I shall arrange for the parcels to be distributed as quickly as possible, and also for the recipients to be advised to send acknowledgment cards to the donors, and also to write personal letters of thanks.

Mr. Mayor, I should like to convey to you the appreciation and gratitude of the people of this city for the continued expression of goodwill of the citizens of their sister city in Canada, and to send to you and to the people of Peterborough, Ontario, my personal wishes for their happiness, succes and prosperity."

Department Officials At Warden's Funeral

Funeral service for the late Irvin James Lyons, former Peterborough and district game warden, was held on Monday at the Nisbett funeral home. The Rev. Dr. James Semple of George Street United Church officiated. Honorary pallbearers from the Department of Lands and Forests, Toronto, were Dr. McCrimmon and conservation officers Armitage, J. Billings, J. F. L. Simmons and N. Van Wyck. Active bearers, all conservation officers, were A. E. Pennell of Gravenhurst, R. A. Haines of Coldwater, J. S. Dorland of Alliston, E. W. Smith of Orangeville, G. B. Buie of Stayner and J. S. Ellis of Maple. Burial was at Little Lake Cemetery.

Mr. Lyons died suddenly on Friday at his home in Washago at the age of 55. He left Peterborough five years ago, where he had been stationed for a term of 10 years. He was a member of the Masonic Order and of the Canadian Legion, having served in the First World War.

Whistling Meter Man Recalls Glasgie Postie

No matter how long away from his native soil a Scot continues to look for and cherish those features in his adopted land that remind him of home.

"As shown by a recent incident in Peterborough, even the whistle of a cheery workman can bring on a wave of nostalgia.

A public utilities commission man, employed reading hydro meters, whiles away the time on his house-to-house visits by highly musical whistling. And he is noted for his courtesy to residents.

And the link with Scotland? Whistler of Giffnock

Well one Sherbrooke St. resident who comes from north of the Tweed associated this cheery hydro man with the famous whistling postman of Giffnock.

A suburb of Glasgow, Giffnock boasts of—among other things—a postman who not only discharges his duties in a capable manner but provides musical entertainment for those whom he meets on his rounds.

The whistling postman one day gives the tune of a lark and the next that of the blackbird. And the residents eagerly awaits this versatile mailman every day.

His perpetual song-bird tunes have given Giffnock the name "the cheeriest place in Glasgow."

Alderman Wants Nurses' Home By Next June 1

Ald. Grant Miller insisted on Monday night that Robertson Construction and Engineering Company should adhere to the council's stipulation for completion of the nurses' residence of Civic Hospital by next June 1.

The council recently agreed to assume the cost of $613 for tile brick which had to be purchased in Buffalo as a result of a fire in the premises of an Ontario brick company from which the contractor had arranged for supply.

Ald. Miller recalled that he had proposed the motion assenting to this payment "to speed up the job because it might have cost us a great deal more in delay if the contractors had to wait indefinitely for months before the materials were available from the Ontario company."

"They accept the money and change the date to the end of June. I don't intend to change it."

Hope For June Completion

In the discussion, it transpired that City Clerk Outram, in writing the Robertson Company informing them of the council's willingness to pay the $613, had told them the later date would be acceptable. Apparently this suggestion was based on an understanding that the Governors of the hospital expected its completion some time in June.

Ald. Dick Raine said: "There is no set date for the completion of the hospital. We hope to have it finished some time in the month of June."

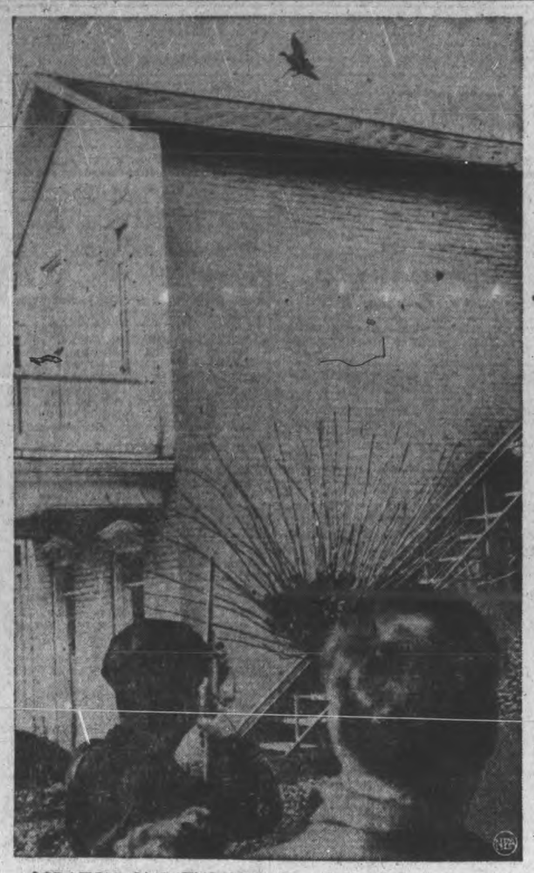
Ald. Miller said the June 1st date was suggested to him in a conversation with one of the Governors. "My intention was to get the work on the residence speeded up, and certainly to avoid any delay on our part. So a reasonable date was set. I am now quibbling about picking a date that suits Blake Robertson. I am not changing my mind, and we should tell him that the date is June 1."

Cobourg Mayor Says Canada Richest Nation

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 29. — (ENS).—"Our country is richer in natural resources than any country in the world," Joe Smith, mayor of Cobourg, told the Rotary Club Monday. "How are we going to protect ourselves while we develop these resources? There are nations that would like to have our wealth," he declared.

"We must keep thinking on the basis of tomorrow," he continued. "The United Nations organization must be brought down to the level of the common man."

He said that unless we think we shall find ourselves in a third world conflict. "Hitler organized the youth of Germany for war. Every boy at the age of eight became a chattel of the state. Let us educate our youth in the belief that war is unnecessary."



Older people had to make untold changes to adjust themselves to the new situations. "No one can forsee the destructive forces that will be released in the next world struggle for survival," he declared.

Ralph Locke introduced the speaker and H. J. Taylor moved the vote of thanks. President Charles Calver was in the chair.

SCRATCH ONE TURKEY—Ray Ball of Columbus, O., won his turkey in a newspaper carrier contest, but it took the eagle eye and quick trigger of patrolman Edgar Williams to keep it for him. The turkey was snapped by photographer Herb Workman just as Williams' bullet picked it off the rooftop where it had fled when young Ball tried to stake it out in his back yard.

How To Play Canasta

By WILLIAM E. McKENNEY

Canasta, the new card game, will prove popular because it is a light partnership game. It is said that the game comes from Argentina, and the word "canasta" in Spanish means basket. However, I am inclined to think that it is a development of Oklahoma, a double-deck game of rummy that was introduced a few years ago.

In playing Canasta, you literally have a "wild" time. In the four-handed game, there are four jokers, all wild of course, plus the eight deuces, which are also wild.

Canasta can be played by any number of players from two to six. When two or three play, each plays for himself. Four-handed is a partnership game and is the ideal way to play Canasta. If you have five players, put three on one side and two on the other. For six-handed, have two teams of three players each.

Some play six-handed with three pairs of two players each, but it is much better to play it as a four-handed game; and when there are three players on a side in either five-or-six-handed, have the third player sit out one hand. At the end of a hand, the player sitting out comes in and one of the others of his side goes out.

In three-handed Canasta, the player who sits behind the weak player—that is, the player who receives the discards of the weak player—is bound to win. The weak player will not remember the cards in the discard pile, and therefore his discarding will make it rather easy for the next player to pick the pack and win.

The swings in two-handed Canasta are terrific. In other words, the play depends entirely upon who gets control of the pack. And these terrific swing hand may prove boring. While it can be played two-or three-handed, I want to recommend the four-handed game to you.

There are quite a few rules in Canasta, but they will come to you quickly as you play it. There is some variation in rules among proponents of different styles of play, but I consider those described in this series to be basic and the most authoritative. They are the rules approved by Albert H. Moorehead, noted authority on American card games. If you want his rules in permanent form, you can buy his book on Canasta for a quarter from the Greystone Press, New York City.

Before we go into the rules of Canasta, let me point out some of the important differences from the ordinary game of rummy. In Canasta, sequences do not count. In other words, you cannot meld three cards in a run such as the seven-eight-nine. You can only meld three or more of a kind.

The object of the game is to score points by melding card. Each card has a scoring value, and in addition, there are certain bonus values, the greatest of which is the forming of Canastas.

A Canasta consists of seven of a kind. A Canasta composed of seven natural cards of a kind, such as seven fives, is termed a natural Canasta. Canasta also may be made up of natural cards and wild cards, but no Canasta can have more than three wild cards. You may add natural cards or wild cards to any Canasta. They do not increase the value of the Canasta except for the point value of the cards themselves. However, if you add a wild card to a natural Canasta, you reduce its value to that of a mixed Canasta.

Tomorrow: Melding and forming Canastas.

11 Jobless Tramps Use Heated Coaches

TORONTO, Nov. 29 (CP) — Eleven unemployed transients from Northern Ontario, New Brunswick and Quebec were charged with trespassing Monday night as police said increasing numbers of jobless men are coming to the city without funds and no place to sleep.

The men were arrested sleeping in heated railway coaches in railway yards.

Police said all downtown hostels are filled and transients, who used to sleep in freight cars, now pick heated coaches because of the weather.

Towing Vessel

HALIFAX, Nov. 29 (CP) — The RCMP cutter Irvine headed for port today with the disabled fishing vessel St. George in tow. The 176-ton United States vessel asked aid Monday while she was 112 miles southeast of Halifax, her engine disabled and making little headway under sail. The St. George carries a crew of 24.

Lions Entertain 125 Boys, Girls

Lions Club members entertained 125 boys and girls at their annual boys' and girls' night at the Kawartha Club Monday night. Each member brought his children and the bachelors had to bring a nephew, niece or one of the neighborhood children. It was a must that each member be accompanied by a boy or girl.

Jack Dane, recreation director, acted as master of ceremonies. Between courses at dinner he conducted a singsong assisted by Jack Buchanan.

Following the dinner, contests were held with sleighs, trucks and dolls being the prizes.

Extra entertainment was supplied by Ann and Murray Mander who played selections on the marimba. Murray also gave an imitation of a train on the drums and whistle.

Before leaving each boy and girl was given a bag containing candy, oranges and toys.

100 Farmers Answer Fenelon Fire Call

LINDSAY, Nov. 29—A burning barn was saved from destruction by a bucket brigade in Fenelon township Sunday morning.

The fire started about 10:30 a.m. from a blow torch which the farm's owner, Vernon Mark and his father were using to thaw out frozen water pipes. Details of how the barn itself caught fire were not available.

As soon as the fire started, the alarm was sounded and in a matter of minutes the first of about 100 farmers from all over the district began to arrive.

They quickly tore out the southwest corner of the barn and forked out a mow of hay to enable the fire fighters to get at the blaze. It was this action, said one witness, that saved the barn.

Despite a strong south-east wind, the bucket brigade using a cistern and a well as a water supply, were able to put out the flames.

Livestock which had been led from the barn were taken back to the barn for shelter.

Dresden Faces Racial Split

DRESDEN, Ont., Nov. 29 (CP) —The racial issue that some months ago split this southwestern Ontario town, burial place of the negro Uncle Tom who inspired Harriet Beecher Stowe's "Uncle Tom's Cabin," looms anew in the municipal election campaign.

At a nomination meeting Monday night in a packed town hall, Percy Carter, negro, was one of 21 nominated for council.

Council already has decided to hold a plebiscite during the election on whether the people want a licensing bylaw to prohibit restaurants from refusing to serve other than whites. It was the action of a couple of restaurants in barring negroes that caused a furore earlier this year.

Addressing briefly an audience that did no heckling, Mr. Carter said: "Nobody in this hall can be blamed for racial discrimination—it's been here for a long time."

Renominated for the mayoralty, Mayor Walter S. Weese said: "I am against racial discrimination, but the answer to this question must come from the soul of man. The proces may be slow, but it may be sure."

Dresden also will vote on three other issues: whether to have a police commission, a combined beer and liquor store, and parking meters.

Three Grain Titles Awarded To Canadians

By ROBERT MARJORIBANKS.

CHICAGO, Nov. 29 — (CP) — Three of the four major grain championships in the 1949 International Hay and Grain Show belong to Canadian growers Monday.

Crowned during the week-end were:

Wheat Queen—Mrs. Amy Grace Kelsey, Erickson, B. C.

Oats King—Sydney H. Pawlowski, Spedden, Alta.

Rye King — Albert Kessel, Rosetown, Sask.

The fourth title, Barley King, went to L. E. Peterson, Victor, Mont.

For Mrs. Kelsey, 56-year-old lady farmer who grows wheat on an experimental plot on her ranch in the Kootenays, it marked the second time she has taken down the premier award in the big grain show. She was victorious in 1946, when she became the only woman to ever capture the wheat prize.

Her sample of Reward hard-red spring wheat, weighing 66 pounds to the bushel, won Mrs. Kelsey a second major title in two weeks. She was named world wheat champion Nov. 15 at the Royal Winter Fair in Toronto.

Not Present

The British Columbia grower wasn't present to accept the award, but on hearing the news at her Erickson home said she was "elated" to keep the honor in Canada once again. Canadians have held a virtual monopoly on the wheat championship, taking top laurels on all but four occasions since the Chicago show started in 1919.

Pawlowski, who only decided to enter his oats 10 days before the deadline, gave Canada the grand oats championship for the 10th straight time. United States farmers have won the prize only eight times.

The 21-year-old farmer, of Polish-Ukrainian stock, won the title with a victory variety sample weighing 48.2 pounds a bushel.

Kessel, the rye king, farms at Rosetown, Sask., 220 miles northwest of Regina. He also won the rye award this year at the Toronto show and his best previous showing at Chicago was in 1947 when he earned a fourth in wheat.

Peterson, the barley king from Montana, exhibited a sample of the Thorpy variety weighing 56.7 pounds a bushel. It was his fifth barley victory at Chicago since 1926.

Judging in the International Livestock Exposition, held in conjunction with the hay and grain show, will hold the spotlight today.

Other Canadian winners at the show Sunday included:

Mac Gibbons Adamstown, Ont., won the alfalfa championship.

Earl Brackett, Morpeth, Ont., garnered top honors in yellow corn.

Tarbat Field Marshall, owned by Grant Campbell, Moffat, Ont., won the Reserve Grand Championship in the bull division of the Shorthorn Sale Show.

Chorus Girl Dies

TORONTO, Nov. 29 (CP) — While her mother was flying from England, to be at her bedside, Jill Thomason, 26-year-old chorus beauty, died in hospital Monday night. The tall, red-haired English girl was captain of the chorus line in the Prince George Fiesta Room floor show. Fellow dancers said she was stricken with pneumonia after the second show Saturday night.

Toronto Council, Mayor Object To Contract

TORONTO, Nov. 29 (CP) — Mayor Hiram McCallum and members of Board of Control on Monday night objected in City Council to a two-year employment contract signed two months ago by city assessment commissioner A. J. B. Gray with the town of Timmins.

The contract calls for $17,500 salary for the two-term period. Mr. Gray's salary with Toronto is $10,000 a year. The Mayor criticized Mr. Gray for accepting the Timmins post without notifying Toronto Council. The Timmins contract calls for spare-time services of the commissioner.

A city by-law restricting outside activities by civic employees was rescinded during the war. Mr. Gray said Monday night he would end the Timmins contract, rather than place Toronto in an embarrassing position, if Timmins will release him.

Lithographers Back On Strike

TORONTO, Nov. 29 (CP) —A membership meeting of the Toronto local of the Amalgamated Lithographers of America (CCL) Monday night rejected an employer bid to insert two new clauses in a proposed contract.

The rejection meant the continuance of a dispute that has lasted 26 weeks and closed down the industry in several Canadian cities. Lithographers at London announced earlier that picketing of companies involved in the dispute had been resumed.

Arthur W. Brown, Canadian vice-president of the union, said the clauses would have jeopardized the security of union members. He said one demanded the right to refuse to keep employed or give preference to any worker after his return to work on Dec. 1, the date proposed for ending the strike.

Last week the strike seemed settled when some 850 workers in Quebec and Ontario voted to accept an offer made by the Canadian Lithographers Association, representing the employers in 36 plants.

The union at that time abandoned its demand for a reduction from 40 to 37½ hours in the work week and for a company financed pension plan.

Largest Ore-Carrier Makes Good On Trials

LORAIN, O., Nov. 29 (AP) — The Wilfred Sykes, largest and fastest iron-ore carrier on the Great Lakes, "more than came up to expectations" in her trial run Monday in Lake Erie.

E. B. Williams, vice-president in charge of engineering for the American Ship Building Company which built her here, said that "despite 30-mile head winds, the ship made 17.44 miles an hour."

The run Monday was from here eastward past Cleveland and back. The run was made nearly 13 months after the 78-foot vessel's keel was laid. The boat was named for Wilfred Sykes, chairman of the board of Inland Steel Corporation, owner of the $5,000,000 giant.

The Sykes is about 40 feet longer than other big bulk freighters. It has a capacity of 20,000 tons.

Claxton Starts Paris Talks

PARIS, Nov. 29 (CP)—Defence Minister Claxton of Canada started a round of conferences yesterday with French ministers and defence chiefs prior to Dec. 1 opening of the meeting of the defence committee of North Atlantic Pact countries.

He planned talks with Rene Pleven, French Defence Minister, and Gen. Revers, chief of the French General Staff. Topics will include Atlantic Pact questions which will come up at the defence committee meetings which Claxton described as representing the "final stage in completion of the organization of the North Atlantic Pact."

He said that all five regional groups in the pact have been set up and are at work and progress reports will be received. An important question, he said, will be the report of the military production and supply board held in London earlier this month and consideration will be given to "strategical requirements."

The Canadian Defence Minister was received at noon today by the Military Governor of Paris and accompanied by Canadian Ambassador Georges Vanier and Lt.-Gen. C. Foulkes, Chief of the General Staff, placed a wreath on the tomb of France's unknown warrior at the Arc de Triomphe.

CHILD IS PAWN—Marguerite McGahey, 3, poses with Mr. and Mrs. William Sabott, an Albany, N.Y., couple accused of holding her for debt. The child has lived with the Sabotts since she was nine days old. Her mother Mrs. Ann Sazynski, says they are holding Marguerite for non-payment of the board bill. The Sabotts are battling for the child's custody.

Two Women Guilty In Counterfeit Case

BROCKVILLE, Nov. 29 (CP)—Mrs. Blanche Cipolla, 25, of Guelph, and Miss Edith Lafreniere, 24, of Brockville, Monday pleaded guilty in county court to five charges in connection with the passing and possession of counterfeit $10 bills. They were remanded to December 5 for sentence.

The women were arrested here Sept. 18 after a storekeeper reported to police that two women had attempted to pay him with a counterfeit $10 bill. Police said they had found $1,500 in bogus $10 in the room where they were staying here.

The investigation here touched off another at Guelph, where police arrested Mrs. Cipolla's husband, Frank. Police said a raid on the Cipolla home yielded $42,000 in counterfeit bills.

Both women changed their plea to guilty Monday after pleading innocence at the preliminary hearing.

No Wage Boost As Costs Steady

DETROIT, Nov. 29 (AP) — A lack of change on the American cost-of-living front will leave the wages of 290,000 General Motors workers untouched for another three months.

It was the second straight quarter in which the government's cost-of-living index failed to fluctuate enough to bring about a wage boost or cut.

In fact, there was no change at all in the index between July 15, the last time G.M. wage scales had been computed, and Oct. 15, on which Monday's announcement was based.

Wages of hourly-rated General Motors workers are pegged to the index, put out by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, under contracts with the United Auto Workers (CIO) and the United Electrical Workers Union, recently ousted from the CIO.

Both contracts were signed a year ago last spring and extend through next spring. A similar arrangement covers 65,000 non-union salaried employees.

Sees Chance For Peace

NEW YORK, Nov. 29 (AP) — Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery said Monday there will be no more wars if the United States continues to send military and economic aid to Europe. Lord Montgomery, supreme commander of the Brussels Alliance, spoke at an informal reception given him at city hall.

Bishop Urges Birth Control British National Policy

BIRMINGHAM, England, Nov. 28 (AP)—A Church of England bishop urged Britain Monday to sterilize the unfit and make birth control a national policy.

Dr. E. W. Barnes, Bishop of Birmingham, said unless this is done Britain will become perilously overcrowded. He called the British Isles "the paupers of the English-speaking world."

The bishop told the Birmingham Rotary Club the Labor government's welfare state has made the problem more pressing than ever.

"We must get rid of the slovenly, vicious, idle wasters of the community," Dr. Barnes said. "Unfortunately, the welfare state is only to likely to encourage their increase."

Dr. Barnes said the population of England and Wales alone has risen from about 4,000,000 in Elizabethan times to 11 times that today.

"We must limit immigration, whether from India, South Africa, the West Indies or eastern Europe. We must educate our citizens to have smaller families, we must have medically controlled sterilization of the grosser forms of unfitness."

Dr. Barnes said many Britons are coming around to the view that there should be medically-controlled euthanasia — mercy death—for defective babies. He added:

"At least 90 per cent of feeble-mindedness is inherited. A time is quickly coming when sterilization of the unfit will have to be essential in our social organization. Such sterilization may well be in fact the complement of the welfare state...."

Declare U.K. Reticent About Lumber Order

OTTAWA, Nov. 29 (CP)—The United Kingdom is showing a "great deal" of reticence in disclosing the amount of lumber she will import from Canada in 1950, a Trade Department spokesman said Monday.

Despite constant prodding by Canadian officials in London, the UK government still has left in abeyance the possibility of giving the maritime lumber companies another contract next year.

The general expectation is that Britain will make a sharp cut in the 500,000,000 board feet she purchased from Canada in 1949.

Widow, Six Homeless

OTTAWA, Nov. 29 (CP) — A widowed mother and her six children were rendered homeless Monday night by a flash-fire that destroyed the two-storey frame home occupied by Mrs. Nora Barnes. All occupants of the house were absent when the fire of undetermined origin broke out about 9 p.m. EST.

NEW ZEALANDERS REJECT SOCIALISM

Deadly Atomic Weapons To Be Explored By U.S. In New Secret Tests

Will Use Proving Ground In Mid-Pacific But Time Kept Hush-Hush, Russians, Other Visitors Not Wanted

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30—(AP)—Some more and probably even more deadly, atomic weapons are going to be explored by the United States in a secret test. It will be weighty with meaning for Russia and the rest of an A-bomb conscious world. A joint announcement by the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission and Defence Department Tuesday night gave the place—the mid-Pacific proving ground in Eniwetok Atoll—but kept the time. It said only that tests are "planned."

There was an obvious reason for concealing the month, week or days on which the tests will be made: to foil any attempt by Russian submarines or airplanes to steal close enough to the Atoll to make some technically useful observations.

Scientists here believe that Soviet bombs are far behind the new and vastly more powerful designs developed by the United States.

Apparently no foreign visitors, friendly or unfriendly, are wanted at Eniwetok for the forthcoming tests.

The announcement said "full security restrictions as required by the atomic energy act apply to all aspects of test preparations, including the time of the tests."

This was interpreted in some quarters to mean that the rigid provisions of the atomic law, prohibiting transmission of secret data to any foreign power, would mean that Britain and Canada wouldn't be invited to send observers.

This policy would be in line with the previous Eniwetok test of three weapons in April and May of 1948, when none but American military men and scientists of the commission was present.

Up to now the United States has exploded eight atomic weapons. Two of them were dropped in wartime on the Japanese cities of Hiroshima and Nagaski, the others exploded in the initial pre-attack test at Almagordo, N.M., in the 1946 tests at Bikini and at Eniwetok.

It was clear that the forthcoming Eniwetok tests are to test fire weapons improved in design and efficiency even since the 1948 explosions.

Recently in a television broadcast Senator Edwin C. Johnson (Dem. Colo.) talked of new bombs "six times the effectiveness of the bomb we dropped on Nagasaki" and of "considerable progress" toward perfecting a "super bomb" with 1,000 times the effect of the Nagasaki bomb. It wasn't clear whether Johnson meant those already tested in the 1948 Eniwetok experiments were six times as powerful or whether he was talking of some yet to be proof-fired.

FRANKFURT, Nov. 30—(Reuters)—The United States high commission for Germany last night announced that it had dropped licensing requirements for German political parties in the American zone of Germany.

New Coal Strike Threatens United States

NEW YORK, Nov. 30—(AP)—The United States was threatened with a new coal strike at midnight tonight, and only a last-minute move by John L. Lewis's United Mine Workers Policy committee seemed likely to avert the walkout.

The 200-man committee was scheduled to meet here at 4 p.m. EST, and Lewis, whose moves the last few days have been shrouded in secrecy, was in New York for the all-important session.

Mine owners were reported standing solidly against any contract concessions, and there was no indication of government intervention.

Reports from Key West, Fla., where President Truman is vacationing, said Presidential advisers apparently were clinging to the hope of an 11th-hour resumption of negotiations between Lewis and the operators which would permit extension of their three-week truce, expiring at midnight.

The policy committee had been directed by Lewis to meet here Monday, but at the last minute the session was postponed until Tuesday, and then again until today. Lewis offered no explanation for postponing the meetings.

Lewis abandoned his old-time policy of "no contract, no work" when the miners' agreement with the operators expired last June 30.

A short work week and a 52-day strike were interrupted Nov. 9 by Lewis's order to go back to work.

Rent Controls Go On Trial

OTTAWA, Nov. 30.—(CP). — First step towards placing Federal rent controls "on trial" will be taken tomorrow.

F. P. Varcoe, Deputy Minister of Justice, will confer with Chief Justice Thibaudeau Rinfret of the Supreme Court of Canada to discuss a date for testing the validity of Federal rental regulations.

Mr. Varcoe will put this question before the Chief Justice:

"Are the Wartime Leasehold Regulations ultra vires either in whole or in part, and if so, in what particulars or to what extent?"

Township Has Problem Most Land Tax Free

ST. CATHARINES, Nov. 30—(CP)—The Grantham Township Council has turned up a real problem, the fact that more than twice as much land in the township is tax free as that which is taxable. The list of the tax-free properties include federal canal lands, experimental farms, wartime housing, hydro and highway properties, schools, churches, sanatorium city parks, waterworks and a cemetery.

An effort will be made soon to overcome this unfavorable position, which Councillor Stuart Fleming declared was too much of a burden for the ratepayers.

Council also has decided to submit to the electorate on Jan. 2 the question of a public utilities commission for the township, which is arranging the purchase of the hydro facilities. Expectations are that this will be complete in 1950.

Get 5 Years For Thrill

TORONTO, Nov. 30—(CP)—Two thrill-hunting gunmen today were sentenced to five years for armed robbery and two years concurrent for having a loaded revolver following conviction for two holdups that netted them $82. Robert Sanson, 21, and Jean Marois, 26, pleaded guilty of a store robbery that yielded $21 and a theatre box-office holdup that gave them $61. Sanson told the magistrate he bought the gun "to have some excitement."

Chungking Falls To Red Troops Without Fight

HONG KONG, Nov 30 (Reuters)—Chungking, third Chinese Nationalist capital, fell without a fight to the Communists today, according to Nationalist officials who arrived here by air.

Communications by telephone and telegraph between Hong Kong and Chungking had been cut since Tuesday night.

The officials said the Nationalists now had begun the evacuation of Chengtu, 200 miles northwest of Chungking, which has been their fourth "temporary capital" for the last few days.

The officials travelled in a specially chartered plane from Chengtu. They said members of the government and other officials were preparing to leave, mostly for Formosa.

Chungking was the third capital the Nationalists have had in the 12-month Communist sweep from Manchuria, in the north, to the south coast of China.

Panic In City

The others were Nanking, which fell April 23, and Canton, which was taken by the Reds Oct. 14

A busy city of 1,900,000, Chungking is the capital of Szechwan province and about 400 miles from the borders of Tibet, Burma and French Indo-China, which lie on an arc to the west and southwest

Chungking refugees who arrived here earlier described panic and looting in the city.

They said guns were firing on all sides when they left as Communist spearheads thrust into the outer suburbs and the main forces massed four mile away on the south side of the Yangtze river.

An "emergency" committee was trying to maintain law and order among the population.

Plan New Survey

TORONTO, Nov. 30 —(CP)—Surveys and an educational program in the field of maternal and child health will be undertaken by a new division of the Health League of Canada, Dr. Gordon Bates, general director of the league, announced today. Dr. Nelles Silverthorne, Toronto pediatrician, and Dr. H. B. Van Wyck of the University of Toronto's obstetrics and gynaecology department will head the new division's voluntary directing committee.

Mercy Air Ambulance Logs Up Million Miles

REGINA, Nov. 30 (CP)—An air force whose duty is to help the sick is preparing for increased activity in Saskatchewan this winter.

The provincial government established its air ambulance service in February, 1946. Pilots of the four flying ambulances have flown more than 1,000,000 miles since then.

They've ranged over Saskatchewan's 250,000 square miles of plain, forest and tundra to pick up patients and take them to hospital for medical attention.

Last summer the service made three or four flights a day. And in winter months, with snow-blocked roads a factor, the air ambulances receive more calls than during the summer.

Keith Malcolm, 28, supervisor and chief pilot, said "We've circularized all rural doctors, too, telling them they are, in effect, the final authority on whether a flight is necessary.

Flights outside the province are not taboo. Early this month an air ambulance flew 1,520 miles from Regina to Long Beach, Calif., where it picked up a 75-year-old patient, Mrs. E. Cooney, of Lumsden, Sask., and flew her back to hospital.

A patient was flown to St. Catharines, 1,570 miles from Regina, a few months ago.

To obtain the service, patients must have lived in Saskatchewan for six months.

Emergency patients within the province are charged $25. A passenger accompanying a patient is charged $10. Stretcher patients going outside the province or going home from hospital pay 35 cents a mile one way. Sitting patients pay 20 cents an air mile, passengers travelling with them are charged seven cents an air mile.

Labor Party In Power For 14 Years

National Party Wins 48 of 80 Seats On Free Enterprise

WELLINGTON, N. Z, Nov. 30 (CP)—New Zealand electors today chose private enterprise over Socialism, turning out of office the Labor party and voting into power the National party.

The National party, campaigning for a return to free enterprise, captured 46 of the 80 seats in the House of Representatives. Labor won the remaining 34.

The result ended 14 years of government by Labor.

At dissolution Labor held 40 seats and the National or Conservative party held 38. One seat was vacant and one was held by Frank Langstone, Independent Labor. Langstone, a former high commissioner to Canada, broke away from the Labor party last August, opposing its decision to support compulsory military training.

The campaign resolved itself largely into a struggle between socialism and private enterprise. The Labor party went to the country on a "security for all" program while the National party promised to reduce government controls and restore incentives.

Sidney George Holland, National (Conservative) party leader, said during the election campaign his first objective will be to "set the people free from domination by the state."

Likely New Premier

Holland, a 56-year-old Christ Church businessman man who has led the National opposition for the last nine years, probably will become New Zealand's next prime minister.

Leading Labor in its unsuccessful bid for re-election was Prime Minister Peter Fraser, a crusty, Scots-born politician. Fraser, 65, has been prime minister since 1940.

Prominent Labor cabinet ministers were generally returned to office, but their majorities were sharply reduced.

Langstone, running as an Independent Labor candidate, was among those defeated.

Labor had announced no new nationalization measures but had promised to extend the existing social security program which is claimed "has freed New Zealand from want and the fear of want."

Landslide Election

The Labor party gained power in 1935 in a landslide election which gave it a majority of 30 in the House. This lead was cut at subsequent elections. In 1946 Labor won 42 seats and the National party 38. Labor had to rely on its four Maori native supporters to hold the majority.

Tuesday the Dominion's 109,000 Maoris elected four Labor representatives including a woman in the voting for natives. Today voters of European descent went to the polls.

Labor had been in power since 1935. It appealed to the country on its record, with promises that new social reforms would be introduced if returned to office.

But the National Party campaigned for "a change of government" and free enterprise. Party Leader S. G. Holland said the

Secret Service Chief Flies To East Africa

LONDON, Nov. 30 (AP)—Britain's secret service chief, Sir Percy Sillitoe, has flown to East Africa to tighten up security in one of the commonwealth's most vital strategic regions.

British officials disclosed this hush-hush move Tuesday.

Colonial officials long have been worried at a rising state of anti-European tension among the peoples of east and central Africa —in territories like Uganda, Kenya, Tanganyika, Nyasaland, and Northern and Southern Rhodesia.

This tension has flared up in Nigeria, on Africa's west coast, in the last 12 days, and already has cost 21 African lives and 36 casualties. It stemmed from a strike of African coal miners. ...

See Prowlers Around Before 2 Murders

Police Facing Difficult Task Picking Up 3-Day-Old Trail

OSHAWA, Nov. 30—(CP)—Police today were faced with a difficult task in their search for the slayers of Mr. and Mrs. Nick Katerynych, elderly Ukranian couple from Saskatchewan who were beaten to death in their home here late Saturday night.

The trail was three days old when the slayings were discovered Tuesday after a neighbor, alarmed at the couple's absence, finally broke down the door to find the bodies.

Katerynych, 81-year-old exfarmer from Canora, Sask., was found on the kitchen floor in a pool of blood. His ailing, 77-year-old wife Helen was found between her bedroom and the bathroom. The death weapon is believed to have been a hammer or a wooden club, but it has not yet been found.

Neighbors said the couple had on two previous occasions reported prowlers around the house. On a third occasion, last Thursday, a motorcar with two or three men in it parked outside the home and the men peered over the fence before driving away.

But police found the brutality of the crime inconsistent with the robbery motive. They thought the killers may have been known to the aged couple, and that the killers were at great pains to make sure their victims would never identify them.

If robbery was the motive, the slayers were probably disappointed. Katerynych invested some of his savings in real estate and his ready cash was safely in the bank. On Saturday he had borrowed $20 from Louis Dobansky, their 62-year-old tenant, who said he gave the money to Katerynych and told him he could take it off Dobansky's rent bill.

Just a week ago Katerynych had given $200 to the Greek Orthodox church near his home. Neighbors all said they doubted that he kept much cash on hand.

Asks One Court Be Given Name 'Supreme'

OTTAWA, Nov. 30 —(CP)—While Prime Minister St. Laurent tapped his desk in approval, John Diefenbaker (PC—Lake Centre) advocated today that "political fitness" should not be one of the qualifications for men appointed to the Supreme Court of Canada.

The Prime Minister applauded, too, as the prairie lawyer argued that the time has come for Canada to have only one court called supreme in name — the Supreme Court of Canada which is to become the final court of appeal for the country.

Mr. Diefenbaker held that the law should be amended to provide that only that one court be called supreme. This would prevent confusion with decisions by provincial supreme courts.

As the Commons considered a bill to increase salaries of the Federal Supreme Court judges, Angus MacInnis (CCF—Vancouver East) renewed his argument that "it is nothing short of scandalous to be raising their salaries when the meagre incomes of hundreds of thousands of our people are falling every day."

Unemployment Jumps

Unemployment has grown 100 per cent since last year, Mr. MacInnis said, which meant that thousands of families would be accepting even lower standards of living at a time when the judges' salaries "already are high enough."

The chief justice will get $25,000 a year, the six other judges $20,000.

Mr. Diefenbaker called on the government to make appointments to the Supreme Court of men "who enjoy respect all over Canada and whose honesty and capacity is beyond question." Now that the court was undertaking vast new responsibilities, the need for such appointments was greater than ever.

"Unless their qualifications transcend every political consideration a blow will be struck from which the court will not soon recover."

Further, he argued, no judge should be appointed to royal commissions appointed as the result of political issues.

Call Churchill Greatest Briton

LONDON, Nov. 30 (CP)—British morning papers today pay tribute to Winston Churchill on his 75th birthday as "the greatest living Englishman."

The Conservative Daily Mail comments that Churchill "has done more, seen more, known more than any other statesman of his time. He has lived several full lives rolled into one. He has made mistakes, and like his triumphs they have been on the heroic scale."

The pro-empire Daily Express says of the Conservative party leader: "If half the people of the world are free, they owe their freedom more to this man than to any other. If the other half still have hopes of freedom, their hopes are centred on him."

The Conservative Daily Telegraph writes: "Not the least astonishing feature of an astonishing career is that Mr. Churchill, at the age of 75, can look not back but forward. Very many millions, not only in his own country, base [illegible] on his future."

Smythe Buys Goaltender Al Rollins From Cleveland

TORONTO, Nov. 30—(CP)—Manager Conn Smythe of Toronto Maple Leafs today announced the purchase of goaltender Al Rollins from Cleveland Barons of the American Hockey League, just a day after he benched Leaf goalie Turk Broda for being over weight.

He said that Cleveland will get cash "in five figures;" Bobby Dawes, who plays centre or defence, immediately; and three more players, including a goalie, next spring.

The 23-year-old Rollins arrives in Toronto tomorrow and if he passes a medical examination the deal will be complete.

Smythe said he will go ahead with his plan to use Gil Mayer from the Pittsburgh Hornets in goal tomorrow night against Detroit Red Wings. But the choice for Saturday night's game against New York Rangers is a tossup—Broda, if he gets down to 190 from 197 pounds, or Mayer or Rollins. Said Smythe: "I hope it's Broda."

No Further Changes

He announced no further lineup changes for tomorrow night's game although Harry Watson, Vic Lynn, Sid Smith, Garth Boesch and Howie Meeker have been told they'll be benched unless they take off weight and get in condition.

Rollins, a native of Vanguard, Sask., played last season with Kansas City in the United States Hockey League. The year before, he was with Edmonton Flyers when they won the Allan Cup.

At Cleveland this season he has played five or six games and hasn't lost any.

Congressman Guilty Of Payroll Padding

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30 (AP) —Representative J. Parnell Thomas (Rep. N. J.) today withdrew his plea of not guilty to charges of payroll padding, and threw himself on the mercy of the court.

The 54-year-old Congressman changed his plea to one of nolo contendere. That means he does not contest the government's charge.

With this startling development Judge Alexander M. Holtzoff dismissed a charge against Helen Campbell, former secretary to Thomas. She was accused of conspiring with Thomas to defraud the government through padding of the Congressman's pay roll.

Britain To Hold Hong Kong If Reds Attack Slim Says

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30 (AP) —Field Marshal Sir William Slim Chief of the British Imperial Staff, said Tuesday night that Britain will hold Hong Kong if the Chinese Communists are "foolish enough to attack it." He told a press conference that he does not expect such an attack.

He declined to discuss British defence forces in the island colony but expressed belief they are strong enough to hold.

Asked whether the Chinese Nationalists will be able to hold the island of Formosa off the Chinese coast, Sir William said that, considering the matter purely as a military problem, it would be difficult to take Formosa as long as the Nationalists command the sea.

He declined—on grounds that the subject is political—to answer a question as to whether an early peace treaty with Japan—without Russian participation—is desirable.

On the same grounds he declined to discuss the question of whether Germany would be rearmed.

Sir William declared Britain's objective under the Atlantic alliance is "to avoid war."

Asked what the British army will be required specifically to do, he said Britain has troops on the European continent and certainly will keep them there.

He said he does not think Britain intends to expand the number of these troops, since there now is no need for it. But that if war came the situation would be much different.

He said British forces in Malaya are still chasing small bands of bandits but that the situation there has improved greatly.

Report 2 Missing In Hotel Blaze

ACTON VALE, Que., Nov. 30 (CP)—Two men were missing and believed burned to death today after an early-morning fire levelled the three-storey Mantor Acton Hotel driving 25 guests and staff members to the street of this eastern township village in their night attire.

The missing men were identified as J. Arthur Roy, 22-year-old Montreal telephone worker, and Claud Montcalm, 17-year-old hotel employee.

The fire broke out about 4 a.m. in the first storey of the hotel in this village about 20 miles from St. Hyacinthe.

Many of the guests scrambled through windows clutching hastily-knotted bedsheets to escape the flames which spread rapidly through the three-storey brick veneer building

Police said there were more than 20 guests and eight staff members in the building at the time.

The hotel was burned to the ground. Fire fighters, unable to save the building, concentrated their efforts on saving neighboring houses.

Loss was estimated at $60,000.

Canada Asks Israel Fulfil Obligations

LAKE SUCCESS, N.Y., Nov. 30 (CP)—Canada Tuesday called on Israel to fulfil her obligations to the United Nations in connection with the future of Jerusalem.

Gen. McNaughton told the Special Political Committee that Canada supported, as a basis for discussion, a plan for internationalization of the Holy City.

Earlier, Aubrey Eban, of Israel, indicated that the 100,000 Jews of Jerusalem would fight in an underground movement against any internationalization plan which would take full control of Jerusalem away from Israel.

The plan presented by the UN Conciliation Commission for Palestine, which McNaughton supported, envisages an international regime with some local autonomy by Israel and Hashemite Jordan, whose forces now divide control of Jerusalem.

Jewels Worth $20,000 Stolen By 5

Thieves Use Taxi To Make Getaway Police On Lookout

GRANBY, Que., Nov. 30 (CP)—Jewelry with an estimated value of $20,000 was stolen from a Granby store early today and a widespread police search was set up for five men in a taxi.

Yvan Brouillette, proprietor of the jewelry store, said his show cases were "completely cleaned out." His estimate of the loss was tentative and he said it may be higher.

The break-in occurred about 4 a.m. Armand Guertin, a Granby policeman, saw the taxi in a lane at the rear of the store. Guertin said he tried to stop the car but it dashed away.

Provincial police sent out special patrols and municipal police in Montreal, 50 miles away, and other centres were notified. Special officers watched cars entering Montreal by several bridges.

Brouillette said the loot included at least 100 watches, 75 diamond rings and more than 100 other rings studded with precious stones. Other gems were also missing.

The thieves gained entrance to the store through the cellar door of an adjoining building, from where they smashed a communicating door.

Court Orders Delay For TCA

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30 (AP) —A federal court today ordered the civil aeronautics board to hold up action on the request of Trans-Canada Air Lines for a new route in the United States.

In a two-to-one decision, the court told the board to wait until after the Supreme Court has ruled on another phase of the case involving the constitutionality of the civil air law.

The court's action might mean many months delay in putting into effect a portion of the new civil aviation agreement signed last June 4 by Canada and the United States.

The application of T.C.A. for an operating certificate to fly a non-stop route between Montreal and New York was made as part of that agreement.

Nab Two Men For Robberies

ORILLIA, Nov. 30—(CP)—Two Orillia men were arrested Tuesday night and charged with breaking-in and theft, in connection with a series of cottage robberies on No. 46 Highway, near Coboconk, Monday night.

Provincial Police Constable Lloyd Lyle of Fenelon Falls, investigated the case of five cottages which had been entered and a quantity of stoves, blankets, crates, liquor and other items stolen.

The investigation led to Orillia and local and Provincial Police here were called in to assist.

A series of raids on Tuesday night resulted in the recovery of the stolen goods from the home of one of the two men. The men arrested are Albert Edwin Wismer and Steve Fraser.

Virgil Barkman Gets Fine, 21 Days In Jail

TORONTO, Nov. 30.—(CP)—Virgil Barkman, Toronto barber, Tuesday was sentenced to 21 days in jail and fined $100 and costs, or an additional 30 days, for leaving the scene of an accident.

Barkman originally was charged with manslaughter following an accident Jan. 2 in which William Miller, 21, was killed and Miller's fiancee, Helen Wilson, 19-year-old Toronto model, had one leg so badly injured that for a time doctors believed amputation would be necessary. The charge later was reduced.

Commons Okays 275 Million To Aid Housing

OTTAWA, Nov. 30 (CP)—Legislation which adds $275,000,000 to the Federal government's housinb project was approved by the Commons Tuesday night.

After a peppery question and answer session in which Reconstruction Minister Winters was the target, the House gave third and final reading to a bill designed to do these things:

1. Add $200,000,000 to a loan fund for reducing by half the down payment on new housing.

2. Increase from $100,000,000 to $125,000,000 the money available for home extension and home improvement loans.

3. Establish a $50,000,000 fund for joint Dominion-Provincial low cost or low rental housing construction.

The first provision is retroactive to Sept. 21 when the revised housing plan was first announced. The other two points come into operation when the bill is proclaimed after being given Senate approval.

Interest rates on government loans under the Act are 4½ per cent.

Earlier Plan

Five years ago when the National Housing Act was first brought down, $100,000,000 was provided for loans in the form of mortgages on new housing.

Since that time $86,000,000 has been spent. With the addition of $200,000,000 it means there is a total of $214,000,000 in the pot for reducing down payments.

As an example of the effect of this provision, the down payment on a $9,00 house would be as low as $1,500 and on a $12,000 house around $2,000. That's about half what it was under the former provisions.

The extra reduction is accomplished by a second mortgage which can be paid off over 20, 25 or 30 year periods.

Mr. Winters was asked to estimate how many houses he thought would be built in the next year under this plan. He told Donald Fleming (PC-Toronto Eglinton) that he thought it would be roughly about 35,000 in 1950.

Delay Action

Mr. Winters also told the House that while the home extension plan now is in operation, the home improvement loans scheme has not been proclaimed. It would not be brought into operation until the shortage of home improvement materials such as hardware was overcome.

Replying to further questions by Mr. Fleming, he said that of the original $100,000,000 some $300,000 had been lent.

In view of the small part that has been used, Mr. Fleming criticized the provision for adding another $25,000,000. Mr. Winters replied that while little is being used now, the loans would speed up if the home improvement plan was put into effect.

This part of the bill provides for a 25-per-cent increase in loans for home extension, as well as improvement.

The maximum that can be borrowed for home extension will be $3,750 for the first family housing unit added to any existing dwelling and $1,250 for each additional family housing unit being added.

The down payment and home extension clauses of the Act come into effect as soon as the bill is proclaimed. However, the $50,000,000-arrangement for low-rental and low cost housing depends on each province's willingness to take part.

Under this provision, the Federal government will pay 75 per cent and the province 25 per cent of the cost of buying and servicing land and of building low-rental or low-cost homes. The province can arrange to get back any part of its 25 per cent outlay from the municipalities in which the housing is built.

During clause-by-clause consideration of the housing bill, Mr. Winters said the Federal government does not plan to call a Dominion-Provincial conference on housing at present.

He also warned Canadians generally that they should not depend on the government or mortgage companies to assure that their new homes are being properly built.

Deprived of Children

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 30.—(AP).—Mrs. Florence Walton, Los Angeles society matron, is deprived of full custody of her three sons after being accused of adultery with former film actor Tom Keene. Her husband, Delvy T. Walton, was awarded a contested divorce decree Tuesday. Walton was awarded custody of the children, Craig 14, John 12 and Laurence 10.

Ready For Robbers

TOKYO, Nov. 30 — (AP) — Tokyo's metropolitan police will start pounding their beats harder tomorrow. The objective: Curb the usual wave of December robberies. Japanese traditionally pay off all their debts before the old year ends. It's a matter of honor. Police say the upsurge of robberies always precedes the honorable payment of debts.

Unemployment On Increase

OTTAWA, Nov. 30—(CP)—Employment in Canada has reached an all-time high, says government economists, but the number of jobless is steadily increasing. In fact, unemployment so far this year is higher than at any time in the last two years. The answer to this "apparent paradox," says the economists in the government's economic statistical review for November, lies in the fact that the country's labor force is growing faster than the rate of employment.

Thus, a government survey conducted last August shows a total labor force of 5,253,000 persons—an increase of 144,000 over the total for the previous year.

Those with jobs totalled 5,155,000—an increase of only 113,000.

"Throughout the current year," says the review published Tuesday, "the number of unemployed persons, the number of days of consecutive unemployment and the dollar total of benefits paid under the Unemployment Insurance Act have all been higher each month than in the same month of the previous two years."

98,000 Jobless

The review estimates that the number looking for jobs last August totalled about 98,000, which represented only about 1.9 per cent of the total estimated civilian labor force.

"In this connection," it adds, "it might be mentioned at about six per cent of that country's civilian labor force."

However, the increase of labor availability over employment possibilities appears to present a problem.

For example, the number who filed unemployment insurance claims during September reached a total of 59,080, compared with only 33,036 in September, 1948.

Unemployment insurance benefits paid out in September totalled $3,671,773, compared with 1,694,139 in $1948 and $1,512,096 in 1947.

first objective of the Nationals would be "to correct the effects of 14 years of Socialism and set the people free from domination by the State."

Clear Issue

Peter Fraser, Labor Prime Minister, termed the issue clear: "Do we want to put the clock back with the Nationalists or put it forward to further security and prosperity with Labor?"

Fraser, with a greatly-reduced majority, retained his seat in Brooklyn, Wellington, with 6,539 votes against 3,383 for the National Party and 229 for a Communist candidate.

Finance Minister Walter Nash and Works Minister Robert Semple also were returned with substantially reduced majorities Defence Minister Fred Jones narrowly retained his seat at St. Kilda, Dunedin.

Mabel Howard, Minister of Health, was re-elected with a reduced majority.

Communists and Independents all polled insignificant votes and lost their deposits with the exception of Independent Labor candidate J. A. Lee who received 2,588 votes in the Grey Lynn, Auckland, seat which he held for Labor before 1943.

A Milestone

Holland called the result "a milestone in our history" and added: "we necessarily disagree with much that has been done during the Labor Government's 14 years in office but we acknowledge that it leaves behind it much that will endure."

Fraser in a statement said: "The people have given their decision and we accept its verdict with good grace."

An important issue in the election campaign was the rise in the cost of living.

To Attend Union Meeting In Toronto

Ten delegates to represent Local 524 UE at the special District Council meeting on Saturday were elected Tuesday night at a membership meeting called by the Provisional Committee.

About 175 delegates from Ontario and Quebec, representing all UE locals in district 5, are expected to meet in Toronto. The UE claims it is the legal bargaining agent for some 25,000 Canadian workers.

Those attending from Peterborough will be Tom Davies, who heads the Provisional Committee, Art Hunter, Florence Farrance, Alex Seppala, George Wallace, Jack Chamberlain, Ray Peters, Maurice Coderre, Patricia Stone and Ethel Kennedy.

Chief item on the agenda will likely be a discussion on maintaining unity within the union and possible defence measures against "raiding."

Plan To Tell Rent Racket

MONTREAL, Nov. 30.—(CP).—The Quebec Federation of Tenants said in a statement Tuesday night that the federation's delegates "would make startling disclosures concerning the rental racket in Montreal" when they meet Finance Minister Abbott at Ottawa Thursday.

Adolph Lewis, corresponding secretary of the federation, said that "we are going to take the lid off the 'key money' racket by which certain unscrupulous landlords are fleecing tenants of thousands of dollars each year.

The federation, which has opposed recent rental increases allowed by the Federal Government, has organized 300 delegates to represent itself at Ottawa Thursday when the federation will request the finance minister to "consider the tenant."

Dame Irene Vanbrugh Dies Suddenly At 76

LONDON, Nov. 30.—(AP). — Dame Irene Vanbrugh, actress who was a dominating figure of the British theatre for more than 50 years, died today.

She had been ill only 36 hours and up to a few days ago was busy with preparations for the opening of a new play in London. She would have been 77 years old Friday.

Her stage career extended more than 61 years. She played hundreds of roles. In her youth she was described as one of Britain's greatest Shakespearean actresses, but later modish comedy became her forte.

Within the last decade she made several movies and recently wrote a book, "To Tell My Story." Her husband, Dion Boucicault, actor-producer, to whom she was married in 1901, died in 1929.

She was created a dame commoner of the order of the British Empire in the New Year's honor list in 1941.

Stocks Still Decline On Toronto Exchange

TORONTO, Nov. 30 (CP)—The decline continued on the Toronto Stock Exchange today for the third successive session. Activity slowed to a crawl but small losses continued cropping out on the big board.

Industrials weakened fractions and base metals slipped quietly. Golds showed signs of a slight recovery movement. Western Oils held steady on balanced gains and losses.

Volume for the first three hours was 410,000 shares.

In Industrials, Goodyear Tire went against the trend for a $2. advance at $85 following news of an increased year-end dividend

Noranda Mines, an early gainer in base metals, dipped into the minus column as the session progressed.

Signs of steadiness appeared in golds. Several junior producers advanced pennies in the dull dealings. Calgary and Edmonton and Federated Petroleum gained in Western Oils.

Ready For Snow

MONTREAL —(CP)—The city is apparently expecting a bad winter. It will buy $90,063 worth of new equipment for removing snow.

Nine Disputed Ballots Will Decide Union

KINGSTON, Nov. 30.—(CP).—Nine disputed ballots will determine which of two unions will represent the 193 employees of a Kingston woollen goods manufacturing plant following a vote by the employees Tuesday.

D. W. Mather, Ontario Labor Relations Board registrar, who conducted the vote, said the board would rule on the nine ballots, claimed by both the United Textile Workers of America (AFL) and an independent union.

Of 193 eligible votes, 92 favored the AFL body, 84 were cast in favor of the company union, eight were not cast and nine are in dispute.

A board decision giving all nine disputed ballots to the company union would give it a one-vote majority.

Prize Black Horse Strangles In Plunge

BONARLAW, Nov. 30—(ENS) —A horse owned by Alex McFarel, of Sprys settlement, which took a number of prizes at fall fairs, was strangled recently when it reared and came down over the halter shank.

The horse was one of a matched jet black team.

Mr. McFarel had let the couple out for a run and had caught one, expecting the other to follow as usual. It did not come, however, so he tied the one to a tree and went to fetch the second one. The horse reared up and came down over the halter shanks and was strangled before Mr. McFarel could get him loose.

Moscow Wooing RC Labor Unions

LONDON, Nov. 30 — (AP) — Moscow once again is wooing Europe's Roman Catholic labor unions to form a solid "front" with Communist workers in what may become a new campaign aimed at disrupting the West's recovery program.

The Russian-led Cominform (Communist International Information Bureau) in a resolution published Tuesday after a secret meeting this month in Hungary urged Communist workers:

"In the struggle for working class unity special attention should be given to masses of Catholic workers and working people and their organizations . . ."

This call coincided with a bitter rift which has arisen here in the organizational meeting of the anti-Communist Free World Labor Confederation over failure by its credentials to invite Roman Catholic unions from Belgium, The Netherlands, Switzerland, Denmark and Luxembourg.

Wm. B. Forsythe Wreck Survivor

A former Peterborough resident, William B. Forsythe, who now lives in Stamford, Conn., was one of the survivors of the airplane crash in Texas, Tuesday, that took 28 lives.

Mr. Forsythe was manager of the Coca Cola Co. in Peterborough about 18 years ago. He lived here for six years.

His sister, Mrs. Roy Logan, of Toronto, was also a resident of this city at one time. And his 82-year-old mother, Mrs. W. F. Forsythe, lives in Toronto.

It was not his first brush with death.

The 52-year-old vice-president of the Pepsi-Cola Co. was a passenger on the torpedoed liner City of Benares. He was one day in an open boat after the sinking of the liner in 1940 and recited the burial service for 26 other persons buried at sea.

He received a serious burn on one arm and sustained several other minor burns in the crash of the DC-6 at Dallas.

A little more than two weeks ago he was deer hunting at Key Harbor on Georgian Bay and helped find a 16-year-old youth who had been lost for 36 hours.

He is a veteran of the first world war, and has since served with three beverage companies.

Reds Tone Down Vishinsky Boast

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—(AP).—The New York Times says today that Pravda, official Russian Communist party newspaper, apparently toned down Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky's recent declaration to the UN that Russia was "razing mountains" with atomic power.

Vishinsky's remarks have "apparently been radically toned down for home consumption," says the Times' article.

A copy of Pravda just received from Moscow had been compared with the verbatim transcript of Vishinsky's speech three weeks ago at the UN.

At Lake Success Vishinsky said "right now . . . we are razing mountains; we are irrigating deserts; we are cutting through the jungle and the tundra; we are spreading life, happiness, prosperity and welfare in places where the human footstep has not been for thousands of years."

The Pravda report, the Times says, had him saying:

"We want to put atomic energy to blowing up mountains, changing the course of rivers, etc."

Father Kills 4 In Family, Boy 14 Left

SPIRIT RIVER, Alta., Nov. 30. —(CP). — A 14-year-old school boy, Charles Grubisitch, Tuesday night was the sole survivor of a farm family of six persons following one of the most tragic mass slayings in Alberta's history.

Police said the boy's father, Walter Grubisitch, 48, apparently went berserk after he sent the boy on an errand early Monday morning.

Shot and killed were his three other children, Mary, 13; Walter, 6; and George, 5. Fatally wounded in the head was his wife, Mary, about 38.

With her death in hospital here Monday night, the exact story of what happened on the little farm, hewn from the timbered muskeg 265 miles northwest of Edmonton, may never be told.

Grubisitch was known to have suffered from a chronic stomach ailment. Early Monday he sent Charles to ask a neighbor to bring an automobile and take him to hospital. He had been unable on Sunday to keep an appointment with the doctor in Spirit River, six miles north, because of bad roads.

When neighbors arrived, they found Mrs. Grubisitch in the barn with a gunshot wound in the head. On the kitchen floor they found the three children dead. Propped against a chair 10 feet away was the father. Police said he apparently turned the gun on himself after shooting the others.

Peterborough Should Fight The Closing of Port Hope Rail Line

Once again the C.N.R. is seeking government permission to close the Peterborough-Port Hope line. This should be opposed most vehemently, yard by yard, tie by tie, and the time to begin active opposition is now, before the C.N.R. gets too far with its petition to the Transport Board. There should be no doubt in the C.N.R. management's minds, that the citizens of Peterborough and all the populous district served by the line, mean business in their opposition.

• • •

Peterborough is not and has not been well served by the railways. Not because of the railways did it achieve its present place as the ninth largest city in Ontario, and become one of the first fifteen industrial centres in the whole Dominion. Notwithstanding the isolation to which the railway companies seem willing to condemn it, Peterborough has flourished. The railways spend millions opening up new territory so that they can develop passenger and freight business, but when a rich territory like Peterborough, Durham and Northumberland is presented to them, they take their pickings during lucrative war years, and between wars attempt to close the line down. They say, of course, that it is now unnecessary and unprofitable.

• • •

Has the C.N.R. made up its mind first, and then attempted to build a case to prove its point? A general impression among Peterborough businessmen was given expression in Port Hope last week by Councillor William Roach who said:

"They're starving the line. I understand they've been routing freight from Peterborough and Lindsay to Port Hope, that should have come over that line, down through Belleville and up through Cobourg. They're not putting the trains on to make the line pay".

If the C.N.R. does not want to make the line pay, or if it wants to arrange matters so as to show that the line is being kept in operation at a loss, we presume that it can do so. Such an approach is a defeatist's way of doing business. Instead of attempting to route freight away from the Peterborough-Port Hope line, why should they not try to develop the business on that line, to make a real effort to make their large capital investment in it pay? Instead of virtually discouraging passengers through infrequent, slow trains which make poor or no connections with the main line trains to Montreal and Toronto, why should they not improve the service, put on fast, small inter-urban trains which would shuttle back and forth and attract business?

• • •

Peterborough is growing. Its industry is thriving. Its communications with the outside world are becoming increasingly necessary. The whole area is more populous, more industrialized. At this time the C.N.R. wants to give up a line which it seems to have made no recent effort to prove useful and profitable. There are big transportation needs to be filled. Are the railways content to leave the lush business to buses and motor transports? Is the C.N.R. moribund, or merely selfish and unprogressive? At a time when new types of engines are on drafting boards, when an inter-urban one-car type of train (such as shuttled between German cities before the war) might prove useful to the district and profitable to the company, the C.N.R. wants to abandon the Peterborough-Port Hope line.

• • •

Peterborough has few enough lines and trains in and out as it is. The Port Hope line should not be abandoned. The Board of Transport should not be content to accept the C.N.R. freight and passenger figures of the last few years. It should examine the war-time figures. And it should ask the Company if it has made any effort at all to increase the business on the line, or if all its recent effort has been directed to making the line seem hopelessly unprofitable and uneconomic.

Could It Be Parliament's Fault?

Several newspapers have been complaining during the past two or three years of a tendency on the part of the Dominion Cabinet to ignore Parliament and to geld it of its powers. We feel that there is some justice in these complaints; in an age when authoritarianism is in the air our Canadian Governments have not entirely escaped the infection. But we doubt if all the fault is on the side of the Cabinet.

Consider the nonsense which was heard in the Commons last Thursday. Because Parliament has a heavy schedule of work ahead of it Mr. St. Laurent proposed a Saturday morning sitting. At once he was opposed by the member for Calgary West, Mr. Arthur Smith (Pro-Con) who said that if it came to a choice between sitting in the Commons and going to Toronto for the Calgary Stampeders-Montreal Alouettes rugby game, he would certainly go to the game.

Then the honourable member for Wentworth, Mr. Frank Lennard (Pro-Con) said that "it was an insult to the sports fraternity" to ask the House to sit on Saturday. He went on to say that the Calgary-Ottawa game last year did more for Canadian unity than "this House has been able to do in the last ten years".

It is hard to be patient with this sort of nonsense. If the Commons is to have power, it must behave with the responsibility which power entails. If the Canadian voters send men to Parliament who put a football game ahead of the nation's business, we must not be surprised if power slips out of their hands and into the hands of men who are willing to pay the price for it.

Not all the decline of the Commons is owing to Government ambition; some of that decline must be laid at the door of M.Ps who like the honor of going to Parliament but baulk at the work which Parliament must do.

Earl Grey's Dated Cup

If the Earl Grey, Governor-General of Canada in 1904, could have seen how contests have developed for his rugby cup, he might have been inclined, sportsman that he was, to donate it instead to the wearer of the biggest sombrero, the lustiest of cheer-leaders or gaudiest of Canadian mayors. Had he been an astute businessman, he might have put a lien on it, demanding ten per cent of all gate receipts at final play-offs. This is idle speculation. Cold facts of last Saturday establish that the Calgary Stampeders had to return the Grey Cup from their foothills, and give it to the safekeeping of the Montreal Alouettes.

Lord Grey would have been astounded to hear the coach of the Calgary Stampeders say on his way back to the home base that "football is big business" and should be carried on in a "big-time" manner, different from the way the Canadian Rugby Union carries on. "The union and its constitution are about the same as when the union was first formed. If we're going to get somewhere, we've got to have a new set-up". But Lord Grey as a realist and political figure would have bowed himself out of such a "set-up". Would he have taken his cup with him?

Where, by the way, is the cup? We are almost inclined to believe it is a myth about which teams battle as in old days knights performed feats of daring for the mythical love of a lady. We have been scanning news pictures in a dozen papers and seen Mayor Houde beaming and Mayors McCallum and Mackay dressed in fancy costumes, we have seen players and teams, but no cup. The truth is, the cup no longer is in the news. We suspect it is in some dusty cupboard, as outmoded as the game which Earl Grey once supported.

NOTE AND COMMENT

If, as psychologists now assert, fat men are miserable, those pictures of Santa Claus are an awful swindle.

The latest fashion edict is that women should wear their clothes unpressed, thus invading another male territory.

A news note tells of an escaped lion wandering into a coming-out party in Boston. Probably all the guests came out right away.

Makers of a new car boast that you can put a Shetland pony in the trunk. Hm; if you skin the Shetland pony and put its hide around two suitcases, can you still get it in the trunk?

Wordsworth thought that there was nothing so forlorn as a forsaken birds-nest filled with snow. He should have seen a parked car that was buried in the stuff.

We read that a druggist in the U.S., acquitted of murdering his wife, kissed the feet of his lawyer in gratitude. If this custom should ever reach Peterborough, our legal friends will be able to give up the weekly shoeshine

From The Critic's Notebook

THE THEATRE BOOK OF THE YEAR 1948-1949, by George Jean Nathan (Knopf).

THIS is the seventh of these volumes in which the leading drama critic of the U.S.A. presents a complete and detailed review of a New York Season. Every play, good and bad, is dealt with. Sometimes the bad plays inspire the best criticisms in the book. These volumes have become a habit, now, with many theatre-lovers, and they will be a mine of information for theatre historians.

It is hardly necessary to say at this late date that Mr. Nathan is a witty and versatile writer. He is at his best when he is most caustic, but he can write in full-hearted approval when he sees fit to do so. It is a delight to read these surveys, in which the theatre of the present is measured by the standard of a keen-witted and brilliantly informed critic. Mr. Nathan, unlike so many of his brethren, loves the theatre and is deeply versed in all its knowledge. To read him is to be refreshed and re-affirmed in the conviction that the theatre at its best is a great art, and that even at its worst it has a fascinating pathology. R.D.

LIKE A FLOWER, by Sheila S. Thompson (Nelson).

PETERBOROUGH is a long way from becoming a writer's colony, but nevertheless there are more writers among us than there used to be. One of these is Sheila S. Thompson, novelist, and member of a writing family. Mrs. Thompson is a sister of Pamela Kellino, the wife of James Mason, also a novelist.

In 1947 Mrs. Thompson's first novel, "Like A Flower" was released in Canada, and although it deals with a war-time situation in England, is well worth reading. The title is taken from the Burial Service: "Man that is born of woman hath but a short time to live and is full of misery. He cometh up and is cut down like a flower." It is a tragic story.

It is a picture of war from the point of view of bombed civilians and concerns the spiritual re-establishment of a previously sheltered ten-year-old girl whose family has been shattered in the bombing of their home. The child is an amputation case. The utter desolation and despair of her mother in the next bed of the casualty clearing station, bereft of husband, son and infant, the varying reactions of cynicism and hope in the other occupants of beds in the ward is presented so realistically that one is actually there, a witness to the endless and almost unbelievable suffering. Because of this, such a novel as "Like A Flower" can do more than all the mere "reports" in the world to put the real horrors of war before us. This is modern war as it affects men, women and children as people, not as statistics.

It is not a pleasant book to read. It is a sad and painful one. But what a powerful argument against war's sadistic cruelties! It is on these grounds that I recommend it, especially to Canadian women who were sheltered and may not realize what a third such catastrophe could mean for them.

A word about the style. In spite of the subject matter, this novel does not attempt to be profound in treatment. It is told easily, in simple words and short sentences. The speech of the child is very natural, although one could wish that there were not quite so many "mummies".

"Like A Flower" has strength, and gives promise of a rising novelist. H.T.K.

THE LAIRD AND THE LADY by Joan Grant (Methuen & Co.).

THIS is the sort of thing one finds in the ladies' magazines published in England. Purely escape literature for the tired housekeeper, and competently done. It begins with the meeting, in France, of a poor little American heiress and a proud handsome Scottish laird. Dresses by Jaques Fath, breakfast in fabulous hotel suites and home to a largish castle inhabited by two very noisy ghosts. The lady switches time and identity so often in the hocus-pocus, one is not sure whether she is really Marylda the modern heiress, or her own murdered aunt. Not that it matters much. H.T.K.

THE R.C.A.F. OVERSEAS — THE SIXTH YEAR (Oxford University Press).

THIS is the final volume in the official history of the R.C.A.F. overseas. It is uniform in binding with its two predecessors, authoritatively written and copiously illustrated. "The Sixth Year" takes up the story in September 1944 and completes it to the final Allied victory in 1945.

It has a wider appeal to most Canadians than the other two volumes for it is the story of the R.C.A.F. when it was at its operational peak and largest extent, and few Canadian homes will not have sons or relatives who were in the R.C.A.F. during this period. There are dozens of photographs of these young fliers who brought glory to Canadian wings in the final bombing raids on Germany, and in their support of armies in north-west Europe and Italy, and of Allied shipping at sea.

One fault this reviewer has to find is that the ground crews, the technicians—like wireless and Radar men—get scant attention compared with the hundreds of pages and pictures given the fliers. It is an understandable fault, for the glamour was in the air, and the deeds which makes narrative interesting were performed there. Like good people, the ground folk have never hit the news.

This will make a good book for the home library. It is not expensive, considering its volume (537 pages) and every R.C.A.F. man who won a decoration or medal is named in an appendix, including of course all the Peterborough men. T.J.A.

MODERN ENGLISH DRAMA by Ernest Reynolds (Clarke, Irwin).

THIS is a survey of work in the English theatre since 1900 by a scholar who takes facts seriously—so seriously, indeed, that he includes in this book a list of all the theatres in the British Isles, a great deal of detailed information about 'provincial tours', and some comment on the theatre architects of England. This gives his book value and even charm for the theatre enthusiast, but it might prove too much for a reader who was looking for a light volume of playgoer's reminiscences.

As a recorder of what happened in the British theatre during the past fifty years, Mr. Reynolds is admirable. It is when he sets to work to estimate the value of those happenings that he seems to run on stony ground. His criticism of plays is not clearcut, and he never quite seems to know what allowances he is ready to make for purely commercial work. Nevertheless, his book is a mine of interesting detail, and everyone interested in theatre history should dip into it. R.D.

LET'S HAVE IT TRANSLATED INTO ACTION

My Cat's Double Life

By LORD DUNSANY

THERE is a persistence about a cat that goes far beyond that of dogs. If I say to a dog, "Now that is all you get," he will look at me with a pained surprise in order to see if I can possibly mean it. I repeat it louder, and add, "Go away." He looks earnestly at me to see if I have not made a mistake, ready and anxious to pardon my error, and this time I say it still louder.

Still thinking I cannot mean it, he wags his tail to show his gratitude for what he feels I really do mean. But gradually I make myself clear, till my real intention sinks in, and, pained and surprised, but without thinking any the worse of me, the dog goes away. He will return, for his memory is not very long; but I have peace for a while.

Not so with a cat. To begin with, I have no intention of giving my cat any food at all: she is not only a hunter but has friends in close touch with the larder, so that she has no need of my breakfast; but she has an extremely appealing way of stretching up a paw to me, always her left one, while her right one gets an anchorage on my knee, and in the end I give her a bit of fish.

Soon she is back again with exactly the same appeal. Why vary it, when it has been such a complete success? And again and again. She looks at me with her dark eyes, though preferably at the fish, eyes whose slit-like pupils seem to be a very dark green, perhaps the green of the darkness of the deeps of the sea, surrounded by an iris the colour of sand lying in sunlight in shallow green water.

When there is no more fish she climbs on to my knee, or, if I am lazily leaning back far enough, on to my ribs. And that is where her persistence goes so far beyond that of the dog. For as soon as I throw her off on to an empty chair, she lands lightly and walks slowly, but very deliberately, back, and climbs up again and goes to sleep.

Presently I throw her off again, and, whether asleep or awake, she lands with consummate ease, and turns round and walks back at her usual pace. The same thing happens again, and a dog by then would have begun to form a fairly clear idea that it was not wanted. A cat, for all I know, may acquire the same idea, but as her actions are totally uninfluenced by it, one cannot tell. What she requires is a warm and convenient seat, and, knowing that her persistence is greater than that of dogs or men, she uses that persistence whenever needed.

Naturally I also use mine, but sooner or later the time always comes when it is exhausted like Hitler's patience, and then the cat comes and curls up and goes to sleep, which is a nuisance, but one gets used to it.

Another difference between the cat and the dog is that the dog is perpetually faithful to the terms of the old treaty of alliance between him and Man, already so old that there is no record of who drew it up, or who first signed it or fixed their marks; but the cat leads a double life. For no sooner has night fallen than this model of domesticity, as she appears to be, sleeping on somebody's knee or on the softest cushion available, will slip demurely out of the room and quietly through any door that may be unlocked, to turn to the life that her race were wont to live before the first visit that one of them ever paid to any one of our houses.

THROUGH the door ajar that opens on the cold night she slips out to look for blood; or, if the outer door be shut and her hunting has to be over wooden floors, she hunts as her people hunted of old, and the tiger hunts today, not for man, as the dog will hunt, but for her own savage self; savage, that is to say, in her season, though so sleek a while ago, as Mr. Hyde was savage, though Dr. Jekyll was so benign.

How near are the wilds to a cat! The big-game hunter and mountaineer have to travel far to find them; but the cat has only to step a few paces from the deep carpets to hunt as her forbears did, while over her very head lift the peaks of the roof, where wild fights and barbarous courting may be enjoyed, from which she will return to gaze at the fire like a maiden aunt with her parish magazine.

Busy As A Bee?

Next time you are tempted to say you are that busy, W. A. Stephen of North Carolina State College recommends that you stop and consider how much buzzing and flitting about a honeybee really does.

Mr. Stephens finds, by researches we shall not attempt to keep up with, that to produce 10 bushels of red clover seed requires about 150,000,000 individual flower pollinations, and that about four-fifths of these are brought about by bees. This figures out at about 120,000,000 visits to clover blossoms by bees over perhaps an acre of land.

One wonders now if someone is going to tell us with erudite statistics that human beings cannot keep up with beavers. Personally, we have always suspected that these animals, if they had the choice, would rather spend their time snoozing in their island huts than chewing down trees and patting mud-banks into shape with their tails.

The trouble with the honeybee comparison is that it is used by the wrong people. It is claimed by grownups when it should be confined to children. Some nursery experimenters a few years ago found that a college athlete was completely done in by less than a day of following a three-year-old child around and trying to do all the things the child did. That bee you saw dragging its drooping wings back to the hive had been trying to drop a fleck of clover pollen on the ear of a three-year-old.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

While I live will I praise the Lord: I will sing praises unto my God while I have any being....

Happy is he that hath the God of Jacob for his help, whose hope is in the Lord his God: which made heaven, and earth, the sea, and all that therein is: which keepeth truth for ever. (Ps. 146: 2, 5, 6.)

And God said, Let the earth bring forth grass, the herb yielding seed, and the fruit tree yielding fruit after his kind, whose seed is in itself, upon the earth: and it was so. And the earth brought forth grass, and herb yielding seed after his kind, and the tree yielding fruit, whose seed was in itself, after his kind: and God saw that it was good. (Gen. 1: 11, 12.)

Thus the heavens and the earth were finished, and all the host of them....

These are the generations of the heavens and of the earth when they were created, in the day that the Lord God made the earth and the heavens, and every plant of the field before it was in the earth, and every herb of the field before it grew. (Gen. 2: 1, 4, 5.)

A BRITISH OPINION

How To Play Canasta

By WILLIAM E. McKENNEY

The principal features of the new game of Canasta are the melding and the forming of Canastas.

Your melds and your partners' are combined, and one of you keeps all of them. You can add one or more cards to the melds of your own side, but not to those of your opponents.

The cards score for you if you meld them; against you if they are still in your hand when a player goes out. The card values are: joker, 50; aces and deuces, 20 each; king down to the 8-spot, 10 each; 7 down to the black 3, 5 each; red three's have a special value of their own.

The first or official meld by you or your partner must be worth at least 50 points. After your score reaches 1500, this minimum goes up to 90. At the 3000-point mark, it goes up to 120 (game is 5000).

After either partner has made a legal initial meld as explained above, either partner may meld by adding one or more cards to a previous meld made by his side or by making any other meld of three cards or more. (Each new meld of three cards or more must have at least two natural cards.)

* * *

You meld your cards by placing them face up on the table for scoring. Each meld must include at least two natural cards. You cannot put down one 8 and a deuce and a joker. You can put down two 8's and either a deuce or a joker, and call it three 8's. As a matter of fact, you can meld two 8's and three wild cards and thus have five 8's; but to complete a Canasta you must have at least four natural cards and not more than three wild cards.

A Canasta consists of seven of a kind. You do not have to hold your cards up until you get seven of a kind in order to score the bonus or a Canasta. You can start off by putting down, let us say, two aces and one wild card (no meld can be made with less than two natural cards). After the first meld you and your partner can add to those aces. Your meld remains spread out on the table until the seventh card is added, which now forms the Canasta.

When a meld is made that completes a Canasta, the Canasta should be gathered together. Before it is closed up, anyone has the right to examine it to make sure that it is a Canasta. After that it should not be examined by anyone. If it is a natural Canasta (one in which no wild cards are used), you place a red card on top. If it is a Canasta made up of four or more natural cards and the balance wild cards, it is gathered together and a black card placed on top.

* * *

If a Canasta is made up of four red sixes, for example, and three wild cards, place a red six crosswise on top. Then, when the first black six is discarded, exchange it for your red six.

After a Canasta has been formed, you may add to it. Slide the added cards to the bottom of your Canasta. Added cards do not increase the bonus for the Canasta but merely add points for the added cards. A natural five-spot would add five points, while a joker would increase the value by 50 points.

Be careful not to add a wild card to a natural Canasta, because if you do, you now have a mixed Canasta, and you will be entitled to the 300-point bonus, but not the 500-point bonus.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC PERDUE, Sports Editor.

Folks who follow the fortunes of the junior "B" pucksts here, and supporters of the senior "B" Petes—as well as hockey fans in general—can see an interesting tilt at 8.30 in Civic Arena when IOOF-ers play the Petes an exhibition. Good practice for both squads and the juniors will make the seniors hustle, we expect. In other years we have advocated the odd practice tussle between the older hockeyists and the junior "B" boys as the latter can learn a lot in such play and be better next time out against opposition of their own calibre. Nor will the game hurt the Petes' conditioning any.

* * * * * *

The real test of strength for local ice domination will come Friday when the old enemies, Petes and Legion, meet in a scheduled senior "B" struggle. Yes, for keeps. Petes beat the champs a week ago in an exhibition and they'll be out to prove it was no fluke this time, whilst the Legionnaires are still smarting from that setback. While it is bound to be rugged in spots, with no love lost, we imagine both clubs will get orders from their skippers to stay on the ice and grab off a win. In a stiff group—apart from Gananoque maybe—every game is important, and then both Petes and Legion get great satisfaction out of defeating the other.

Conny Smythe's Coop

Chap here called up to say he was in Toronto a few weeks back and asked about Conny Smythe's little heated compartment by the press box. The attendant said that Conny isn't in good shape at all—suffering from war wounds—and had to have a warm spot at hockey games. If this is the case, we will take back our rib of a recent column when we panned the Leafian manager for going soft. After all, war wounds are something else again, and of course Smythe loves his hockey and suffers considerably when his Leafs lose a game. We have every respect for Conny, though we don't like him.

An AHL item says: "Little Gil Mayer, Pittsburgh goaltender, has a natural weight of 128 pounds. However, when he dons all his equipment for a game, he tips the scales at 166. The 38 pounds of steel, wood, leather and wool costs $300 and requires 30 minutes for dressing and removal." Yes, sir, the hockey goalie is a well padded gent indeed and it is surprising how fast he can move with that load on. It's quite a chore to dress a goalie, and usually Ray Harding of the Petes and Ross Nicholls of Legion are helped by the trainer or a teammate as they squeeze into their heavy gear. It is practically impossible to hurt a goalie, except about the face or head, when he is armoured for action.

Busier Than That Bee

Prompt reports on minor hockey and the various sports which we can't personally cover will be appreciated again this winter from league secretaries or others responsible. We can't cover every contest, naturally, and this season finds us busy as the proverbial bee. Though one W. R. Agar of Brooklin, Ont., an apiarist for 35 years, scoffs at that saying. He insists that bees are lazy and also not too bright. Says a bee makes only three or four trips a day and sleeps between trips, his working day actually being not much more than two hours. Bees act foolish sometimes. Mr. Agar states, often swarming somewhere late in the season and leaving behind 100 pounds of honey. Hm, there goes another cherished illusion. On second thought, let us say that we are much busier than a bee.

Lewicki Leads Marlboros To 3-0 Shutout Over Irish

By The Canadian Press

Ever since his Toronto debut in Memorial Cup play two seasons ago with Port Arthur West End Bruins, Toronto Junior Marlboro's Danny Lewicki has been touted as one of amateur hockey's top prospects. Centre of a contract controversy earlier this season after performing with Stratford Kroehlers in 1947-48, Danny lined up with Marlboros and, along with George Armstrong, has been one of their most capable players.

Dangerous Danny potted two goals out of a team total of three last night to pace Marlboros to a 3-0 shutout win over the smooth St. Michael's College Majors. The Marlboro win left them seven points ahead of the second-slot Windsor Spitfires.

In other games Tuesday night, Windsor pasted Galt Black Hawks 13-3 to stay in contention for junior honors, Guelph edged St. Catharines 2-1 and Owen Sound seniors decisioned Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen 5-3. The Mercury victory enabled them to climb within one point of the second place Dutchmen.

Larry Regan opened the scoring at Toronto late in the first period. While Don Lockhart was blocking St. Michael's attempts to score in the second frame, Lewicki, came through with his two tallies, the first one three minutes after the period opened and the second one with little more than a minute remaining.

Get 11 Penalties

A tribute to Marlboro goalie Don Lockhart's brilliant work in the nets was the fact that out of 15 penalties handed out in the clean game, Marlboros collected 11 of them.

At Galt, the Black Hawks made a game of it for one period, holding Windsor Spitfires to a 3-3 tie in the first. The supports were sawed out from under Galt in the second when Spitfires came through with a four-goal effort. The destruction of the Hawk machine was completed in the finale frame as Spitfires penetrated for six more.

Bob Bailey, Earl Riebel, Earl Johnson, Jack Bailey and Glen Skov kept the scorers busy with two goals apiece. Singletons were counted by Ed Stankiewicz, Bob Rawlyk and Erwin Grosse. George Ford was a two-goal man for Galt while the remaining single was notched by Kilbey.

Turn On Heat

Guelph Biltmores did all their scoring in the first period. Ches Koneczny and Don Bellringer potted the markers two minutes apart. Dennis Mooney took over for Guelph and managed to block the door to his goal on all St. Catharines' attempts in the second period. After terrific pressure, Obie O'Brien averted a shutout with only four minutes remaining. Mooney took over again and held Teepees off the remainder of the game.

Owen Sound came from behind to whip Kitchener-Waterloo with two last-period goals by Buck Forslund pacing the rally. The Mercs built up a 2-1 lead in the first period, Don Bauer tied it up for the Dutchmen late in the second and Jack Shewchuk put the twin-city boys in the lead. Buck Forslund knotted the count and Pete Donaleshen potted the winner in the third. Forslund added an insurance marker with 45 seconds remaining.

First period scorers for Mercurys were Andy McCallum and Doug Gillespie. Butch Martin sniped the Dutchmen's opening goal.

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

Calgary coach Les Lear touched off a national football controversy Tuesday. He advocated a complete break by all leagues from the Canadian Rugby Union.

"Football is going ahead while the CRU stands still," he stormed in an interview at Winnipeg.

He said a break from the CRU "is in the wind," but didn't specify just where the gale might strike first.

Other football bigwigs commented on the Lear statement. None of them indicated support for the doughty Calgarian's proposal though one said "I've heard about it." Another said the whole thing is "ridiculous." Three more said their leagues plan no such action.

At Toronto, Dr. J. J. O'Connor, Big Four president, said the east's interprovincial union "certainly has no intention of breaking from the CRU and there is "absolutely no truth to Lear's remark as far as the Big Four is concerned."

Harold Bailey of Toronto, secretary of the Ontario Rugby Football Union said:

"Ask Mr. Lear what comprises the Canadian Rugby Union. It is representative of each union that plays in eastern and western Canada football. If the CRU is wrong, Lear's own union is wrong and by the same token, if I say it is wrong then my own union is wrong."

Dr. W. A. Campbell, CRU president and eastern intercollegiate union's delegate on the governing body, said at Kingston he has "no comment to make" on Lear's statement.

The Professional Golfers Association of America today voted at its annual meeting against allowing any professional to become eligible for membership after two years as a recognized tournament circuit player. The status of Bobby Locke, South African pro barred from PGA tournaments for allegedly backing out of bookings in the United States, was discussed inconclusively. The meeting apparently felt it was up to Locke to make the next move for reinstatement.

Montreal Canadiens announced Tuesday left winger Gerry Plamondon had been sent to Cincinnati Mohawks of the American Hockey League for 10 days. A spokesman for the National Hockey League club said Plamondon had not been playing regularly with Canadiens and needed a few games to regain his confidence.

Ralph Toohy, 23-year-old defenceman, said at Montreal on Tuesday night that he has been signed to play hockey this season with Valleyfield Braves of the Quebec Senior Hockey League. Toohy, an end with Montreal Alouettes of the Big Four Football League, said he signed with the Braves and "will not report to Seattle Ironmen" of the Pacific Coast League "because of personal reasons." At Seattle Dave Downey, manager of the Ironmen said that he expected Toohy to join his club either Wednesday or Thursday.

Jack Kramer won his 20th match against Richard (Pancho) Gonzales Tuesday night defeating the young Californian 6-1, 3-6, 9-7 before 10,000 fans at the Montreal Forum. Gonzales, who only recently turned professional to take part in the transcontinental tour of four United States tennis pros, has won only four of the contests played to date.

The Danish Sports Association has ruled that an amateur doesn't lose his simon-pure status when he signs a professional contract. He is regarded as a pro only when he starts collecting money.

Two race hores burned to death and six others were saved early Tuesday when fire destroyed a barn on the George Perry farm near Bowie race track. Damage was estimated at $30,000.

An injury suffered during his three-month English tour will keep Canadian middleweight boxing champion George (Rockabye) Ross idle until early next year when he probably will defend his title against Johnny Greco of Montreal. Dapper Gus MacLellan of Glace Bay, N. S., his manager, said in an interview on Tuesday at Halifax that Montreal promoter Raoul Godbout wanted Ross to meet Greco Dec. 12 but a nasty cut under Ross' left eyebrow will take some time to heal.

The Canadian Small Bore Association, for 17 years a national organization of civilian target rifle shots, has been reorganized to include skeet, trap and pistol shots in its membership, president Doug Robertson announced Tuesday at Montreal. The new group will be known as "The Canadian Civilian Association of Marksmen."

Togs-Marines Leading In Girls' Loop

Towne Togs again rolled high this week in the Girls' City Bowling League with a 3115 total and high game of 1118. N. Ephgrave led in threesomes with 717 as P. Hawthorne had best single of 312, N. Ephgrave's count being closest to the blind score. Cards blanked Arcos while 2-1 wins were hung up by Togs over Marines, Brintons against Dickson's, Collis over Curtin's and Aces over Sevenaires. Standing at the end of the first section has Togs and Marines tied on top with 23 points each, Brintons having 19, Cardinals 13, Arcos and Collis 12 each, Curtin's Sevenaires and Aces 9 apiece, and Dickson's 6. Henry Says He Will Deflate Kowalski Thursday Night

The strutting Jim "Goon" Henry did after his victory here in last week's wrestling headliner may be changed to a very different step this Thursday night. The haughty, hammering Henry will stack up against Wladek Kowalski, the 265-pound, six-foot-seven-inch young Pole in this Thursday's main bout at the Brock. The Goon is mighty confident of polishing off Kowalski. In regards to his refusal to meet Stanlee in a return match Henry said: 'Why should I give that punk another go. I gave him a real beating last week and as far as I'm concerned he's out. My chief concern now is taking some of the ego out of this Kowalski. He's getting too big for his shoes." While Wladek doesn't normally go in for the bashing tactics so favored by "Goon" he has shown himself capable of mixing it if the going gets rough.

Wee Willie Davis is another wrestler who seems to prefer to use smashing force instead of finesse to try to win. Talented Toar Morgan will tackle the bumptious Davis in the semi-final of the card and should stir up plenty of fireworks. Twenty-eight more rinks played their first game in the Neill Trophy bonspiel on Tuesday evening and although we had not the privilege of seeing any of the games, we did see the extra end of the Brown-Northey affair. It drew the crowd and judging by comments heard, one would think it was an international final. However, it all adds up to an evening's entertainment and that's what counts.

Dr. C. McKee and Dr. C. Lawrence are skipping rinks in the Lindsay bonspiel today.

Tonight we continue with the schedule games. Group No. 1 at 7 o'clock and Group No. 2 at 9:00 o'clock.

Purge Follows Bad Slump Of Leaf Team

By JIM BASTABLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Maybe the Toronto Maple Leafs should weigh in on heavy-duty scales before Thursday's National Hockey League game.

They're right in the middle of the "fat purge." It's either take it off, or do some bench-warming.

That's Managing Director Conn Smythe's answer to "What's wrong with the Leafs?" Instead of being lean and hungry, he said, they've grown fat and sloppy on a diet of three successive Stanley Cups.

So Smythe pulled the eviction trigger Tuesday and the shot sent ol' Turk Broda and his 197 net-minding pounds to the sidelines in favor of a strippling from the Leafs' farm club—128-pound Gil Mayer.

Says Smythe:

"The honeymoon is over. If they don't come through . . . they'll sit on the bench."

To Sit Out Game

Broda, a 35-year-old veteran with the Leafs, will sit out at least one game and possibly more until he regains his schoolgirl figure. Mayer, a five-foot-six operator from Pittsburgh Hornets of the American League, will take over Broda's duties tomorrow night when the Leafs meet the league-leading Detroit Red Wings.

The five-foot-nine Broda was ordered to lop off seven pounds before he will be allowed to resume his chores with the Leafs—who have lost five games and tied one in their last six starts. They're in a third-place tie with Chicago Black Hawks with 18 points—nine behind Detroit.

Broda wasn't available for comment Tuesday night but friends said he was out taking weight off.

Smythe's condition ultimatum was issued to four other players too—defenceman Garth Boesch and forwards Harry Watson, Vic Lynn and Sid Smith.

Watson, the heaviest man on the Stanley Cup champion squad with 205 pounds, was ordered to sweat off three from 195. Lynn, at 189, has to lose nine, while Smith, tipping the scales at 183, must lose three.

The chances of more lineup changes before game time? Smythe delined to say until after today's practice. "I know we're shorthanded with Cal Gardner and Bill Barilko injured, but the rest of the fellows have to get in there," he added.

Havelock Taxpayers To Vote On Waterworks And Sewage

HAVELOCK, Nov. 30 (ENS)—Dr. A. E. Berry of the Department of Health, Toronto, and C. H. Taylor the engineer who made the survey of the town in connection with the proposed waterworks and sewerage systems, addressed a public meeting in the town hall on Monday explaining the survey and answering questions about the projects. Reeve E. J. Leeson was chairman. The ratepayers will vote on the two projects at the municipal election Dec. 12.

Dr. Berry spoke on the need for systems of this nature and the means of financing them. The number of communities installing one or both of these systems had greatly increased during the past 25 years and all through the province an effort for better sanitation and home conveniences were evident.

The department, he said was interested mostly from the health standpoint, because typhoid fever, dysentry, polio, etc., could develop from unprotected wells. Well water could be clear, taste all right and still be contaminated.

Dr. Berry also spoke on the advantage waterworks would be in fighting fires and in obtaining industries for the town.

Referring to the financial side of the project, he used the estimates prepared by the engineer, giving the cost of waterworks at $120,195 and sewerage at $165,366. He estimated the cost monthly for both services to the ratepayer would be approximately $5.50, based on an assessment of $1,000, a lot with 66 foot frontage and a monthly water rate of $2 a month based on 300 homes. Fewer users would mean higher taxation.

100,000 Gallon Tank

Mr. Taylor's report states the source of water was to be a well supplying water by a 100-gallon a minute pump to a 100,000 gallon tank, stand pipe type, 50 feet high, located on the ridge of the north edge of the town. A test well would have to be drilled before the well could be located and the quantity of water available more accurately known. There seemed no doubt that an ample supply of good quality water would be available.

From the tank, domestic water would flow by gravity to all parts of the town through a cast iron water main pipes of four, six and eight inch diameters.

The design of the system was based on the quantity and pressure of water required for fire protection, as that was considerably in excess of domestic water requirements. For a village the size of Havelock, the fire underwriters recommended that two firefighting water streams be available from each hydrant. Two fire streams required 500 gallons a minute and this amount would be available at all hydrants except four which would each provide one stream of 250 gallons a minute.

It was estimated that a saving of $5,000 to $5,500 could be made in excavating and backfilling costs if the water and sewer mains were installed at the same time. This was not as great a saving as might be expected, because owing to the nature of the soil, water mains would have to be supported by timber until the backfill had thoroughly settled.

Explains Finances

The annual charges necessary to pay the interest and principal on 20 year 3½ per cent serial bonds on the estimated capital cost of the waterworks system of $120,195 were calculated at $8,457. The ratepayers' share of the total capital cost was estimated at $71,690, being $59,000 applicable to the cost of mains and $12,690 estimated costs of house connections to the lot lines. Annual charges could be made by equal footage rates on abutting land to cover all or a part of the annual capital cost of the mains and also by equal footage rates on built up land to cover all the annual capital cost of the house connections.

The capacity of the sewage system would be sufficient for the normal growth of the town. The system had been designed for sanitary purposes only, storm water to be taken care of by the existing storm drains; and would consist of bell and spigot pipe from eight inches to 15 inches in diameter.

The sewers would be deep enough to drain all cellars and the design and estimate included house laterals from the sewer main to the lot lines for all houses and places of business. Manholes would be provided at the dead ends of sewer mains, at all intersections, at points of grade changes and midway in blocks. Plan No. two which had been chosen by the Council, served all the built up part of the town except the house south of the railway tracks on the East Concession Road.

The disposal plant would consist of a sedimentation tank of reinforced concrete construction, a sludge drying bed and underdrained sand filter beds. The under-drains would discharge to a main drain to the creek in order to carry off the filtered effluent. Provision would be made in the sedimentation tank for chlorination of the tank effluent if such was found necessary.

By-law No. 589 for borrowing the sum of $120,195.00 for the purpose of installing a waterworks system and By-law No. 590 for borrowing the sum of $165,366. for the purpose of installing a sewerage system for the village of Havelock have been given their first and second readings at a special meeting of the council.

Paper Says Ontario Won't Handle Rents

TORONTO, Nov. 30 (CP) — A Toronto daily paper said on Tuesday in a newspage story that the Ontario Government does not intend to follow the course taken by the Saskatchewan government and ask the Dominion government to suspend recently announced rent increases.

The story quoted "high officials" and added Ontario does not intend taking over rent controls."

The story said the provincial government was taking this stand because Premier Frost's cabinet does not consder rent controls a proper field for the province. Premier Frost declined comment.

Urges Government To Assist Towns

OTTAWA, Nov. 30 — (CP) — An appeal to assist the small towns and villages obtain loans under the Government's Housing Act was voiced in the Commons Tuesday night by H. W. Herridge (CCF-Kootenay West).

He said that the government had indicated that these unincorporated areas did not provide good investments, but this was wrong.

The government was applying a "cold business" outlook without a proper sense of responsibility for Canada as a whole.

Small areas were denied the opportunity of obtaining loans from the pending institutions under the National Housing Act.

He appealed to Reconstruction Minister Winters to investigate the housing-loan situation and if possible make these loans applicable to semi-rural and rural areas.

Luck Holds Out, Misses Death

TORONTO, Nov. 30 (CP) — William B. Forsythe, Toronto-born vice-president of the Pepsi Cola Company who was among survivors of the plane crash at Dallas that took 28 lives Tuesday, had narrow escapes from death before.

His mother, 82-year-old Mrs. W. F. Forsythe, Tuesday night said with a sigh of relief "Bill has done it again."

The 52-year-old executive escaped the sinking of the passenger freighter City of Benares in mid-Atlantic in 1940, and he was uninjured when the hotel in which he was staying at London, England, received bomb hits later in 1940.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30 (AP) — The Soviet Ukraine's foreign minister, Dmitri Z. Manuilsky, told the U. N. These remarks were allowed to stand in the record because he did not name any personalities.

Yule Weather Starts City On Shopping Spree

On the threshhold of the Christmas month the downtown section of the city is beginning to buzz with Christmas shoppers and store keepers are feeling happier about business than a few weeks ago. If business continues as briskly as it has done in the past week shall be throwing my hat up in the air on Christmas Day, one city store manager said today, when asked how Christmas business was coming along.

Earlier this month several store keepers were somewhat concerned about Christmas prospects — the rush started slowly and there appeared to be cause for anxiety.

But the arrival of Christmas weather has brought the spirit of yuletide and Christmas ashopping has become an earnest mission once again.

The men's clothing stores are busy serving women with something snappy to please father, husband, brother and boy friend and even the men, usually Christmas Eve shoppers, are being swept up in the annual mission. One jewellery store reports business is brisk and necklaces, bracelets and brooches are being bought for milady by a number of husky males.

Santa's bag is already well filled with toys for the youngsters. This year's supply—the best since pre-war years—has had the children in a fever of excitement for several weeks.

Colorful decorations have been appearing in the stores since the early part of the month and there are now few without festival streamers and Christmas bells.

The Christmas party spirit is slow to come this year a ladies' clothing store keeper said this week. Small articles such as blouses and stockings are being sold for Christmas presents but few women have bought formals and party dresses yet. These are usually left to the last minutes rush the spokesman said and this year there is no exception.

Rule Penicillin To Be Duty Free

OTTAWA, Nov. 30 — (CP) — Penicillin S-R, a highly refined type of the healing drug, will be allowed to be imported into Canada duty free under a decision rendered by the Tariff Board Tuesday.

The decision was brought down on an appeal by Parke, Davis and Company, Limited, of Walkerville, from a ruling of the Department of National Revenue. The appeal, asking for a change in classification of penicillin S-R, was allowed in a majority decision of the three-members board.

Penicillin S-R—a salt resulting from the action of procaine on the original penicillin and further refined by other chemical actions —has been imported into Canada under a classification charging a 20 per cent tariff. Under the new classification allowed by the board, it will be duty free.

The spokesman said that one result of the ruling would be to leave Canadian manufacturers of penicillin S-R without tariff protection. It now is produced by two Canadian firms, Merek and Company and Ayerst, Harris and McKenna.

Announcing KRIPTIN*
New Anti-Histamine Drug that RELIEVES COLD SYMPTOMS
NOT IN DAYS — BUT IN HOURS!

This is no ordinary cold remedy!

This is KRIPTIN, the new wonder drug that relieves cold symptoms—not in days, but in hours!

HERE'S PROOF: Working on the theory that the beginning symptoms of a cold and allergy symptoms are alike, the U.S. Navy tested several anti-histamines for cold treatment during the winter of 1947-48.

THE SPECTACULAR RESULTS: In 90% of cases cold symptoms (i.e., sneezing, running nose, pains) were relieved completely before they developed when anti-histamine treatment was started within an hour after these symptoms appeared. Even within 6 hours, cold symptoms were relieved in 74% of cases . . . and 70% when treatment was started within 12 hours.

And in these tests patients preferred the KRIPTIN formula over all other anti-histamines tested!

KEEP KRIPTIN HANDY to take at the first sneeze or sign of a cold!

As the tests show, KRIPTIN works best when taken at the first sign of a cold. Don't wait until you sniffle or sneeze—buy KRIPTIN now . . . have it on hand at all times, at home, at work, to check cold symptoms in their tracks!

Read about this remarkable new cold treatment in Reader's Digest
An article in December READER'S DIGEST describes medical research with anti-histamines.
Remember, 1947-48 U.S. Navy research revealed that the KRIPTIN formula was preferred to all other anti-histamine tested!

KRIPTIN is so new, your druggist may not be able to meet the demand. If he is out of stock, he should have KRIPTIN soon. But insist on KRIPTIN. Don't accept substitutes. There is only one KRIPTIN. Remember . . . KRIPTIN was the preferred anti-histamine in U.S Navy tests!

Big Name Stars Pay Honor To Bill Robinson

NEW YORK, Nov. 20 (AP) — Big-name stars of show business and thousands upon thousands of ordinary New Yorkers Monday paid final respects to dancer Bill Robinson.

"Bojangles," who made and spent million of dollars and won millions of hearts with his tap dancing and his smile, died Friday of heart disease at the age of 71.

All day Sunday while his body lay at the 369th Regiment Armory, nearly 40,000 people filed by the coffin.

Monday more than 5,000 more took their last look as two policemen—one white and one negro—guarded the flower-banked coffin.

Later an estimated 500,000 mourners watched from sidewalks or tenement windows as the funeral cortege passed through the streets of Harlem to the Abyssinian Baptist Church.

Weep Openly

They were silent except for an occasional shouted, "goodbye Bill." Many of them wept openly.

While part of a special detail of 250 policemen held back a surging crowd outside the church, Mayor William O'Dwyer and a minister preceded the flag-draped coffin to the church door.

There they were joined by other honorary pallbearers—baseball star Jackie Robinson, Ethel Merman, Eddy (Rochester) Anderson, James Barton, Arthur Treacher, Bert Lytell, and other theatrical figures.

The Rev. Adam Clayton Powell, pastor of the church and a United States Congressman, conducted the funeral. He estimated that Robinson had raised $100,000,000 for charity and had earned $4,000,000 for himself during his 60-year career, but had "not a cent when he died."

SOLE SURVIVOR—Gerry Anderson, 17, was the lone survivor when the tug George McGregor foundered in high winds and heavy seas half a mile off Victoria. Six men were drowned. Anderson floated ashore on a capsized lifeboat.

"Dear Santa"—Eager Letters Have Arrived in Peterborough Post Office Since October

Letters to Santa Claus are beginning to find their way into the channels of His Majesty's Mail service in Canada. On the average about six letters each day are arriving at the local Post Office addressed to the whiskered merry-man.

St. Nick may come suddenly out of the blue on one short evening; not so letters to him. They spread over a period of several months. The first letter to be received at the local office for Santa Claus reached the Peterborough Post Office in October. The stream of letters has been building up in the past week. Monday night six letters were in the city-collected mail, to bring the total to date up to sixty.

Letters passing through the Post Office addressed to St. Nick bear two kinds of addresses, a local store or the North Pole. Most children address their letters to the local stores and the Post Office forwards them to the stores where they are put in the Santa Claus mail boxes.

Letters direct to Santa at his North Pole workshop are sent on from the local office to the Dead Letter Office in Ottawa where officials there take up the burden of letter's destination.

"At least children don't have to be told to mail early," said a father of two hopefulls.

Reporter Gets Big Shock, Niece A Star

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 30 (AP)—Today I am turning this space over to Bob Eunson, just returned from the AP Paris bureau. He has an unusual tale to tell:

Coming home after seven years overseas for The Associated Press, I received my biggest shock in finding my 15-year-old niece a glamorous full-grown movie star.

The last time I saw Joan, she was climbing trees in my brother's backyard at Scarborough. She was a round little brown-eyed girl of eight whose greatest delight was being pushed in a swing.

Name And Hair

The family name was swapped for Joan's grandmother's maiden name of Evans. Joan Eunson's hair was dark and thick. Joan Evan's hair is reddish and at present cut short and Parisienne.

By sticking to pears, cottage cheese, lettuce leaves and tea, Joan has lost her baby fat and become beautifully slim.

First Kiss

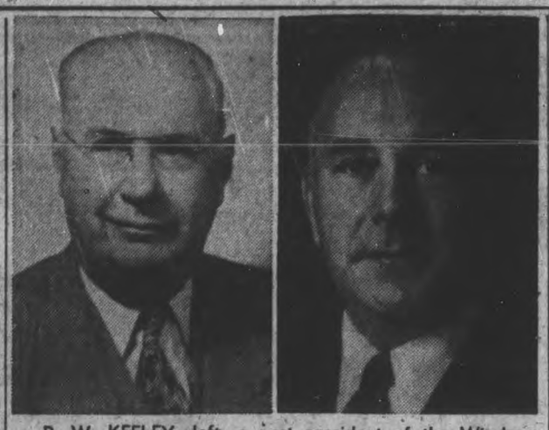
During the first year Joan also:

Received her first kiss from Farley Granger in "Roseanna McCoy;"

Was honored when a McCoy family in Los Angeles named a daughter Joan Roseanna;

Was voted Miss Hayride of 1949 by Phi Alpha frat at Rutgers; and "The girl we'd most like to have visit us on a football week-end" by Alumni Hall at Notre Dame;

Had her lips named among "the most kissable in Hollywood" by a makeup man;



Travelled 6,000 miles for personal appearances;

Was the subject of 25 magazine articles and receives 300 fan letters weekly.

You'd think that a 15-year-old girl would rest on such laurels, but not Joan. She is not only appearing in "Edge of Doom," but taking dancing and voice lessons as well. Why?

Because as soon as she is old enough, Joan wants to be a musical comedy star like her mother's friend, Mary Martin.

I wonder what happened to that swing?

R. W. KEELEY, left, a past president of the Windsor Chamber of Commerce, who has been elected provincial vice-president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, and N. R. Crawford, right, Toronto, who has been appointed chairman of the Ontario Regional Committee of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce for the coming year, succeeding H. M. Turner.

Only 12 Centres Aided By Grant

SAINT JOHN, N. B., Nov. 30—(CP)—The Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities has concluded that only 10 or 12 municipalities will benefit from the Federal plan for municipal grants in lieu of taxation on Federal properties, Mayor E. W. Patterson said Tuesday.

He said a committee has been appointed to devise a formula "which would contain equity and fairness for all municipalities in Canada."

"The formula is based on services rendered to federally-owned property," the Mayor said, "and it was the opinion (of the executive) that these services should be paid for by Federal authorities."

Proposals made in the formula will not be made public until a five-man delegation meets Prime Minister St. Laurent and Finance Minister Abbott "at the earliest possible date."

★ Today we Live in a Greater Canada ★

★ DESIGNED AND BUILT in Canada!

A COMPLETE pulp and paper mill is being designed and built in Canada for shipment to India . . . specially-designed vessels are being built in Canadian shipyards to meet the particular needs of South American countries . . . in another great Canadian engineering works, giant hydraulic turbines are being constructed to harness the water power of Ceylon and of South America . . . from another, locomotives have been shipped for the railways of France, Belgium and India . . . four more striking examples of Canada's new position as a great industrial nation!

Today Canada's skilled workers and technicians have a greater wealth of knowledge, experience and ability than ever before. Canada's manufacturing capacity has been expanded and diversified to an extent never thought possible ten years ago. Such developments are typical of modern Canada with its new, more interesting, more varied opportunities.

"NOWHERE SUCH SCOPE . . . !"

"Energy, initiative, enthusiasm — plus sound knowledge of the job in hand — that's a success-winning combination anywhere — but nowhere have those qualities such vast scope for achievement as in the ever-developing Canada of today".

says JOHN STUART of Toronto

The career of the dynamic John Stuart presents an inspiring example of individual enterprise. He worked in a retail store while attending Queen's — went into the field as a salesman — became a sales manager in Winnipeg — then started his own organization. By a remarkable display of courage and initiative he achieved many spectacular sales successes. He has built up an outstanding enterprise doing an annual business in the millions.

For the month of December the group will meet in the Sunday school room of Grace Presbyterian Church.

It was decided that the play "No Room at the Inn" should be presented at the Christmas meeting to be held Dec. 19.

Games were under the supervision of Keith MacGregor, recreational convener. Refreshments were served by Marilyn Palmer and Leona Ball, assisted by Helen Fallis and Irene Tuck.

At the conclusion of the social hour there was an auction sale of left-over refreshments with Marilyn Palmer as auctioneer.

Peter Pearson, Gale Elliott Are Returned

Two more townships—Galway-Cavendish and Harvey—will not have elections this year. The reeve and four councillors of both municipalities have been returned by acclamation.

Reeve Peter Pearson of Galway - Cavendish is beginning his sixth term, while Gale Elliott of Harvey commences his second. Mr. Elliott was a councillor for about 10 years.

Following is the 1950 Galway-Cavendish Council: Peter Pearson, reeve; and our councillors—Alex Kennedy, beginning his third term of office; Charles Molyneaux, fourth term; Ray Allen, second term, and George Young, first term.

Mr. Young replaces Lester Hickey who dropped out of the race this year.

The nomination meeting was held Friday in Galway parish hall.

There was another uneventful meeting at the Buckhorn Town Hall Monday when Mr. Elliott was returned along with three of last year's Council.

The fourth member of the 1950 Council will be Richard Hill of Buckhorn replacing Thomas Mason who stepped down after serving one year.

The two veteran Councillors are Charles Johnston of Nogie's Creek and Thomas Gordon of Buckhorn, both beginning their fifth terms. Kenneth Junkin of Bobcaygeon has been returned for his second term.

Reeve Elliott entered the County Council for the first time in 1949 after defeating the encumbent, Charles Flynn of Rockcroft. He is a strong advocate of a causeway, similar to the Chemong Lake one at Gannon's narrows.

Reeve Pearson of Galway-Cavendish has been on the County Council for five years and this will be his sixth term.

Claimed Benefits For Two Dependants

Found guilty of obtaining excessive unemployment insurance benefits by falsely claiming pedendants, James V. Keating, 213 King St., was fined $20 and $10.85 costs and ordered to pay back the $13.20 excess amount he received.

Keating said he had two daughters who were living at his mother's home when he applied for unemployment insurance Feb. 8. March 8, the two daughters were sent away, but Keating continued to receive insurance at the dependants rate for a total of 38 days.

He said he had not paid anything to the upkeep of his daughters after they left because the only work he could get was on a farm at $40 a month. However, he argued, he agreed to pay $40 a month for the girls' upkeep and was still liable to pay that money Because he was liable, Keating argued, he could legitimately claim dependants' rating.

Prosecuting lawyer, W. B. Gordon, said the evidence showed that in fact he had paid no money for the girls' maintenance. He said the payments were made on the understanding that Keating was in fact contributing to the girls' upkeep at the time he was receiving the money.

New Invasion Will Mean End

NEW YORK, Nov. 30 (CP)—Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery said Tuesday night that, if western Europe is over-run again by invaders, "that is the end of the peoples who live there."

"The point that is fundamental is that to promise to rescue the west in due course after a successful invasion from the east is quite useless," the British Army hero added.

His speech was prepared for a dinner meeting sponsored by the English speaking union of the United States.

"The peoples of western Europe must be protected against invasion," continued Lord Montgomery, "and not just told they will be rescued after it."

Such protection is under way in the form of the economic recovery program and the defence organization of western Europe, he added.

Drunk, Kills Man, Driver Fined $50

COOKSVILLE, Nov. 30.—Norman E. Laver, 22, driver of a car involved in a fatal hit-and-run accident near Dixie last Sept. 25 was Tuesday convicted on charges of dangerous driving and failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

Magistrate Moorehead levied a fine of $25 and costs on each count. The alternative was 20 days in jail.

The accident victim, John Sobola, 18, of Haig Blvd., Lakeview, was walking to work on the Lake Shore Road.

Under questioning by Crown Attorney A. G. Davis, Laver admitted he had consumed a quantity of beer prior to the accident. He surrendered to police at Port Credit several hours later.

"Laver said he did not see the man until after the accident and then he lost his nerve and left the scene," said Provincial Constable Maurice Seaman.

SPORTSMANSHIP IN "CANADA UNLIMITED"

Hockey's First!

The rules of the rink have changed greatly since hockey's first organized game . . . 74 years ago.

It was a March day in 1875. The indoor ice of Montreal's Victoria Skating Rink was a swirl of uniformed figures. Spectators who lined the rails were watching the first attempt to organize the increasingly popular game of hockey.

The teams had been reduced to nine men a side . . . each with a definite position to cover. Instead of the familiar rubber ball, a flat, round block of wood was being used. And for the first time, the goals were protected by goaltenders. Regulation hockey had been born.

Hockey holds a proud tradition of sportsmanship for Canadians. And Canadian teamwork has made us world leaders in the game. Together, sportsmanship and teamwork are working for you . . . by keeping your opportunities for work and play in Canada . . . unlimited.

The Stanley Cup, today's emblem of N.H.L. Championship, was first won in 1894 by the Montreal AAA team . . . and for 17 years was a purely amateur trophy.

Outboard Marine Doubling Office Space

Outboard Marine and Manufacturing Company are doubling the office space at their production works on Monaghan Road, Hy Wood informed the Examiner today.

Contract for the job was let on Tuesday to Richard and D. A. Ryan of Montreal who have reached the finishing stage of the big new building that was added to the plant's accommodation this year.

"We are extending the office back into the factory property," Mr. Wood, who is vice-president of manufacturing, explained.

Part of the older main building will be used for enlarging the office.

Seven Big Firms Busy

At the end of this extremely busy and significant year for Peterborough seven contracting companies are still working here, although one of them has reached the final stage of gathering up tools and other such equipment.

A. W. Robertson Construction Company have finished the big job they have been working on at Canadian General Electric Company. Some few odds and ends remain, but it is only a mopping up operation.

Reynolds Construction Company will be working all winter on the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation houses in the southwest end of the city.

Robertson Construction and Engineering Company of Niagara Falls are building the nurses' residence at Civic Hospital.

Eastwood Construction Company have the main contract at the new hospital.

Hardy Construction Company are on the ground at the sewage disposal plant making ready to begin operations.

It was reported some time ago that one of the companies from out of town may open an office here indefinitely for the job in hand and also the prospects for Peterborough and central Ontario if the economy of the country continues to sustain the postwar development.

The Loblaw building is a second contract in the hands of Eastwood Construction Co.

The Pigot Construction Company of Hamilton are building the new wing to St. Joseph's Hospital.

Several other works are being projected here, the new city hall, the federal government's customs-postal building, a new school, and the memorial centre.

City Offers Help In Training Twp. Firefighters

City Council approved Monday night the report of the fire, water and light committee of its conference with representatives of Smith township council which confirmed the city's inability to continue fire protection beyond its borders in the new year.

The report was read by the chairman, Ald. Doug Miller. The record of the conference is quoted as follows:

"It was pointed out to the Township men that it was not a question of increasnig the payment to the City for this service, but that a situation had now developed which made it impossible for the City to extend any fire protection outside the city. It was urged on the Township Council that they should immediately take steps to provide suitable fire protection for their township residents, particularly the built-up suburban areas.

"If they provide suitable fire protection services themselves, the City then would be willing, in the case of serious conflagrations, to give assistance from the Fire Department. The Fire Chief volunteered to assist the Townships in training volunteer Fire Department personnel.

The Township officials said they would carry this message back to their ratepayers concerned."

Mayor Believes Council Set Enviable Record

City council meeting Monday night ended on recessional felicity usually reserved until the final session before the Yuletime.

Ald. Herbert Young congratulated Mayor Swanston on his re-election by acclamation, and enlarged his tribute to embrace Ald. Dick Raine and Ald. Grant Miller in farewell with good wishes on their retiring from the civic service. He also had a kindly word for the three members of the council in their faring at the polls next Monday. Those members are Aldermen Waddell, Miller and Anglesey.

Mayor Swanston thanked the members of the council for their complimentary reference to himself. He expressed regret that the council was losing the four years' experience of Ald. Raine and also Ald. Grant Miller with two years' work, a training that was of real value.

"I am sorry they are leaving us, for after all, an Alderman cannot in one year get into the swing of the municipal business." Mayor Swanston said. "We are coming to the end of the year and I wish to thank all the aldermen for the manner in which they have co-operated in our work together. They took time out of their affairs to give to the business of the city, and personally I think they have done well."

Much Accomplished

Mayor Swanston made the statement, possibly as a tribute to the council of his first mayoral year: "I think we have actually accomplished more this year, than in any five years previously. To the members I would like to say that the council of 1949 has nothing to be ashamed of. The record of things done is in the books."

Mayor Swanston touched on that same idea in his nomination address last Friday night. His assertion was to the effect that the council had tackled and done things which had for a long time been talked about in the project stage.

Ald. Grant Miller said although he was retiring, he hoped that the Mayor would call on him if there was anything at all that he could do to help in the civic work. "I'll be glad to do it, for I have liked this work."

Not Ready For Swan Song

Ald. Dick Raine interjected a humorous vein with the remark that he did not feel quite ready for his swan song, that the occasion had been precipitated somewhat in advance of the customary closing goodwill. However, Ald. Raine seriously thanked Mayor Swanston and Ald. Young for their kind words.

"I assure you I appreciate what you have just said. I have enjoyed my terms on the council very much. It is most interesting work and the gentlemanly association has been most pleasant. I know that we have not always seen eye to eye, and I myself enjoy a little scrap now and then. I trust that if there is anything to do for the council and the citizens, Mr. Mayor, you will call on me."

"I certainly will," Mayor Swanston said.

Union Leaders Assail CCL's Political Policy

By DAVE WHITE

The full support of the 12,000 members of the Sudbury Local 578, United Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers of America was pledged Tuesday night in the UE in its fight against the UE-CIO.

Nels Thibeault, president of the local, and a delegation of two miners drove down from Sudbury to deliver the message of solidarity.

About 600 attended the meeting at the Brock Street Summer Gardens according to left wing estimates.

Thibeault likened the position of his union during the past three years to that in which the UE now finds itself.

During the last three years, he said, CCL-led unions had led raids against the Smelter Workers in an unsuccessful attempt to smash their organization.

(At the moment there are about 23,000 members of the MMSW in Canada and the Sudbury local, one of the largest of any union in the country, boasts a membership of more than 12,000. The MMSW and the UE are considered the leading left-wing industrial unions in Ontario.)

Thibeault claimed the hostility of the CCL toward his union stemmed from the fact the MMSW refused to accept the political policy of the CCL. The CCL has endorsed the CCF party as the political arm of labor.

"We are under fire and the UE is under fire because we are militant and progressive unions," said Thibeault. "We represent our people honestly; we do not collaborate with the boss; we do not allow ourselves to be dictated to by any political party."

"The main concern of the CCL today and the main reason for the expulsion of the MMSW was that they tried to force us to endorse their political party, the CCF."

He said that Robert Carlin was expelled from the CCF although he had been elected for five years with the biggest majority of any MPP in the province "because he would not endorse such things as deporting our own people and raiding established unions."

In the last provincial election "a splinter candidate" was entered into the race "and the result was a Conservative was elected."

Don't believe rumors that the MMSW is on the verge of collapse, near a state of bankruptcy or likely to be taken over by "raiders," he asserted.

Bumper Pulled Off Car, Truck Collide

A car and a panel truck collided while the car was passing the truck on Park St. near Dublin Tuesday afternoon.

John Legrow, 174 Lock St., driving a panel delivery truck pulled away from the east side of the street where he had been parked and travelled south.

He said he heard a horn blowing and a car driven by James J. Burns, 697 Water St., passed him on the right side. He said the rear left fender of the car caught the front right corner of his truck breaking off part of the bumper.

Burns said he had sounded his horn, but the truck kept coming out and he passed the truck.

Traffic Officer Claire J. McGillen investigated.

Community Welfare Council Makes For Orderliness In Planning Social Services

Appointment of an exploratory committee to investigate the advisability of forming a Community Welfare Council in Peterborough resulted from a meeting Tuesday evening, sponsored by the Public Affairs Committee of the YWCA. Local clubs and organizations interested in welfare work were represented. Mrs. Paige Rowell, chairman, called for discussion and expressions of opinion on the matter following an address by Miss Joy Maines, executive secretary of the Canadian Association of Social Workers in Ottawa. Miss Maines outlined the functionings of such Councils in other cities and offered suggestions for operation here.

On motion of Mr. John Rosenburgh, representing the Allied Labour Council, seconded by Mrs. C. K. Heart, YWCA Public Affairs Committee, and unanimously agreed upon, it was decided to have a small representative group explore the necessity and possibility of forming a Council and present their findings to each of the organizations represented at meetings for discussion by their members. A further meeting is to be called when representatives are able to make an instructed vote.

Mr. James Dutton will be chairman of the investigation and committee members are Alfred Barber, president Allied Labour Council; James Marshall, president Service Club Council; Miss Rachael Young, superintendent Children's Aid Society; Miss Mary Ross, supervisor VON; Mr. A. E. Borland, recreation commission.

It was asked that the report of this committee be presented as soon as possible. Also that the committee consult with Dr. R. A. Kelly, who is advised of many cases in need of help by the public health nurses.

Orderliness of Services

In her address Miss Maines said the purpose of a Community Welfare Council is to provide a means of bringing together all people interested in health and welfare so there may be orderliness in planning of social services. Many existing organizations have grown up like topsy and can only give "spotty" service, and many times there is overlapping and duplication.

Memberships in Council are taken out by organizations and the fee partly finances the work, the balance usually being provided by a city grant or a community chest. Some councils have begun work on a voluntary basis but they do not continue this way and Miss Maines suggested it would not be an advisable set-up. Usually there are two delegates from each organization, a board member and an executive director. It is essential to include public agencies in the membership and frequently special arrangements are made in this regard.

Appeal Against $11,500 Price On New Block

John T. O'Connell is appealing the award of $11,500 by Judge S. L. Smoke as arbiter in the city's expropriation of property required for part of the new Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation subdivision in the south end.

This information was received by the council from T. J. Carley, K.C., who represented the city in the arbitration proceedings.

The O'Connell property extends from Park St. to Monaghan Road, with Rose Ave on the north and O'Connell St. on the south.

The city obtained possession of the entire block except the Park St. frontage which had been previously bought by Frank Jobbitt for his retail hardware store.

Three Accidents Within One Hour

Three accidents occurred within less than an hour this morning and the reason given for each was the icy condition of the streets. All three were investigated by Constable Gordon Trennum.

In the first accident a car driven by Ogilvie Thompson, Lindsay, turned completely around on Reid St. The left front wheel hit the curb bending the axle.

A car driven by Siegfried Rochelsen, Toronto, was hit from behind by a car driven by Mrs. M. Beauclerc, 303 Frederick St. It was reported to police Rochelsen stopped his car at Park and Charlotte Sts. to let out a passenger although he had a green light to proceed. Mrs. Beauclerc was unable to stop her car before skidding into the rear of the Rochelsen car. The right front fender and headlight of the Beauclerc car were damaged and the rear bumper of the Rochelsen car was bent.

On Water St. near Murray St., Jule Lovitz, 599 Downie St., stopped his car to let out his daughter. A car was parked on the opposite side of the street and it is believed there was not room for a third car to go between. A car driven by Mrs. Cecil Chambers, 299 Rubidge St., skidded into the back of the Lovitz car. Little damage was done to either car.

London Letter

Take Billion Dollars Cure Transportation Headache

By H. L. JONES

LONDON, Nov. 30—(CP)—Mighty London has a transportation headache they say it will take a billion dollars to cure. A £340,000,000 ($1,057,000,000) plan for extending and modernizing the capital's huge underground, bus and railway system has been put in the hands of Transport Minister Barnes. The question now is: "Can we afford it?" London newspapers have long been advocating action on transportation projects to stop the rush-hour jam of the 4,700,000 passengers daily carried in the London area. And they've revived their cries since the report of a British Transportation Commission committee.

This report recommended the underground system should be almost doubled by construction of 10 new tubes. It said north and south should be linked by more serices beneath the Thames, that all overground train routes should be electrified. All this would cost £340,000,000.

But the committee recognized the government's need for economies. So it said six of the projected new underground tunnels could be postponed. Charing cross and Connon Street bridge cross the Thames, scheduled for removal in the scheme, could remain for the time being. Blackfriars and Ludgate Hill Bridges and Holborn Viaduct should be replaced by undergrounds.

This would save about £125,000,000 worth of material and labor.

20-Year Program

But the government was urged to get started immediately on a 20-year-program of four new tubes 49½ miles long (the existing tube system covers 66¾ miles) and overground electrification at a cost of £214,000,000.

Such a plan would employ 1,200 miners and other workers until about 1970 producing 1,500,000 tons of vital steel for tunnels alone. Three hundred new tube trains would be needed, not to mention trackage and other equipment.

The commission report, marked "London Transport — first priority works" had disappeared into the sanctuaries of Whitehall. No one seems to know when or what decision will be taken on it, but Londoners are hopeful a start will be made soon.

Bus Crashes Drug Store

HULL, Que., Nov. 30 (CP) — A Hull city transport bus carrying 15 passengers, skidded on ice covered pavement Tuesday and crashed into the front of the Picard drugstore on Bridge street. All the passengers escaped uninjured, but the driver, Jacques Toutain, suffered minor leg injuries.

Urges Publicity Cut

LONDON, Nov. 30 (AP) — A committee report Tuesday urged a cut in British government spending for publicity, which is more than 10 times what it was 10 years ago. The outlay for government information services at home in the 1949-50 budgetary year is estimated at £5,168,050 ($16,020,955). The 1938-39 total was £495,045.

New Salary Schedule

OTTAWA, Nov. 30 (CP) — City employees Tuesday night submitted new salary schedule proposals to the Ottawa Board of Control that, if approved, would cost the city treasury an additional outlay estimated at $400,000. Board members said the wage demands would be given full consideration.

4 Hunters Drown

TIONESTA, Pa., Nov. 30 (AP) —Four deer hunters Tuesday were drowned in the murky waters of Tionesta dam reservoir while their companions on shore listened helplessly to their frantic cries for help.

Amendment To Combines Act Gets Second Reading In Senate

OTTAWA, Nov. 30 — (CP) — The Senate Tuesday night gave second reading—approval in principle—to the Commons' bill to amend the Combines Investigation Act.

The bill, outlined by Senator Wishart Robertson, government leader, would put more teeth in the Combines Act.

For purpsoses of prosecutions it would give the Attorney-General of Canada equal status with an attorney-general of a province in initiating and conducting combines prosecutions. It would provide that corporations charged under the act may be tried without jury. The amendments would also provide for production of documents as evidence.

Senator Robertson said action against combine[illegible] necessary to prevent state monopolies. Any action by business which smacked of restraint of trade internally at once gave color to the idea that business had gone soft as a result of more than 10 years of virtual freedom from competition.

Part of the reason Western Eucope, the United Kingdom and other countries had tended to state monopoly which "has had its origin in the belief—rightly or wrongly—that the public were being unfairly treated in respect to the cost of goods and services."

Should Be Watchful

Turning to price levels set by the government in the form of minimum prices, Senator Robertson said that if such subsidies continue to be an important part of Canada's economy in the future, care would have to be taken to ensure that these levels compared with other countries in which similar conditions existed.

One factor in his was an informed public opinion He always had felt it would be valuable to have the Bureau of Statistics issue information on prices paid for various articles in various parts of Canada compared with other countries.

Senator John T. Haig, Progressive Conservative Senate Leader, said he did not plan to oppose the Bill. It had been dealt with thoroughly in the Commons.

However, he recalled that Canadians were "shocked" when it was learned that the government had delayed publication of the McGregor flour combines report for 10 months.

Any law passed by Parliament which was not obeyed by the government was "not much use."

The present Bill was "not a Bill of any great importance," although he felt there was an "insidious witch-hunting threat" in the legislation. Big business was no more dishonest than any other business.

Senator Arthur Roebuck (L-Ontario) told the Senate the main "teeth" in the Bill consisted in the fact that it resuired a corporation to prove it did not have knowledge of any incriminating documents produced in a trial.

NEW YORK'S RIVER

The Hudson River in the United States is about 350 miles long and is navigable by large steamers for more than 100 miles from its mouth.

House Passes Highway Grants

OTTAWA, Nov 30 — (CP). — The Commons Tuesday approved government proposals to spend $150,000,000 on completion of a modern, hard-surfaced, two-lane Trans-Canada highway.

Members gave third reading to a Bill authorizing the expenditure, but as a parting shot the Opposition attempted unsuccessfully to have the government boost the amount of its contribution.

Under the Bill, which now goes to the Senate, the government will pay 50 per cent of the cost of new roads to complete the 5,000-mile highway that will extend from Victoria to St John's, Nfld., and take in Prince Edward Island. It will also pay the province's 50 per cent of the cost of existing roads that will form part of the Trans-Canada route.

Hazen Argue (CCF-Assiniboia) moved an amendment to increase the government's share from 50 to 75 per cent. It was ruled out of order on the grounds that it increased the Federal Government's financial contribution. An appeal against the ruling was defeated 152 to 46.

Under parliamentary rules only the government may initiate a measure involving the expenditure of public money.

MP Lauds Work Of Volunteers At Brockville

OTTAWA, Nov. 30 — (CP). — Geo. Fulford (L-Leeds) Tuesday paid tribute in the Commons to the "co-operation and courage" of those who joined in the fight against last Saturday's $1,000,000 fire in Brockville.

Rising on a question of privilege, Mr. Fulford said it was the generous assistance of people in Eastern Ontario and New York State that helped confine to one city block a blaze which might have destroyed the whole business section.

Co-operation and courage of this kind keeps alive faith in human nature," he said. The help which came from Ogdensburg and other nearby parts of New York State illustrated that the will "to love thy neighbor knows no boundaries in North America."

Mr. Fulford told the House how the fire blazed out of hand despite "heroic efforts" by the Brockville department.

An urgent appeal brought the Army firefighting equipment with the Royal Canadian Regiment. Then came the departments from Prescott, Addington and Smiths Falls Special equipment was brought by firefighters from Ogdensburg, across the St. Lawrence River.

Everyone Helps

Members of the navy and air force also pitched in while young Brockville women organized to supply coffee to the firefighters all through the freezing night.

Appeals were made Sunady in the pulpits for aid for the 100 persons made homeless and the tremendous amount of clothing and other garments necessitated three moves to larger storage buildings.

By late Sunday $2,500 had come from Brockville and nearby districts. That figure was $6,000 at last reports.

One farmer arrived with several dozen eggs which he contributed. Then he turned his wallet upside down and gave everything he had in it to the assistance fund.

Mr. Fulford said he wanted to record the generosity of the people. He also thanked the government for giving immediate attention to the suggestion that army huts be made available for people who lost their homes.

Right-Wing Plan To Check Strikes Stirs N.Z. Labor

By J. C. GRAHAM

AUCKLAND, N.Z.—(CP). — In its bid to oust New Zealand's Labor government in today's general election, the National party proposed to check industrial disputes and save time lost in strikes, which were a major election issue.

The National party, now the Opposition, said it favors secret ballots to decide on strikes and the election of union officers. It also proposed improved facilities for the compulsory hearing of disputes.

"We propose that if people refuse to obey the law and if they refuse to take advantage of the special facilities which will be provided, then appropriate penalties will be imposed," said the right-wing National party leader, Sydney G. Holland.

"But a further and more workable penalty will be that those who defy the law and refuse to submit their case for judicial consideration. . .will therefore disqualify themselves from securing other employment until the dispute is settled in a lawful way."

These proposals were immediately taken up by the Federation of Labor, industrial wing of the Labor movement, which claimed that the proposals would destroy "democratic administration of union affairs by political control."

Like Hitler, Stalin

The Federation's secretary, K. McL. Baxter, declared: "This is regimentation of the workers almost identical with the policy of the Hitler and Stalin regimes."

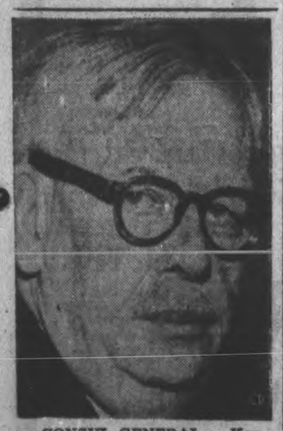
Holland replied that the proposal was merely the extension of laws enacted by the Labor government, which already provided for government-supervised secret ballots in certain cases and for penalties to those who refused to work. The Opposition proposals were the logical answer to requests for direct action.

The National party's proposals, the Federation replied, were in direct violation of an agreement adopted at the 1948 conference of the International Labor Office. This stated that workers and employers should have the right to draw up their constitutions and rules, and to elect representatives free from government interference.

Support Conscription

Compared with this industrial issue, defence and foreign policy have played a very minor part in the campaign. Both the National party and the Labor government supported the introduction of peacetime conscription, which was approved in a referendum this year. The first youths conscripted for training will go into camps next May.

Most observers think that the 15 Communist candidates will meet the same fate as all Communist candidates in recent elections. All have lost their deposits so far. The barring of Communists from civil serivce posts involving security has failed to arouse any sympathy for them and they have lost control of several important unions in the past year.



One of New Zealand's leading newspapers, the Auckland Star, announced at the beginning of the campaign that it would report all candidates' meeting except those of the Communists. It maintained that the party was putting up candidates merely as an opportunity of disseminating alien, anti-democratic propaganda.

BROCKVILLE FIRE — Four stores were destroyed and six others damaged by a $1,000,000 fire which roared through a business block in Brockville, Ont., in near-zero weather.

A Surprise Secretary

OTTAWA, Nov. 30 (CP)—When F. A. Hardy, the parliamentary librarian, needed an extra secretary he applied in the normal way to the civil service commission stenographic pool. The secretary, fully qualified, turned out to be Anne Clutterbuck, 20 year old daughter of Sir Alexander Clutterbuck, the British High Commissioner to Canada.

CONSUL-GENERAL — Kenneth A. Greene, 61, former High Commissioner to Australia, succeeds Hugh D. Scully as Canadian consul-general in New York.

Jet Fighter Still Secret

TORONTO, Nov. 30 — (CP)— Canada's first jet fighter plane still is on the secret list and will remain so at least until first test flights have been carried out, possibly within a few weeks.

It was announced Tuesday at London, England, that Sqdn. Ldr. W. A (Bill). Waterton, DFC, formerly of Edmonton, is flying to Canada to carry out the test flights on the new XC-100, produced at Malton, near Toronto, by the A. V. Roe Company of Canada, Ltd.

An official of the A. V. Roe told The Canadian Press on Tuesday night that the jet fighter definitely is secret until authorities have studied results of the tests.

Regarding the choice of Waterton, he said:

"We have several first-class jet pilots here, but naturally the company which holds the contract is selecting its own pilot, and Waterton has been chosen."

H. E. Turner Dies

TORONTO, Nov. 30 (CP) — H. E. Turner, father of Doug Turner of the Calgary Stampeders football team, died Tuesday night. Doug remained behind when the team returned home on Sunday after the Grey Cup final to be at his father's bedside. He was to go to Trenton, today to receive the DFC, for wartime service in the RCAF.

In St. Andrew's United Church, Millbrook, Saturday, Margaret Jean, daughter of Mrs. E. J. Fisher and the late Mr. Fisher, became the bride of Mervin James Trick, of Toronto, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Trick, Millbrook.

The Rev. T. G. Husser officiated in the double ring ceremony. Mrs. Levi Russell, of Cobourg, aunt of the bride, sang "O Perfect Love" before the bride entered the church, and "Because" during the signing of the register.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Mr. Francis R. Tickner, of Ottawa, was attended by her niece, Miss Frances Tickner, as maid of honor, Mrs. Jack Ferguson, of Peterborough, as bridesmaid, and by her niece, Miss Joan Tickner, as junior bridesmaid. Mr. Harold Trick was groomsman for his brother, and the ushers were Mr. Stanley Fisher, of Hastings, and Mr. Gordon Trick, of Millbrook, brothers of the bride and groom.

For her wedding the bride chose a gown of white brocaded satin with vee neckline, fitted bodice buttoned at the back to the waistline, bouffant skirt, and long sleeves coming to a point over the hands. Her finger-tip veil was held by a tiara of seed pearls and she carried a semi-cascade of red roses.

Women's Whims Force Trappers To Alter Plans

REGINA, —(CP)— Saskatchewan's trappers have to change their production plans as often as women change their minds.

When milady decides she doesn't want to wear fox furs, she means it. And when she calls for mink and muskrat, the trappers jump to it.

That's the word this year: fox fur is almost valueless, but wild mink and muskrat are in heavy demand.

Mink prices will likely be up, with muskrats bringing close to last year's $1.37 a pelt. There will probably be plenty of animals taken off the trap lines, and it looks like a good year for the provinces's 15,000 trappers.

The bright spot in fur production this year will be the beaver take, which should show an increase of 50 per cent over last season, says A. J. Cooke, manager of the Saskatchewan Fur Marketing Service here.

He credits sound conservation methods for the expected boost. Thousands of beaver have been "transplanted" from producing areas to lakes and swamps in which none had lived for several years.

Producers already have their eyes on the general fur sale of the fur marketing service, to be held Dec. 19. Ranch mink and wild mink will be in the spotlight, and fancy prices are expected from buyers.

Mink Leads Off Sales

Mink will be the features at the January sale, too. But from then on it will be muskrat and beaver all the way. A special muskrat sale in June will cap the spring rush. All other sales by the marketing service will be general fur auctions.

Vagaries of the retail market have knocked the muskrat coat from first spot in popularity But Canadian women still like this fur. Consumer resistance to high prices was the cause of skidding American muskrat prices last year.

Ranch and wild fox production in Saskatchewan is expected to continue at a low level, as it has done for two years. After long-haired furs went out of style in 1946, ranchers and trappers found prices below the cost of production.

Fox fur producers can take heart, however, from the efforts of some New York designers who are trying to convince women that silver fox is really quite attractive. Fox ranchers who have been struggling to maintain their stock soon may see a boom in their specialty.

Marketing service officials cannot say in advance what prices will be like in furriers' shops There are too many factors in the retail picture to enable price predictions to be made.

Meanwhile, trappers are oiling their traps and patching snowshoes as their working season approaches. They expect to be able to look back on a successful season when the last fur sale is held next summer.

Pte. Ronald Rose Wed in Brantford

In St. Jude's Anglican Church, Brantford, the marriage took place Saturday of Pte. Ronald Edward Rose, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rose of Peterborough, and Miss Louise Armstrong, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Armstrong, Brantford. The ceremony was performed by the Rev Mr. Shaffter. During the signing of the register the organist played "Ave Maria."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in white satin styled with a portrait neckline, long sleeves with petal points and a bouffant skirt extending in a short train. A pearl studded headdress held her long veil in place, and she was carrying a bouquet of white 'mums. Miss Muriel Armstrong, bridesmaid for her sister, was in yellow brocaded organdy, with hat to match and carried a bouquet of 'mums. Esther Rose, sister of the groom, as flower girl wore pink taffeta and carried roses and carnations.

The groom was attended by Pte. Ronald Bowman and ushers were David Armstrong, brother of the bride, and George Sherriff

A reception was held in the Parish Hall, the bride's mother receiving in a grey ensemble with corsage of roses, and the groom's mother wearing a dress of light blue crepe with blue trim, matching hat and corsage of Sweetheart roses.

Five generations of the bride's family were among the 75 guests present who were from Peterborough, Woodstock, Burford, Waterloo, Hamilton, New Toronto and St. George.

Later the couple left on a trip to eastern points, the bride wearing a royal blue dress and coat and matching accessories.

Pte. and Mrs. Rose will make their home at 162 Darling Ave., Brantford.

Of Interest to Women

DOROTHY DIX

Claims Men The Lovers While Women Are Parasites

DEAR MISS DIX: In regard to women's rights to propose marriage to men, haven't women always picked out their husbands? Isn't woman's love more material than man's? Do you ever hear of men selling themselves to girls for the sake of luxury and good times? Haven't men always shown that they loved more than women? Haven't men always written all the songs, poems and stories about love? Isn't it women who are the parasites in marriage?

JOSEPH.

Dorothy Dix

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Well, Joseph, giving woman the right to pop the question to man does not compel him to marry her. He can always say "no."

Personally, I think that men have a better chance to escape marriage when women pursue them in the open than they have when it is done by stealth and under cover.

Perhaps women do marry oftener for position and money than men do, but that was a necessity forced upon them in the past by their inability to get the comforts of life in any other way. Now when any woman can make a good living for herself very few sell themselves for lucre

Men Also Guilty

But if you think men are indifferent to such sordid considerations as a bank account, you are vastly mistaken. Every well-to-do widow can tell you that the line forms on the right of the men who want to share in her insurance money and hang their hats up permanently in her front hall.

Nor can you substantiate your theory that men love better than women do. You know what the poet says: "A man's love is of man's life a thing apart, 'tis woman's whole existence." Far more men are unfaithful than women. A man seldom loves an erring wife enough to forgive her, but thousands of women love their husbands well enough to take them back after they have betrayed them seventy and seven times. You have known dozens of women who have nursed sick men with a love and patience that never faltered through the years; women who waited outside of penitentiary gates to take back the men they loved when they were set free, but a man's love seldom survives invalidism or disgrace.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: We are told that every man is susceptible to the charms of some woman who can flatter him and exploit him and make him like it, but I wonder if you realize that there are men who understand women as well as women are supposed to understand men? Sometimes a man, realizing that a girl is in love with him will marry her because he does not have the heart to make her miserable. I believe that I understand women thoroughly Do you think that some day I will meet a woman who can fool me? JACK.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Probably. I think most women can fool any man if they want to, but few women desire to, because women have sense enough to know that no lasting bond between a man and woman can be woven of deceit.

If a woman meets a man whom she desires for a husband, she naturally makes every effort to attract him. First, by making herself as good-looking as possible in order to catch his eye and then by making herself agreeable to him by jollying him along and letting him know that she admires him.

You can use your judgment in sizing up her motives and exercise your own taste in either exposing yourself to her blandishments or fleeing from them. You may be susceptible to her charms or indifferent to them, but unless you are more stupid than the average man you will not be fooled by her.

Of course, many men do marry women who are in love with them just because they have not the heart to turn them down, but this is because it flatters their vanity and because they prefer being loved to loving And it is not always a bad choice.

I dont' think either men or women understand the opposite sex. That is why they are interesting to each other.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: Why do parents play favorites among their children? In our family are four children, but one is the fair-haired lad. He can never do anything wrong. We are punished if we vex him and he gets the best of everything. Why is this?

THE OTHER THREE.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: There is nearly always a favorite in every family. Why this is, nobody knows, unless it is that one child is just more congenial to parents than the others. But generally the mother has one favorite and the father another, father favoring a daughter and mother a son. And nine times out of ten it is the youngest who gets the cakes and ale and is spoiled to death

Two-day Stay In Hospital For Mothers

SYDNEY, Australia, —(CP)— Australia is so short of maternity hospitals that its best known one, Crown Street Women's Hospital in Sydney, is starting a plan in which mothers and their babies will return home two days after the child is born.

Crown Street now handles nearly 6,000 confinements a year, but even then has to refuse another 2,000 cases admission. The new short-term stay is expected to allow the hospital to receive another 1,000 cases a year.

Doctors emphasize that the new policy has nothing to do with recent arguments about early post-operation ambulation — in other words, getting out of bed sooner after an operation.

Any mother sent home after two days will go in an ambulance and will be visited every day for at least a week after that by a doctor and a nurse. In addition, the hospital must get a guarantee that the mother will have a constant companion for 10 to 12 days after her return home and that there will be no overcrowding in the home.

And any mother who wants to stay longer in hospital will be allowed to. Already, though, several future patients have told the hospital that they approve of the idea.

Nearly all Australian babies are born in maternity hospitals, and Australian doctors have long campaigned not only for more hospitals but for more convalescent homes so that mothers need not return to their household tasks for several weeks after their confinement. But with housing and hospital programs badly lagging, such convalescent homes are a dream of the future.

Prof. Bruce T. Mayes, obstetrics chief at Sydney University, says the proposal must be considered an expedient and not in line with modern principles for the management of motherhood.

Refresher Course For Food Handlers

Dr. Harold Worton, food and dairy inspector to the Board of Health, is planning a Food Handlers Week early in 1950. Programs of lectures, demonstrations and films have been held in previous years and have done much to interest food handlers in the city in maintaining high standards of hygiene efficiency.

The support of the Health League as pledged at a meeting of Peterborough branch Tuesday.

The Health League also discussed a proposal for an Industrial Health Week to be held in the city next year. Len Woodman and George Barnes discussed the matter recently at the league's head office in Toronto.

Union Members For 40 Years

Two members of the International Typographical Union (AFL) Tuesday night were presented with buttons for 40 years of continuous membership.

They are George J. Johnson, of Armour Rd., a linotype machinist at the Examiner and Frank Wallwork of St. Mary's St., an independent printer.

Buttons were presented by Maurice Dunkley, financial secretary of Local 248 ITU.

Community Welfare

work that may be covered are the broad fields of recreation and of rehabilitation. Care of the aged is now receiving considerable attention Miss Maines pointed out, and suggested community planning to help the chronically ill, often forgotten in the hospital, and those in homes for incurable who are sometimes found curable when worked with. There are also the shut-ins and old people living alone who enjoy a good time whenever it is provided.

Index Christmas Giving

For wise distribution of Christmas cheer, Miss Maines said the best method is to set up an index so that one family will not receive two and people next door get none as has often happened.

She feels there is very often a waste of funds in Christmas giving. For example, sending a large turkey to a family that does not have an oven. "We need to know whose Christmas we are celebrating when we buy" she said. "Things that please our own family maye be distasteful to others."

So Miss Maines is urging that some arrangement be made with grocers whereby the mother may purchase a Christmas dinner to suit her family herself. She finds that many "bountiful givers" object to this method for they do not get the fun out of it themselves and they are afraid some of the money may not be wisely spent.

"If they waste it maybe they have a good time on it anyway" said Miss Maines, "and any social worker knows that a permanent wave often does more good than a roast of beef. What we need is not more television but more vision in regard to the community picture."

In reply to a question the speaker named the following cities in which councils are now established: Halifax,, Quebec, three in Montreal, Ottawa, Kingston, Toronto, Hamilton, Winnipeg, Regina, part time, Calgary, Edmonton, Vancouver and Victoria.

Miss Maines was introduced by Miss Rachael Young and thanked by Mr. James Dutton.

Union Leaders

new union hall at a cost of $131,000. When completed in 1950 it will have cost $250,000.

After $40,000 of the welfare fund was spent a balance of $41,000 still remained. And he jeered at the CCL by claiming $40,000 was the amount it had to borrow off its bonds so that at the end of the year it would be only $18,000 in the red.

Union dues for his local come to about $25,000 a month and in a jocular vein he commented later that about four months dues from Local 578 "would buy the CCL lock stock and barrel."

The CCL was the "chief instigator" in breaking up the organizational drive in Northern Ontario, he said. This began in the gold mines where he said the MMSW had undisputed jurisdiction and had made almost a complete success of organizing.

Workers were told by the CCL they would get those clauses in the contract they had failed to get in the MMSW. But these gains had failed to materialize, said Thibeault.

The operators still refused to negotiate with the CCL claiming their demands are just as outrageous as those of the MMSW. And they still have no results to this day.

A situation comparable to Peterborough and the UE happened with the MMSW in Port Colborne, he said. The CCL "in the guise of the Steelworkers" declared themselves the bargaining agent for the 1,300 workers in the plant after an "irregular" election.

No longer could those workers receive the benefit of negotiating under a master contract. They were cut off from the support of the large Sudbury local.

Later at a "proper election" the workers defeated the CCL group, Thibeault stated, and they reinstated the contract and received the same gains as their brothers in Sudbury.

Before $16,000 worth of property could be regained from the CCL it took a civil action.

Jibed At Leaders

He jibed at two right-wing leaders with two anecdotes:

Charles Millard, head of the Steelworkers, had spoken to a temperance group shortly before the last Federal election, Thibeault related. In that speech he made a remark which he asked to be kept out of the press.

And according to the press report he had told the temperance people labor leaders had made a mistake fighting for the 40-hour week. The workers would spend their leisure time in beer parlors.

Aaron Mosher, president of the CCL would not deny at a MMSW district convention in B. C. earlier this year, that he had contended prices had levelled off and there was no need of general wage increases.

This last observation hurt the B. C. MMSW workers when they were negotiating with their employers for a 20 cent increase, Thibeault contended.

He called on those unions that are being raided—such as the UE and the MMSW—to co-ordinate their programs, the better for defensive actions.

"We are behind you and stand ready to assist your union in every possible way," Thibeault stated.

He was accompanied by two miners from Sudbury—Oliver Ellis and Norman Jaques.

Conference Held In Guidance

Educational and industrial leaders met at the Collegiate Tuesday night in the first regional conference of the guidance section of the Ontario Educational Association. Teachers of the public and secondary schools of Peterborough, Lindsay and Havelock discussed problems of the students with representatives from local industry.

Reginald Reid, personnel manager of the Outboard Marine and Manufacturing Company, spoke during the discussion at Hooper's Tea Room. He dealt with the qualities required by an employee to be successful in the business world. B. W. Switzer, of PCVS, introduced Mr. Reid who was thanked by Howard Moebus, chairman of the meeting and head of the Guidance Department at PCVS.

In the evening the group reconvened at the collegiate for a discussion period. Dr. E. P. Ray, of PCVS, led the first discussion on the subject "How can the proper attitudes toward work be developed; the willingness to assume responsibility and take pride in a job well done?" A second discussion was later held on the topic "How can we interest school pupils in the world of work?" Leaders for the second topic were C. D. Munro of Peterborough King George Public School, and Reginald Cozens, of the Lindsay Collegiate Institute staff.

Those who attended the conference were: Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Reid, George Barns, Mr. and Mrs. John Sparrow, Mr. and Mrs. R. Hardie, Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Thompson, of the Personnel Association of Peterborough; K. S. Wightman, superintendent of schools, Peterborough; Douglas Loomis school attendance officer; Dorothy Leslie, Margaret Greene, Cora Bailey, Perla Pidgeon, Robert Scrutton, H. O. Anderson, C. D. Munro, Public School staff of Peterborough; C. S. Browne, principal of PCVS; Howard Moebus, Helen McGregor, Katherine MacDougall, Harold Choate, Henry Toole, Dr. E. P. Ray, B. W. Switzer, of PCVS staff; W. S. Battersby, C. J. Byrnell, Lindsay Public School staff; Reginald Cozens, Herbert Staples, Nellie King, Lindsay Collegiate Institute; R. D. Buchanan, Havelock High School; the Havelock Public School; Allan McNab, J. H. Caskey, both of the Havelock High School; Rev. Walter Gilling, St. Luke's Anglican Church; and J. A. Sharpe, National Employment Service office.

Showgirl Dies

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 30—(AP)—Elinor Troy, 33, former showgirl who won fame as the only fiancee of Tommy Manville to "stand up" the asbestos fortune heir, died Tuesday night of tuberculosis. "WE'RE GOING TO HAVE OUR PICTURE IN THE PAPER!"

Bob steadied himself. "Our picture? Whatever for?"

"The Bank manager asked me if he could use it in a Bank advertisement because we're so important and after he explained it, I said it sounded wonderful," replied Betty.

"Since when does our couple of hundred in the Bank make The Bank of Nova Scotia think we're so important?"

"The man said it's because of the schools and highways and social services and bridges and fish and things like that."

"Fish?"

"Fishermen, silly! We helped them by having money in the Bank which the Bank could lend to them to buy boats and nets and things. We also helped farmers, lumbermen, miners, and people in hundreds of different businesses, and we helped build all those things like I just said."

"Well!" exclaimed Bob, relaxing a bit. "Now it's beginning to come clear. You mean the Bank wants to say that we're just an average couple representing all Bank of Nova Scotia customers?"

"That's right dear . . . that's just what the man said. Wait a second, I'll show you the paper he gave me."

Betty burrowed in her purse for a moment and came up triumphantly with a sheet of paper. It was a condensed Bank statement.

Bob's eyes widened. "Don't tell me you have suddenly become conscious of where money comes from and where it goes," he said with mock gravity.

Betty ignored the remark. "Now look here, Bob. Deposits . . . that's our money, and the money of thousands of others just like us, totalled over $749 million."

"Uh-huh."

"All right. Now look up at the top here. They keep about $146 million in cash to look after the daily needs of people who want to draw out money, and there's enough extra in government bonds, and stocks and what the manager says they call short term loans, to take care of emergencies if a lot of people wanted all their money at once."

"Yes, I can see that."

"But government securities and other bonds are just other names for loans, to help governments to build new roads, schools, and so on, or to help businesses make more goods and develop new products. That not only puts more people to work . . . it means that there will be better conditions, and more things for us to buy at cheaper prices."

"As an economist, dear, you amaze me. Go on."

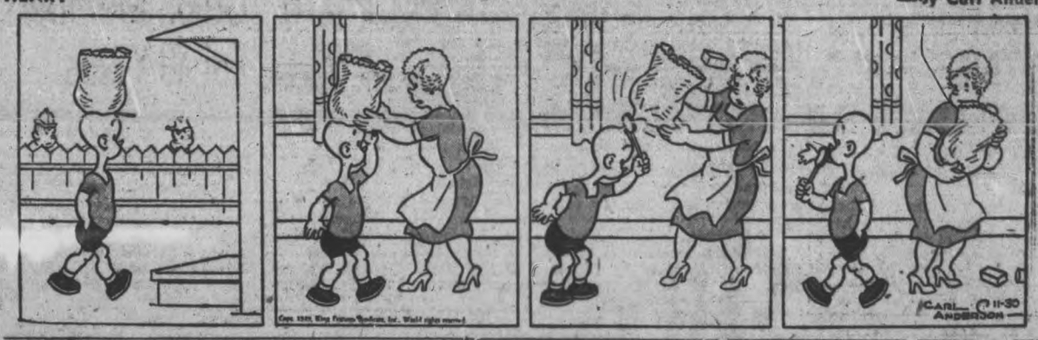
"Well, if you add up all these loans you'll find they total over $629 million. Do you know what, Bob? The manager and I figured out that this would be almost $50 for every man, woman and child in Canada!"

"In other words," said Bob, "Bank of Nova Scotia customers, by keeping their money on deposit, put about $50 of new life behind business in this country for every person in the country."

"That's right. So you see, our savings helped to make the whole country better . . . they helped us, too!"

"Say, we seem to be getting double value here. We've not only got a nice nest egg of savings, but at the same time our money is out working in dozens of ways . . . money loaned to governments and businesses of every sort to make the country more prosperous . . . even money loaned to thousands of individuals who need Bank credit to tide them over emergencies or let them take advantage of special opportunities."

"That's right dear. Now do you see why the Bank thinks we're important?"



"I'll say so. Confidentially," he added with a grin, putting his arm around her, "I think you're mighty important, too!"

Feel Taking Rap For Past Mistakes Brokers Declare

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

Like the dog that gets a bad name, many present-day sellers of mining and oil stocks think they are getting kicked around for something that happened in the past.

The Broker-Dealers' Association of Ontario, feeling they have a man-sized job of public relations to do, Tuesday held a press conference, attended by three of their officials, including W. M. Wismer, executive secretary and general counsel.

One question was:

"A statement has recently been made that the western provinces have been flooded with undesirable literature and telephone calls in connection with oil company promotions. Have you any comment?

The answer:

"All literature sent out by our members is reviewed by our Association. In our opinion it is neither misleading nor flamboyant."

Against that answer one might be inclined to ask:

"What about the howls from the United States about high-pressure stock promotion out of Toronto?"

Downright Lies

Mr. Wismer said he not only considers them overdone, but he termed "downright lies", many of the things being said in the United States about mining promotion from Ontario.

He said many of the attacks are by people attempting to defend American legislation "which has killed mining promotion in the United States."

He said it is physically and financially impossible for brokers in Ontario to comply with the complexities of United States law in 48 States.

In general, the broker-dealer officials presented the view that their organization, formed by Ontario legislation, has been in existence only 1½ years; that it has had considerable organization work to do; that it feels it has accomplished much; but that it will require time to accomplish its full aims.

It was accepted that for a number of years mining promotion from Ontario had got itself a bad reputation! but that in 1946-1947 there had been a big purge of security sellers, and that many of these will never get back into business again. Nevertheless it will take a long time to live down the reputation of the past.

Apparently, also, not all sellers of securities are members of the broker-dealers' association or of any other principal investment organization.

Doucett Warns Trans-Canada Route Unknown

TORONTO, Nov. 30 — (CP)— Route of the Trans-Canada highway through Ontario has not yet been determined, Ontario Highways Minister George Doucett said Tuesday, discounting reports that the Provincial Government would receive a rebate of perhaps $50,000,000 from the Federal Government for money already spent on highways in this province.

One report that Ontario could expect a $50,000,000 rebate on her expenditures of $113,000,000 for highways was termed incorrect by the minister.

"We have not determined the route and have no idea what the project will cost, let alone what rebate might be expected from the Dominion Government," said Mr. Doucett. "It is utterly impossible to determine the cost at this stage when even the route is not settled."

He pointed out that roads already constructed to serve the northern portions of the province may not necessarily be embodied in the new Trans-Canada route.

Originally the route through Ontario was designed as from Point Fortune on the Quebec border through Ottawa, North Bay, Sault Ste Marie, Schreiber, Nipigon, Port Arthur and Kenora. A later suggestion was that the highway would join No. 11 Highway at North Bay and continue through Kirkland Lake, New Liskeard, Cochrane, Hearst, Geraldton, and down to Nipigon, where it would rejoin the provincial No. 17 route.

CANADA BLAMES WAR DANGER ON REDS

May Suspend Licence Of US Airline

MP Feels Dominion Being Kicked Around Demands Action

OTTAWA, Dec. 1 (CP)—Colonial Air Lines of New York, striving to keep Canadian competition from its Montreal-New York air route, may have its licence suspended.

The Air Transport Board of Canada ordered Colonial—which has had a 20-year monopoly over the route—to appear before a public hearing to be held here next Dec. 12 and to "show cause" why the licence should not be lifted.

The order came as a swift counter move, after a Washington Federal Court Wednesday allowed a continuance of an injunction restraining the Civil Aeronautics Board of the United States from proceeding with a trans-Canada Air Lines application.

The application placed before CAB last September, requested a licence to compete with Colonial over the New York-Montreal line.

Meanwhile, the matter brought some plain talk to the floor of the Commons. Ross Thatcher (CCF-Moose Jaw) charged the United States was "trifling with the friendship of a very friendly country" by failing to carry out the terms of the recent air agreement with Canada.

Ask Other Cancellations

He suggested that not only should Colonial's licence be suspended, but that Canada cancel the rights of other American lines at Gander, Nfld.

The U. S., he added, in failing to carry out her end of the agreement, was acting "like the nation she most criticizes. I think we are being kicked around and I don't like it."

If the Air Transport Board suspends Colonial's licence, non-stop commercial air flying between Montreal and New York may be halted temporarily.

$2,000 Bankroll Lying On Street

TORONTO, Dec. 1 (CP) — A barber was reported today to have entered a claim for a $2,000 bank roll, wrapped in rubber bands, found on the street last night.

Police said Peter Arnold reported the loss of such a bundle shortly after it was turned over to them Wednesday night by a Toronto Transportation Commission worker. They said that at the time, Arnold was carrying a second bankroll, also of about $2,000.

Police, who today said they are reasonably sure Arnold is the rightful owner, will not turn over the bundle, pending further investigation.

Henry Ryder, a street car operator going home from work, found the bundle on the doorstep of a store on Queen Street in the city's east end. After a discussion with his wife he deposited it at the Pape Avenue police station.

Man In Coma 7 Years, Costs State $75,000

CINCINNATI, O., Dec. 1 (UP) —Bethesda Hospital's "Patient X" was reported in good physical condition today although he has been in a coma nearly seven years.

The patient, whose name has never been disclosed by the hospital, has been in the hospital since February 5, 1943, 2,516 days ago, when he was struck on the head by an eight pound pulley which fell from the ceiling of the Curtiss-Wright plant here. The blood clot which formed on his brain was immediately removed at the hospital, but damage to the brain cells was permanent.

Three shifts of nurses give the patient round the clock care and he has sustained several bouts with pneumonia, of a mild variety, and has been nursed through indigestion and other illness, his doctor, who asked that he not be identified, said.

"Patient X carries as much or more weight than if he were up and about, and he still has a faint tan left from summer exposure on the hospital roof," the physician added.

Nursing and general hospital care has cost the Ohio Industrial Commission approximately $75,000 to date, and the hospital well over $6,000. Extra treatment is paid for by the patient's family, which lives out of the state.

"I believe he will go on indefinitely," the doctor said.

Will Solve Problems

HALIFAX, Dec. 1—(CP)—Mr. Justice M. B. Archibald, chairman of the Board of Transport Commissioners, expressed confidence here Wednesday night that Canada's transportation problems will "be solved . . . although perhaps not to the satisfaction of all." Speaking at a St. Andrew's Day banquet, Mr. Justice Archibald said "the magnitude of the problem is apparent . . . a very great endeavour is being made to straighten them out."

Set January 30 For Hearing On Rent Control Validity

OTTAWA, Dec. 1—(CP)—Chief Justice Thibaudeau Rinfret today set Jan. 30 for the Supreme Court of Canada hearing on the validity of Federal government rent controls. The date was fixed at an informal meeting among the Chief Justice, counsel for three provinces—Quebec, New Brunswick and Manitoba — and property owners and the Attorney-General of Canada. No other provinces were represented. Chief Justice Rinfred said he believed that a judgment in the case could be handed down before the controls expire March 31.

A. J. MacLeod an official of the Justice Department, representing the Attorney-General of Canada, said there may be a change in the reference, incorporating a request by Saskatchewan. He obtained leave to file the change before Dec. 15.

Mr. MacLeod said the reference may include the question of whether Saskatchewan's entry into the rent-control field next April was within the jurisdiction of the province.

Question on which the court will be asked for a ruling: "Are the Wartime Leasehold Regulations ultra vires either in whole or in part and if so in what particulars or to what extent?"

Judge Surprised

Surprise was expressed by the Chief Justice when he noticed that there was no counsel present to represent Canadian tenants at the court hearing this morning.

He said he had been delayed in arriving at the hearing because of a "parade of lessees which blocked traffic for 20 minutes."

The parade was held by 200 members of the Montreal Tenant Association who will confer with Finance Minister Abbott later today. The delegates will request the minister to withhold the boosts in rental ceilings allowed next Dec. 15. The new ceilings permits increases of 18 and 22 per cent on unheated and heated dwellings, respectively.

Counsel for the tenants will be appointed by the court, said the Chief Justice, and he expected that the government would pay the expenses involved.

Mr. MacLeod said he could not see what useful purpose would be served by appointing counsel for the tenants, since the stand the tenants would take would be the same as the government.

"Are you suggesting that the government will represent the tenants?" asked the Chief Justice.

2 Plant Workers Killed By Gas

THREE RIVERS, Que., Dec. 1 (CP)—Two foundry workers died of gas poisoning Wednesday night and a third who tried to revive them was taken to hospital in grave condition.

The two, Alfred Gagnon, 40, of Ste. Anne de la Parade, Que., and Phillipe Rousseau, 20, of St. Casimir, Que., succumbed to the effects of carbon monoxide while working at a furnace in the Trottier foundry.

Constable Paul Brouillette, who tried artificial respiration on the two, was overcome himself and was taken to hospital where he was treated with oxygen.

Witnesses said Gagnon was placing a crucible of metal in a furnace when he was overcome by the gas and fell under the chimney. Rousseau ran to pull him away from the furnace and also was overcome.

Another foundry worker, Jean-Charles Laganiere, saw the plight of the other two and succeeded in dragging Rousseau's body out of the gassy area but was unable to revive him. Constable Brouillette was called and was overcome as he was trying to revive the two victims.

Mother's Heroism Saves Two Children

TORONTO, Dec. 1 (CP)—The heroism of a young mother, recently arrived in Canada after years in concentration camps in Germany, was praised Wednesday night for saving her infant son from almost certain death when fire broke out in their east-end home.

Mrs. Violette Wertzberger was burned about the face and arms as she reached into the blazing crib to rescue her 20-month-old son.

Firemen said she also rescued a second child.

The younger son's condition today was reported as serious by hospital authorities.

Mrs. Wertzberger, in Canada three months from Poland, spent years in Nazi concentration camps. Her husband, Rabbi Kendrick Wertzberger, lost his entire first family when his former wife and 11 children were gassed and cremated in a concentration camp.

Any Peace Up To Soviet Pearson Says

Acts of Aggression In Balkans, Constant Threat

By NORMAN ALSTEDTER.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1 (CP)—L. B. Pearson of Canada today challenged Russia to stop the Cominform from trying to overthrow other governments by force.

Canada's External Affairs Minister told Andrei Y. Vishinsky in the Soviet Foreign Minister's own words that "ideological intervention is wont to become military."

"That statement . . embodies the greatest threat to peace that now exists," Pearson told the 59-member United Nations General Assembly.

Pearson issued his warning along with a note of hope during final hours of debate on the rival Anglo-American and Russian peace proposals.

Pearson issued his warning along with a note of hope during final hours of debate on the rival Anglo-American and Russian peace proposals.

The Anglo-American plan was approved last week by an overwhelming majority in the 59 member political committee. The committee rejected Russia's call for a peace pact among the Big Five powers, linked with condemnation of Britain and the United States as fomenters of a new war.

Ground For Hope

If Vishinsky really believes his own statement that there is common ground for co-operation between East and West, Pearson said, then there is "ground for hope."

"But this belief must be demonstrated in deeds," the leader of the Canadian delegation said.

He said the most useful contribution Vishinsky could make to the cause of peace would be a practical suggestion which "he honestly thinks" could be a basis for negotiations on outstanding East-West problems.

Other steps the Russian rulers could take to help peace would be to realize the fear in the world of the new Soviet imperialism and to relax the "tight grip" on the countries on Russia's borders so they could work out their relations freely.

He said the methods used by Russia have converted the Soviet sphere of influence into "one of

Two Cars Stolen One From City Doctor

Two cars were reported stolen from different places in the city, the first shortly after 5 p.m. on Wednesday and the second some time during the night.

Dr. W. S. Fitzpatrick, 335 Stewart St., reported to police today his car had been taken some time after he put it in his unlocked garage about 10 p.m. Wednesday night. He said no drugs had been left in the car.

David Tully, RR 2, Peterborough, reported he had left his car with the motor running, on Aylmer St., while he went across the road to a dairy. When he came back in a few minutes the car was gone.

Great Grandmother 105 Loves Plane Rides But Daughter 76, Will Stick To Trains

MONTREAL, Dec. 1 (CP)—Mrs. Clara Edelstone, 105, arrived at Montreal airport by plane Wednesday night and was met by her 76-year-old daughter, Mrs. Frank Bramson, who was "too old-fashioned" and travelled by train from Chicago to Montreal.

Warmly wrapped in her fur coat and wearing a snappy black hat, the centenarian also was welcomed by her granddaughter, Mrs. Joseph M. Bernstein of Montreal, and her great-granddaughter, Marlene.

Leaving Chicago at noon on Wednesday, where her departure was televised Mrs. Edelstone said she preferred travelling by air "to keep out of smoke."

It was her fifth plane trip here. She came to attend the wedding of her great-granddaughter, Marlene, to Jack W. Cohen of Vancouver.

Shortly before she left Chicago, her daughter said she did not care to travel by air and would rather go by train. She left in advance and met her mother when her plane landed here.

A Trans-Canada Airlines spokesman said Mrs. Edelstone was probably the oldest passenger carried by TCA.

Chiang Decides To Run War

Takes Over Army After Flight To Chengtu

CHENSTU, China, Dec. 1 (AP) —Chiang Kai-shek was back today in command of Nationalist China's fight against the Communists. He took over shortly after arriving in this new refugee capital from fallen Chungking.

The confused, travel-weary Nationalist government still was trying to set up shop in its fourth capital this year when the Generalissimo announced he was resuming direction of operations against the Reds.

A statement said he had no intention—at the moment—of resuming the presidency he gave up last January. But high hources predicted he would do that, too, before long.

One of the Generalissimo's first moves was to call in other Nationalist leaders to discuss measures for checking the Redtide flooding into Southwestern China.

The Nationalist government was groping its way into the business of running what is left of its country. Many key officials weren't around. There was confusion at every hand.

Already people were wondering how long Chengtu would last as the seat of government. One month was an optimistic estimate. In that time, many said, the Reds would have covered the 170 miles that separate Chengtu from Chungking.

Hong Kong press reports said the fast-moving Communist troops of Gen. Liu Po-cheng already were streaking out from Chungking to take Hochwan, 35 miles northwest toward Chengtu.

Going Wrong Way?

SEATTLE, Dec. 1—(AP)—Coals to Newcastle, ice boxes to Eskimos—and now it's Christmas trees to Alaska.

Longshoremen were puzzled today as they loaded 130 bales of fir Christmas trees.

They are going from Orin Farr of Rexford, Mont., to Sidney Urie of Woodrow, near Seward, Alaska, aboard the steamship Denali.

"The boys thought there must be some mistake. They nearly threw 'em off the pier," Emil Hanson, Stevedoring company superintendent, said.

Alaskans customarily use spruce and other native evergreens for Christmas trees.

Boys 11 And 12 Steal $1,350 For Trip To B.C.

TORONTO, Dec 1. — (CP) — Two young boys' dream of a trip to Vancouver ended Wednesday night when the boys were arrested on a theft charge while trying to buy railway tickets.

Police accused the boys, aged 11 and 12, of stealing $1,350 from a midtown groceteria where it had been placed in a paper bag. Officers quoted the boys as saying they spent $40 on club bags, watches, clothing, wallets and food. The rest of the money was recovered.

Police said the theft was carried out in a daring and well-planned manner.

One of the boys had waited around the store on previous occasions and observed where the money from the day's sales was kept before it was picked up and taken to to the bank at the end of the day.

The money had been bundled up and put in a bag in a drawer under the counter. The store was preparing to close for the Wednesday half-holiday and all the customers had left.

Police said one of the boys had walked stealthily into the shop, crawled under the counter and grabbed the bag, escaping without being detected.

Five hours later the pair were apprehended at the railroad station.

Italian Strike Complete Fizzle

ROME, Dec. 1 — (AP) — Italy's Communists suffered a humiliating defeat today in their attempt to paralyze this country in a 24-hour general strike.

Seven hours after the strike started at midnight, EST, its effects were scarcely felt. It was much more of a failure than a similar one-day general strike in France last Friday, and the second flop in a month for the Communist-led General Confederation of Labor.

Government spokesmen said the walkout was a failure except in Italy's big northern factories, the chief centres of Italian Communist strength.

Even the Communists laid little claim to success. A spokesman for the Confederation admitted that transportation was nearly normal in most cities.

Light Bulb Too Much For Baby's Digestion

BELLEVILLE, Dec. 1 — One-year-old Bobby Semark has a good digestion, but not good enough to digest a small light bulb. He tried this trick Wednesday, and came close to choking to death before he coughed up most of the bulb while being held head downward.

Bobby, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Semark, is in Belleville General Hospital, where he is wondering what all the excitement is about. An X-ray showed a piece of glass in his stomach. Doctors said he was in no danger.

"He was turning purple before he coughed the bulb up," related his mother.

The youngster has 12 teeth, considered unusual in so young a child. His mother thinks he was trying out his teeth on the bulb.

Order Miners Back To Pits For Three-Day Week 11 Hours After Walkout

Shortened Work Week Abrupt Departure From Traditional Policy Fourth Mine Shutdown Since January

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 1—(AP)—John L. Lewis' back-to-work orders for his striking United Mine Workers (Ind.) today drew quick cheers from his hard-pressed diggers. Lewis' order, backed up by his 200-man policy committee, reinstated the three-day work week in hard and soft coal mines across the United States starting Monday. Lewis' order came less than 11 hours after the diggers quit the pits. The unpredictable mine chieftain initiated the three-day work week last June 30 after the U.M.W. contract ran out. The shortened work week marked an abrupt departure from the traditional U.M.W. policy of "no contract, no work."

The miners worked a regular five-day week during the truce.

Today's shutdown was complete. Reports from coal-producing states indicated only shattered non-union strip (surface) mines and 16,000 progressive mine workers in Illinois were at work. The walkout became official at one minute after midnight.

While the soft-coal truce expired, there was no indication a sympathy walkout would spread to the U.M.W.'s 80,000 anthracite miners in Eastern Pennsylvania. Negotiations for a new anthracite agreement are scheduled to resume in New York Dec. 6.

Lewis has had his soft-coal wage policy committee in New York all week. He's postponed meetings three times. The latest was set for 10 a.m. EST today.

It was the wage policy committee that met with Lewis Nov. 9 in Chicago and decided to send the 380,000 soft-coal miners east of the Mississippi back to work for three weeks. They had been idle 52 days. Earlier, Lewis directed 20,000 western soft-coal and 80,000 anthracite diggers to go back to work.

Dislike Of Blackmail Pays Off For One Man

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 1 — (AP). — A former Detroit man's dislike of blackmailers and faith in justice has paid off.

Wanted for a 1916 slaying in Detroit, Thomas Karakatsianis came here 33 years ago. He changed his name, married, raised a family, and started what proved to be a successful business.

Everything went well with him —until a stranger came and demanded $1,500 to keep quiet about the 33-year-old killing.

Karakatsianis decided he would rather face trial than submit to a blackmailer.

He turned himself over to the police. They checked with Detroit. Karakatsianis was wanted all right—for shooting and killing one Mike Hadjopoulos in a brawl in February, 1916.

But Detroit police reported everybody connected with the case—detectives, witnesses, and other officials — all are dead Consequently the officials declined to bring Karakatsianis back for trial.

Perfect Harmony At UERMW Convention In US

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 1—(AP) —In perfect harmony, the 400 delegates to the founding convention of the CIO's United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers Union Wednesday began adopting a provisional constitution and pushed toward adjournment.

Absence of discord, almost complete by-passing of social activities and a glued-to-the-seat attention to business have made it possible for the delegates to get their jobs done sooner than expected.

It seems almost certain the session will end today, originally it had been thought the convention might last through Friday.

There was one unavoidable disappointment Wednesday. Navy Secretary Francis P. Matthews had been scheduled to talk, but foggy weather made it impossible to fly here from Washington.

But still on the program were addresses by Labor Secretary Maurice Tobin and the Secretary of the Air Force, W. Stuart Symington.

Tobin, in his prepared address, congratulated the union for its anti-Communist stand.

The new Union came into being early this month when the C.I.O. expelled the United Electrical Workers on charges of Communist domination.

Must Pick Election Date

Among chief sections of the provisional constitution yet to be adopted are those dealing with the time for the first election of officers and with their salaries.

Because of legal and other hindrances which the U.E.W. has placed in the path of the new group, the administrative committee has recommended the first selection of officers be postponed until Labor Board elections determine an actual membership.

Ten Injured In Glider Crash

RIVERS, Man., Dec. 1 (CP) — Ten persons were injured, three seriously, when a glider crashed today at the Canadian joint air training centre here.

Rivers is about 150 miles west of Winnipeg and slightly northwest of Brandon.

Army officials said cause of the crash, which came on the landing of the glider, was not immediately known.

Officials said names of those involved in the crash would be disclosed after next of kin had been notified.

May End Russian Occupation

Soviet Troops May Withdraw From Germany

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1 (AP). —A State Department bulletin said today Russia may make a German peace treaty and withdraw its occupation troops from Germany sometime next year.

The treaty would be made with Russia's new satellite "German Democratic Republic" The Russians sponsored this set-up in October, paralleling the creation of the new Western German State under British-American-French sponsorship.

The speculation on dramatic new moves by the Russians in their play for Germany was set forth in an article by Henry B Cox, a State Department expert on German political affairs

Actually State Department officials have expected a Russian move on the occupation troop issue—a hot political issue in Germany—for many months.

It was one of the possibilities considered before State Secretary Dean Acheson attended the Big-Four Foreign Ministers' meeting in Paris early this year.

At that time speculation was concerned with a possible Russian proposal that all four occupation powers should get their troops out of Germany.

Acheson decided that he would simply oppose any such proposition, together with Britain and France, on the ground that the security of Western Germany and Western Europe required occupation and that the German people understood that requirement.

McNaughton Elected UN Security Head

Will Be Third Time General Holds Council Chairmanship

By NORMAN ALTSTEDTER.

LAKE SUCCESS, NY, Dec. 1—(CP). — Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton of Canada today takes over chairmanship for December of the United Nations Security Council.

It will be the third, and probably last, time the 62-year-old diplomat, soldier, scientist and statesman will head the UN's key peace-keeping body Canada ends a two-year term on the 11-member Council December 31.

During the period that Canada has emerged as a major spokesman of the Western powers, McNaughton has led the delegation which works the year round at the United Nations. That delegation is reinforced during sessions of the General Assembly with Cabinet members and others.

McNaughton is expected to return to Ottawa early in the New Year since the necessity of keeping a top-ranking diplomat here permanently recedes as Canada leaves the Security Council.

Deadlock Problem

Probably the most important tasks Canada will be called on to face here will be the continuing problem of breaking the East-West deadlock over international control of atomic energy and the prohibition of atomic weapons.

In this taunting issue, McNaughton has been a recognized leader of the Western powers ever since he joined the UN Atomic Energy Commission at its formation in 1946.

To take that job, McNaughton resigned his post as president of the Canadian Atomic Energy Control Board. Previously he had been Defence Minister, head of the National Research Council, and General Offices Commanding-in-Chief of the First Canadian Army overseas during the Second World War.

The tall, spare, straight-backed McNaughton carried out a work schedule during the last two years which has often run ragged his aides who average about 34 years of age.

Order Miners

But even the President's closest advisers can't say how long he may wait before invoking the emergency provisions of the Taft-Hartly Labor Act. Under the Act he could obtain an 80-day cooling off period through an injunction, provided a state of national emergency exists.

As of Oct. 1 the U. S. Bureau of Mines said there was a 51-day supply of coal. The long strike ate into that stockpile. Now Lewis appears better prepared to apply pressure on the operators than he has been at any time since last spring.

For months, Lewis has been trying to get a new contract to enforce the demands he's never publicly announced. He's merely said they would add 30 to 35 cents a ton to the cost of coal.

The miners' basic wage is $14.05 for an eight-hour day. Average weekly earnings run about $70.

But the operators pay millions of dollars to the miners besides wages. Through a 20 cent a ton royalty they finance entirely the cost of $100 a month pension for retired miners and a health and welfare fund.

Christmas Rush Blitzes MP's At Ottawa

OTTAWA, Dec. 1.—(CP).—The Christmas rush is on in Parliament.

Speeding the drive to early prorogation, the Commons whipped through nine separate pieces of legislation Wednesday.

The Government has set next Saturday as the date on which it hopes to finish the first session of the 21st Parliament.

But with 17 items remaining on the order paper, the possibilities of prorogation before Dec. 10—a week later—appear remote.

During a busy eight hours the Commons passed bills which will:

1. Increase the salary of Canada's chief justice from $20,000 to $25,000 a year and the salaries of other Supreme Court justices rom $16,000 to $20,000.

2. Reduce from a whole township to a half-township the area in which drought conditions must be general in order to qualify for prairie farm assistance.

3. Authorize the Government to establish laboratories for better utilization of forest products and to enter into agreements with the provinces for protection, development or utilization of forest resources, including protection from forest fires, insects and disease.

4. Provide for federal inspection of fish and marine plants.

Authorize Refunds

5. Authorize refunds to some half dozen RCMP members who paid too much into pension funds when they were members of Provincial Police forces.

6. Grant the Government authority to cover deficits of the publicly-owned Canadian National Railways and Trans-Canada Air Lines.

7. Give formal approval to the various excise tax changes contained in the 1949-50 budget. The changes already are in effect.

8. Increase the over-all amount of money for use by the Government-operated Industrial Development Bank to $25,000,000.

9. Incorporate pure-bred livestock record associations in Canada.

The measure to promote Dominion-provincial co-operation on forestry protection received unanimous support and was described by several members as one of the most important bits of legislation considered this session.

Commando Plan

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, urged that a country-wide air-commando force be established under the measure to enable early action against forest fires wherever they may break out.

Mr. Drew offered a plan in which the RCAF would man aircraft from strategically-located bases to patrol forests and to fly the commandoes into forest-fire areas with pumps and other fire-fighting equipment.

Resources Minister Gibson, sponsor of the bill, said the federal government which gained "considerable revenue" from Canada's forest resources, recognized an obligation to take a part in conservation.

H. W. Herridge (CCF Kootenay West) suggested an investigation into more efficient types of sawmill equipment to prevent waste. He said about 20 per cent of useable timber is left in the forests every year.

In reply to this suggestion, Mr. Gibson said a study of equipment for small mills will be undertaken next spring.

Urges Penalties

J. L. Gibson (Ind., Comox-Alberni)urged that penalties be provided under the criminal code for failure to reforest areas where wood was being cut.

Donald Fleming (PC, Toronto Eglinton) suggested a program of education among the people in forest conservation and protection. Mr. Herridge said such education should be given in public schools to make Canadians conservation-conscious.

During TCA and CNR deficit discussion, the House was told that the government does not charge interest on money advanced to the two government-owned companies.

James Sinclair, parliamentary assistant to Finance Minister Abbott, said that if interest was charged on the deficits of CNR and TCA, the interest would only fall back on the taxpayers who had to foot the bill in the long run.

Interest was charged, however, on advances made to the railway and TCA for capital expenditure.

Hon. Russell Kelley To Inspect Proposed Site

Peterborough's overtures for one of the mental hospitals for which the Ontario government intends to spend $35,000,000 as announced several weeks ago, will be enlarged by a conference with the Hon. Russell T. Kelley, Minister of Health, here Friday morning.

The city has offered to the government as a proposed site the Hilliard farm property, extending from Anson House to Queen Mary Hospital.

Representatives of the city and county councils, including Mayor Swanston and Warden Wm. Darling, will accompany the Minister in survey of the property for the purpose of acquainting him of its desirable location.

the most unstable, restless and explosive areas of the world."

Pressing Danger

"This is a pressing danger to peace, the evidence of which is before us every day."

Then Pearson ticked off the evidence: expulsion of Baltic peoples from their homes; imprisonment of Joseph Cardinal Mindszenty of Hungary; the Rajk trial in Hungary; persecution in Czechoslovakia; appointment of Soviet Marshal Rokossovsky in Poland; the cominform campaign against Yugoslavia.

"This is a frightening state of affairs," Pearson said. "It is therefore my sincere and earnest hope that as a contribution to the peace of the world the government of the U.S.S.R. will abandon this aggressive intervention in the affairs of other countries."

Early in his blunt statement, Pearson referred to Vishinsky's attack on him for charging that Russia is waging an aggressive imperialism which threatens the world.

"If Mr. Vishinsky really wants to do something about the conservation of peace in the world, he should persuade his government to pay some attention to the fear in the world of this new imperialism; to the concern—deep and widespread—of the methods it adopts to spread its influence and the threats to peace which are inherent in those methods."

Adopt Resolution

The United Nations Assembly later beat down Soviet opposition and adopted the resolution laying down the essentials for a permanent peace.

The vote on the 12-page resolution was 53 to 5 with Yugoslavia abstaining. It was the largest majority for the Western Powers on a major issue in U.N. history. The Soviet bloc alone voted in opposition.

Just before the balloting, the 59-member assembly heard Andrei Y. Vishinsky of Russia shout a denial that his country is interfering in the affairs of Yugoslavia.

The Soviet foreign minister blasted Pearson and other delegates for what he called a campaign to destroy Marxism.

Vishinsky told the assembly Yugoslavia's charges of Soviet interference are "nonsense."

Decision On Expenses

Mr. McLeod said he did not. He would inform the Chief Justice by next Saturday whether the government would agree to pay the expenses.

Before the Jan. 30 date was finally fixed, the Chief Justice suggested that an earlier date would be more advisable. He suggested that evidence be heard on Jan. 9, thus giving the court the opportunity to bring down a judgment by Feb. 1.

However, Mr. McLeod and C. A. Sequin, of Ottawa, representing the Attorney-General of Quebec, expressed the wish that the hearing be held at the opening of the court's next session.

Normally, this would have been Feb. 8, but the Chief Justice said the opening date would be moved forward to Jan. 30.

Two Youths Given Jail Sentences

Jail sentences of one month and 15 days were given to Lawrence Fontaine, 146 Aylmer St., and Ronald Gilmour, 132 Maude St., who pleaded guilty to charges of stealing gasoline from two National Grocers trucks early Tuesday morning. Magistrate W. R. Philp heard evidence and sentenced the two in police court today.

Constable Edward Niziol testified he had discovered Fontaine and Gilmour with Fontaine's car parked beside one of the trucks near George and Dalhousie Sts. The cap of the truck's gas tank was off and a can containing about two gallons of gasoline and a length of garden hose were found in the back of the car.

Fontaine said in court "It was a foolish trick." He added he was leaving town to take a job in Hamilton and needed some gasoline, but had no money.

Constable Niziol said Fontaine had pleaded with him to be let off when he was discovered and offered to put back the gasoline.

Rents And Devaluation Influence Cost Index

OTTAWA, Dec. 1 (CP)—Rents and the readjustment of prices resulting from devaluation may provide two important realignments in October's cost of living index. The index will be issued tomorrow by the Bureau of Statistics.

The new quarterly survey of rents has been completed by the Bureau and will be included in October's compilations. If previous surveys are an indication the trend likely will point upward forcing the rent sub-index beyond its September peak of 123.9.

Devaluation, although it didn't arrive on the Canadian scene until Sept. 20, already has shown what it can do by forcing the prices of United States coal and gasoline upward.

Canada's however, obtained only a partial picture through the September index of the impact of devaluation. October's compilations will show the first full month in which devaluation has been at work.

TCA Blocked

Northeast Air Lines, however, which has a licence to fly from Montreal to Boston and then to New York, is expected to provide a continuing service.

May Take Months

The restraining order, allowed by a Washington Federal Court Wednesday, is to run until Colonial's appeal against a district court ruling has been heard before the Supreme Court of the United States. That may take many months.

Colonial's agreement, tossed out by a district court, is that the TCA application should not be granted on the grounds it was initiated under an unconstitutional agreement.

Colonial referred to the Canada U. S. bilateral air agreement, signed in Ottawa June 4, which generally provided for expansion of air business in both countries.

Although Colonial's court actions blocked implementation of one part of the agreement, it had no effect on the other parts.

The agreement provided for the extension of U. S. air-line rights to use the Gander air port in Newfoundland on trans-Atlantic hops; to open new routes in western Canada and new Canadian routes across U. S. territory.

New Zealand Election Heartens Aussie Party

SYDNEY, Australia, Dec 1 — (AP).— Some of Australia's Conservatives were heartened today by the defeat of New Zealand's Labor Government after 14 years in office. Others adopted a "wait and see" attitude.

The question was: Would Australia's voters follow the lead of their island neighbors and end the Labor Government's program of government controls and Socialism when they elect a new Parliament December 10.

In Britain, where the Commonwealth's third and youngest Labor Government also faces a general election before next July, mixed reactions were reported.

Some Cancer Curable

MONTREAL, Dec. 1—(CP)—Several forms of cancer are curable but early detection is of prime importance in successful treatment, Dr. Jonathan C. Meakins, National President of the Canadian Cancer Society, said Wednesday night. Addressing a public meeting in suburban Notre Dame de Grace, he said great advances in cancer treatment could be made if early detection were made and treatment started. Most forms of cancer are curable through surgery by cutting out the malignant tumor or by the proper use of x-rays or radium.

Find Iron Cross

TORONTO, Dec. 1—(CP)—Arthur Sidney Gendron said today he found an iron cross, about 16 by 12 inches, while hunting on the northern edge of Fenetanguishene Bay and the relic may be centuries old. The cross, apparently buried for many years under three or four feet of water, was found 200 feet off shore, a few miles north of the famous Martyr's Shrine at Midland. It may be a relic of the explorations by Samuel De Champlain in 1615 or it may have been left there when the peninsula was settled after the war of 1812.

New Zealanders' Choice

Most of the world with the exception of the Americas has either communist or socialist governments. The "free enterprise" states like the U.S.A. have been standing in almost complete, but rather opulent isolation from the rest of the world. One of the milder socialist states, New Zealand, decided at the polls yesterday to abandon socialism in favour of free enterprise. It is the first significant break in the socialist front since socialists started to gain governmental control in the Depression years.

* * *

There are elements in the New Zealand political situation not fully perceived from this distance. When the electors gave 46 of the 80 seats to the Nationalist party, and ended the fourteen years of labour government, they voted for or against other issues than socialism versus capitalism. For instance, Labour governments, beginning with Michael Savage's premiership and ending with Peter Fraser's, have been in power for fourteen consecutive years. The theme that 'it's time for a change' can still move voters, especially in a year of high prices and economic difficulties. Further, the Labour Government's recent legislation to enforce conscription for peace-time service was not popular with New Zealand farmers. The Nationalist Party under Premier-designate Sidney George Holland campaigned on promises not to interfere with social security schemes established by the socialist regimes but to reduce taxes and relax controls. It is easier to say these things than to do them, for to maintain the present generous social security measures in New Zealand requires money, and the money must come from taxes.

* * *

Whatever local policies, prejudices and personalities affected yesterday's voting, the central issue was clear; continued support of socialistic measures (the moderately Socialistic Labour Party went to the country on the platform of "security for all"), or re-establishment of as much free enterprise as the state of the country and the world will permit. The voters chose to try free enterprise again. That is the world-wide significance of the New Zealand elections. It will be interesting to see the shape of New Zealand's economic and social development in the next few years under the new regime. It will be interesting to see the extent to which private enterprise will be re-established, and socialistic practices dropped.

Will The C.N.R. Learn From The C.P.R.?

The Canadian National Railway Company wants to close off the Peterborough-Port Hope line, and is petitioning the Board of Transport for permission to do so. The primary stage of the closing would be to cut off the line from Millbrook to Port Hope; the rails between Peterborough and Millbrook would not be torn up, not yet at any rate. But half a line is not much more use than no line.

There is a possibility that the C.N.R. may be seriously short-sighted in this policy of retrenchment. In the Depression '30's the C.P.R. had a similar spasm of uprailing. It secured permission to abandon, and did abandon, the direct grain route from Port McNicoll through Orillia, Beaverton and Lindsay to Dranoel (between Cavan station and Pontypool), where it connected with the Toronto-Peterborough Montreal line. Thereafter grain from the west being shipped east through the Great Lakes to Port McNicoll had to pass over the much longer rail route to Toronto. During the war when railways were heavily burdened and Great Lakes shipping direct to Montreal at a premium, grain from Port McNicoll had to be routed over the longer line to Toronto, thence along the heavily congested main lakeshore line to Montreal. Even railwaymen have acknowledged that the closing of the old Port McNicoll line was a mistake.

Is the C.N.R. setting out on such another unwise course, by attempting to abandon the direct connection between the busy populous counties of Victoria, Peterborough, Durham and Northumberland, and the lakeshore?

When the C.P.R. closed the Port McNicoll-Dranoel-Peterborough line, it took up the rails only between Port McNicoll and Lindsay, leaving the southern end in operating order. But that amount of closing was enough to destroy the chief usefulness of the whole line. The C.N.R. is now asking for permission to abandon only the Millbrook-Port Hope section, but that would be enough to put the kibosh on the whole line.

Ghost Writing

The practice common in the United States of "ghost-writers" penning speeches and even books which are attributed to, and often commissioned by public men, has been sharply criticized by American Supreme Court justices. Last week the Supreme Court disbarred a lawyer who used a ghost-written article in an application for a patent. This custom of putting up decoy authors "to impress the guileless", one of the Justices wrote "has debased the intellectual currency in circulation here and is a type of counterfeiting which invites no defence". He termed ghost-writers "legal frauds".

We are not so much impressed by the illegality of the practice as by its ignominy. Are men in public office incapable of writing a good speech or even a fair one, that they must use a decoy? Are they so shameless that under the pretext of the pressure of business they let others put into their mouths every word they say, and yet claim as their own? Semi-literate Beefy Brown Brawlers must have the immortal stories of their pugilistic successes put into understandable English. No one is deceived by his ghost-writer; in fact the story is usually printed as being "told by B.B.B. to X.Y." When a cabinet minister, the president of a large company or a wartime general makes a speech or writes a book in his own name, the public has a right to expect some of the author's own thoughts and words. They want to hear and read the public man, not the phantom behind the voice.

The practice of using ghost-writers is not by any means universal. Even in the United States there are busy men of affairs who compose their own speeches and do them excellently. The American Secretary of State, Mr. Dean Acheson, is one. Busy officials properly depend on their staffs for some of the meat in their speeches; they may even give another the subject and ask him to make a draft for the speech or article. But even a man as busy as President Roosevelt took time to revise the draft in his own language, to use some points and reject others, and so transform the draft that when the speech was delivered it was his own. Not all men are as facile and felicitous with words as Mr. Churchill and they profit from the help of experts. But to use another's words holus-bolus is not only dishonest but also discreditable.

The most famous and perennial of ghost-written speeches are the Speeches from the Throne, delivered by the King or his deputy. But they are really not ghost-written. They are written by the Prime Minister and his staff, and the King as a constitutional monarch must deliver another's words on these state occasions. There is no deception.

One Supreme Court

We heartily approve the suggestion of Mr. John Diefenbaker (Progressive-Conservative member for Lake Centre, Saskatchewan) that only one court in Canada be called "Supreme". The country is plastered with "Supreme" courts; the Supreme Court of British Columbia, the Supreme Court of Ontario, the Supreme Court of New Brunswick and the like. There is no need for Provincial higher courts to be called Supreme. They could be called Superior or some such. In fact, the Supreme Court of Ontario is merely a cover-all name for two branches, the Court of Appeal and the High Court of Justice. There is a legislative, legal and practical need for the one Canadian court which is supreme to be called "Supreme". To have only the one would simplify references and cause no ambiguity.

While we are indulging ourself in approval of Mr. Diefenbaker, we shall also say that we commend warmly his request that men appointed to the Supreme Court be those whose qualities transcend every political consideration. They should be appointed not because of their political affiliations but because they are men who "enjoy respect all over Canada and whose honesty and capacity are beyond question." Fortunately the appointments made by the governments in the last decade have not fallen short of Mr. Diefenbaker's stipulations, but it is well to have them stated.

NOTE AND COMMENT

A New York paper, in an article advising children not to talk to strangers, says, "Don't listen to anyone who says you are nice". Children rarely stop to listen to anyone who is telling them that they are not nice, and thus do not need to be warned against this group.

Their Names Abide

By IVOR BROWN

As the first half of this century moves to its close we may reasonably wonder what names will survive. Of course, men and women famous in the arts and politics, the discoveries and the conflicts of mankind, will live in the history books and in the minds of posterity. But what names will have become words, not household words only, but tavern and street-side terms, like the bowler hat invented by William Bowler?

That unwearying student of word history, Eric Partridge, has recently published with Secker and Warburg a large and valuable volume called "Name Into Word", in which he examines the mysterious process whereby the names of people and places become lodged in the language as nouns describing their products.

The names that have prevailed in this manner in the past have been chiefly those attached to flowers and diseases. How ill-fated are the Brights and Parkinsons thus to be remembered, how happy the evokers of Clarkia, Forsythia, Fuchsia and so on. William Forsyth died in 1804, the very year in which Captain Clark found his species of evening primrose on the western slopes of the Rocky Mountains. Clarkia is not, you may say, a very apt or pretty title for a flower; but it is agreeable for a Clark to pass through botany, to perpetuity.

The immortality bestowed by gardens, as well as by bodily afflictions, has queer facets. Each year ingenious rose-growers add their titles to the list, and some of those names are oddly unfloral. It may be hard to be called Mrs. Piffleton Potts, but there is recompense if you remain a bloom in the mind of man for ever, no rose in all the world being as velvety, as lush and as deeply crimson as that labelled Mrs. Piffleton Potts.

❖ ❖ ❖

Transport has always drawn on its inventors or first users for its terms of specification. The old English stable was full of family names like Brougham, the politician, and Hanson, the architect; both were eternised more by their taste in chariots than by their professional achievements. Certainly the 20th century has been true to tradition in this kind of title-giving. When Bernard Shaw or even Don Bradman are forgotten, people will still remember Morris, Austin and Ford.

Ford especially won a fame beyond that of Hansom. The Tin Lizzie of thirty years ago was not, according to Partridge, named after any actual lady called Elizabeth, but signified a maid-of-all-work, made of cheap metal. By the way, in etymological matters, is not "according to Partridge" the equivalent of the old phrase "According to Cocker"? Cocker is also a form of spaniel, but the Cocker symbolic of complete correctness was a teacher of penmanship.

❖ ❖ ❖

Of the word-names established during the last fifty years I have noted a Chamberlain for an umbrella; but that may pass. An Anthony Eden for a black felt hat, may endure, as Stetson has in America. I have heard a big cigar called a Churchill—but is that common? Collars once became Byronic by their laxity and Gladstonian by their shape and size. Our present rulers offer small scope for this kind of memorial. Mr. Attlee will never be remembered for anything showy or picturesque. Possibly the quiff or upstanding lock of front hair may come to be known as a Morrison, when the war-time shelters, Anderson and Morrison, are forgotten.

During the first war a small moustache was a Charlie Chaplin, but no personal name has been attached to the "handlebar" moustaches fashionable during the second struggle. It is odd that two rather similar conflicts should have provoked exactly opposite modes in masculine facial fungus.

❖ ❖ ❖

Without doubt Herr Doktor Freud has come to stay and, what is more, he has immortalized some ancient Greeks; Oedipus and Electra have stepped out of the text of Sophocles to be on the lips of every twittering dabbler in the shallows of psychology.

No modern authors have wedged their characters into our vocabulary with the strength and permanence achieved by Shakespeare and Dickens, even though they keep reviving them in story after story. But most people would understand the adjective Forsytish and take your meaning if you could afford to employ a Jeeves. Holmesian and Watsonian were established before the turn of the century; the best of Edgar Wallace's characters, for me, was educated Evans, but he has not persisted. Perhaps, after all, it is in wrappings that immortality chiefly triumphs. What do we remember of Lords Chesterfield and Raglan? Yet they are still with us as overcoats. Charles Mackintosh has become the "Mac" of every man. Cannot we reward our own age in this kind and for the alien beret insist that native Monty be imposed upon our heads and our vocabulary?

Ever See A Drunk Chinese?

An American newspaperman roaming around parts of China in search of news, reports that there are more than 500 tea-houses in Chengtu. The tea-house is the Chinese meeting place, just as Canadians—or a good many of them—meet to drink beer and talk in a beverage room, or an Englishman goes to a pub for the same reason and to play darts or some other game.

Chinese seeking jobs, men transacting business, or just for social reasons, resort to the tea-house. The owner of a tea-house is an important and respected member of the community. Poor people may spend the greater part of the day there drinking tea and eating peanuts or pumpkin seeds. For those who cannot find a table inside there are hundreds of chairs outside. The largest tea-house in Chengtu will serve 6,000 customers a day.

There are many thousands of Chinese in Canada. They drink a lot of tea in their homes, stores and clubs. We have never heard of a Chinese in Canada charged with being drunk. They are about the least troublesome citizens we have.

OH BABY, IT'S COLD INSIDE, TOO!

Ad Alley Oop!

A college professor declares it is only in modern advertising copy that people talk "cliche-ese." Phooie! Get a load of the following conversation overheard at the water cooler only yesterday:

"Good afternoon, Floyd."

"Good afternoon, Bill."

"It's been a vivid, exciting, moving, thrilling, taut, tense, interesting, unforgettable, swiftly paced and enthralling day."

"Raffish too, wasn't it?"

"Yes, we've been having some powerful, compelling, mettlesome, entertaining, vivacious, challenging weather of late."

"What about early?"

"Well, it's not of earlier than you think. The over-all underlying outlook and insight, I venture to say, is simulatingly provocative, and I shouldn't be astonishingly, remarkably, outstandingly, singularly, conspicuously, terribly surprised if it started to snow tonight with candid, epic, eloquent, dramatic, deeply satisfying gusto."

"Think so?"

"Indubitably."

"I found those crisp, brisk, mettlesome wisps of cloud deeply disturbing, myself. And I'm glad to hear you searchingly and convincingly and frankly and outspokenly think it will memorably snow."

"Absolutely and decidely, though of course it may, perhaps, no doubt, in any case, on the other hand, notwithstanding, possibly, like as not in the circumstances, unexpectedly rain, however."

"Let's have something richly rewarding and truly heart-warming on that."

"Where?"

"I know a quaint, subtle, exuberant, hitherto-unknown, out-of-the-way, sincerely gratifying bar on Pitt street, full of lusty, Rabelaisian humour and irresponsible high spirits."

"Is it redolent of full-bodied old-world charm, and the courtly graces of an earlier, more leisurely day, steadfastly immune to the hustle and bustle of our feverish, futile, far-fetched, fearful, frantic so-called civilization? If so, I think I'll go home."

"Good night, Floyd."

"Good night, Bill."

Having Fun With Funnels

(MONTREAL GAZETTE)

One of the mysteries of administration in the Royal Canadian Navy is the mystery of the disappearing maple leaf. Under the new order, maple leaves are to be painted on the funnels of the Navy's ships. But the maple leaves used to be there, until they disappeared.

The original order to put maple leaves on the funnels came in 1944." These leaves were painted prominently, in order that the world might know a Canadian ship, wherever it might be. But in 1946 came the order to blot the leaves out.

No definite statement has been made as to why the leaves were made to disappear. But it is said that it all came about because the Royal Canadian Navy was being called the "Maple Leaf Line." In this way it was being talked of as though it were nothing more than a fleet of cargo or passenger vessels.

But this type of remark does not seem to be so very disturbing. After all, the ships of the Royal Navy have been known for numberless years as the "Grey Funnel Line." And so far from being a term of aspersion or derogation, it has become almost a term of endearment, no more disrespectful than calling an infantryman a Tommy.

It appears however that some naval sensitivities were affected. According to a despatch from The Canadian Press the expression "Maple Leaf Line" was felt to be "cutting." And it was in order that this "most unkindest cut" might be no longer felt that the maple leaves were painted out.

Now, however, they are to go back on again. It is all a rather remarkable performance, and one that shows a sensitiveness to criticism that the administrators of the Royal Canadian Navy have evidently not shown in some other and more important directions.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

At that time Jesus went on the sabbath day through the corn: and his disciples were an hungred, and began to pluck the ears of corn, and to eat. But when the Pharisees saw it, they said unto him, Behold, thy disciples do that which is not lawful to do upon the sabbath day. But he said unto them, Have ye not read what David did, when he was an hungred, and they that were with him; how he entered into the house of God, and did eat the shewbread, which was not lawful for him to eat, neither for them which were with him, but only for the priests? (Matt. 12: 1-4.)

❖ ❖ ❖

And it came to pass, as he went into the house of one of the chief Pharisees to eat bread on the sabbath day, that they watched him. And, behold, there was a certain man before him which had the dropsy. And Jesus answering spake unto the lawyers and Pharisees, saying, Is it lawful to heal on the sabbath day?

And they held their peace. And he took him, and healed him, and let him go; and answered them, saying, Which of you shall have an ass or an ox fallen into a pit, and will not straightway pull him out on the sabbath day? (Luke 14: 1-5.)

❖ ❖ ❖

Thou that makest thy boast of the law, through breaking the law dishonourest thou God? For the name of God is blasphemed among the Gentiles through you, as it is written. (Rom. 2: 23, 24.)

❖ ❖ ❖

Is the law then against the promises of God? God forbid: for if there had been a law given which culd have given life, verily righteousness should have been by the law. (Gal. 3: 21.)

South Africa And The UN

The Union of South Africa has the unenviable distinction of being one of the few governments outside the Soviet bloc unequivocally to flout recomendations of the General Assembly of the UN. Three times in the past three years, the Union of South Africa has ignored the recommendation of the General Assembly that it submit a trusteeship plan for South-West Africa, the former German colony which the Union had governed as a League of Nations mandate since 1920.

Every other mandate which has not achieved actual independence has been placed under the trusteeship system. But the Union of South Africa has not only consistently refused to co-operate in establishing a trusteeship, but this year has gone so far as to refuse even to submit reports on the administration of the territory. In fact, the Pretoria Government has informed the UN that it considers South-West Africa an integral part of the Union.

Whatever the validity of the Union's position, it is clear that it will accept no further suggestions regarding the government of the territory from the UN. Therefore, a resolution has been offered in the Trusteeship Committee, where this whole matter is now being discussed, to ask the World Court to determine the status of South-West Africa and the international obligations of the Union in respect to it.

Once the basic legal question is settled, the General Assembly's recommendation may carry greater weight. In any case there is very little else on this question that the UN can now do.—New York Times.

Scotty Mair Leads Parade Of OHA Scores

TORONTO, Dec. 1 (CP) — Scotty Mair, veteran winger of Toronto Marlboros, still heads the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A scorers. In 15 games, Scotty has sniped 15 goals and clicked for 10 assists for his 25 point total.

Teammates Johnny McCormack, Chuck Blair and Al Buchanan take up the next three positions. Mike Dzuira of Kitchener-Waterloo occupys fifth position. Statistics include games of Nov. 26.

Marlboros' Junior A edition only have one player in the first five. George Armstrong heads the parade with a 39 point total in 18 contests. George has counted 21 goals and 18 assists. Bruce Dale, Hamilton Tigers, heads the senior goalies with an average of 2.72 goals against. Don Lockhart is the top junior netminder with 2.34.

POUND. PROBLEM — Goalie Walter (Turk) Broda, left, has been suspended by Managing Director Conn Smythe of the Toronto Maple Leafs. "We're not running a fat man's team," said Smythe, ordering Broda to cut his weight from 197 to 190. Gil Mayer, right, 128-pound netminder, has been called up from Pittsburgh to take over big Turk's chores. Smythe also has bought another goalie, Al Rollins, from Cleveland.

Football Squad Calls Off Strike

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 1 (AP) —The San Francisco 49ers professional football squad today called off a threatened strike.

A team spokesman said the 32 players decided their obligation to fans who want to seee them play New York Yankees here Sunday was more important than their demand for a $500 bonus a player for the game. Sunday's affair is a semi-final playoff in the all-America conference.

Earlier, team captain Norman Standlee, 245-pound fullback and one-time Stanford great, and halfback Len Esmont, former Fordham flash, speaking as "elder spokesmen," said the men would not show up for the game unless they were promised the bonus.

Tony Morabito, one of the club owners, said nothing doing. He told the 49ers to turn out for practice this morning or the season would be over as far as they were concerned.

The squad of 32 went into a huddle Wednesday night. They came out of it at midnight with the announcement there would be no strike. Their spokesman handed out a statement saying:

"It is the unanimous decision of the team that our first and most important loyalty is to the fans who have supported us so loyally. We feel the same obligation to the coaching staff."

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC PERDUE, Sports Editor.

Starting their second month of play this semester, the Girls' Basketball League resumes with a double-header tomorrow evening in the YWCA gymnasium. Neill's tangle with the Electrics at 8.15 sharp, followed by Black's against the senior Nurses. No cancellation of games allowed in this loop, and late starts mean shorter periods of play. The cage lasses are serving up some keen action these weeks and the public is invited to view the contests. Hilly Yudin's LOBA entry, Towne Togs, in a district circuit is coming along okay and will probably see scheduled action within a few weeks. The local league has a Christmas holiday from Dec. 17 to Jan. 6.

* * * * * *

Marines "A" intermediate basketeers, the male variety, plan an exhibition joust at the Collegiate on Dec. 10 against New York Barons, pretty much the same classy crew which has been coming here the past several years. Other exhibitions on tap soon, too, including home and home frays with Queen's. The Marines get a bye into provincial playdowns in March. No intermediate "B" Marines this winter, though some other "B" team may organize. Early in January, a four-team City Cage League will be organized from players now in the "Y" house circuit. Yeah, it won't be long till the men basketballers are in action on various fronts.

Legion Plays Petes

Hockey tidbit of the season so far is listed for tomorrow evening at 8.30 in Civic Arena when the Legionnaires and Petes tangle in OHA senior "B" competition. A scheduled game, and a win for the Petes—who recently beat Legion in an exhibition—would put 'em in a top-place tie with Belleville and Legionnaires. A loss for the Foley flock would put them back a fair piece from the leaders. Rivalry between the local senior "B" squads is plenty keen, and a grand hockey game should result when the puck is dropped here tomorrow night. We have no hesitation in recommending this scrap to city and district hockey followers.

* * * * * *

Not a bad exhibition puck tilt at all at the arena last gloaming. The senior "B" Petes won it 10-6 from the junior "B" Oddfellows, as well they might. In fact, the kids gave them quite a contest most of the way. True, Ray Harding wasn't in goal—and he'd have stopped a few of those that counted—and Honey Tompkins was an absentee, but nevertheless the youngsters kept their older brethren hustling to garner the victory by that margin. The Petes didn't rough it up at all, taking it easy for a good workout. At full strength and really turning it on, they'd naturally win handily. But 'twas a good drill for both teams.

IOOF-ers Look Good

Bun Kingdon's IOOF-ers are coming along okay. They looked quite good last eve, and we liked the work of Turner up front especially, with Floyd good most of the way, and Red Wasson turning aside quite a few hot stabs in his twine teepee. Others caught the eye at times, too. Only the next of kin attended, the fans being fed up on exhibitions when the real contests are just starting to come up. Nothing lined up yet on a junior "B" group, though some action may come at the OHA annual meeting this week-end in Toronto. Frank Buckland has been returned ot the OHA executive by acclamation, and we extend congrats.

Bill Morewood has been elected president of the local Harriers Club, with D. McNeil and C. Chapman vice-prexies, and Jim Flowers the secretary-treasurer. Morewood is coach, too, being prominent in track and field in England—sprint champ of the north counties—as well as coach in Montreal and Fort William, where he was also interested in boxing and judo. Winter club plans have been made with new events listed, including the 440-yard run, the 600, the 1,000, a mile race, a two-miler and a mile relay. Staged late in January and February. A club meeting next Wednesday at eight p.m. in the "Y", open to all interested in track and field, when a movie on the sport will be shown. Training session starts at the "Y" early in the new year.

Spitfires Paste Galt Hawks In 9-2 Triumph

By The Canadian Press.

Talk of potential Ontario Hockey Association Junior A champions so far this season has been concerned mostly with the probability of Toronto Marlboros walking away with the honors.

Last night another team came in for consideration. Windsor Spitfires came through with their second victory in two nights over Galt Black Hawks to draw to within five points of the top-rung Marlboro club. The Spitfires pasted Galt 9-2, following up a 13-3 decision Tuesday night. Both Spitfires and Marlboros have played 18 games and the next game between the two clubs should give some inkling of what lies at the end of the OHA junior A trail.

In the only other game last night, Barrie Flyers consolidated their hold on fifth place by trouncing the hapless Stratford Kroehlers 6-1.

At Windsor, Glen Skov practically settled the issue himself, rapping in four counters. Martin Zorica opened the scoring early in the initial frame. Joe Godfrey evened it up for Galt and the first period ended at a 1-1 deadlock.

Busy Time

Jack Bailey and Vic Howe counted two more in the Windsor cause in the middle session without a Galt reply. Pete Conacher finally flashed the light for the Black Hawks early in the final period. Windsor took over then and pumped home six tallies. Skov collecting four of them. Erwin Grosse and Earl Reibel netted the others.

In the game at Barrie, the Flyers and Stratford Kroehlers battled through a scoreless first period. Barrie clicked for two in the middle frame and held Stratford to a single. Rich Hogg tallied his first of two and John Bobenich rapped in the other. Earle Clements clicked for the Kroehlers.

Barrie opened up in the final stanza, popping in four light flashers. Real Chevrelis was the sniper for two of them, Hogg picked up his second, and Enso Zanatta notched the other.

Hockey's Big Seven

By The Canadian Press.

Ted Lindsay of Detroit Red Wings today retains a five-point lead over teammate Sid Abel of the National Hockey League's individual scoring list. Lindsay counted another goal last night to boost his point total to 28 for 12 goals and 16 assists. Doug Bentley of Chicago holds down third scoring spot with 22 points, one behind Abel. The league's top goal getter, Maurice Richard, slid back a notch in a fourth place tie with Detroit's Gordie Howe, each with 20 points John Peirson, Boston, and Roy Conacher, Chicago, are trailing Richard and Howe by two points.

Remember When—

By The Canadian Press .....

New York State Athletic Commission ruled 10 years ago today that a fighter could not hold the boxing title in more than one weight division at a time. The change was made as a result of confusion after Henry Armstrong of St. Louis, Mo., fought his way to championships of the featherweight, lightweight and welterweight divisions at the same time.

Indians Edge Cleveland 6-5

By The Canadian Press.

Springfield Indians ended the American Hockey League's longest unbeaten streak of the season Wednesday night when they defeated Cleveland Barons 6-5.

The Barons previously had gone unbeaten in their last 13 starts. They have dropped only three games this year and head the league's western division by seven points.

Meanwhile New Haven Ramblers replaced Providence Reds atop the eastern section with a 2-1 decision over Buffalo Bisons while the Reds were beaten 5-1 by the lowly Hershey Bears.

Indianapolis Capitals drubbed Cincinnati Mohawks 6-2 in the final game of the night.

Springfield stopped the Barons with two last period counters only 11 seconds apart. Ed Prokop scored the first at 8:21 and Harry Pidhirny the second at 8:32.

Pidhirny led the Springfield attack with a pair of goals while Prokop, Bill Gooden, Garey Gordon and Les Brennan fired the others.

Hy Buller, Steve Wochy, Harry Taylor, Pete Leswick and Joe Conn counted for Cleveland.

Jean Paul Denis' goal at 10:31 of the final frame gave New Haven their narrow verdict over the Bisons.

Petes Beat Juniors, 10-6 In Exhibition Tussle

The Petes defeated the Oddfellows 10-6 in a fair exhibition puck tussle before a slim crowd at Civic Arena last night. The senior "B" squad had a 4-2 edge on their junior "B" opponents the first frame and outscored them 4-2 again in the third after a 2-all middle heat. But six penalties were handed out in the clean fray four going to the youngsters.

The winners were minus goalie Ray Harding and Honey Tompkins, while the IOOF crew used two goalies for the practise contest. All the juniors worked hard with Turner turning in a nice effort to be in on three goals, Floyd also figuring in on three. The rest were spread around. Wasson made a lot of good stops, especially in the second chukker. Conlin was in on four goals for the Petes, with Griffin, Coughlin and West in on three each.

IOOF—Goal, Hehn; defence, Millar and Fennell; centre, Turner; wings, Wyatt and Floyd; alternates, Desjardin, B. Mason, R. Mason, Birch, Casey, Baker, Richlark and Wasson.

Petes—Goal, Jones; defence, Leonard and Horton; centre, Coughlin; wings, Collins and Fife; alternates, West, Garvey, Creighton, Griffin, Mortimer, McMaster, Jopling, Conlin and Loveless.

Lowly New York Rangers Crush Canadiens By 5-2

By HARRY ECCLES
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Montreal Canadiens' drive towards the top rung of the National Hockey League suffered a sad setback Wednesday night. The Canadiens lost 5-2 to the lowly New York Rangers, while the league-leading Detroit Red Wings got back on the victory trail with a 3-0 victory over Boston Bruins.

That leaves Detroit with a seven-point lead over the Canadiens. Chicago and Toronto, tied for third, were idle, while Rangers took over fifth place again by a single point over the rail-end Bruins.

Tonight the Wings play at Toronto, where the Leafs have been paying more attention to the weighing scales than the scoring percentages since Managing Director Conn Smythe put the blast on overweight players. Another game has the Bruins at Chicago against Charlie Conacher's hot-shot Black Hawks.

It was Rookie Jean Paul Lamicande, scoring a pair of goals, who led the Rangers to victory over the Canadiens at New York The 26-year-old defenceman scored in the second and third periods. Centre Don Raleigh reflected Freddie Shero's shot for another goal, and Eddie Slowinski and Alex Kaleta scored the others. Cal Mackey and Kenny Mosdell were the Canadien goalgetters.

Gets 3rd Shutout

At Detroit the Wings' goalie Harry Lumley scored his third shut-out of the season. It was Detroit's first wn after two bad losses last weekend, but t was a hard defensive fight all the way as the Bruins showed plenty of fight. Ted Lindsay scored the first goal after 12 minutes of the second period, and Jimmy Peters got the second shortly after. Sid Abel scored the last in the final period. The Bruins opened up wide in the last frame but could-not beat Lumley.

Gil Mayer, late of the Pittsburgh Hornets, will be in goal for Toronto tonight against Detroit. Mayer is the "short one" of a famous three Toronto goalies —a short one, a fat one and a tall, skinny one.

Those were the descriptsons applied Wednesday by Smythe as he surveyed the situation following his edict of Tuesday. The "short one," Mayer, native of Ottawa, stands five foot six and weighs only 128 pounds stripped.

Gets Rollins

"The tall, skinny one," is Al Rollins, six feet two, weight 185, pucchastd by Leafs Wednesday from Cleveland Barons of the AHL. Rollins arrives today at Toronto. In return Cleveland gets "cash in five figures," plus centreman Bobby Dawes immediately and three more players, including a goalie, next spring.

And the "fat one" is the fabulous Turk Broda from Brandon, Man., who was benched until he cuts his 197 pounds down to 190. For the first time in his long and brilliant NHL career, starting in the 1937-38 season, Turk is sitting on the sidelines. He was absent with the Canadian Army overseas but apart from his military service never missed a Leaf game.

Making Progress

Sweating it out at the YMCA with the four other Leaf players who came under Smythe's attack, Broda is making progress. Broda was 197 pounds and told to get down to 190 by Saturday noon. Last check showed he was down to 193.

Sid Smith has already rea[ch]ed his objective, down from 183 to 180. Harry Watson is down from 205 to 201, and has to make 200. Garth Boesch has reduced from 195 to 193, and needs to take off another pound. Vic Lynn has shrunk from 189 to 184 and has to make 182.

Canada Direct Chalks Up Straight-Heat Victory

TORONTO, Dec. 1—Canada Direct won Wednesday's harness racing feature at Dufferin Park, scoring handily in each heat for owner Mert Storey of Peterborough. Whitney Bars and Benny Grattan divided place and show.

Royal Mac led the field in the first, a slow class trot, after closely following the early pace of Preakwin. Flying Cadet, a fast but unsteady fellow, probably had the most speed, but was handicapped by early breaks and finished third.

Lew James' buggy rode behind Pine Ridge Louie, property of the Pine Ridge Stables of London, to take the second in easy fashion for his third and fourth straight win of the meeting. Ainslie, owned by W. F. Dee, Detroit, made up a lot of ground in each dash to be second, with the show divided.

James drove another heat winner in the third, getting Jimelyn home early enough in the first dash. Tru W. A. was second and Three G. third. The longer 1 1/16 mile dash went to Three G, the favored Jimelyn tiring badly in the slow going during the last sixteenth.

A popular win was second in the fourth, a trot, when the veteran Rochester, N.Y., driver Al Colton got his Wesley Hanover up to win a close one over Calitore and Linna Lee. The second dash again found the Rochesterian the best, Colton chalking up his fourth straight win with this horse.

Fifth Race—Classified pace, purse $300; first heat 6½ furlongs, second heat one mile:

Canada Direct (Hillock)	1	1
Benny Grattan (Giguere)	2	3
Whitney Bars (Niles)	3	2
Walworth (L. James)	5	4
W. J. Abbe (McLean)	4	6
Dillon Flicka (Harvey)	6	5
T. St. Charles (Champion)	7	7
Western Front (Tolhurst)	8	8

Times: 6½ furlongs, 1:52 2/5; one mile, 2:23.

Curling News

And the men's schedule rolls merrily along—112 curlers tossed stones up and down those seven sheets of ice from 7 p.m. until 11.30 p.m. Some of the games were good and some one-sided. The pick of the early draw were the Doughty-Williamson on ice 7, the Selkirk-K. Hamley on ice 6, and the Dr. D. W. Clark-Harvey game on ice 4.

Tonight a different group of 112 curlers take the ice—and so it goes on night after night.

We noticed three chartered members of the hot-stove league were in attendance last evening. Maybe this important body will be heard from soon.

City Carpetball

Schedule for the week of December 5 is:

St. Georges 2 vs. Glens 10.
Legion 7 vs. Legion 6.
LOL 8 vs. Quakers 4.
Legion 5 vs. Treasurers 9.
Big Bens 1 vs. SOE 3.

That postponed game was played and those Quakermen must have been using some of their "Full-O-Pep" product as they took the Anglicans into camp in the first game 14-6 and were leading going into the 10-end of the second game, but lost it 8-10 to the veterans from the south-end.

The Glens entertained the Bakers; but the Bakers threw so much flour around the Glens never did get out of their foxholes, and so lost the offensive. The Legion 6 finished on top in both encounters, 11-9 and 15-5.

The Treasurers visited the "Old Citadel" and the Sons were surprised by the tactics used. After leading in the first game 8-0 in the fourth frame they had to be satisfied with a draw, 10-10; in the second the visitors used their hose with a vengeance and swept to a 19-4 victory. The moral is that you must use the hose on those Sons.

The Big Bens were guests of the Old Sweats and had their balance wheels balanced to perfection, sweeping both games by scores of 16-5 and 10-8. If they had not built up such a strong lead in the first four frames of the second game they could have lost it just as easily, as they never scored after the seventh end.

King Billie and his merry men played host to the Anglicans at the washrack and won the first game, 12-10, after a swell battle, and had to be content with a 7-7 draw in the second game, although the Anglicans almost went ahead in the last frame. Two swell games.

The Posties were at home to the Quakers. And the Quakermen had another meal of "Full-O-Pep" and won 18-7 in the first game; but effects of that energy product wore off and they took the small end of a 18-9 score.

Keep pushing your draw tickets as money and stubs must be turned in at the Legion Hall, Wednesday, Dec. 14, at 7.30 p.m.

No more entry fees reported also some skips have not turned in their teams' names, addresses and telephone numbers.

Here And There In Sports . . .

By The Canadian Press

Pitcher Don Newcombe of Brooklyn Dodgers and outfielder Roy Sievers of St. Louis Browns were named the outstanding rookies of the 1949 baseball season by the Baseball Writers' Association of America at New York.

Two 24-man committees took part in the voting. Each committee member was allowed to name only one man. The National League writers picked Newcombe almost unanimously, giving him 21 of the 24 votes.

Sievers received the support of 10 of the American League writers to double the total of Philadelphia Athletics' Alex Kellner, his nearest pursuer.

Naming the No. 1 rookies of each league represented a change in the annual balloting. Previously only one rookie was chosen for both circuits. Alvin Dark, Boston Braves' shortstop, won it last year and Jackie Robinson, Brooklyn's second base star, was chosen in 1947.

Although he wasn't brought up from their Montreal Royals farm club until May 25, the 23-year-old Newcombe won 17 and lost eight for the Dodgers to rank as their best pitcher.

The heavy-hitting Sievers earned the award by clubbing out a batting average of .306 in 140 games. His extra base hits included 28 doubles, one triple and 16 home runs.

Ike Williams was suspended on Wednesday by the National Boxing Association, but the lightweight champion said he's too busy preparing for his title bout with Chicago's Freddy Dawson on Monday night to worry about it.

Williams took time out at Philadelphia from the increasingly tough problem of making the weight for the Dawson fight to say the announcement from Washington by the NBA that he was suspended was "quite a surprise."

He was suspended at the request of the California State Athletic Commission. The State Commission said it would not reinstate the champion until he honors a contract for a fight with Bernard Docusen or reimburses the Los Angeles Olympic Club for $2,000 spent on the proposed contest.

While the suspension means that Williams will not be able to box under NBA auspices it won't have any effect on the title fight next week. The NBA covers every State except New York.

Williams brushed the whole thing off with a terse statement that he had to call off the Docusen bout because of an injured hand and is willing to meet the New Orleans fighter any time Los Angeles promoter Babe McCoy offers a date.

Tom Casey, starry halfback with Hamilton Wildcats of the Big Four Football Union, is probably the most wanted man in the country these days.

Not only is almost every football club reported to be after the United States import, but already he's been approached by executives of Brantford Red Sox who want him to line up with them in the Intercounty Senior Baseball League next summer.

It is likely "if he is around then," that he will do just that to get in shape for next grid season. He plays in the outfield.

Asked about reports that he had decided to go to Montreal and play for the Alouettes the popular Negro said at Hamilton: "I've heard everything, but this is the first I've heard that—definitely not."

Bill Veeck will be back in major league baseball within six months—and maybe as owner of the Washington Senators, the Milwaukee Journal said Wednesday.

Baseball writer Sam Levy, a close personal friend of Veeck, talked with him Tuesday night.

"Since I sold the Cleveland club last week, at least six men have approached me to go into business," Levy quoted Veeck as saying.

Asked about Washington, Levy said Veeck laughed.

"You're dodging the question?" Levy inquired.

" 'You know Ol' Will,' " Veeck countered. " 'I'd rather not answer. You know me well enough to know why.' "

In Washington, Senator officials denied such a deal is contemplated.

Probably never in Canada's history has a defeated football team been given the thunderous ovation which greeted Calgary Stampeders on their return to Calgary on Wednesday.

A crowd estimated as high as 30,000 persons lined both sides of Calgary's main thoroughfares and plugged the station area long before the Stampeders' train arrived.

The team, which lost 28-15 to Montreal Alouettes in Saturday's Grey Cup final, was welcomed bw cheering thousands, by planes roaring overhead, by honking auto horns, blasting train whistles and four bands.

Calgary declared a half-holiday as the team toured the city in open automobiles and then returned to the station for an hour long "welcome home" demonstration.

Losing Calgary Stampeders Given Heroes Welcome By 30,000

CALGARY, Dec. 1 (CP)—Normie China Clipper) Kwong said it this way: "I'd hate to see what would have happened if we had won."

The chunky little backfielder for the Calgary Stampeders was able to speak, but many of the team, then called to say a few words to the welcoming thousands stood speechless before the tumultuous welcome.

Keynote to the reception by an estimated 30,000 Calgarians was a huge sign strung out across the station entrance: "Great in Victory, Greater in Defeat."

The team that lost in the Dominion football final to Montreal Alouettes was probably given the most overwhelming home-coming that any defeated team has received in the history of Canadian sport.

Business, traffic . . . literally everything stopped in Calgary today. It was "Our boys are back home"

The fans who went to Toronto in the Stampeder special put on the same little show that they gave to a dozen other points across Canada. There were drum majorettes, horses and Indians.

Add To Spectacle

Calgary cheered the spectacle and added to it. A half-hour parade through downtown streets — with the Stampeder team riding in open cars like conquering heroes—had a military band, a boys' band, a concert band and an oldtime band following in the football team's wake.

The thousands, who waited in lines that filled both sides of all the main thoroughfares and plugged the station entrance, cheered until tears were seen falling from many eyes. They were cheering for the spirit that has helped in the last two years to make the Grey Cup final the most colorful spectacle in Canadian sport.

Key To City

Deputy Mayor P. N R. Morrison presented Team Captain Paul Rowe with a key to the city. A representative of the school children, who were given the afternoon off, gave the Stamps a special trophy "to make up for the Grey Cup."

The team, after the tour through through the city, returned to the thronging thousands at the station and was introduced individually.

The Stamps' two towering Negro ends—Ezzert (Sugarfoot) Anderson and Woody Strode—gave a rendition of "Hey Bop a re Bop" and a loudspeaker setup carried their voices among the thousands gathered on outlying streets.

Sugarfoot, who received with Coach Les Lear, the most thunderous ovation said, "I've played football for 11 years and I've never seen anything like it."

MINOR HOCKEY

In a rough and tough battle at the arena last night which Referees Pete Nigh and Dick Ouimet did well to keep in hand, Clapper juveniles took St. Peter's 7-1.

Clapper's, the heavier and faster team, took command of the game early in the second period. St. Pete's single tally was the first goal of the game. St. Pete's showed plenty of spirit but Clapper's backchecking was tight and kept them from getting in scoring position.

Saunders looked good for Clapper's and Carravaggie for St. Pete's. Clapper's goals were scored by Seabrooke, Saunders, Douglas, Mongraw, Heffernan, Richardson and Sullivan.

Play was stopped at one instance through the game when a St. Pete's boy was shaken up in a collision in centre ice zone. He was uninjured.

In a one-sided fray Trojans took Keene 7-1. Trojans in their bright new black and scarlet sweaters and stockings looked good on the ice. Keene players are improving and, as they have had the least time on ice this season of any teams, are not completely organized. These boys from down the line show lots of spirit and fight. Renwick got the lone goal for Keene. For Trojans, Chapman, Griffin, Doris, Patterson, Fgiers go tone each, Lockie tallying two.

All players are reminded to be at the arena at least 10 to 15 minutes before playing time to avoid delaying games and shortening the time on the ice. Week day games start at 5:30, Saturday games at 5:00 sharp.

WHAT IS G. E. DOING?

In the interests of our membership we are publishing the main sections of two letters which our Union, the UE, has recently sent to the Canadian General Electric Company. The following quotations from these letters speak for themselves about the Company's actions in the past two weeks:

FIRST LETTER

"With reference to the meeting between the Executive Officers of Local 524, United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America, Mr. C. R. Sullivan and yourself, held on Thursday afternoon, Nov. 17th. At that meeting you presented three positions of the Company, two of which were, to say the least, surprising to us.

"These three positions were as follows:

1. The Company recognized fully that its contract was with the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America and its Local 524, and that the Company would live up to its contract thereto.
2. That you had received a communication signed by Mr. C. O'Donnell, in which he listed the names of people whom he contended were the rightful officers of Local 524, United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America, and that you were, therefore, somewhat confused as to which party—Mr. O'Donnell's group or the group that you are now meeting with, namely the Executive Officers of Local 524, UE — was the proper group with which you should carry on your contractual relations.
3. That the matter of the check-off funds in terms of whom they were to be paid to was in doubt.

"Let us examine these three positions. First, there can be no doubt in any one's mind as to the parties to the contract; they are, the Canadian General Electric Company, and, in the case of the Peterborough Works, the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers and its Local 524. On that score, we appear to be in agreement and in conformity with the laws of the country.

"On the second point, we frankly cannot understand what the Company presents as confusion in terms of which people should be recognized by the Company.

An interim injunction was issued on November 5th, prohibiting Messrs. Morton, O'Donnell, Murphy, O'Brien and Chiles, presumably the group set out in Mr. O'Donnell's letter, from acting in the name of or on behalf of, or in any capacity representing or purporting to represent the United. Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers and its Local 524.

On November 4th, at about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, you received a letter over the signature of C. S. Jackson, District President, and T. P. Davies, Vice-President of Local 524, in which you were informed that J. G. Morton, K. Chiles, C. O'Donnell, J. Murphy and G. O'Brien had been suspended from all office in Local 524, United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America, and that a new committee had been elected to carry out the administration of the contract on behalf of Local 524 UE.

"In the columns of the press on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, there appeared the statement of Mr. Morton to the effect that he was calling upon workers in CGE to join a new union, called the International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers-CIO.

"On November 7th, 1949, a leaflet was distributed at the Peterborough plant with the names of some nineteen people on it, headed by J. G. Morton, and declaring this to be the Provisional Committee of the new organization, named above. Surely, therefore, as of at least that moment, there could no longer be any doubt or confusion in the minds of the Company as to whether or not Mr. Morton and his group represented Local 524, United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America. They had declared themselves out of Local 524, UE and organizing another union. It should be perfectly clear from that statement of theirs that they could not be representing two unions and that because of your first statement that your contract was with the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America and its Local 524, that these people could no longer represent themselves as officers of Local 524 or authorized to speak in the name of Local 524.

"At the same time, on Monday, November 7th, you received a communication from Local 524, United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America, setting out the names of the new officers, elected at a membership meeting of Local 524 UE on the Sunday night, immediately before.

"This, then, should clear beyond all doubt any confusion in your mind as to which people have the right and authority to represent Local 524, U.E.R. & M.W.A.

"We hesitate to suggest that the apparent confusion of the Company is in fact not confusion but a desire to create confusion in the minds of the workers as to their rights under the contract.

"You have stated that you do not feel that you had sufficient credentials presented by the new officers of Local 524, UE, to satisfy you of their bona fides. May we remind you that in all the past years you have, on receipt of a letter signed by the Secretary of the Local, given recognition to newly elected officers in each of these successive years and have even, during these years, accepted notices of change of officers outside of the annual elections of the Local, merely on the basis of a notification from the Secretary.

"We wonder, therefore, why you now choose to change the procedure and raise these questions with regard to our credentials.

"We wish to make it quite clear that your Company has no right to in any way question or interfere in the operations of the internal affairs of the Local with which you have a bargaining contract. However, out of courtesy and in a spirit of co-operation, we are enclosing herewith a copy of the Constitution of our International Union and of Local 524, which material you seem to think pertinent. In presenting you with this material, we in no ways agree that you have any right to tell us how to interpret our Constitution or to carry out our obligations thereto.

"Thirdly, with regard to the check-off cheque, that too should be a matter in which the Company has no right to have any interest other than to see that the deductions are continued according to the contract and that the cheque which has been made out on the regular date to Local 524, United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America, and, as in the past, be mailed to the then present incumbent Financial Secretary, at the Union Office, 450½ George Street, North, Peterborough. The name of the Financial Secretary is Alex. Seppala, as per the letter sent to you November 7th, on the authority of the membership of Local 524, United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America.

"We must consider any failure on your part to give due recognition to the rights and decisions of the membership of Local 524, United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America as a deliberate and calculated interference in the affairs of the members of this union, and in support of the disruptionist group led by J. G. Morton which is attempting without success to destroy the collective bargaining agency which holds the certification for the employees of CGE, Peterborough Works, at this time.

SECOND LETTER

"It has come to our attention that John G. Morton is the official representative in Canada of the so-called Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers.

"We further have knowledge of the fact that since Nov. 3rd Mr. Morton has been engaged full time on the work of that Union and has spent very few hours at his job at the Peterborough Works.

"In the interests of the employees of CGE, Peterborough Works, and in the interests of honesty and the co-operation you are pledged to in your agreement with the Union we ask the following questions:

1. Is John G. Morton still an employee of C.G.E., Peterborough Works?
2. Does the Company condone an employee being absent regularly on another job for another employer?
3. Has the C.G.E. given leave of absence to Mr. J. G. Morton—
   - (a) For a specified period?
   - (b) For an indefinite period?
4. If leave of absence has been given to Mr. Morton—what reason is given for his leave?

"Mr. Morton is on Union business with another union than the one which holds the contract and the bargaining rights with your Company. The existing agreement between your Company and the United Electrical, Radio & Machine Workers of America and its Local 524, provides for leave of absence to employees elected by or appointed by the bargaining agent, the UE. Mr. Morton doesn't come under that heading.

"The collective agreement also provides under Article 23:

" 'The Company shall not give financial aid to any labour organization within the plants,' yet Mr. Morton has had the run of the plant while at work as have Mr. Murphy, Mr. O'Donnell and most others of the group who proclaim themselves as the Provisional Committee of the so-called International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers.

"We sincerely believe your Company owes an explanation re the above to the employees at C.G.E. Peterborough Works and we await your reply to these important questions."

Canadian General Electric has failed to give a satisfactory answer to these two letters. We can therefore only conclude that CGE is attempting to PROMOTE confusion in its plant, and is not acting in good faith with its employees, or their legal bargaining agent, UE Local 524.

Bank Suggests Trying Out New Formulas

By FORBES RHUDE,
Canadian Press Business Editor.

You would think that if any one followed precedent, and followed it strictly, it would be a bank.

And yet, the Royal Bank of Canada, in its current monthly letter, says, "why follow precedent" and proceeds to give a pep talk on the bold, brave approach to life and living.

One of the most surprising evolutions of our time is in the thinking of business, which includes banks.

Here, for instance, are a few paragraphs out of the Royal's current letter:

"This monthly letter is frankly a plea that we stride into 1950 with our faces forward, instead of backing into it with our eyes on the way things were done in the past.

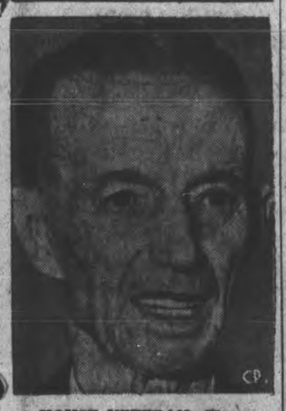
"Our inclination is (we might as well admit that we are lazy-minded people) to follow precedent, to do what's been done.

Must Look Ahead

"But lots of people in the past decided not to, and that's why living is so much better today than it was 40, or 4,000 years ago. That's why we have gadgets and jigs to make work easier, books to make learning easier, motorships and automobiles and planes to make it easier to go places, and electric calculating machines to add up the cost and the profit of it all.

"It is amazing to the observant person to see what reverence we give to a well-established precedent. Many of our cities are snarled in traffic jams today because we are following crooked paths made by cows centuries ago.

"There remains, fortunately for the human race, a tiny creative minority that refuses to turn aside from the task of building usefully.



"Precedent-following can be a snare and a handicap, but—and this is an important but—precedents are not to be ignored, only use them as stepping stones to walk on, not as mill stones to hang around yourneck."

Ask Store Re-Opened

VANCOUVER, Dec. 1—(CP)—Suggestion that the city council re-open an all-night liquor store here was tabled Tuesday night for committee study. Ald. Archie F. Proctor asked council to apply for permission to re-open the store, closed since before the war. He said it would curb the number of liquor infractions which have increased since the "owl service" was suspended.

EASY LANDING

The longest concrete airplane run way in the world, 10,000 feet long and 300 feet wide, is at Patterson Field, Dayton, Ohio.

HOUSE VETERAN—The age of Thomas Langton (Tommy) Church, member of parliament for Toronto Broadview since 1921, is anystery—he doesn't list it in the Parliamentary Guide. But Mr. Church's love of things British is an open book; it's still the British Empire (not Commonwealth) as far as he's concerned. He's often remarked he's the only "real Conservative" left in Canada. Mr. Church was mayor of Toronto from 1915 to 1921.

GRIM REMINDER—Art Smith, Progressive Conservative member of parliament for Calgary West, grimaces as he displays the "Calgary coffin" placed on his Commons desk as a reminder of Montreal Alouettes' 28-15 victory over Calgary Stampeders in the Dominion football final.

Says 1950 Good Year

MONTREAL, Dec. 1—(CP) — Ronald A. McEacheran, editor of The Financial Post, said in an address Wednesday that "1950 will be a good year, but not as good as the fabulously good 1949." Canada's gross national income will probably decline from $16,000,000,000 in 1949 to approximately $14,500,000,000, he told the Montreal Advertising and Sales Executive Club.

B.C. Singer Dies

VICTORIA, B.C., Dec. 1 (CP) —Mrs. Inabell Johnson, 58, widely-known singer, died here Tuesday. Born in Ontario, Mrs. Johnson went to Winnipeg as a child and spent most of her life there. A mezzo-soprano, she spent much time during the second world war singing for Canadian troops both in Canada and overseas.

To Appear In Court

QUEBEC, Dec. 1—(CP)—Mrs. Arthur Pitre, important Crown witness in the Sault Au Cochon Airlines disaster, Wednesday was ordered to appear before Judge Achile Pettigrew Dec. 6 in connection with her request for a speedy trial. The 41-year-old woman, charged with attempted suicide, has been seeking trial without jury.

Getting Things Done

WILDWOOD, Alta. — (CP) — Wildwood residents, stymied in several attempts to get a 30-mile-long road built to Maythorpe, got together and built it themselves. They collected $2,000 to add to $3,000 given by the province and built the road with their own men and equipment.

Drama Born Here

GRANVILLE FERRY, N. S. — (CP)—The 343rd anniversary of the birth of drama in North America was marked here recently. "The Theatre of Neptune," written by French poet-historian Marc Lescarbot, was produced at Port Royal in 1606.

Have Never Turned Child Away From Sick Children's Hospital

By A. E. FULFORD

TORONTO, Dec. 2—(CP)—Canada's best-known hospital is an over-crowded, out-dated fire hazard, a rabbit-warren of a building tucked into a narrow strip of land on Toronto's busy College Street. Known around the world for the achievements of its doctors, the Hospital For Sick Children is housed in an ancient mass of brick and stone. Its wards and corridors are crowded with patients, staff, filing cabinets and a corps of workmen trying to keep it patched together.

Happily, a gleaming modern hospital is taking shape a block away—a $12,000,000 building quipped to handle the 12,000 patients who come to "Sick Kids" each year. A third of them come from outside Toronto, many distant parts of Canada.

The new building was started three years ago after $7,500,000 had been raised. Costs rose and now $4,000,000 is needed to complete it. The money is being sought from well-wishers across the Dominion.

Expected to open next July, the new building will be the most modern on the continent. Bed capacity of 320 will be doubled and equipment for research will be increased greatly.

Rooms Available

Rooms will be available for the 800 children who are on a waiting list for necessary but not urgent attention. No urgent case is refused now—none has been turned away in the hospitals 74-year history—but many must be put off.

Widely known for its treatment of difficult and rare cases, the hospital does a great deal of its work and cure of every-day conditions.

It makes headline news with blue-baby operations and carries on quietly with operations for such things as hare lip, crossed eyes, cleft plate, bow legs, club feet and deafness.

Hospital researchers are at work on spectacular jobs such as poliomyelitis and cancer and find time for the study of the effect of school meals on physical and mental development of the child.

More than 100 doctors, all specialists in children's diseases and deformities, give about 50,000 hours each year to public-ward patients. Some 75 per cent of Canadian child specialists and many from other countries were trained at "sick kids."

Nine in 10 patients are from homes of moderate or poor circumstances. Their treatment is aided by endowments, notably that to the late John Ross Robertson through sale of the Toronto Telegram. However, these funds can be used only for treatment and are not available for construction.

R. C. Vaughan Writes Farewell Message

MONTREAL, Dec. 1 (CP)—R. C. Vaughan, who retires Dec. 31 as chairman and president of Canadian National Railways, told "my fellow employees" in a farewell message released Wednesday that railways "are the backbone of the nation's strength."

The message is published in the current issue of the Canadian National Magazine.

Urging the employees to hold to their faith and enthusiasm as good railroaders, Mr. Vaughan said "the railways are still the biggest industry in Canada" and are "largely responsible" for Canada's development.

Mr. Vaughan paid tribute to Donald Gordon who will be his successor, as a man with "a national and an international reputation for ability and courage which is known to all of you."

"She Was Only Wife Of A Dog Of Cham" Ruthless Barbarism In New Soviet Albania

(Ed. Note: An American intelligence officer and a British journalist in Greece stumbled over the Albanian border and talked with a village chief. The The chief's story, we believe will be of special interest because of the absence in recent months of any first-hand, authentic accounts of conditions in Albania.)

(Exclusive Report From Athens by Philip Deane to London Observer and Peterborough Examiner)

At eight o'clock on a November evening, I left my inn at Delvinaki, in the company of a major serving with the American Intelligence in Greece, to go and reconnoitre the Greek-Albanian border. We drove off alone—having evaded our driver and the usual escort—because the Greek military authorities did not know of our venture. If they had known they would have stopped us.

The major drove the car at breakneck speed towards the Kakavia frontier post, and I hung on, hoping that the next pothole would not overturn the car and that we would not run into a mine or one of the small guerrilla bands that occasionally roam in that area.

Less than a mile from the frontier post, we hid our jeep under a clump of trees, and set off on foot towards the border—with a map and compass. The going was rough, but luckily the major had studied the terrain well, and occasionaly we hit on a path, a faint line of trampled down gorse, the guerrilla's habitual night walk.

Every now and then we stopped and listened. We ran three different types of danger—Greek army patrols, guerrilla fugitives and land mines. We avoided all three, and achieved what we had set out to do; we proved that it is impossible to seal the Greek border, because of the terrain over which it runs. Twice we heard patrols, but each time there was a convenient little ravine or a well-positioned bunch of gorso bushes to hide in.

Come Upon Village

Around two o'clock in the morning we entered the thick chestnut forest that covers both sides of the frontier. There our troubles began. Progress through the undergrowth became so laborious that we lost all sense of distance. The thorny bushes seemed to pull at our legs, and each yard seemed like a furlong. We must have seriously misjudged the distance we covered, for as the sky became lighter with the dawn, we emerged from the the forest in full sight of a village.

It was just like the Greek villages we'd seen, only its houses were not burnt, and there were roofs on them and panes in their windows. We retreated hastily into the wood, and took turns at watching the village waking through the major's powerful glasses.

Soon, a man started towards us, leading a small donkey, and carrying an axe. By now we knew that we were outside the village of Kokovie, half a mile inside the Albanian border. We had obviously underestimated our speed through the forest We were nearer the border than he was near his village, and if he tried to summon help we could be safely back inside Greece before Albanian troops could reach the forest. So we waited.

Peasant Appears

I'm afraid we must have startled the peasant when we suddenly appeared from behind the bushes, just as he entered the wood. He made no attempt to use his axe or shout, and just stood there speechless, playing nervously with the bridle of his donkey. We spoke Greek to him and he didn't answer, and then I tried Rumanian. There are some Vlachs in that area, who originally came southwest from the Danube valley, and who speak Rumanian.

He beamed when he heard his tongue spoken, and he launched into a long series of greetings which I had some difficulty in following. The major asked some questions and I translated them, but our friend was not very sure of his answers.

Then the major offered him a packet of Camels and asked me to promise him a whole carton if he brought the village chief to meet us on top of a hill overlooking our present position. That hilltop had many advantages. It was right on the frontier, and it commanded a view of the village, so we could see whether the chief —if he came — would bring any of his henchmen.

Gold Bribe For Chief

An an added incentive, we told the peasant to promise the village chief one gold sovereign if he came to see us. We then climbed to the hilltop and waited. Soon we saw our friend an another man trudging towards us. They both appeared to be unarmed We could see no telephone lines leading to the village, and because our position commanded the whole area, we felt quite certain of avoiding trouble, should it come from any other direction than the village.

When the two reached us, we saw that the second man wore a uniform. He had an Italian visored cap, a German officer's tunic and breeches, and fancy black knee-boots. He was badly in need of a shave—the three-day stubble made his yellow features still sallower. His eyebrows nearly met across the bridge of his big nose, and his long hair formed a small roll at the back of his neck

This personage started telling us in bad Greek what exactly he thought of us for violating the Albanian border. We apologised profusely, and the major expressed the admiration he had always felt for Albania, in spite of all the friction there had been lately. He begged the chief to keep our visit quiet, lest we should get into trouble with our superiors. This the Albanian officer seemed to understand full well, and he smiled at us.

Then the American major produced a colossal hip flask, and offered it as a gesture of friendship. We all drank the whisky and we also tasted some of the "Tsipouro", the native spirit, which the peasant carried in a quart leather bottle. The two Albanians shared our breakfast of Spam and biscuits, and after we had handed over one gold sovereign, and made the promise of another, the village chief decided to talk. This is his story which was told under the influence of the major's subtly-admiring questions and the whisky, which made a formidable mixture with the "tsipouro".

Had Pick of Women

His name was Vassili Nastos. He was a warrant officer in charge of the Frontier post at Kakavia, and he was security officer of the area. He belonged, he proudly declared, to the D.M.P. (the Albanian version of the M. V. D. Russian secret police) and he was a party member. Communist party members, especially those in the D. M. P., lived well, he said. They had good pay, were clothed, and had authority. No, they were not lonely; they had the pick of the women in the villages. These women were "all right when they were not over fifteen".

What about their parents? We said we would welcome a hint from an expert such as he. He took another pull at the whisky flask and told us. The other day he had seen, in a village he was visiting, the daughter of Mustapha Mustapha Shakir, "a dog of a Cham", (A Cham is an inhabitant of Chamuria, southern Albania) whom the Greek rebels brought in and who had since escaped. She was only twelve, but well developed. He took her into the woods.

The girl was ill afterwards, and her mother went to the D. M. P. headquarters to see him, and she made a scene. She was only the wife of a dog of a Cham, you understand—and he drained the last of the whisky—so he hit her over the mouth and then shut her up in a cell with eleven men "She would at least have fun".

And the girl? He didn't know what happened to her; he had left that village.

Bound To Improve

How about food in the villages? Well, there wasn't much. Still a top manual worker received two lbs. of bread a day, two teaspoonsful of sugar every three days and six ounces of oil a month. He also got 100 Leks (Albanian currency unit) a day. What could he buy with the 100 leks? Not much, the merchants preferred barter and overcharged when one offered leks. They wanted 500 leks for a cup of coffee. Still, things were bound to improve, Vassili thought.

The big estates were being broken up. Dinne Yanno, who had 9,000 sheep, was forced to "disgorge" his ill-gotten gains. He had to give up all but 100 sheep, 20 goats, five mules and one mare. His family had been putting on airs for years. Now they would have to work, and old Dinne would have to stop having children—he'd had 20 by his four wives. Who got the sheep of Dinne Yanno? Well, they were taken north and it was not known who exactly got them. Still, Yanno and men like him and the farmers who just would not see the advantages of the regime, would have to do their bit.

Progressive taxation had been enforced. The fields of everyone were assessed, and every farmer paid taxes for each quarter acre he owned. For each quarter acre the farmers had to pay 55 lbs. of maize, 32 lbs. of beans, 8 lbs. of meat, 80 eggs and 230 lbs. of rice a year. Party members, of course, were exempt.

Dd all the rest pay? Well, this year there had been drought, and many hadn't made enough to pay their taxes.

Jail For Tax Defaulters

What happeed to them? Their fields were confiscated and they went to jail.

To whom were the fields given? To Party? No, no, the Party didn't steal land, the fields just lay fallow until the owner found money to pay for the taxes.

How could he find money in jail? Oh, they had hoards, these people, let them pay.

Did he have much trouble with the Greek-speaking population? No, not after he sent the village's two Christian priests to jail for eight and five years respectively.

How about the Greek teacher? Oh, there wasn't one.

But weren't most of the children of the villages near the border Greek? Yes, All the more reason for them to go to school and learn about the New Albania, the Five Year Plan and the great Russian allies.

Among other things, during the course of our long conversation, the warrant officer mentioned that fact that there was no doctor within a day's drive from the frontier, that there were no telephone or telegraph facilities, and that generally things were not too good.

All this, he said, was that renegade Tito's fault. Tito even sent troops in, Albanian traitors, from Djakovica, and he was harbouring Verlaci, that notorious turncoat who was willing to destroy the Albanian Soviet Republic for his own perfidious ends. His raids were getting worse all the time, and security work was getting progressively more difficult.

But suppose—we asked—Tito and Verlaci succeeded, what would happen to Vassili. We could not believe—we added — that a man of his ability would allow himself to risk his neck for a party that was at such a disadvantage, now that Tito had turned against Albanian.

There was no danger, he said, none at all. But — and here he gave a sly, vinous chuckle—"the devil has many legs and he might easily break one". In such an eventuality, he, Vassili, would not be caught. He and his friends in the D. M. P. and the men who ran it—very shrewd men, veritable foxes—had it all arranged.

Why, they would cut a few throats, change a few high-ups "you understand who, no names, no packdrill"—and they would join forces with the victors, for what would be the use of destroying the Motherland with futile struggle? Better to live and strive on for the glorification of Albania. Then he asked us for another gold sovereign.

Petition Asks Reducing Of Speed Limit

A petition by the 19 residents of North Monaghan Township bordering Highway 28 was recently sent to the Department of Highways requesting that the 30 mph speed limit be extended to the junction of Highway 7 and 28 near the Kawartha golf course. The 30 mph speed limit now extends to the city limits at Western Ave., and the extension sought is a mile and a quarter.

Twenty children, five years and up, attending the Prince of Wales school, walk along the highway four times each day, the petition explained. The danger of large vehicles travelling at speeds up to 50 mph) increases with the fall of snow making the channel on the highway smaller the petitioners said. Besides the 20 children attending school in Peterborough there are 13 others who play in that area and are not yet school age.

A copy of the petition was also sent to R. G. Perry, General Traffic Manager of the Colonial Coach Lines in Montreal. A letter was received by James Fraser, manager of the Chamber of Commerce and one of the petitioners, from Mr. Perry stating that the lines would co-operate to the full extend by having their vehicles reduce their speed at the junction of the highways. J. J. Lemmon of the local branch told Mr. Fraser Wednesday that all drivers have been notified to slow down in this area.

In reply to the petition to the Department of Highways J. D. Millar, deputy minister, explained that the department had no power to alter the speed limit as set by statute, 50 mph in the open country and 30 mph in all cities, towns, villages and police villages.

Mr. Millar added when the sides of any highway (King's highway, county or township road) are built up to the extent of 50 percent of the frontage for a distance of 300 feet on each side of the highway, or 600 feet on one side of the highway the speed limit automatically becomes 30 mph. The Department of Highways, he said, cannot erect signs indicating a 30-mile an hour speed limit unless these conditions are met.

"I shall be glad to have our men check recent building developments on this portion of Highway 28 and to sign any areas that may have reached the required number of buildings on the frontage. "He wrote Mr. Fraser.

Regarding the children walking on the highway Mr. Millar suggested a sidewalk be build along the highway by the township council. He explained that the Council would receive a 50 percent subsidy on the cost.

Mr. Fraser said Wednesday further requests would be made to the transport operators to slow down on the 1⅛-mile stretch of highway.

Economic Chief Resigns Chairmanship British Post

LONDON, Dec. 1—(CP)—Sir Graham Cunningham, one of the government economic experts recently accused of "partisan" criticisms of the British government in public, Wednesday night resigned the chairmanship of Britain's dollar-exports board.

In his place the board appointed as full-time chairman and chief executive Sir Cecil Weir, 58, former British economic adviser in Germany.

The board's statement announced "with the greatest possible regret" that Sir Graham had "found it necessary to resign," but didn't give a reason for the resignation.

Sir Graham had been chairman of the board since it was established last May.

Under his chairmanship, the Board's activities were mainly directed toward removing some of the disadvantages which British exporters to Canada and the United States had faced. A major step in this direction, taken after two visits to North America by Sir Graham, was the establishment in Canada of the Canadian dollar-sterling trade board.

Its objective, Sir Graham said, was to tackle the North American markets on North American lines, particularly in market research ,advertising and sales promotion.

Rush To Polls Might Deplete Ballot Supply

By HARRY THEOBALD

City Clerk Outram dodged a simple question this morning about the number of ballots he had ordered for next Monday's voting.

"We'll have an ample number," was his evasive reply. That is just a generality. It did not indicate even what percentage of the total number of voters could be supplied with ballots if everybody went to the polls, or 90 per cent of them.

As reported the other day, there are more than 19,000 voters on the new list. The increase over last year is 713.

"Does the city tell the printer to run off 19,000 ballots," Mr. Outram was asked.

"You don't think we would need that many?" Mr. Outram parried . . . "But we'll have ample."

"How about printing 19,000 ballots?"

"You don't think we're going to waste public money like that."

If the municipal electors have a notion of causing a real flurry at the city hall, therefore, it might be effectively accomplished, and resoundingly, by everybody trooping to the polls next Monday and along about 5 p.m. the last reserves of ballots would be gone, and citizens clamoring for the right to vote.

Evidently the printing bill is trimmed a bit cynically and realistically to the approximate number of people who usually report at the municipal polls. If half the number of qualified voters claim their ballots next Monday most people will be satisfied with that fraction of vital interest in the city's affairs and substance.

But, if they trooped out with all hands: wouldn't that be something!

Firemen Seek Raise Of $300

The forty members of the Fire Fighters' Union are asking city council for an increase in salary of $300 each, according to notations on the brief which they have presented, outlining an amended agreement for 1950.

If their request is granted the aggregate would be $12,000. The proposed new salary list with the present salaries in brackets are quoted as follows:

1st Assistant Chief: $3,500 ($3,200); 2nd Assistant Chief $3,300 ($3,000); Captains $3,000 ($2,700); eletrician $3,000 ($2,700); 1st class firemen $2,800 ($2,500); 2nd class firemen $2,700 ($2,400); 3rd class firemen $2,575 ($2,275); 4th class firemen $2,450 ($2,150).

The men are also asking for three weeks holidays with pay for those of at least ten years service.

It is expected that the brief of the firemen will be studied and discussed during December.

Born Without Oesophagus Child Now Healthy, Happy

A little girl in a pink snowsuit played in the wet snow in front of her home at 763 Brown St., on Wednesday afternoon. Her frisky dog romped with her and received many whacks from a small snow shovel the child was wielding with great skill on a snow castle. Her name is Suzanne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Eggleton; she will be three years old on January 7.

There are plenty of three-year-olds in Peterborough playing in front of their homes every day but none of them had such a slim start in the world as Suzanne. She was born without a food pipe (oesophagus) which normally extends the necessary five inches from the throat to the stomach. In its place was a loop or pouch about one and one-half inches long. And food given her was immediately vomited up in unaltered form. Meanwhile her normal stomach action was propelling fluid matter into her lungs by way of the interconnecting windpipe or trachea.

Usually Result in Death

All such cases, which are not so rare as medical records indicate, result in death from starvation and pneumonia caused by congestion in the lungs if an operation is not performed. Death usually results in five to ten days.

Suzanne was rushed to Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto where she was operated on when five days old. An oesophagus was fashioned from the infant's body tissue and sewn into its proper place. To give the new food pipe time to heal before it was used, an opening was made, the day after the operation, into the stomach so that the infant could be fed directly by tube. For 16 days partial feedings were made by mouth and regular feedings were given after that time.

Living in an incubator, except during operating periods, Suzanne was cared for by three special nurses on eight-hour shifts and as her health improved was moved to an open cot, and eventually home.

She was still to have more trouble. In September, 1947, her physician found that a congenital condition necessitated the removal of a few feet of intestines. After these major operations Suzanne is well and happy, her mother said, except for a slight cold in the head.

Suggests City Cut Down On Outdoor Rinks

Peterborough hockey players and skaters will have six less rinks in the city this winter to enjoy their favorite winter sports, if the council adopts recommendations made by Armar Butcher, superintendent of parks. He is proposing to the council that 10 rinks be maintained by this city this year and five by other organizations.

The 10 rinks have been placed throughout the city so as to be most accessible. There will be a hockey and skating rinks at Riverside, the Orphanage grounds on Stewart St. and at Turner Park. Single rinks for both hockey and skating wil be at Inverlea Park, Confederation School, King Edward Park and Hamilton Park. At each rink there will be a caretaker and hut, supplied by the Parks Department.

In addition to the 10 rinks operated by the Parks Department, five rinks will be operated by city schools and factories. The city will help with some minor work such as boards and hose, but will not be responsible for supervision and maintenance. These rinks will be at St. Anne's School, St. John's School, Nicholl's Oval, the Brinton-Peterborough Carpet Company grounds, and the CGE.

Last year there were 21 hockey and skating rinks in the city and 12 caretakers. This year nine caretakers will handle the ice-making and supervision of the 10 rinks.

Windsor Hotel Proprietress Dies Suddenly

Mrs. Sarah Mary Johnston, proprietress of the Windsor Hotel, died on Wednesday night very suddenly.

Widow of Arthur T. Johnston, she was associated with her husband in the hotel business on Brock St. since 1906, and was one of the oldest hotel keepers in central Ontario.

Mrs. Johnston was born in Toronto 77 years ago. Her maiden name was Sarah M. Melbourne. Her father was a hotel keeper, and it was her supervision of the dining service that gained for the Windsor a long standing reputation of a good table.

The Johnston family was interested in athletic affairs, and it was in the old days of the Peterborough baseball club when it was sponsored by Arthur Johnston with such players as Harry Burridge, Burns, Maddox, Murphy and so on, that Mrs. Johnston was mother of the boys, most of whom stayed at the hotel. The interests of her husband and her sons were also her interests, extending to their sports hobbies. Her husband died in 1942.

Mrs. Johnston was a member of St. John's Anglican Church. She leaves her sons, Dr. Arthur Johnston and Edwin T. (Buster) Johnston, and one niece, Jessie Harris Knapp.

The body is resting at the Nesbitt funeral home, Charlotte St. A short funeral service will be held there Friday at 8.00 p.m. The funeral will take place Saturday morning to St. John's Church, Norway, Toronto, where the service will be at 2.30 p.m. Burial will be at St. John's Cemetery, Norway.

Twenty-Six Permits Issued In November Represent $188,800 In New Dwellings

Peterborough's building permits to the end of November amounted to $3,713,489, a gain of $1,401,387 in property values over the $2,312,102 to the end of November last year. Ninety-two permits were issued last month for $264,700 as compared with 61 permits for $105,434 in November, 1948. Increase for the month was $159,266. Peterborough's housing expansion continues to be reflected in the permits issued through the office by City Engineer Chalmers. Last month there were 26 permits for houses, totalling $188,800, as against nine houses in November last year for $50,000.

Miss Jean Elcome, of the engineer's office, drew attention to the fact that the number of November housing permits was equal to that of last June, and was substantially more than the number comprising the summer and autumn building.

There were 26 permits for houses in June, 14 in July, 14 in August; Sept. 21, Oct. 24, and Nov. 26.

Apparently the building trades will be active throughout the winter and early spring on the carry-over of operations beginning in 1949.

Details of the permits for last month were: 13 garages, $3,450; 26 houses, $188,800; 53 miscellaneous, $72,450; total 92 permits for 264,700.

And the permits issued in November last year: 18 garages, $5,710; 9 houses, $50,000; 34 miscellaneous permits, $49,724; total 61 permits for $105,434.

Average value of the houses for which permits were taken out last month is $7,100 as compared with the average of $5,555 a year ago.

Police Probing Theft Of Tools

Provincial Police are investigating the theft of about $60 worth of tools from the shingle mill of George Potts, near Nogie's Creek.

The shingle mill is located a mile north of the Nogie's Creek Bridge in Harvey Twp., and the theft took place late Tuesday night or early Wednesday morning.

Entry was gained in two places by forcing a door of the engine room, and by smashing a window of the mill itself.

Stolen were an assortment of tools including wrenches, carpenter's saws, and swede saws.

Provincial Constables Archie Grayling and Earl Berwick are continuing the investigation.

It was also reported that the police that several cords of wood, the property of George Lee who lives near the mill, had been stolen.

Express Thanks For Aid Given To English City

By FRED G. MANN

When one community sets out to assist another at a considerable distance, it is a matter of general interest to all to know that their effort is of value, and has duly reached its destination.

Mayor Maxwell J. Swanston is in receipt of a leter from Mayor J. R. Hall of Peterborough, England, expressing thanks and appreciation for parcels sent from this city and district, through the Peterborough and District Branch of the United Emergency Fund for Britain.

The closing sentence of Mayor Hall's letter reads: "I would like to convey to you Mr. Mayor, the appreciation and gratitude of the people of this city, for the continued expressions of goodwill of their sister city in Canada, and to send to you and to the people of Peterborough, Ontario, my personal wishes for their happiness, success and prosperity.'

Christmas Gifts

Welcome as these parcels must be to a people still subject to many restrictions in regard to food suplies more than four and a half years after the termination of the war an additional supply of these food parcels would surely be more than doubly welcome for the coming Christmas season.

For that purpose, the local committee of the UEFB is now making a further appeal for donations to make this possible. Contributions may be left at any bank or at the Examiner Office. Committee members Edward Humpage, Melville Johnston, George R. Melton, and Gordon Monkman, besides the local treasurer James L. Thompson, and the chairman Fred G. Mann, will also accept donations and give official receipts.

Being T.B. Patient Changes the Whole Outlook

Indifference Can Mean Lives of Many

It's funny how you never think of these things until they happen to you. That's what a great many people are saying every day as unforseen disaster and sickness befall new victims.

The sale of Christmas seals for the T. B. Association has, made the lives of many unfortunate men, women and children brighter and given hope to victims who had given little thought to the matter until they were stricken.

An insight into the great humanitarian work which is being done T. B. patients with money raised every year around Christmas time, is given in a letter which a Peterborough woman now in a sanatorium, wrote this week to the minister of an Anglican church in this city of which she is a member.

The sick woman, mother of a young child, is receiving treatment in a sanatorium more than 100 miles away from home.

After reading about the Christmas seals campaign in a copy of the church news letter, sent to her by the minister every week, she wrote to tell her minister about the medical care she was seeing administered to fellow patients because of the generosity of contributors.

"In other years, I must confess I have been rather indifferent regarding the purchase of Christmas seals—in fact—the word tuberculosis had always been one that had been pushed into the most remote corner of my mind" she writes.

"That's something that couldn't happen to me" she had told herself. It was an attitude shared by a great many people.

"Now that I have been a patient in a sanatorium for the past two months I have begun to realise how my indifference and that of others can perhaps mean the lives of men, women and children of all ages," she says.

"Daily—in newspapers, books and magazines I read of this dread disease and am learning of the great fight that is being waged against it. I am learning too, of the tremendous work that is being done by the Canadian Tuberculosis Association and am myself benefitting by their tireless efforts.

"Whether a patient contributes a lot or a little to his hospitalisation, he is given equal care, attention and treatment. Sterptomycin, P. A. S. and even the most delicate operations are available to all through the public's generous purchase of Christmas seals."

Her letter continues to describe how she has improved during the past two months spent in the sanatorium.

Christmas Hint For A Niece Or Nephew! For those favourite young relations, here's a Christmas tip with lots of merit . . . give them a BANK OF MONTREAL Passbook inscribed with a suitable initial deposit. It's a gift that they will value down the years. And it's a wonderful way to encourage good character traits in youngsters particularly dear to you. A B of M Passbook will say "Merry Christmas" from you in a really special way. Drop in to your local branch of "My Bank" and make the necessary arrangements today!

What A Wonderfully Luxurious Feeling to slip into warm, woolly sweaters these cold, December days! They're so nice — and you can keep them that way with regular washings in VEL! "Vel" is truly marvelous with woollens! You see, all woollens are made up of fluffy fibres. These fibres will always catch and cling if squeezed together while wet, and you know how wool "mats" when washed in ordinary soap. "Vel" helps you to avoid this "matting" in four ways. First, Vel works perfectly in the lukewarm water best for washing wool. Second, Vel penetrates finest fibres deeper and quicker than soap, so no rubbing is necessary. Third, it leaves no soapy residue in the wool to coarsen the fibres and dull the colours! Fourth, Vel contains no harsh alkalis so it can't harm delicate fibres.

ManitobaSpends $700,000 On Trapline Plan

WINNIPEG, Dec. 1 — (CP) — Further steps in a pioneer plan to conserve Manitoba's furry wealth was announced Wednesday by the provincial department of Mines and Resources.

In the next seven years $700,000 will be spent to develop the province's Registered Trapline scheme. Sixty per cent will come from the Dominion government.

It is part of a 20-year plan to keep conservation and production at their most efficient balance.

Registered Traplines were first organized in 1941 to check wanton trapping practices that threatened the existence of the fur industry. Manitoba was the first to bring in the scheme, and was quickly followed by other provinces.

Professional trappers who could establish claims to a line on the basis of previous occupancy were granted exclusive rights. In 1945 the government extended the agreement to include new districts and give equal rights to white and Indian trappers.

Resources Minister McDiarmid of Manitoba said in a statement today that the agreement of 1945 was "no longer sufficient to provide full development."

Under the new agreement, up to $100,000 a year for seven years will be used to develop existing districts and assess new ones.

The money will pay administration costs, buy equipment, pay transportation and construction costs, and back biological or other personnel, survey, engineering, investigation.

Claims GE Workers Backing IUE-CIO In United States

More than 67,000 General Electric workers in the United States are now solidly behind the IUE-CIO, Cyril O'Donnell, acting secretary of Local 524 IUE, announced today. He estimated that this would be a substantial majority of the 95,000 workers in the GE chain. The information was received today in a telegram from the Cleveland convention urging the Peterborough workers to join "the swelling ranks of GE workers . . . that have joined the new UE-CIO in order that GE people can best achieve their hopes and aspirations."

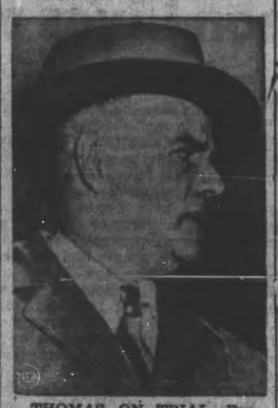
It was signed by four right-wing officers—Fred Kelly, Frank Kriss, John Callahan and Dallas Smith.

Earlier this week O'Donnell issued a challenge to the UE to agree to "a consent vote" at the CGE plant. On Tuesday this was turned down by C. S. Jackson who said such a request was "an admission of defeat."

Renews Chalenge

Today O'Donnell renewed the challenge and jibed back at the UE leader saying: "It is extremely difficult to understand why he refuses to accept such a vote. He is obviously anxious to destroy our union in Peterborough and if this really was evidence of weakness this would be his opportunity to take some action."

By vetoing this suggestion he charged Jackson was delaying the completion of a satisfactory contract.



"Our proposal for a consent vote was made purely with the idea of speeding up a settlement of our differences and paving the way for an early contract. Mr. Jackson is opposed."

On previous occasions Jackson has clamoured for a consent vote, but now he deprives the Peterborough workers of an early opportunity to express their views through a democratic secret ballot.

Inquest Now Ordered Into Student's Death

BRAMPTON, Dec. 1 — (CP) — Crown Attorney A. Grenville Davis today ordered an inquest into the death 10 days ago of Margaret Robertson, 21-year-old university student from nearby Acton. Date of the inquest has not yet been set.

Miss Robertson was left at the hospital here Nov. 20 by a man who disappeared after telling the nurse the girl was sick. She was dead when examined in the hospital. A post-mortem disclosed death was due to a bungled abortion.

THOMAS ON TRIAL—Former Rep. J. Parnell Thomas, of New Jersey, arrives at Washington's Federal District Court to stand trial. Thomas is accused of receiving salary "kick-backs" from his employees.

Health Minister Martin Urges Hospital Support

OTTAWA, Dec. 1 — (CP) — Health Minister Martin Wednesday urged support of the campaign of the hospital for sick children in Toronto for $4,000,000 to complete its new hospital building.

"Completion of the hospital is a challenge to the humanitarian instincts of every person interested in the health and welfare of Canada's children," he said in a statement.

Mr. Martin said the hospital will provide "invaluable" new facilities for research into children's diseases and will "have both national and international value when it is in operation."

The Federal Health Department has voted more than $560,000 towards the building costs and is aiding the hospital's medical-research program, he said.

"Not only will the new hospital enable more children to be given the most modern treatment but out-patient facilities will be increased and research will be greatly extended," Mr. Martin said. "As the training ground for at least three-quarters of Canada's paediatricians, the hospital's influence extends to all parts of the country."

Doesn't Want Canada Soften Wheat Agreement

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON, Dec. 1 (CP)—Latest to enter the political lists on Anglo-Canadian trade relations is Lady Violet Bonham Carter Vice-President of the Liberal Party.

Her contribution is a decisive rebuff to those who suggest Canada should soften the terms of any new wheat agreements with the United Kingdom.

"It is being suggested that Canada should sell her wheat to us for sterling instead of dollars," she told a political rally.

"What is the good of that to Canada? She might as well not be paid at all."

Lady Violet was commenting on recent suggestions from left-wing Socialists that Canada should accept payment for wheat in sterling. The current Anglo-Canadian contract, which expires next summer, is largely financed by Marshall Aid dollars.

Shifting Blame

Referring to left-wing "campaigns" against Canada and the United States, Lady Violet said the trouble with the Labor Party is that it is always trying to blame other people for its own mistakes.

"It is always someone else's fault. If it is not a banker's ramp or a Tory ramp, then it must be an American or a Canadian one. And sometimes it is even a press ramp, if the free press of this country dares to criticize them."

(The term "banker's ramp" is loosely applied here to any kind of financial racket, or swindle.)

Lady Violet, at 62 one of the whittiest and most convincing speakers in British politics, is a daughter of the late H. H. Asquith, Liberal Prime Minister from 1908 to 1916.

Her speech was perhaps the most severe attack on Labor yet delivered by a Liberal.

Farmers Hope Snow Will Melt

Ontario farms are tucked under a blanket of snow from Lambton to Lanark. Many farmers are hoping that mild weather will melt it, followed by rain to fill their wells. Field work is finished for the agricultural season of 1949.

One Lambton farmer had 100 acres of corn to pick. In Lincoln there was some mulching of strawberries and pruning of grapes? Grey mentions mink pelting, with the comment that "while the numbers are not so great, there still is a large volume going out of Grey".

Glengarry reports "quit a number of American cattle buyers looking for fresh cows and springers . . .Turkey producers are somewhat concerned about markets for their birds. They say present prices will hardly cover feed costs."

Northumberland: "Livestock are excellent property with springer cows being picked up at good prices. Demand for little pigs is active for this season. Farmers are reasonably satisfied with the feed supply".

Ontario: Good progress is being made with the third general T. B.

Enlargement Of Fire Department Recommended

COBOURG, Dec. 1 (ENS) — Enlarging Cobourg's fire department will be one of the matters the town council of 1950 may have to take into consideration. The department at present consists of 15 volunuteer firemen and they get around $50 a year each, which sometimes does not meet the cleaning bills on their clothing.

Recently the Canadian Underwriters' Association made a survey of the fire brigade and went into its operation thoroughly. As a result of the survey, the underwriters have recommended to council that the brigade be increased from its present 15 men to a minimum of 21, of which six should be full-time firemen and in constant attendance at the fire hall.

There have been occasions when some confusion has arisen as to the location of the fire and the recommendations of the fire underwriters include the suggestion that the alarm system be improved through a fire alarm telegraph system instead of the present method by which the alarm is phoned to the caretaker in the town hall from where alarms in each fireman's residence are rung through a special telephone circuit.

Fifty years ago the fire brigade consisted of 10 firemen and two drivers and while it was later increased to 15 men, it has remained at that number for many years. Meanwhile the town's population has increased to around 7,200 with a larger population during the tourist season.

Fifteen years ago the town acquired its first pumper and the old truck was sold. Seven years ago the ladder wagon was motorized and the fire equipment now consists of two motorized vehicles. The men are on call but not on constant duty and are paid a very nominal sum. The town has enlarged its residential boundaries but the fire department remains unchanged.

Crushed By Truck

PORT McNICOLL, Dec. 1 (CP) —John Vallie, 18, of nearby Victoria Harbor, was crushed to death Wednesday when a baggage truck went out of control and jammed him against the door of the freight shed where he was working. Fellow-employees believed Vallie set the controls of the truck to go ahead by accident rather than in reverse.

Utilities Settle Payment Dispute With Toronto Co.

COBOURG, Dec. 1 (ENS) — Dispute between Cobourg Public Utilities and the Toronto company which installed the 12-inch water main, was finally ironed out at Wednesday's meeting of the Commission. The company billed the utilities for $1,142.00 for extra expenditures encountered during the job and on the advice of its consulting engineer, the utilities commission refused to pay it. The company then threatened to sue but finally agreed to accept a settlement of $554.00. The utilities commission had held back 5 per cent of the contract amount and this was also approved for payment. Total cost of the new water main was $85,754.83.

Omemee Missionaries Fly On Last 'Plane To Chengtu

OMEMEE, Dec. 1 (ENS)—Rev. and Mrs. H. J. Veals, who returned recently to their West China mission field after 42 days of travel, state in a letter to relatives here, dated Nov. 12, that they made the journey just in time to catch the last plane to Nationalist China.

The last lap, from Hong Kong to Chengtu, was made in a Lutheran mission plane on which they and one other were the only passengers.

"It appears we have just made it in time, considering the recent turning over of the two Chinese air companies, the CNAC and the CAJC, which means no more flights into Nationalist areas," writes Mr. Veals. "They know the war is nearly over and, being Chinese, have made their peace with what is to be the future government of China.

"The one American controlled line is still sending some planes into Nationalist areas but these areas are shrinking every day. The turnover of the air lines means that we are cut off from mail to the outside world. We have a chance today to send letters out to Hong Kong by a means not to be stated, and they will be mailed there. This may be the last chance we will get, before the turnover comes here.

"The Lutheran mission plane is flying under the direction of the CAJC. I do not think it can come in here again. We were on its last trip. We were able to bring in everything we had with us, including some things we bought in Hong Kong and that is a great advantage.

"We found all our people here very calm and our work being carried on as usual. Our missionaries were at annual meeting in Chengtu when we arrived. They certainly were glad to see the group that has just come out—the Kilbornes, Arnups and ourselves—they arrived ten days before us. It has helped a lot, I think, in the morale of the Chinese Christians as well as the missionaries."

Mrs. Veals writes of the courage of some missionary women who were taking on work in stations where they would be very much to themselves, and of a large group of recruits to the China Inland Mission having recently arrived.

Mr. Veals has returned to China for his fifth term and it is the fourth for Mrs. Veals. Their two daughters, Katherine and Marion are remaining in Canada and the States, Katherine in Toronto and Marion taking a post graduate course at Bryn Mawr College in archaeology and fine arts.

Mr. Veal's home town is Omemee.

Labor Govt. Uses New Approach On Steel Nationalization Bill

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON, Dec. 1—(CP)—Labor's decision to reverse its field on steel nationalization is regarded as an outstanding political irony. By softening the terms of its bill to nationalize iron and steel, the government in effect agreed with the Conservative House of Lords that the industry should be left alone until after the next election. This represents a new approach. For two years, Labor argued vigorously that nothing should be allowed to interfere with the proposed legislation. Come what may, Socialists said, iron and steel would be brought under state control.

Any suggestion that the Conservative majority in the Lords might delay the take-over until after the election was ridiculed To Socialist supporters, it was unthinkable that a hereditary body of peers could thwart the wishes of the elected House of Commons, with its large Labor majority.

Viscount Addison, government leader in the Lords, put the Socialist case this way:

"We have taken the view and stand unalterably upon it that we will not accept that this unrepresentative house. . .shall be able to demand a second mandate from the people (before nationalization). We refuse absolutely to accept that position, and we say to the noble Lords opposite that the Labor party never will accept that position."

But It Happened

But it happened. The government finally decided to compromise with the Lords. Instead of a Lords proposal postponing the steel take-over until Oct. 1, 1950, the government substituted one saying that the corporation which would run the nationalized industry should not be appointed until that date.

The wording was different, but the meaning was the same.

Thus the Lords had triumphed and Conservatives in the Commons enjoyed a satisfactory interlude when government spokesmen sought to explain the change in heart.

Now the fate of steel hinges on the election, which must come before next summer. If Labor is returned, nationalization will be just a formality; if the Conservatives win, the bill will be scrapped.

These are the facts which prompted opposition leader Winston Churchill to contend that the election will in fact be equivalent to a referendum on iron and steel. Labor is not likely to agree There are indications the party would rather fight it on almost any other issue, feeling as it does that the average man doesn't care much about steel nationalization, one way or the other.

How To Play Canasta

By WILLIAM E. McKENNEY

"Freezing" the pack is one of the handicaps in Canasta.

The pack is frozen in several methods: First, when the cards are dealt, the top card of the stock pile is turned over to form the pack. If this card is a red trey, deuce or a joker, it freezes the pack, and another card must be turned over from the stock pile. If this card also is a red trey, deuce or a joker, another card from the stock pile must be turned over to cover it.

This process is continued until some card other than a red trey, deuce or a joker is turned up The red trey, deuce or joker is slid under the edge of the discard pile with part of it left protruding Thus, everybody is reminded that the pack is frozen

The pack or discard pile is frozen to you until you or your partner has made a legal minimum meld.

The pack is frozen if during the process of play a deuce or a joker is discarded. It is suggested that you place the discarded wild card under the edge of the pack or tray, so that everyone can see the pack is frozen. When one wild card is placed under the edge of the pack, if another wild card is discarded, it should remain in the pack.

When a player discards a black trey, he does not actually freeze the pack. He simply forces the next player to draw from the stock pile, as at no time can you take the top card if it is a black trey. However, as soon as the black trey is covered with another card other than another black card other than another black trey or deuce or a joker (and if the pack had not been previously frozen) the black trey in the discard pile is disregarded, as it does not freeze the pack.

When a black trey, a deuce, or a joker is discarded, it forces the next player to draw from the stock pile. A black trey, a deuce or a joker, even though you have two or more of them in your own hand, cannot be taken up

When the pack is frozen, a player cannot take the pack or discard pile unless he has two natural cards to match the up-card. For example, if the up-card is a 9-spot, you cannot take the frozen pack unless you have two natural 9's in your own hand.

If the pack is not frozen, you can take the pack if you have in your hand a wild card and one natural card that matches the up-card of the pack. But remember that unless you or your partner has made an initial meld (of the required minimum) the pack is frozen to you.

When the pack is not frozen, you may add the up-card of the discard pile to one of your melds. The balance of the pack is then put in your hand. When the pack is frozen, you cannot take the pack by placing the up-card on one of your melds.

When you intend to take the discard pile by matching it with cards in your hand, you must place the two cards in your hand on the table and then take the up-card of the discard pile and place it with those two. After a correct meld is made by using the up-card of the pack, the balance of the pack is then placed in your hand, and you can add to other melds or make as many more melds as you desire.

Tomorrow: Scoring the game.

WEYBURN, Sask. — (CP) — Sponsors of the Santa Claus parade here arranged for the northern gentleman to make the antlers disappear from his famous team of eight reindeer. It was thought the antlers might injure children crowding around Santa.

2nd Jet Airliner Surprise To Canadians

TORONTO, Dec. 1 (CP)—Officials of Canada's four aircraft firms Wednesday expressed surprise at a London report that Canada is building a second jet airliner. None said they were building an aircraft.

The London report quoted the Society of British Aircraft Constructors as saying Canada is building a smaller version of the A. V. Roe jet airliner, now undergoing flight trials here.

The Society said the new plane will be fitted with gasoline tanks giving it a range of 2,000 miles, instead of 1,000, and will be designed to carry 30 instead of 60 passengers, the capacity of the existing jet airliner.

"We're building a second jetliner, but it's the same as the first except for minor improvements, said an official at A. V. Roe Co. (Canada) Ltd.

Comments on the London report in similar tones came from the deHaviland Aircraft Company, Canada Car and Foundry of Montreal and Fort William, and Canadair Limited, Montreal.

THREE WITH LUCK — These three grim-faced people were among the lucky ones who survived the crash of an American Airlines DC-6 in Dallas, Tex. Mr. and Mrs. Juan LeLorier and their son, Albert, 22 months, were sitting near the front of the plane. When it crashed, they ducked under a seat and escaped through a hole before the fire could envelop them.

Margaret Shares Spotlight With Flower Girl's Bonnet

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, — (CP) —A small, head-hugging Dutch bonnet made entirely of flowers was presented to Princess Margaret when she attended a millinery show in London hotel.

Made of hundreds of "dressed" rose petals of pale pink, it is tied with French powder-blue ribbons and has side chou of ribbons topped by an open rose.

To attend the show, the princess wore a black velvet coat with "a black felt fez turned up in front with velvet and piped with white, with a cascade of ermine tails falling over the front," as described by Aage Thaarup, the royal milliner.

The princess appeared impressed by the variety and beauty of the styles shown in the loveliest hat show London has seen since pre-war days.

New colors are Buckingham Blue (a hard royal blue with vivid mauve tinge), Green Pepper (a light green of tropic brilliance), Lemon Sour (a pure, pale greenish yellow), Pale Morello (a vivid tomato-orange) and a new warm shade called Taffy Beige.

One 1950 model brought fame to "Piccadilly Polly," the best-known of the flower girls who work in Piccadilly Circus. Polly's summer "titfer" was reproduced as the Eros Bonnet—a stiff black straw with pink roses tucked into a double brim.

("Titfer"—a corruption of the phrase "tit for tat"—is Cockney rhyming slang for "hat."

Polly Wasn't There

While Margaret admired the bonnet's cheeky tailored gaiety, Polly was unaware of the fuss at the hat show. She had gone home when reporters hurried to get her reaction.

Bonnets, cloches and sailors hold their own, with new attractive twists to crown and brim. The wide-brimmed Gainsborough is back in all its glory in a lemon-sour straw with velvet-draped brim. A huge bouquet of flowers is tucked under the brim.

High crowns and back interest are notable features. The back interest in created by big stiff bows topped by flowers or fruit or by soft draping of tulle or chiffon.

The highest crown is a horn-shaped coarse yellow straw. Most high-crowned bonnets have Flemish-Dutch influence and are starred with anything from gold shells to natural straw rosettes.

A Quaker bonnet with crown interest has a delicate peacock's tail of soft feathers drawing attention to the back.

EYE TOPICS

THE MIRACLE OF CELLS AND SEEING

The human eye is 80% water and contains nothing else but salts, sugar, fat and albumen. Yet it is one of nature's most miraculous inventions.

It opens and closes whenever it wants to, sees a horse half a mile down the road as clearly as a ring on a finger, and constantly accomplishes incredible feats of adjustment to the size, color, brightness and movement of thousands of objects.

The more scientists study the eye the more they marvel at it. The lens, for instance, is made of cells just like those of the skin, yet it is glass-clear; and not a single blood vessel crosses it. A special tear-water, which has the power of killing most germs that might inflame the eye, keeps the eye clean.

Take the lids — mere flaps of skin. But they're wonderful in their way, too—dry on the outside but moist on the inside where moisture is needed. Everyone in the eye there is skin, but skin modified to achieve a particular end.

The eye is a masterpiece of teamwork. Its millions of cells—minute bits of skin—build up whole colonies to make lids, a lens, a retina and all the other parts of this miracle-organ. It is truly mysterious the way infinitesimal bits of albumen, fat, water, salts and sugar combine to make up precious eyes that bring us the wonderful faculty of sight and keep us in the right focus with the world of wonders around us.

Remember that the complex system of tiny working parts which makes the eye needs careful professional inspection and treatment, just a delicate piece of machinery requires constant supervision. The great difference is that a machine can be replaced—your eyes cannot.

Largest Crowd Overwhelms Tea Room Assistants Of St. Paul's Ladies' Aid

The largest crowd ever seen at a tea in St. Paul's Church parlours overwhelmed Ladies' Aid members Wednesday afternoon. It also embarrassed the kitchen conveners who found a supply of sandwiches they had considered ample for 500 guests was completely exhausted long before closing time. However there were sufficient cakes on hand to keep everyone entirely satisfied, while a member went foraging for supplies—a difficult problem when stores are taking a half-holiday.

About 450 paid admissions are reported by the treasurer but returns are not yet complete. The gift table operated by West End group and the Cubs and Scouts candy booth were completely sold out, and other bazaar tables had done a satisfactory business, so that proceeds of the event will reach a pleasing total. Reports are to be given at the regular meeting this Friday.

Decorations were bright. The tea table with white Chinese linen cloth was centred with a most attractive arrangement of white chrysanthemums in a crystal bowl and flanking silver candelabra held red candles. Each small serving table was centred with a red poinsettia and silvered cone. Two very tall Christmas trees with colored lights stood majestically in the background and the platform was banked with ferns and more poinsettias and a pretty snow-covered country scene. The setting was the work of Mrs. L. R. Mitchell and Mrs. G. Hill. During the tea hours a background of music was provided by pianists Mrs. Adam Sands and Mrs. W. L. MacNeil.

Welcomed to Bazaar

Guests were greeted by president Mrs. J. McLeod and vice-present Mrs. J. Stevenson. Their bakes were received by Mrs. J. H. Fry, treasurer of the association, assisted by Miss B. Brailey.

First booth to catch the eye was that of the MA Club where more than 25 complete layettes were displayed by Mrs. R. Hewitt, Mrs. Ross Latimer and Mrs. Bert Cowan Jr. In the downstair Sunday school room children of guests were looked after by members of this club, Mrs. G. Miller, Mrs. Roy Lock, Mrs. R. Brumwell and Mrs. Wm. Nicol.

The Cub Mothers' Auxiliary had set up the most colorful booth in the room, skirted with blue and red trimed paper and bordered with evergreen branches and colored lights. The walls were lined with Wolf Pack flags and crests, and the boys in attendance wore their distinguishing sweaters, caps and kerchiefs. Mrs. J. H. Eastwood, Mrs. W. Perks, Mrs. A. Fredericks and Mrs. J. Lawson were helping to sell the candy.

West End group's gift table gave some excellent suggestions in guest towels, aprons and novelties. The saleslaides were Mrs. G. Prophet, Mrs. D. W. Clark, Mrs. D. Miller and Mrs. T. MacArthur.

Cheerful Workers group had the home baking table which was convened by Mrs. D. Dickson with Mrs. J. Hornal, Mrs. G. Lockington, Mrs. C. Mann, Mrs. R. Pearce, Mrs. B. Ellis, Mrs. W. Brown, Mrs. W. Morrow, Mrs. R. McIlmoyle, Mrs. P. Weatherstone, Mrs. M. Morgan, Mrs. W. Steinkraus and Mrs. E. Fraser assisting with sales.

A patchwork quilt which sold for $12 was the big item at the booth operated by South End group but they also had aprons and small articles. Mrs. J. Mackness, Mrs. R. Richardson and Mrs. L. Monk were in charge.

Sunshine group had a wide selection of items including a handsome shopping bag, woven in wool. Those in charge were Mrs. H. Wilford, Mrs. H. G. McKenzie, Mrs. N. S. Courtney, Mrs. B. O. Williamson, Mrs. T. E. Barrie, Miss Bessie Ross, Mrs. John Andersn, Mrs. M. Faux.

Second hand books were being sold by Mrs. R. Reid, Mrs. Taylor, Mrs. Wm. Howe, Mrs. B. Beveridge, Mrs. J. R. Middleton, Mrs. W. Gray. The Young Women's Auxiliary had Christmas cards, notepaper and knitted socks for sale at a booth tastefully arranged by the president Mrs. K. McDonald.

Tea Room Assistants

Mrs. W. A. Burrell was the tea convener and her assistants were Mrs. Walter Jackson, Mrs. H. A. Cranfield, Mrs. H. Dunford and Mrs. A. Shearer from Sunshine group; Mrs. N. J. McQuaig, Mrs. Walter Smilie, Mrs. V. Whittington and Mrs. J. McQuaig of South End group; Mrs. K. Campbell, Mrs. C. Lee, Mrs. S. Lowe, and Mrs. G. Jackson of Cheerful Workers group; Mrs. J. Smith, Miss A. Ingram, and Miss E. Allen of Friendly Group; Mrs. D. W. Clark, Mrs. J. R. Allan, Mrs. C. G. Law and Mrs. G. Cuff of West End group. Mrs. Laura Howson, Mrs. J. Rosenburgh, Mrs. S. Fairbairn replenished the plates.

The tea was poured by Mrs. A. Jones, Mrs. J. Hawthorne, Mrs. F. Finnie, Mrs. F. Rowan, Mrs. E. Fraser and Mrs. Jas. Dutton. The table was in charge of Mrs. C. Sherwood and Mrs. B. MacLean.

Junior IODE Girls Entertain At Christmas Tea

The tinkling tune "Jingle Bells" played by Santa's sleigh music box was the keynote for a delightful tea given Wednesday afternoon by junior IODE members of Mary K. Birdsall Chapter They entertained in the YWCA Green Room which had been turned into a Christmas wonderland with decorations that are traditional with that season.

Everywhere there were colored lights and bells and the windows were festooned with evergreen. Lighting was by candles of red, green and white. There was a real tree glittering with tinsel and lights, and for centre-pieces on the quartette serving tables the girls had made Christmas tree candles that were so attractive guests sought to buy them for their own tables.

Miss Mary McRae was selling tickets on two fine draw prizes. The oil painting was won by Mrs M J. Swanston and the roast chicken by Mrs. R. J. Bolton.

A bazaar table presenting many handmade gift suggestions was in charge of Miss Barbara Eastwood and Mrs. H. G. Carleton. Home baked goods was sold by Misses Joan Stock and Fay Adams.

Receiving at the door was the Regent, Miss Wanda Deyell, and the vice regent Miss Marie Adams, assisted by Mrs. M J. Swanston. The tickets were taken by Miss Wilma Deyell and Miss Eleanor Carleton.

The girls' sponsors, Mrs. A. G. Stock and Mrs. I. F. McRae, took charge of the tea room and helped with the decorating. They were assisted by Mrs. J. Adams and Mrs D Drummond.

Table hostesses were Misses Joyce Campbell, Diane Pierce, Jeanette Campbell and Eleanor Watson.

Chapter members are highly pleased with the success of their efforts. For the older girls it was their last work for this particular chapter as they are to form a primary chapter early in the new year.

St. George's WA Reports Tea Most Successful

The WA of St. George's Anglican Church on Wednesday afternoon held a tea which they believe will prove to be their most successful. Certainly it was a social success with a pleasant atmosphere of hospitality prevailing.

Decorations were carried out in the Christmas theme, and a small evergreen was trimmed with gay baubles. The tea table was charmingly enhanced with a basket of 'mums in harmonizing shades of yellow, white and bronze, presented by Mrs. O. F. Boucher. An attractive winter scene with Santa and his sleigh was arranged on the table and lighted with Christmas candles by Mrs. T. Monk. The cloth was of hand-crocheted lace.

Mrs. E. C. Moore, president, received at the door, and Mrs. E. Rye was at the treasurer's table.

Mrs. S. Parkes and Mrs. T. Monk poured the tea and the hostesses were Mrs. H. Ferguson, Mrs. G. Rutherford and Mrs. J. Coates. Mrs. J. R. Earnshaw, Mrs. H. Bromley and Mrs. H. Doleman replenished the plates and tea pots.

Most popular spot was the home cooking booth, until supplies were gone—that is. Mrs. E. Huxley, Mrs. Hepburn and Mrs. A. Lister were the saleladies.

Mrs. E. Smith and Mrs. J. Collins were kept busy at the fancywork and novelty section. Mrs. R. Mowry and Mrs. J. Sparks sold candy and WA calendars.

Well, Well, Stout Ladies! Hockey Players Can Reduce

TORONTO, Dec. 1 (CP) — A lot of "stylish stouts" must be looking anxiously at scales today.

This business of reducing weight was raised to front-page news in Toronto when Managing Director Conny Smythe of the Toronto Maple Leafs warned five of his National Hockey League players to get down to fixed poundage by Saturday "or else."

It became a topic for wider than the sports page when the dieting progress of the hockey players was accompanied by various pictures, showing efforts to take off excess poundage.

One prominent Toronto nutritionist said the way to combat overweight is by will power. "Overweight is caused solely by eating more food than is needed," he said.

This flat statement was amplified somewhat. The nutritionist said physical exercises are no good. "The problem is, that people exercise, increase their appetites, and eat more than is necessary."

Slenderizing pills "merely obscure the issue," according to this expert. Root of the overweight problem is calories. If you're overweight and want to cut down, you've got to cut out the high-calory foods, such as cakes, pastries, potatoes and butter.

Goal-tender Walter (Turk) Broda has been ordered to reduce from 197 pounds to 190 pounds. He's down now to 193 pounds. Sid Smith has already made the target, down from 183 to 180. Garth Boesch is down from 195 to 193 and needs to take off another pound; Vic Lynn is down from 189 to 184 and has to make 182. Harry Watson has gone from 205 to 201 and has to make 200.

Broda said Wednesday night "it seems to me I've been eating nothing but apples, and killing my thirst with oranges" The big highlight of the day is the evening meal. And his evening meal Wednesday?

"I had a lean steak and spinach. No potatoes, No bread. And a cup of tea. No cream, no sugar."

Turk's face peers out of newspaper pages in a variety of reducing poses as the pound devaluation goes on in a blare of publicity. He's sweating it out in a YWCA steam bath, pulling on a rowing machine, eating a dainty salad with a smile.

PRINCE OF WALES SCHOOL

Regular meeting of Prince of Wales Home and School Association was held in the kindergarten Tuesday evening, with a good crowd in attendance. Mrs. F. Gray, president, was in the chair.

Miss M. Faulkner's morning class had most parents present, and so were winners of the monthly prize.

Two solos, "Moonbeams," and "Bowl of Roses" were sung by Mrs. Del Jackman, accompanied at the piano by Miss Phyllis Kidd.

In absence of Mr. R. J. Bolton Mr. R. Rutherford presented crests to the athletes who showed outstanding ability on Field Day. They were: Raymond Larry, Donald Fredericks, Orris McIlraith, Lou-Ann Kemp, Betty Guthrie, Ann Menzies, Elda Gilders, Dorothy Hutchison, Margaret Hawthorne, Paul Johnson, Scott Morley, Bernard Martin, George Downer, and Shirley Panter.

Mrs. E. McIlraith introduced the speaker for the evening, Dr. R. A. Kelly, and Miss Gene Clark.

Miss Clark spoke briefly on the various departments of Public Health nursing mentioning in particular the Well-Baby Clinic. Infant welfare work, and immunization Clinics for pre-school children. The keynote of Miss Clark's talk was "Health can be earned and learned," and in a very clear and efficient manner she outlined how it was possible to pass on to children through teaching the very important fact that good health leads to happier lives.

Dr. Kelly spoke on Canada's number one health problem, namely Mental Health. He defined good mental health as "happiness and efficiency in being able to meet and solve our problems and to feel satisfaction in doing so." He stressed the important part that the home can play in building good mental health." By making the child feel wanter, and secure and loved in his home, we, the parents, can build a solid foundation for good mental health," he said.

The speaker touched lightly on various phases of character, and stated that while discipline was often necessary, it should always be consistent and reasonable. He cautioned parents against trying to live their children's lives, and added that with Mother as the "practicing parent," and Father in the consultant role, the child's life could be guided along the right channels towards a happy and healthy life. "Life holds no greater reward than the helpful moulding of young lives," he said in conclusion.

A lively "Question and Answer" period followed.

A vote of thanks was given by Mrs. J. M. Fraser.

The evening closed with refreshments being served under direction of Mrs. J. James, assisted by the executive.

Love Dangerous Game For Teen-agers to Pla y

DEAR MISS DIX: The question of courtship between high-school students is a subject of much discussion in our school. What do you think of love affairs between high school girls and boys? Don't you think that it is human nature for them to fall in love with each other, and that it is all right as long as we don't let it interfere with our work?

Dorothy Dix

IN LOVE

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Love, my dear boy, is a dangerous game for even adults to play. It is no pastime for school boys and girls.

To begin with, it takes their minds off their studies. Love-making is the most absorbing occupation on earth. For the time being it fills one's mind to the exclusion of every other thing. The boy whose head is full of dates with some girl isn't impressing any dates of history on his memory.

Attraction Natural

Of course, it is natural for girls and boys of high school age to be attracted to each other. In an unsophisticated and primitive state of society it is the age at which the young mate. But we live in a highly artificial and most expensive time and place when we have houses and good food and fine clothes and cars to make us happy and contented.

And these cost money and so make it impossible for boys and girls in their teens to carry out their natural inclinations to get married. Therefore why play with fire when you have no hearth upon which to build one?

Besides, when the primitive savage gets tired of his mate he can simply abandon her, and that's that. But when we marry and get tired of our mates, we can only get rid of them at the price of messy divorces. And you may be very sure that you will get deathly weary of your schoolgirl sweetheart, as she will of you, for a boy's and girl's tastes are unformed and the ones who fired their fancy at 18 will bore them to tears by the time they are 21 or 22.

And there is always the greater danger in these schoolgirl-and-boy courtships that the poor, foolish young creatures will get married and so wreck their lives in their very beginning.

Therefore,son, if you will take my advice you will cut out the love-making in school.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Suppose a couple who are very much alike when they married at 20 find themselves at 50 very different from each other. Suppose the man still feels young and seeks a younger woman because his wife has no longer the interest for him she had when younger. Can you offer any words of comfort for the woman? Is Nature, man or woman wrong?

X.

ANSWER: Probably Nature is the culprit in most of such cases because it brings about growth, which is so often a tragedy in marriage. A young boy and girl marry, seemingly well suited to each other. They have been reared in the same environment, have the same habits and tastes and to all appearances have about an equal amount of intelligence. But one stands still and the other grows. One reads and studies and gets a bigger and broader viewpoint, and the other stays put, with never a new idea or a new thought, with no interest beyond the little daily round of duties, the little home circle.

And the result is that the two are unequally yoked together and the marriage is a failure. For this reason, every bride and bridegroom should start out on their honeymoon making a definite, intelligent effort to keep in touch with each other. They should cultivate the same interests and try to make themselves companionable to each other. The man should not absorb himself in his business and the woman devote herself to the children, but they should work together, for in that way alone can they keep in step with each other.

A woman can keep her husband from developing away from her if she will begin in time, but if she waits until se is 50 it is too late. Then nothing is left for her but to reconcile herself to the situation and find other interests in life.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Can anything be done about the pests who keep their radios going all day so loud it drowns out every other sound in the neighborhood and drives everybody in the vicinity to the verge of insanity?

M. R. O.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Alas, I fear that the case is hopeless because these radio hounds are utterly lacking in all consideration for their fellow creatures.

They have no bowels of compassion, or they would never turn on the loud-speaker unless they lived miles from any other human habitation. There are even people with so little mercy in their hearts that they will turn on the radio and leave it going all day, even when they are out of the house, apparently for no other reason than to torture the unfortunate people who live near them.

6—In Memoriams

DE LONG, Mrs. F.—In loving memory of our dear Mother, who passed away four years ago today.
The depth of sorrow we cannot tell,
Of the loss of one we loved so well;
And while she sleeps a peaceful sleep,
Her memory we shall always keep.
—Lovingly remembered by Clifford and Olive Jackson and family.

DeLONG—In memory of a dear mother and grandmother, Mrs. E. Delong.
Four years have passed and gone
Since one we loved so well
Was taken from our home on earth
With Jesus Christ to dwell.
The flowers we place upon her grave
May wither and decay,
But the love of her who sleeps beneath
Shall never fade away
—Always remembered by Verna, Jimmy, Edna and Family.

EASON — In loving memory of a dear father, Milton Eason, who passed away December 2, 1945.
Gone, dear father, gone to rest,
Away from sorrow, care and pain;
May you rest in peace, dear father,
Until we meet again
—Ever remembered by Daughter Myrtle Son-in-law Percy.

EASON — In loving memory of a dear husband, Milton Eason, who passed away December 2 1945.
Some day we hope to meet again,
Some day, we know not when—
To clasp his hand in the better land,
Never to part again
—Ever remembered by his Wife, Clara Eason

Cedar Lakes Project Plan Presented To County Council

Peterborough County Council, at its closing session of the year, today heard M. N. Clysdale, president of the Kawartha Conservation Association, outline plans for a community park in Burleigh-Anstruther townships.

The park which would be used as a recreational area is at present a piece of Crown land, occupying about a square mile, between Big and Little Cedar Lakes. It is understood that a connecting road, about five miles in length would be built. It would connect with Highway 28 about four miles north of Burleigh Falls.

"It would take present nonproductive land and make it useful to the community," said Mr. Clysdale.

He explained it already had met with favor from the City Council, Service Club Council and the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce.

At a meeting to be held at some future date representatives from the county, interested municipalities, service clubs and other organizations would appoint a nominating committee for a large board of directors—as many as 30 or 40 people.

This group would become a corporation without share capital, similar to many service clubs, he explained. They would then apply to the Ontario government for a charter and become legal body for managing and directing the project.

The large body "should be as fairly and democratically setup as possible."

Lease Park Land

Co-operation from the Minister of Lands and Forests, the Hon. Harold R. Scott, looms large in the plans. Mr. Clysdale said the square mile of park land could be leased for the nominal sum of $1 a year.

There are a few privately-owned lots in the area but these may be exchanged by their owners for others. And the expense of surveying the new lots would be met by the province.

Two members of council from northern townships asked Mr. Clysdale if the inhabitants living adjacent to the park area had been consulted.

Glen Nichols, reeve of Chandors, said a similar project was proposed some years ago but it did not succeed. And he said one of the reasons was that the local people had not been consulted.

"Have you asked any of the people in that area what they think of it?" asked Mr. Nichols.

Mr. Clysdale conceded that he had not, but he wished to co-operate with them in every way possible. He pointed out that the land in question belonged to the Crown and previous dealings had been with the government alone.

Besides, Mr. Clysdale said, the inhabitants of that region will stand to benefit because of increased business.

Norman Wilson, reeve of Burleigh - Anstruther, stated that there were several matters that would have to be further explored before the project was initiated.

One, he said, was the problem of hunting in the park area. During the deer hunting season that portion of the township was the centre of activity. It would throw a damper on sport in that region if this square mile served as a sanctuary which armed hunters couldn't enter.

However, he added, it is unlikely that people will be partying in the park during November, and possibly some arrangement could be arrived at to close the park during this season.

Mr. Clysdale replied that it was a problem not yet resolved. Personally, as a member of the Kawartha Conservation Association he would like to see school children able to enter the park and see animals in their natural habitat.

Eventually, he felt, it would be a restricted area.

Find Annexation Brings Problems

TORONTO, Dec. 1—(CP)—A problem which has been brewing in various parts of Ontario as a result of cities annexing adjoining areas was brought to the fore Wednesday when a deputation from Ottawa Separate School Board met Premier Frost.

Schools, formerly in the annexed areas, were paid grants on a rural basis, which are considerably higher than urban grants. Upon being brought into the municipality, the percentage of grants was cut drastically.

The Premier was informed that with parts of Nepean and Gloucester townships being annexed by Ottawa, the Separate School Board stood to lose $144,000.

In this particular case, the Board will have to take over 11 schools which had been getting grants up to 66 per cent of their approved expenditures. Now these schools will be entitled to grants of only 22 per cent.

It was learned that the problem will affect both public and separate schools in the enlarged areas but Wednesday was the first time it had been officially brought to the government's attention.

The figures which the Ottawa Board presented will be examined by auditors of the Department of Education and it was understood that a general review of the grants will be undertaken by the government in an effort to arrive at a solution.

The deputation told the Premier a 2½-mill boost in the separate school rate would be necessary if no additional help was received.

Two Councils Given Acclamation In Victoria

Two Victoria County township councils were returned to office by acclamation. The two are Laxton, Digby and Longford, and Eldon.

Following is the 1950 slate for Laxton, Digby and Longford: A. C. Adair, reeve; four councillors, E. C. Chynoweth, Everett Fountain, Raymond Gostlin, and William Gilmour; and three trustees, Lloyd Gilmour, Bert Perry and Cecil Parks.

J. C. Butler was returned as reeve in Eldon. Also four councillors—Archie McKinnon, C. G. Hargrave, A. W. Jewell and Verne Fisher. Trustees are C. H. Nicholls, Arthur Bell, Cliff Everson, Arthur Steele and Claude Hopkins.

Fined For Failure To File Income Return

Pleading guilty on behalf of the Warminster Dairy Co. Ltd., near Warsaw, to a charge of failing to make an income tax return for 1948, Gordon Hamblin, secretary of the company, paid a fine of $25 and $4.50 costs imposed by Magistrate W. R. Philp, KC, in police court today.

Withdraws From Fight

LAKEHURST, Dec. 1—(ENS)—Charles Flynn, a former reeve of Harvey Twp. for eight years, withdrew Monday after his named had been nominated and Gale Elliott, present reeve, was acclaimed. Mr. Elliott defeated Mr. Flynh in the 1949 election.

Pedestrian Hit By Car Has Fractured Knee

Knocked down in a collision with a car, a pedestrian, Victor O'Connell, 141 Hazlitt St., suffered a fractured right knee and a bruised right shoulder Wednesday night. St. Joseph's Hospital authorities said today his condition was "satisfactory."

Driver of the car, James E. Kylie, 777 George St., told investigating Constable Victor A. McConnell, he was driving his car east on Charlotte St. At Waten St. he made a right turn to go south. He said O'Connell was walking from the east to the west curb and walked into the left front fender of the car. O'Connell stands bent forward by what is believed to be a spinal injury.

Believe Miners Value Their Time Above Money

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON, Dec. 1—(CP)—Why does a miner stay away from the pit? Is he lazier than other people, or is the work so hard he feels justified in acting the part of odd man out?

For generations private enterprise tried to find the answer. Now, after three years of coal nationalization, Britain's Labor government has put a finger on what it thinks is the biggest reason for absenteeism in the mines.

It's as simple as this: the miner values time above money.

"They used to say the miners had nothing to buy," fuel minister Hugh Gaitskell told the House of Commons. "What is much more likely is that leisure is regarded by many miners as more valuable than the things they can buy with money."

Beautiful Hovels

Gaitskell linked the question of leisure with a shortage of housing in mining areas.

"You can't expect the miner to want to fill a hovel with a lot of beautiful things," he said. "If he had a new house and all the amenities that go with it, the position would be different."

Gaitskell was speaking in the first full-dress debate on the report of a nationalized industry. He pleaded for a moderate approach to absenteeism, a subject which he said had generated bitterness inside and outside the industry.

Tired of Scoldings

In the first place, he said, miners are tired of being scolded. They felt they were being singled out because there is so much statistical information about them. Everything was known about the miners, but not everything "is known about other people."

In the second place, absenteeism was common among miners everywhere. It was just as bad in "practically all" the mining industries of Europe as it was in Britain.

Taking everything into consideration, voluntary absenteeism in British mines wasn't particularly alarming. It was 7.1 per cent in 1946, 8.4 in 1946, 6.4 in 1947, 6.0 in 1948 and 5.5 so far in 1949.

Gaitskell Gambles

Gaitskell then took a long gamble. He didn't want to be accused of condoning absenteeism, he said, but it must be remembered that miners have only 10 days' statutory holidays and one week of paid holidays a year.

"It would not be surprising—I will not put it higher than that—if in this industry the miners were to take a few days more off."

Having made this "reasonable allowance," there remained about four per cent of voluntary absenteeism which could not be justified.

"That is the real gap, and that is what we must try to reduce."

Police Hold Salesman For Stolen Cheques

TORONTO, Dec. 1 — (CP) — Bernard Redditt, 34, magazine salesman, charged Tuesday night with false pretences will be questioned to-day regarding a series of thefts of government cheques throughout Ontario and Quebec.

Redditt was charged with obtaining merchandise and money from an east-end store by means of a stolen government cheque.

Post office officials said thefts of family allowance and income tax refund cheques had been reported in Toronto and in other Ontario and Quebec centres. The police said the cheques were taken from mail boxes and cashed.

Charivari Newlyweds Home From Trip

ROSENEATH, Dec. 1.—(ENS).—Mr. and Mrs. Harold Blodgett returned Monday from their honeymoon in the U.S. and were serenaded late Monday night by a Charivari party.

A miscellaneous shower and dance will be held in their honor in Burnley Hall on Monday.

With the death toll likely to reach 20 and property damage fixed at several millions of dollars British Columbia is slowly recovering from the storms which lashed the Pacific Coast over the week-end. Bridges, roads and railways were washed out in many parts as the floods poured inland. In the top picture a policeman stands deep in the flood waters directing traffic in West Vancouver while below is pictured the approach to Capilano Bridge, also in Vancouver, which was cut by the flooding Capilano River late Saturday.

Showing Legs Not Sexy Actress Says

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 1—(AP)—Step right up, ladies and gentlemen, for some lessons in sex appeal. The teacher: Lauren Bacall.

In an unusually frank discourse, Professor Bacall declared "you don't have to be uncovered to be sexy.

"Showing your legs or your bosom isn't necessarily sexy. It's a fallacy to think just because you're wearing a low-cut gown or a tight sweater that you look sexy.

"Sex should be subtly suggested. You do it with a look or an expression or with your voice." (She said this in her famed "if you need me, just whistle" tones. I was beginning to get the idea.)

"An actress should be good enough to put across the idea of sex without undraping herself."

"I have never posed for cheese cake," she remarked. "I just don't like it and I consider myself lucky that I haven't had to be subjected to it. I'm just not the type."

Spicy Reading

Some of the spiciest reading these days is not in the books banned in Boston, but in the movie ads. Let me cite a few examples of catchlines from recent pictures:

"Nameless, shameless woman, trained in an art as old as time"—"I Married a Communist."

"You need a friend, strong man, and I'm friendly"—"Thieves' Highway."

"Whatever it is that French women have, Madame Bovary has more of it."

"You are the most corrupt woman I ever met" — "The Great Sinner." "Men would do anything for Anna Lucasta."

But the raciest reading was in the ads for "I Was a Male War Bride." Excerpts: "This is how Sheridan took Grant. . .'who ever dreamed that day is Dusseldorf that I was her target for tonight?' . . .'with 50 million Frenchmen, she has to pick me. How lonesome can a WAC get?' . . . She wouldn't give in —so I gave up—unconditional surrender terms accepted!' "

In view of the well-known censorship of the screen, aren't the film companies promising more than they can deliver?

Order Import Cut

MANILA, Dec. 1 — (AP) — A presidential decree today ordered a $200,000,000 reduction in the Philippines' annual imports of luxury and "non-essential" goods. President Elpidio Quirino said he signed the decree to lower the islands' imports to the level of its commodity exports and to conserve the republic's gold reserves.

Howe Predicts 1950 To Be Prosperous Year For Dominion Of Canada

Opposition Spokesmen Charge Optimism As Trade Policies Under Fire, Score Loss of Markets In Great Britain

OTTAWA, Dec. 2—(CP)—Trade Minister Howe says 1950 is going to be another prosperous year for Canada. Fending off a concentrated opposition attack on government trade policies, he told the Commons Thursday night that the next year will be a good one from the standpoint of economic prosperity for Canada. Accused of being "Canada's No. 1 Optimist," Mr. Howe declared he had no regrets about past predictions and stuck by his forecast. But he was attacked sharply on trade policy by members of the Progressive Conservative, C.C.F. and Social Credit parties.

They accused the government variously of throwing overboard the United Kingdom market in favor of the United States, hesitating to accept U.K. imports and suppressing pre-election facts about the trade picture.

The Commons Thursday also gave third and final reading to a bill to authorize $10,000,000 in federal loans towards streamlining coal mines in the Maritimes. This measure, which met with general approval, now goes to the Senate.

Under Fire

Mr. Howe came under fire from spokesmen of all opposition groups.

But he finished by saying that anyone who sees any threat to Canada's future in her trade situation must look at things "with very jaundiced eyes indeed."

Donald Fleming (PC—Toronto Eglinton) said that what the government needed was a sense of urgency, of candor and of a realization of the "pressing urgency" of the trade situation.

Hazen Argue (CCF—Assiniboia) said that as the result of government hesitation to accept more imports from the United Kingdom, Canada had lost 90 per cent of her British market in the last two years.

John Blackmore (SC—Lethbridge) declared the government had been "unutterably stupid" in over-taxing farmers on their extra production.

"We haven't got a depression yet," he said, "but we're going to get their again if the government continues the stupid practices it has been following."

Contractor Pays $2,768.80 On Faulty House

OTTAWA, Dec. 2—(CP)—An Ottawa contractor Thursday was ordered to pay damages totalling $2,768.80 because of faulty construction in a house he had built.

The damages were levied against the Harold Taggart Construction Comany following a damage suit before the Ontario Supreme Court instituted by V. E. Aksim, who bought the house from Taggart, last year. In addition, Harold Taggart, head of the construction company, was assessed 70 per cent of the costs of the action.

The case, believed to be the first of its kind in the history of Canadian law courts, lasted for eight days. It created wide interest in Ottawa legal circles due to the possibility that it might be used as a precedent should any other home owners feel faulty construction had gone into their homes and decide to sue for damages.

Mr. Aksim had sued the Taggart Construction Company for $5,504, which he claimed was the amount needed to put his home in proper condition.

Mr. Justice G. A. Gale allowed a total of $2,356.80 as damages for actual discrepancies in the construction of the house, including $307.49 for contractor's profit.

Score Of Firemen Injured In Fire

BARBERTON, O., Dec. 2 (AP)—Two firemen were in critical condition in hospital today and a score of others were injured as a result of a $100,000 fire in downtown Barberton.

Chemists rushed analysis of phonograph records and other plastic objects from the burned building to determine whether poisonous phosgene gas had been released. The gas was described as one that packs a sometimes lethal wallop as much as 24 to 48 hours after being breathed, and similar to some gases developed in the second world war.

Nine firemen were taken to hospital shortly after the blaze. In the next few hours, 13 others were in hospital. Some showed up at the hospital and after being given oxygen would apparently come out of a daze and ask "what am I doing here?"

Fire Chief Edward Perry and fireman William Powell were described as being in "critical" condition this morning. The other 20 were termed in "good condition" by hospital officials. The firemen were bedded down on cots in the overcrowded hospital's corridors.

Order Stores Remove Inflammable Toys

TORONTO, Dec. 2 — (CP) — Fire Bureau officials today ordered Toronto stores to remove a large number of inflammable toys from their sales counters.

The toys—imported from Japan—were said by the officials to be made of nitro-cellulose composition and likely to burn with a burst of flame if they come near a flame or other heat.

The Bureau's action follows an investigation of downtown stores and warehouses. Similar action was taken a year ago against dolls held together by a highly inflammable glue.

U.S. Consul To Leave Mukden Wednesday

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2 (AP)—Consul-General Angus Ward reported today that he has arranged to leave Mukden in Communist China with his entire staff by next Wednesday.

The State Department said the Canadian born Ward also reported that he, the staff members and all dependents would travel by train to Tientsin, a seaport.

Three American ships, the department said, are due there between Dec. 6 and 17.

Bank Held Up

MONTREAL, Dec. 2—(CP)—Provincial Police reported today that La Banque Canadienne Nationale at St. Hugue De Bagot, near St. Hyacinthe, had been held up and robbed of an unknown sum of money. It is the same bank from which three men took $8,600 exactly two weeks ago, holding up two sisters and their elderly mother who is manager of the branch bank in the little village.

British House Passes N.A. Bill Clauses

LONDON, Dec. 2 (Reuters)—The House of Commons today passed the North America bill through all its stages.

The bill gives to the Canadian federal parliament power to amend the Canadian constitution in matters lying solely within the jurisdiction of that parliament, without reference to the United Kingdom parliament.

It had already been passed by the House of Lords and now only awaits formal royal assent to become law.

Philip Noel-Baker, secretary for commonwealth relations, said the bill arose out of an address presented to the King by the Senate and House of Commons of Canada.

Many people felt that the present situation was anomalous and might be embarrassing to Canada or Britain.

The statute of Westminster in 1931 conferred on all the self-governing members of the commonwealth full power to amend United Kingdom acts which applied to them, he said. But at the request of Canada this power was not applied to the British North America Acts in which the Canadian constitution was laid down.

These acts under the Canadian constitution, could at present be amended only by the British parliament. But all parties in Britain had agreed that this situation should continue only so long as the Canadians desired.

Kitchener Mayor Orders Truce

KITCHENER, Dec. 2 — (CP) —City Council got together with the Public Utilities Commission today and ordered police to stop handing parking tickets to PUC bus drivers.

Council decided Monday night to shift main street bus stops from the near to the far corners of intersections. The PUC told bus drivers to ignore the change until it was ratified by the Ontario Highways Department.

Council plunked shiny new parking meters at the old stops, and policemen handed 74 parking tickets to bus divers Thursday when they stopped in front of the meters.

Today Mayor Washburn called for a truce. He ordered police to muzzle the corner meters for a few days. The PUC agreed to shift its stops arter giving due notice to bus passengers.

Billion Dollars In Arms Going Soon To Europe

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2 (AP)—A billion dollars worth of United States arms will begin moving to Western Europe in a few weeks, now that the Atlantic Treaty countries have unanimously agreed on their grand strategy of defence.

Defence Secretary Louis Johnson was due back from Paris today to present the defence plan to President Truman and State Secretary Dean Acheson. Johnson is the U.S. member of the defence committee of the 12-power Atlantic alliance which adopted the plan at a meeting in the French capital Thursday.

France is expected to get the lion's share of the arms and military equipment which Congress authorized to strengthen the western European members of the alliance against any Russian aggression.

The strategic plan presumably is based on the possibility that in event of a Russian attack France, along with the other European continental members of the Atlantic system, would bear the brunt of the onslaught.

A communique issued by the defence committee at the conclusion of its meeting said it "arrived at unanimous agreement on and gave full approval to the following action:

"A. Strategic concepts for the integrated defence of the North Atlantic area.

"B. Provision of a program for the production and supply of armaments and equipment.

"C. Co-ordination of planning between the various regional groups (of countries in the alliance)."

Call On Army To Fight Flood Waters

400 Bolster Banks With 20,000 Sandbags In Vancouver Storm

VANCOUVER, Dec. 2—(CP)—Roaring flood waters in the greater Vancouver area receded two feet Thursday night, leaving in their wake a trail of uncounted damage along Seymour Creek and the Capilano River.

Lower temperatures today brought hopes of an end to the heavy fall rainstorms which sent the two streams on the rampage in the west Vancouver and north Vancouver areas, across Burrard Inlet from Vancouver proper.

But wary flood workers took no chances. Throughout the night, 400 soldiers and civilians buttressed the banks of the Seymour and the Capilano with 20,000 sandbags.

Army searchlights were trained on a half-mile of the crazy Seymour in north Vancouver, as sandbag was piled on sandbag, and trucks dumped gravel along the sides of the torrents at the rate of 200 tons an hour.

Even if the storm has passed and the worst is over, the wild rivers have had their day. Linked with last week-end's storms, which took 19 lives in British Columbia, the latest upsurge was a sledgehammer blow.

50 Homes Evacuated

At least 50 homes along the east and west banks of the coffee-brown Seymour Creek were evacuated Thursday. The surging Seymour ate away the foundations of dozens of homes. Three houses were cabled to trees to prevent them from being swept away.

The scene was eerie during the night as executives turned from their Vancouver offices to doff business suits for slickers and gumboots and attempt to save their homes from complete destruction. Some dikeworkers sang; others, long and weary on the job, labored in silence.

Emergency ferry service remained the only link to Vancouver for the 13,000 residents of West Vancouver. They were isolated again Thursday when the Army-constructed Bailey bridge over the Capilano came down with a thunderous roar.

Army engineers said to-day they will not attempt to throw up another Bailey. Provincial Works Department crews said pilings for a new, permanent bridge will be sunk as soon as conditions allow construction.

New Flood Scene

A new flood scene appeared on Thursday night, at Port Coquitlam, five miles up the Fraser River from New Westminster. The Coquitlam River flooded slowly and forced evacuation of 13 homes in low-lying areas. Several sheds and small buildings were swept away.

Aside from the West Vancouver cut-off, most transportation was back to normal. Canadian Pacific Railway and Canadian National Railways Transcontinental trains—kept out of Vancouver for three days by the rail blocks — were running close to schedule.

However, a two-car derailment of the CNR's No. 2 to the East was caused during the night by weather-loosened rock at Blue River, 130 miles east of here. It delayed service 12 hours.

CPR and CNR are sharing the tracks through damage areas.

Heavy precipitation is usual at this time of year in Southern British Columbia, but it usually comes in snow, not rain. The

Missing 30 Years Case Still Open

TORONTO, Dec. 2—(CP)—Thirty years ago today theatre magnate Ambrose Small walked out of his downtown theatre, happy over the successful conclusion of a $2,000,000 deal. He hasn't been seen since.

The case is still one of the most puzzling in the city's history. A reward of $50,000 alive, or $15,000 dead is still offered for information about him. The case is officially listed as "open" on police files.

Sunday Sport Opposed By Cardinal

TORONTO, Dec. 2 (CP) — James Cardinal McGuigan, Roman Catholic Archbishop of Toronto, today came out in opposition to the legalization of commercial sport on Sunday.

Toronto ratepayers will vote on Jan. 2 on whether they approve Sunday sport. In Windsor, a similar vote will be held next week.

In a letter to diocesan clergy, to be read in all city pulpits on Dec. 18, the Cardinal said "the whole day is to be given to God and kept holy."

Controller David Balfour, only Roman Catholic member of the city council expressed surprise at the letter. He has often expressed strong approval of Sunday afternoon sport.

"If the Cardinal has done this," the Controller said, "he has the right to express his views the same as any other clergyman, but the church doesn't instruct me how to vote. They leave that up to our own conscience."

Cardinal McGuigan's letter said that "while anxious to see wholesome sport and recreation for our people, particularly those in the crowded areas of our cities, I view with disfavor the legalization of commercial sport on Sunday."

Mount Etna Volcano Erupting Strongly

CATANIA, Sicily, Dec. 2 (AP)—People of Catania got under their umbrellas today—Mount Etna was showering black volcanic dust on them.

Europe's highest volcano thundered and belched for hours, starting before dawn and ending at about 9.30 local time.

People from the grape-growing hamlets on the mountain's sides fled to this port city to report that several huge cracks had broken open around the mouth of the volcano.

Loud rumbling signalled the start of the eruption which sent smoke and cinders spewing into the air from the 10,758-foot-high volcano on Sicily's east coast.

It was the first activity of the famed volcano since last June 7. At the time Etna belched smoke and cinders, but there was no damage.

May Change Deadline

OTTAWA, Dec. 2 — (CP). — Prime Minister St. Laurent said today there may be a change made in the laws setting deadlines for tabling of government reports. He told Stanley Knowles (CCF-Winnipeg North Centre) "congestion" in the Government Printing Office has "very often" caused reports of departments to be tabled after deadlines laid down by Parliament. Mr. Knowles said five reports have been anywhere from 11 days to eight weeks late this year.

20 Brazilians Are Killed In Storm Landing Crash

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Dec. 2—(AP)—A Real (Royal) Airlines DC-3 plane crashed in a rainstorm at an emergency field in Sao Paulo State Thursday, killing 20 of the 22 persons aboard, the line announced today. A woman and her five-year-old daughter were the only survivors of the crash, which killed the other 18 passengers and four crew members, the announcement said. The pilot apparently was attempting to make a forced landing at Riberao Claro field, near Sao Paulo, 250 miles southwest of Rio de Janeiro, instead of trying to make his destination in the heavy overcast. The twin-engine plane had been bound from Sao Paulo to Jacresinho, a short distance from the scene of the crash. The emergency field is in a bush clearing a few miles outside the city of Riberao Claro.

No Foreigners Aboard

No foreigners were aboard the airliner, company officials said.

The plane was a twin-engined DC-3 flying a regular domestic route between the capital city of Sao Paulo and the small city of Jacare about 200 miles to the southwest.

Officials of the airline, one of Brazil's busiest, said they had not yet determined the cause of the crash. They said the plane went down only 20 miles from its destination.

Find Stolen Jewelry

MONTREAL, Dec. 2—(CP)—Police said today that a confession of a dapper, 21-year-old Ville Lasalle youth may lead to the discovery of thousands of dollars worth of jewelry stolen from express shipments in Hamilton. Police said they had already recovered about $6,000 worth of gems in two private homes and a mid-town public garage before the youth confessed. They added that the jewelry was stolen from express shipments in Hamilton destined for cities throughout the country and that an express company spokesman said the gem robberies have been going on for two years.

Hotel Razed In Ohio Fire

SAPULPA, Okla., Dec. 2 (AP)—An early morning fire roared through a four-storey hotel today and spread to adjoining buildings causing an estimated $1,000,000 damage.

There were no known deaths, but Fire Chief Bill Collyer said there was a possibility a few guests may have been trapped in the hotel's upper stories. Fifty-three guests were registered.

The flames destroyed a quarter of a block of buildings.

Hotel occupants fled out the exits, over adjoining rooftops and by jumping into fire nets. Only one person was taken to hospital. He suffered a broken leg in leaping from a third-floor window.

L. G. Robertson, Humphrye, Nebr., a hotel guest, said:

"The smoke was so thick, I couldn't breathe. I never saw anything like it in my life. I would have jumped rather than stay in it."

He escaped by climbing onto an adjoining roof.

Collyer gave the $1,000,000 damage estimation.

The first alarm came in about 1.30 a.m., Collyer said, and two hours later approximately a quarter of a block of buildings had been razed.

IUE Convention Hailed As Triumph For Democracy

PHILADEPHIA, Dec. 2 (AP)—The new Electrical Workers Union (CIO) Thursday ended its founding convention with leaders hailing it as "a triumph for the democratic labor movement."

"The wisdom of American democracy stand back of the International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers," James B. Carey, acting chief, said in a message to the conclave, which for four days has heard blast after blast at Communist influence in trade unions.

The issue was brought into sharp focus by CIO's expulsion of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers a month ago, and birth of the successor union, IUE. The UE was ousted because of alleged Communist domination.

Throughout the week's sessions the stand taken by IUE received the blessing of labor leaders, President Truman, and other speakers of national prominence.

In its final meeting the convention, taking a statement by Carey for its text, appealed to the opposition UE to throw off the "shackles of Communism" and cast its lot with "sound American trade unionism."

Providing one of the most dramatic moments of the convention, the vote on the invitation was unanimous.

"It is the opportunity to participate in the mission of this union that we now extend to all former locals and former members of the repudiated and defunct UE," the declaration said. "The crazy Moscow adventureres cannot win, regardless of the support given them by a few short-sighted employers."

Six Italians 23 Days Without Aid

Men Sent To Woods Without Proper Food And Clothing

THESSALON, Dec. 2 (CP) — The RCMP said today they are investigating reports that six immigrants from Italy were left for 23 days without proper food or clothing in a broken-down lumber camp 70 miles north of this Northern Ontario centre. Citizens claim the men were "flagrantly abused" by two Hamilton employers.

A report has been submitted by the RCMP to immigration authorities at Ottawa.

The stranded immigrants were clad in light clothing in which they arrived from Italy. None had gloves or heavy boots. Provincial Police, who inspected the camp before RCMP, said it was "completely unfit for human habitation." The same camp was condemned last year by the Ontario Department of Health.

The six men finally hitch-hiked to Thessalon in November and told Provincial Police they were starving. They said they had been told a foreman and cook would arrive but only one small shipment of food was sent and no one arrived to supervise their work.

Disgraceful Treatment

Mayor Campbell Cork said it appeared "disgraceful treatment" of immigrants had taken place. Frank Febbo, formerly of Toronto, Canadian-born Italian, provided them with temporary jobs in a lumber yard here of which he is foreman.

All six, Giovanni Palumbo, Rocco Simone, Francisci Rinelli, Gaetano Ciotti, Antonio Conte and Fioravanti Palumbo, were set up in a boarding house while the ystrove to get in touch with relatives in Canada. Three others arrived at Thessalon but did not reach the camp after police refused to allow it to be inhabited.

A Lands Department official said he had come upon the six men trying to work in the bush and discovered they were staying in the camp. Cutting permits had not been obtained; he ordered the immigrants to stop cutting and return to Thessalon. The men remained in camp until their food ran out, in the hope some one would come and tell them what to do, they said.

Police said the men returned to the camp again when operators obtained their permits, and received promises the camp would be repaired. Again they were

80 Turkeys Destroyed By Marauding Dogs

BRANTFORD, Dec. 2.—(CP).—More than 80 full-grown turkeys averaging 25 pounds each, have been killed or mauled by marauding dogs on the farm of Jack Rive, Tutela Heights Road, and the loss is expected to reach about $1,300.

Dozens of the dead or mangled birds were found Thursday morning when feeding was started on the range and by Thursday night, 81 had been rounded up, many of them dead or so severely injured they were not expected to survive.

Early today, afte an all-night watch had been kept on the range by Reg Franklin and Gerald Rive, a dog found near another dead turkey, was shot and Mr. River said this morning more of the dead or injured birds may be found.

Minister Given Till Saturday To Quit Church

TORONTO, Dec. 2 — (CP) — The Rev. Thomas Guthrie, Baptist pastor at Guelph, has been given until Saturday to quit his pulpit and remove his belongings from the church. The ruling by the Ontario Supreme Court came Thursday after church deacons said the congregation had been split since the pastor was accused of writing a love letter to a married woman in his congregation.

Mr. Justice J. K. Mackay in Supreme Court granted an injunction sought by five deacons and three church trustees of the York Road Baptist Church at Guelph. The injunction bars the pastor from church property.

The deacons presented an affidavit signed by Mrs. Robert Stitt, slender 27-year-old housewife, charging that the pastor wrote her a letter which included this paragraph: "I drove by your house last night and saw my darling Pat with her hair down and ready for bed. Would that I could have put my arms around you then but, alas, it is not my place."

Sign Petition

Roland Wilson, counsel for the plaintiffs, said that 86 of the 104 church members had signed a petition asking the pastor's removal. He said his clients have been holding meetings in the Orange Hall and that "irreparable damage" would be done unless Mr. Guthrie was prevented from entering the church.

Wilson said that if the injunction was refused, the church would be closed.

"I am unwilling to close the doors of a church," said His Lordship.

"Forgetting for a moment that it is a church," Mr. Wilson began, when His Lordship interjected: "What I'm having difficulty doing is forgetting that it is a church."

Counsel for the pastor, Andrew Brewin, declared that Mr. Guthrie had previously agreed to resign if the letter was returned and all copies burned in his presence. The deacons had agreed to this but, he said extra copies of the letter had been made, reproduced in a church circular and given wide distribution.

While the injunction against Rev. Mr. Guthrie is effective until Dec. 22, Mr. Justice Mackay inserted a provision that if in the meantime the congregation, as of last July 24, voted for the minister's return the injunction would be dissolved.

The congregational vote will be held as soon as possible. At Guelph last night Mr. Guthrie said that the vote would be supervised by a committee of six, three from each side.

Mr. Febbo, who said the men were not paid for their 23 days' work, said police had called him as an interpreter when the men walked into the station and tried to tell their plight by waving immigration papers.

"I had to phone the lumber operators half a dozen times before they would come up here. If we hadn't helped these men they would have starved. No one had bothered to equip them for the bush. They were wearing the suits they brought from Italy."

Officials said that those injured included one air force man and nine army men.

Warden Darling Honored On Retirement

With the Hon. Russell T. Kelley, Ontario health minister in attendance as guest speaker, Peterborough County on Thursday night honored its retiring warden, William Darling, reeve of Dummer.

The occasion was the annual warden's banquet held this year at the Town Hall in Warsaw.

It was pointed out to the 75 banquet guests that the record of the Darlings in municipal politics ran back for nearly 100 years. John J. Darling, father of the present office holder, was warden of the county in 1916.

William Darling had completed five years as reeve of Dummer and reached the climax of his career in 1949 when he was elected warden by his fellow County Councillors. He decided not to run for office for 1950 and Stewart Clysdale was acclaimed reeve.

Given Bag

A travelling bag was presented to Mr. Darling on behalf of the County. The presentation was made by J. A. Middleton, chairman of the Suburban Area Road Commission. R. R. (Dick) Stewart, deputy-reeve of Otonabee, delivered the presentation address.

"Your deep interest in municipal affairs has been a matter of inheritance," said Mr. Stewart, "your father Charles J. Darling having been reeve of the township of Dummer for a number of years and occupying the high and responsible position of Warden fo this County in 1916."

"It seemed, therefore, very natural that you should have taken a keen interest in the affairs of your community, as you have done for a long number of years."

Mr. Stewart pointed out that Mr. Darling has been a member of the County Council from 1945 to 1949 "and in the present year filled capably the duties of Warden of this important county."

Dr. Donald Munro, of Warsaw, said that Mr. Darling's son John, at present a law student at Osgoode Hall, Toronto, might well continue the precedent of his father and grandfather by participating in Dummer municipal politics.

Reviews Work

The Hon. Russell T. Kelley, minister of health, gave a review of some of the work of his department and capped it with eight rules on how to keep healthy.

As an indication of the growth of health expeditures in Ontario he said that when he first became minister in 1946 the budget of the department was $15,000,000. During 1949 the budget had jumped to more than $40,000,000 if the Hospital Tax and Federal grant were included.

Of this amount $12,000,000 was earmarked for mental health.

In the province there are more than 16,000 mentally ill persons being cared for in institutions and nearly 2,000 more are being rehabilitated, he said.

"We keep them warm and comfortable, give them the best medical treatment and hope they get better," he said.

Statistics showed that 60 per cent of those patients at the Whitby hospital get better.

Facilities are crowded, he asserted. At Orillia, an institution designed to accommodate 1,800 patients, there are now 2,300 children. And there is a long waiting list.

Another hospital is being built at Smiths Falls to care for 2,400 people and by the end of 1950 it will be able to take 900 of these.

"All we as mothers and fathers can say is that we should be so grateful our children are born with all their faculties," said Mr. Kelley.

Love and work are the two things the mentally ill need more than anything else, he asserted.

13 Sanitariums

There are 13 TB sanitariums in the province with 3,600 patients. It is necessary that these people "play the game," he said. On an average of twice a month he has to swear out a warrant for patients who will not stay at a sanitarium.

Another important activity of his department is ensuring that municipalities keep a clean water supply and thus safeguard the health of their residents.

"We are not a department of disease but a department of health," stated Mr. Kelley, and he listed eight ways to remain healthy:

The rules to observe include diet, posture, no violent exercise if over 50 years of age, have regular checkups with the doctor, care of the teeth and eyes, become a "boy scout or girl guide by doing at least one kind act every day," and keep happy.

Mr. Kelley was introduced by James Gifford, reeve of Ennismore, and thanked by William Grant, reeve of Lakefield. Toastmaster and chairman of the banquet was Reeve Melville Johnston of North Monaghan.

The fowl dinner was prepared by the Warsaw women and orchestral music was provided by Cecil Searles, violinist; James Yokum, pianist, and Bernard Holloway, cellist.

Revise Prices On 66 Brands

TORONTO, Dec. 2 (CP) — Brandy, rum, gin, sherry and ale drinkers benefited Thursday when the Ontario Liquor Control Board revised their prices on 66 brands of imported spirits. On the other hand, champagne, cognac liqueur and port wine drinkers will pay more for their favorite beverage. The changes, averaging around 10 per cent, were brought about because of the recent devaluation of the pound sterling.

The price of 38 brands were lowered; 28 others were increased.

The regular $4.80 brands of imported Scotch and all domestic ryes remained unchanged. However, reductions were effected in three brands of Scotch whisky and two brands of Irish whisky.

One brand of Scotch whisky, Islay Mist, which formerly sold for $5.65 a bottle, can be purchased for $5.30. The price of Bushmill's Irish whisky dropped from $5.55 to $5.15.

Haldimand Township Elections Postponed Found Voters' List Late In Being Posted

COBOURG, Dec. 2 (ENS) — Holding of Haldimand township elections will be moved on to a later date, it was decided at a meeting of the township council yesterday, because the voters' list was not posted within the time required for the usual election to proceed on December 5.

Ordinarily the voters' list would be posted on October 31 and in the ensuing 21 days the public would have time to file any appeals, after which the court of revision would sit. Nomination day would accordingly be held on November 25 and election day on Dec. 5.

At the nomination day, there was an acclamation for reeve and deputy-reeve and six were nominated for township council. Election for township council was to have proceeded on schedule until someone pointed out that it was not legal to hold the election on December 5 as the necessary 21 days from the posting of the voters' list would not have transpired. The matter was taken up with the township solicitor who told them that they would have to change the dates in the by-law. Township council met yesterday and rescinded their election by-law, bringing in a new one which set Dec 26 for nomination meeting and January 2 for election day.

Italian Workers Ignore Reds

ROME, Dec. 2 (AP)—Millions of Italian workmen have demonstrated the Communists don't scare them like they used to.

The bulk of Italian labor handed their country's Reds their worst defeat since the April, 1948 general election by ignoring a 24 hour Communist-led strike which ended today.

The strike was called by Communist labor union leaders to protest the death of two peasants in clashes with police over farmland invasions by "squatters."

The strike was generally observed in the heavy industries—steel and automobiles—of North Italy, a Communist stronghold. But everywhere in this generally non-industrial nation shows, cafes and offices were fully staffed and most workers ignored the quit order call from the Communist controlled Italian Federation of Labor (CGIL).

Public transportation was only partially paralyzed, but most of the ports were idle.

Government and Conservative party sources termed the strike a flop. They pointed out that two years ago fear of Communist reprisals would have kept shops tightly shuttered, offices unmanned and buses, trains and streetcars idle.

Plowmen Meet

MILLBROOK, Dec. 2 (ENS)—Plowmen's Association of Durham and Northumberland Counties annual meeting will be held in Millbrook Council Chamber on Saturday at 2 p.m.

100 Certificates Not Yet Claimed

More than 100 reserve force discharge certificates are waiting at the Armouries to be claimed by their owners. The certificates cannot be sent out because each requires the signature of the claimant, Armory officials said.

Most of the discharge certificates belong to former members of the 50th Heavy A.A. Regiment and the Prince of Wales Rangers, and some were attached to the 57th Regiment. The length of service on the certificates runs from 29 days to 27 years.

Starts Course In Jet Aircraft

Flying Oficer John Greatrix, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Greatrix, 438 Park St., will leave Peterborough Saturday for Chatham, New Brunswick. He will be attached to the No. 1 Fighter Operational Training unit there for a course in jet-aircraft. He expects to be flying Vampire and perhaps the F-86's when they are introduced to the RCAF in the spring.

Flying Officer Greatrix has just completed his annual leave after being stationed at Trenton, where he completed a course in bombing and gunnery. At the school there he was one of five chosen to take the advanced course at Chatham, New Brunswick.

In October 1948, Mr. Greatrix joined the RCAF and took his elementary training in Toronto. He finished training in Centralia and received his wings there in August.

Mr. Greatrix is a graduate of PCVS where he was a member of the senior COSSA football champions in 1947.

Community Presents Gift To Fallis Couple

MILLBROOK, Dec. 2 (ENS)—A presentation was made Tuesday in Millbrook Town Hall to Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Fallis, whose marriage took place in October.

Rev. C. M. MacLean, rector of St. Thomas' Anglican Church, acted as master of ceremonies and read an address.

The presentation of a Duncan Phyfe lamp table, folding coffee table and table lamp was made by Clifford Larmer, Leonard Henderson ad Clarence Ball.

The evening was spent in dancing to music supplied by the Carr and Todd orchestra.

Refreshments were served.

The names of the committee which were signed to the address were: Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Henderson, Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Larmer, Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Fallis, and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Ball.

Car Door Flies Open Driver Cut On Fence

CORNWALL, Dec. 2.—(CP).—Robert McLaughlin, 18, of R.R. No. 1, Chesterville, suffered painful cuts to his face and head Thursday in a freak accident near Chesterville.

Police said McLaughlin's car went out of control, throwing him against the right door. The door opened and McLaughlin's protruding head and face were torn by a barbed wire fence.

The car finally stalled after running along the fence for 30 feet. The victim was taken to Winchester and District Memorial Hospital where his condition is reported satisfactory.

Cedar Lakes Park

The lakeland exists, the Provincial Government approves this use of the Crown Land, and we hope soon that the Cedar Lakes area, in Burleigh and Anstruther townships at the north of Peterborough County, will become a district park, set aside not for the use of private persons with cottages, or shooting lodges, but for the public enjoyment. So much of the Kawartha Lakes area is already fenced in that persons wishing to hike, swim or picnic are almost obliged to do so at a government dock or to encroach on private property. The Cedar Lakes project is meeting with warm approval on all sides, and the Kawartha Conservation Society and such men as Mr. Fred Marshall and Mr. M. N. Clysdale are to be praised for their work in bringing it into being.

* * *

This public recreation area of several hundred acres of Crown Land awaits now only the incorporation of a representative group to administer and develop it. The proposal is that the City Council, the County Council, the Service Club Council and various other interested organizations should be represented on the directorate or chartered membership of a non-profit corporation without any capital shares, which would manage and develop the area for the good of a wide public. It is a splendid project, worthy of most cordial support. Not only will it give townsmen a natural recreational area; it will benefit county people in the Cedar Lakes district, for it would be a tourist attraction. When city and county officials are fully familiar with the plans, there is little doubt that they will give their whole-hearted support.

Maintain The Link With Peterborough's Port

One of the consequences of closing the Port Hope-Peterborough C.N.R. line would be that the two places would be cut off from direct freight connection. This may not seem now a tremendous loss, for proportionately little that Peterborough manufactures goes to Port Hope consumers, and most of the goods which the city imports could come from the east through Belleville, or from Toronto in the west. Yet we should not forget that the town is called Port Hope. It is not used largely as a port now, but what will be the situation fifteen or thirty or fifty years from now? Sometime or some year the St. Lawrence seaway will be completed. When that time comes it is not hard to imagine that Port Hope will become a flourishing port. It will be the port not only of Peterborough, but of a whole area covering half-a-dozen counties. The freight traffic would be heavy, if the railway line continues to exist.

It may seem fanciful, irresponsible conjecture, to call Port Hope the port of Peterborough. Realistic, far-sighted businessmen and industrialists will not be inclined to pooh-hoo the conception. In twenty years the C.N.R. line to Port Hope may easily be Peterborough's most valuable link with the outer world, an almost direct commercial connection with Britain, Africa, and the Americas. The C.N.R. line should not be abandoned.

The Return Of The Zither

A news note from London informs us that Princess Margaret recently went to a nightclub in London to hear a zither player; this will undoubtedly help to spread the vogue of the zither, which is reported to be very great in Britain, and threatens shortly to cross the Atlantic.

We cannot say that we are happy about this. The zither is not an instrument which we admire. It is very old, and like many instruments which are very old—the bagpipe is an example—it takes a lot of getting used to. The zither comes to us from the dawn of history, and the fiddle which Nero played while Rome burned was really a zither; frankly, we feel that it would be entirely suitable as an accompaniment to a great calamity of that sort.

A zither is a flat box with strings stretched across its open side. You can pick the strings, or you can pound them with little hammers, or you can draw a bow across them. The tone, in any case, is nasal and wiry. There is a gentleman in the U.S.A., Mr. Andrew Rowan Summers, who sings folksongs while playing the zither; adept though he is in his handling of this instrument, he barely succeeds in making it endurable. There will be thousands of others, we feel, who will lack his skill.

For centuries the zither has been with us. Late in the nineteenth century it achieved a new popularity, disguised under the name "auto-harp", and for a time Ontario was heavily infested with auto-harpists. No church concert was complete without one. Auto-harps could be bought from mail-order stores for as low as $4.99, complete with instruction book. But all the sorrows of this world pass away, and eventually the auto-harp was forgotten.

Now Princess Margaret seems determined to revive the zither. She is said to have been rebuked by her mother recently for accepting an unusually low-cut dress. That seems to us to be a trifling, and indeed an amiable weakness, compared with this fostering of the zither.

Comic Strips Brought To Life

Although we have never yet found time to attend a professional wrestling match, we feel that we must do so soon. The show is obviously too good to miss. Years ago we saw a good deal of wrestling, but it was the honest kind, with rules. Two men who were matched in weight met in the ring and attempted, while abiding by certain rules, to pin one another to the mat; they never groaned or screamed, and we do not recall that they ever seemed to hurt each other very much. We knew one or two of them and they were nice fellows.

Now, it appears, the wrestling ring is filled with ham actors, disguised in various improbable costumes, who give displays of mock cruelty for the delight of their fans. We have been looking at pictures of some of them. There is Gorgeous George who has bleached hair and a silk dressing-gown; there is Mr. America, who wears a jewelled stomacher and is reputed to make young women swoon with his beauty; there is Lord Charlton, who wears an eyeglass and looks like a wrestling-fan's idea of an English nobleman. As to their behaviour in the ring, we quote from the New York Times:

> Or the Gorilla, who is wheeled to the ring in an enormous cage whose bars he rattles with roars of tortured rage? Or the wrestler billed as The Bat, who wears an all-black costume from head to foot and whose wrestling technique consists partly in flailing his arms up and down like wings and who appears to be about to suck the blood of his victims, as a vampire is supposed to do. Or Mute Mike, who purports to be deaf and dumb and signals to the referee in deaf-and-dumb language and all during his bout points helplessly to his mouth to indicate that he cannot howl to indicate the terrible agony which his opponent is causing him. Or Chief Little Wolf, who sometimes enters the ring with a feather headdress and utters crazed war whoops from time to time during the show, mostly as he applies his celebrated "tomahawk twist" or cruelly scalps his opponent with his finger.

This sounds attractive. Indeed, it is so attractive that we are surprised that no one seems to be condemning it as a cause of juvenile delinquency. Obviously we must find time to go to a wrestling match soon. It is not often that the comic strips are brought to life.

Ever Hear of Hugh D. Gravitt?

Have you ever heard of Hugh D. Gravitt? Unless you have an unusually retentive memory it is unlikely that the name means anything to you. He is the taxi driver in Atlanta, Georgia, who killed Margaret Mitchell, the author of Gone With the Wind, some months ago. He had twenty-six previous convictions for driving offences, and upon this occasion he was sentenced to 12 to 18 months in jail. He could have been given three years, but the jury thought that the shorter sentence would be enough, and that was what they recommended.

We refer to this matter because it brings up one of the great problems of our time—the leniency shown toward bad and dangerous drivers. Gravitt had been in court 26 times on driving charges; on this occasion he admitted that he had had too much to drink at the time of the accident. In a year or so he will be free, and undoubtedly he will be driving a car again.

What ails our civilization that we should show this unreasonable tenderness toward bad and irresponsible drivers? Police do their best to check bad driving, but every police chief knows how hard it is to get a conviction on a drunken driving charge. It looks as if the law, and society, were favourable toward a form of bad conduct which annually injures and kills thousands of innocent people.

We will always have bad drivers if they are to be treated like Gravitt. A bad, careless or drunken driver is just as dangerous as a lunatic roaming the streets with a loaded gun. But when will society and the law wake up to that fact?

Notes And Queries

By ALPHA

Questions are solicited for this column particularly those relating to local lore and tradition.

SIR: Why are cows always milked from the right side?

ANSWER: I really don't know. Will some of my rural readers offer opinions? It may have something to do with the fact that most people who milk cows are right-handed. I believe that in some sections of China cows are milked from the left. There seems to be no country where cows are milked from behind.

CHARLES FOTHERGILL: This gentleman who with Adam Scott was the founder of industry in the entire Peterborough area, through the grist and saw mill at the Little Lake mouth of Jackson Park creek, was a man of many parts. These are sketched by Mr. E. S. Clarry in his Examiner articles of September and October 1945. After coming to Canada from England about 1815, he settled at Smith's Creek (now Port Hope). The plans for settling his friends in Monaghan and Peterborough seem to have come to little. And his association with the millwright Adam Scott was disrupted not long after the mill began operating. Mr. Clarry believes that Fothergill was plunging into business enterprises which strained his financial resources, and for which he was, in this new rough county, little suited.

He had large interests in the Newcastle-Lakeshore area. From March 1825 to January 1831 he represented Durham in the Upper Canada legislature at York (Toronto). He had a keen human interest in the local Indians, and interceded with the Lieutenant-Governor in 1820 to save the life of an Indian lad tried for shooting a playmate. He came to know the Rice Lake Indians well, for he maintained a shooting lodge at the mouth of the Otonabee. When Chief Mohawk accidentally shot himself one day, Mr. Fothergill nursed him back to health. The Chief thereafter presented him with a belt of birch bark sewn with porcupine quills. This belt is now on exhibition in the Royal Ontario Museum, Toronto.

He as a J.P. of Newcastle district, was the first Postmaster at Port Hope, operated a general store there, and had much to do with developing the village as a port and harbour.

While he was a member of the House of Assembly at York and was its only member to hold an office of emolument under the Crown, for from 1822 to 1826 he was King's Printer for Upper Canada. He became an increasingly strong critic of the Government, and moved several resolutions in the House demanding some reform measures. For this, Mr. Clarry states, he was dismissed as King's Printer. This opinion is confirmed in Lindsay's book "Life and Times of W. L. Mackenzie and the Rebellion of 1837-38".

Charles Fothergill was a critic of the Family Compact, as was William Lyon Mackenzie, the revolt leader and grandfather of ex-Premier W. L. Mackenzie King. That seems to have been the extent of his agreement with Mackenzie. Much as he may have deplored the autocratic methods of government of the Family Compact, he felt that revolt was too drastic a step, and when the rebellion came, he supported the governing groups against the rebels. He called attention to the growing dissatisfaction in Port Hope and Cobourg (then called Amherst) with the cliquish government; nevertheless at a public meeting at Amherst Court House (February, 1832) he persuaded the people to approve a resolution of loyalty. This seems to have stilled the restlessness in that area.

There are some interesting items in Fothergill's preserved correspondence to which I shall refer next week.

DEAR ALPHA: Don't you think it a pity that art criticism in Canada is so lacking? Couldn't smaller papers, for instance, do better in this matter?

ANSWER: I believe that the standard of art criticism is improving. There are several competent critics in Toronto and Montreal. I presume that smaller papers could do better; most things, no matter how good, can be bettered—otherwise how would the world progress? I also think that the Examiner does pretty well now, perhaps better than most Canadian papers of its size or five times its size. The two Examiner people who say a few words in print about exhibits which appear from time to time in Peterborough are at least as competent as the two chief critics in Toronto seventy years ago, George Gilbert and James Spooner. James Sponer kept a combined tobacco shop, a picture gallery and a dog kennel on King Street, Toronto. Between such activities he sandwiched his newspaper criticisms.

THE CHAMPLAIN ROUTE: In October I referred to Professor Needler's exposition of Champlain's 1615 route from Georgian Bay through the Kawarthas to Rice Lake and Lake Ontario. The exact route is of special interest to people of this district for it would be satisfying to know for sure that this great explorer and founder of Canada passed by one's cottage on Pigeon or Stony Lake, and through what is now Peterborogh. Two weeks ago the editor of the Orillia Packet-Times and his anonymous friend disagreed with Professor Needler. I commented on this, and have written Dr. Needler for his reply to their criticism.

Professor Needler's thesis is that Champlain and his party portaged from Lake Simcoe to Sturgeon, thence went through the complete Kawartha chain down to the Otonabee at Peterborough. The Orillia people disagree. Professor Needler says: "Their whole screed doesn't make the slightest dint in my argument.... I was surprised to find Mr. Hale making a monstrous falsification of one of my statements — not deliberate of course, but a very unfortunate mistake on his part, as he goes on to build up a case on a false statement. It is where, near the outset, he prints "miles" for "leagues" in a sentence which I quoted from Champlain himself!.... As you see, neither the editor nor his authoritative referee condescends to enlighten us on the crucial point. Where was Champlain at the end of that first long portage? (The 25-miles portage from Lake Simcoe.)

Dr. Needler, reading the Champlain account closely, sets the end of the portage logically at Sturgeon, not Balsam Lake.

The Examiner will no doubt print in full Professor Needler's detailed comments to the Packet-Times when they are available.

FOR THE RECORD: Winter came to Peterborough a week ago Wednesday, November 23, and it looks as if it is here to stay. If so, it will be the earliest winter since my Aunt Martha discarded flannel for negligee. The following signs point to a hard winter: (a) Venus passed Adonis before the autumnal equinox (b) Simcoe Street pigeons are cooing on D flat instead of C sharp (c) fuel prices are high.

Letters To The Editor

RENT CONTROL BOON TO LANDLORDS

Sir: Rent control has been a godsend to tenants, as everyone knows, but what seems to be overlooked is the great boon it has been to landlords. If the controls had been lifted a few years ago many landlords would have sold their property at prices up to a third under prevailing prices. They might very well be a little grateful.

On the other hand, tenants who expect controls retained until supply and demand in housing reach a better balance should be willing to accept reasonable adjustments in ceilings. Rent control is no longer a case of freezing living costs but rather a measure to prevent exploitation—similar to government-imposed ceilings on interest rates.

I, a tenant, consider recent rent increases reasonable—with one reservation: I wonder why landlords who do not wish to give a lease should be deprived of the increase.

Yours truly,
J. W. GILBERT.

TOWN PLANNERS—PROPERTY OWNERS

Sir: In Tuesday's "Examiner" we read of a petition from the Sherbrooke-Reid Street residents to the City Council, objecting to the enlargement of the Campbell Dairy. The response of the Council was that the corner was zoned for light industry, and therefore they could not do much about it. Assuming the petitioners were property owners, and constituted a legitimate majority,—who has more right than they to say whether or not the building permit should be granted? If the Town Planning Committee have the authority to pass judgement on these matters, or to say what the property owners shall or shall not do, then they should be voted into office by the property owners.

Election time is here again, let us elect a Council that is not so business minded that it cannot see the rights of the smaller property owner.

'Sweet Adeline'

(Letter in New York Times)

Sir:—The melody "Sweet Adeline", as it is sung today, has three titles and two different sets of lyrics. The first, in 1896, called "My Old England Home", I wrote — both words and music. In 1901, the late Richard H. Gerard wrote a set of lyrics to my melody, making it, "You're the Flower of My Heart, Sweet Rosalie". The song was turned down by nearly all music publishers.

Meanwhile, Gerard had written a new line in the chorus, "At night dear heart, For you I pine", but he could not find a litle rhyming with "pine". One day, we were walking along Broadway when he saw a poster announcing the farewell appearance of Adeline Patti. We paused in front of it, and Dick said, "What a wonderful singer". And I answered, "The greatest in the world". He mused a few moments and then said, "Adelina, Adelina, at night dear heart, for you I pine....Adelene, at night, dear heart, for you I pine...Adeline, at night, dear heart, for you I pine!"

"That's it, Dick!" said I, and so completed the song that has been sung all over the world. The great singer Adelina Patti has passed on, but "Sweet Adeline" goes on and on. How mysterious are the tricks of life!

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

But it came to pass, that when Sanballat heard that we builded the wall, he was wroth, and took great indignation, and mocked the Jews. And he spake before his brethren and the army of Samaria, and said, What do these feeble Jews? will they fortify themselves? will they sacrifice? will they make an end in a day? will they revive the stones out of the heaps of the rubbish which are burned?

Now Tobiah the Ammonite was by him, and he said, Even that which they build, if a fox go up, he shall even break down their stone wall.

Hear, O our God; for we are depised: and turn their reproach upon their own head, and give them for a prey in the land of captivity: and cover not their iniquity, and let not their sin be blotted out from before thee: for they have provoked thee to anger before the builders.

So built we the wall; and all the wall was joined together unto the half thereof: for the people had a mind to work. (Neh. 4: 1-6.)

As Outdated as Feuds?

In Youngstown a clerk in a department store has taken a drastic pay cut. In Pittsburgh a small building contractor has had to suspend operations, laying off his crew. These two are among the hundreds of thousands inadvertently involved in the coal and steel strikes. Because steelworkers have not been spending, the store clerk had his hours and pay cut. Because the mills were not turning out steel for nails the contractor stopped building.

These people have felt the secondary effects of the strikes. But the effects do not stop there. Because the store clerk and the contractor do not plan to spend much for Christmas thousands of other people — in merchandising, transportation, and wholesaling—will have their incomes cut. When we hear that the strikers and the firms have lost hundreds of millions we may think they are the only ones concerned. But actually millions of innocent bystanders are injured.

We have opposed general laws to outlaw strikes, for the Constitution bars involuntary servitude. And we recognize that often management may be more to blame than the strikers, although it appears only to be sitting tight. But we do not believe the public is without rights—or recourse. In a closely knit economy any big strike involving either a public utility or basic commodities can work a vast injustice. This injustice often is greater than any a strike can correct.

Surely our civilization should have the intelligence to find more efficient methods of establishing justice. Surely our society must in self-protection require some industries to agree ahead of time to arbitration of their labour disputes. The private wars by which feudal lords once adjudicated their differences were no more ridiculous either as poor methods of determining justice or as workers of injustice upon innocent bystanders. It should not be many years before people will wonder why this type of feuding was ever tolerated. The first step is for the public to insist on better ways.

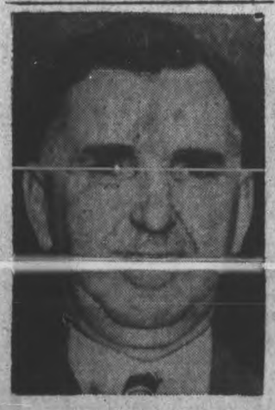
Two Cars Collide On Stewart St. Hill

The icy Stewart St. hill at London St. proved too much for two cars which slid into each other Thursday night.

John E. Smyth attempted to drive up the Stewart St. hill after turning at London St. but after going up a short distance his wheels simply spun on the ice. He backed his car around to go east on London St. but the front part of his car began to slide downhill and into the left door of a car driven by Thomas Jones, 386 Murray St.

Jones had also been trying to drive north up the Stewart St. hill but got no farther than the London St. intersection. He slid back hitting the west curb and bounced onto the sidewalk. He was backing out into the street when he collided with the Smyth car.



Traffic Officer Harold Mesley investigated.

Kowalski Pins Goon Henry As Stanlee Gets An Assist

A huge Polish-Canadian 22-year-old by the name of Wladek Kowalski won the main pro mat bout at the Brock last night over Jim (Goon) Henry, but he had an assist from Steve Stanlee. He won the deciding fall in six minutes when Stanlee—a husky prelim grappler in civvy clothes, who had just challenged the Goon to a bout—tripped him up as he was putting the fists to Kowalski. Referee Ernie Powers was staggering back from a blow from the Goon and did not see this, so he counted out Henry as the crowd cheered heartily.

Kowalski took the second fall in 14½ minutes when he hit the chesty Goon with a drop kick, crossing him up when Henry tried throwing him into the ropes and using the knee as he came off the hemp. Wladek roughed Jim up plenty and hurt him with a wristlock. He weighed 226 to Goon's 270 and they both stood about six feet six. Henry played it rough and illegal most of the way, getting away with a lot on Referee Ernie Powers. Both Henry and the ref were unpopular, but the big youth from Windsor held his own, bouncing back fast after punishment. His equalizing fall was a popular one with the cash customers.

Set For Cold

The Goon came in wearing long green trunks, and the fans laughed at his winter underwear. But he won the first fall in 17 minutes by throwing his opponent into the ropes thrice and catching him with a knee to the midriff as he came off each time, the referee missing it. A lot of mat work was shown for a time, and the Goon used some illegal stuff to the fans' disapproval, but Kowalski matched youth with experience to come back fast and make it a bout. It was a good show between two big matmen, but the first fall was unpopular.

Toar Did It

Toar Morgan, going 228, surprised everyone by going to a time limit draw with 265-pound Wee Willie Davis in the semi-final. Both were on their knees and slugging it out groggily at the bell. They staged a real scrap, with huge David plenty rough but finding a battler in Morgan, who used fists to good advantage when the going got too rough. He was quite popular and showed much improvement over other bouts here. Davis tried a lot of his Hollywood villainy, including eye rasps, but Morgan was faster and aggressive, besides cashing in on previous pro pugilistic experience to throw hard hooks into the big fellow. His "Boston crab" hold and toe grips had Davis in trouble near the finish of a hot go.

Blonde and well built Steve Stanlee, at 230 pounds, won a popular prelim over 228 pound rough Joe Christie in 22 minutes. Joe started it off nasty, using tape on his wrist, till Steve picked up and threw him over the top strand. The chunky and speedy Stanlee had a good advantage for a long spell, though Christie was rough, and he had had Joe yelling for mercy more than once in a speedy struggle. Stanlee offset the tough tactics to gain the fall with an airplane spin and body slam that shook Joe's ancestors, and the crowd gave the winner a big hand.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC PERDUE, Sports Editor.

Conny Smythe, fiery manager of Toronto Maple Leafs in the NHL, must be a tough guy to work for. When a player isn't producing up to par for the ex-major, the latter calls in the press and airs his threats—and the poor puckist learns in next day's edition that he's in the doghouse again. Conny never misses a chance for some publicity. Which prompts us to rack our remaining brains and compose this little melody:

* * * * * *

Smythe got thinking of news one day,
Swore he'd get it any old way—
Looked at the suet on Broda's bones,
Called in the press, said in sad tones:
"He's too fat, much too fat, he's too fat for me;
He'll reduce, else he'll lose his job and salary:
Won the Stanley Cup I'll admit,
But pure cream he drinks from it;
He's too fat, much too fat, yes he's too fat for me!"

This One Is For Keeps

Speaking of hockey, don't pass up that Legion-Petes' scheduled senior "B" scrap at 8.30 tonight in Civic Arena. You can't afford to miss a melee when these local rivals are pitching pucks and body-checks in streamlined style. Bound to be a dandy. The Petes earlier beat the provincial champs here in an exhibition and Legionnaires will be out to avenge that one, don't worry. Whether they can or not remains to be seen, as the Foley flock has improved a whole lot and will hustle any crew in the circuit. The Ellis outfit is starting to hit its old stride, too, so they should be two well-matched and hostile teams as they tangle tonight for keeps.

* * * * * *

Annual meeting of the Ontario Hockey Association is this Saturday in Toronto, with a lot of the groundwork laid by the executive there this evening. Evidently satisfied with the slate of officers installed last year, the clubs have returned the executive by acclamation, including Frank Buckland of this city, a good OHA worker. Various rules will be dealt with on the morrow, and discussion of groupings held. 'Tis certainly hoped that a junior "B" setup including the local Oddfellows is arranged this week-end as the IOOF-ers are rarin' for scheduled action after a number of exhibitions and thrills on artificial ice here.

Something Funny Afoot

Goon Henry left the ring at the Brock last p.m., after the main mat bout, an angry and puzzled man. Referee Ernie Powers—who acted as powerless at times as the Hydro after seven p.m.—was hurt and rather puzzled. Wladek Kowalski and the crowd left quite happily. Seems that the ref was knocked across the ring by the rough Goon, who was pounding the handsome and husky Windsor lad hard. Suddenly, a guy who looked much like Steve Stanlee—the well-built Mr. America grappler, who was in a prelim spot — tripped up the Goon, and Powers recovered in time to count him out. So, the six-foot-six 266-pound (and only 22, girls) Kowalski won the main go. Morgan and Davis went to a lively semi-final draw, while Stanlee beat Christie in the prelim.

A few items to hand on girls' and men's basketball. Lasses go in a twin bill tonight in the YWCA, starting at 8.15: Neill's vs. CGE, and Black's vs. senior Nurses. Deadline for entries in the men's Lakeshore Intermediate Hoop Loop is Dec. 10 when a meeting will be held in Port Hope to draw up schedules. Executive this year has Ed Gillen of Port Hope president, Harold Blow of Cobourg vice-prexy, and Bill Hodgson of Port Hope secretary. Walt Ward of Peterborough is intermediate convener, and Bev Goulding of this city the junior convener. Meantime, the Towne Togs and the Marines "A" cagers are drilling, and the PCVS teams will be swinging into action in another month.

Londoners Go Arty On Instalment Plan

LONDON (CP). — Londoners now buy paintings on the deferred payment plan—and the ranks of the art collectors are being rapidly joined by the lower income groups.

A Leicester Square art dealer started the plan. He charges one-fifth down and the remainder in 12 monthly payments. He deals in unknowns to $2,000 Matisses on the same basis.

Besides placing paintings in homes that otherwise might not have boasted them, the plan helps young artists. The dealer reports that it helps the contemporaries place their work quickly though at prices much cheaper than ultimately they may command if they "click." But this way they eat. And collectors tend to watch for more of their production so as to add to their collections.

Cavanagh's High With 3622 In City League

MINOR HOCKEY

A general meeting was held at the "Y" last night by the PMHA to report on the OMHA convention in Toronto last Saturday. Al Watkins reported that attendance at Toronto was good and he referred to the changing of OMHA Rule 12, Sec. B, to read: "Players can only play in the section that they sign under and must show on certificate bantam, midget or juvenile series."

Overtime play in playoff games will be decided in future by OMHA executive, it was decided by the Toronto meeting. The residence rule was brought up by Al Watkins and managers and coaches were asked to check their players now. Any PMHA player must be a resident of Peterborough at least one year prior to Nov. 1, 1949, if he has played in any other locality under OMHA. If he has moved to Peterborough since Nov. 1, 1948, a transfer must be applied for to the OMHA.

It was moved by Art Pagett and seconded by Bill Post, that the Examiner hockey card be used and recognized as the official referees report. Team managers are to prepare their team line up on this card which will be supplied and turn this over to the visiting team manager who will put his lineup on and hand the card to the referees or scorekeeper.

It was moved by Ron Balaam, seconded by Art Pagett, that the official starting time be until further notice as follows: week days start first game at 5.30, second game at 6.30, on Saturdays, first game to start at 5.00, second game to start at 6.00. Last start of 15 minutes for first game and five minutes for second game, after which team not appearing will lose by default.

It was moved by Art Pagett, seconded by Father Coughlan, that Ron Balaam be appointed official scorekeeper-in-chief for the league with power to appoint assistants. Each team manager will provide one person to be in the scorekeeper's box to watch penalty timekeeping, etc.

Keene bantams announce their withdrawal from the league. To replace this team Art Pagett of the Trojan Club is going to try and form another Trojan bantam entry. Any boys interested may contact Mr. Frank Lundy of the Trojan Club at 3347. His address is 4 Douglas Ave. The following change in the schedule is announced due to the Keene team dropping out.

Friday night 5.30, Trojan bantams vs. St. Petes.

Saturday 5.00, Trojan bantams vs. Optimists.

Monday 5.30, Optimists bantams vs. St. Petes.

As all games played, starting tonight, will count for points, the following admission will be charged spectators: 25 cents or one punch on season ticket for two minor hockey games each night.

Wings Hit Victory Trail Blank Maple Leafs 2-0

By JIM BASTABLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

Netminder Harry Lumley has Detroit Red Wings on the National Hockey League victory trail again.

The big goalie racked up his fourth—and second successive—shutout of the campaign Thursday night as the Wings blanked Toronto Maple Leafs 2-0 in Toronto.

In the only other game, Chicago Black Hawks took over undisputed third place by defeating the last-place Boston Bruins 5-4 at Chicago.

The victory at Toronto gave Coach Tommy Ivan's Wings 31 points—nine ahead of the second-place Montreal Canadiens, while the loss put the Leafs in fourth place, two behind Chicago.

Lumley, a 24-year-old native of Owen Sound, turned in a performance that was a far cry from that last weekend when he allowed 13 goals as the Wings lost two games.

In Second Place

His two shutouts—he got one Tuesday when the Wings defeated Biston 3-0— pushed him into second place among goalies with an average of 2.43 goals scored on him a game. Bill Durnan of Montreal is first with an average of 1.80.

On the rough end of the 2-0 count was little rookie Gil Mayer playing his first NHL game while replacing the too fat Turk Broda. Mayer was visibly nervous before the game, but settled down.

If Leafs' boss Conny Smythe was aiming for publicity when he issued his now famous blast against overweights, it worked. There were 14,015 fans jamming the Maple Leaf Gardens.

Meanwhile Broda, who rocketed to headline news when he was benched for carrying seven pounds too much, watched from the sidelines. The goalie pared down to 190 pounds in two days on gymnasium tactics and stiff diets, and, having made the weight, is due to get back in the cage on Saturday night.

Chief Cog

Jim McFadden was the chief cog. He scored the first gogal while Toronto's Ted Kennedy was serving a tripping penalty and then set up the other for winger Jim Peters in the first period. Kennedy suffered a knee injury in the third period and is expected to be out three weeks.

At Chicago, the Bruins led twice and held a tie three times before Gaye Stewart got the pay-off goal at 14:34 of the final session. Doug Bentley, Bert Olmstead, Roy Conacher, and Bep Guidolin got the other Chicago goals. Phil Maloney, Zellio Toppazzini, Woody Dumart, and Bill Quackenbush were marksmen for the Bruins.

Quinlan Horse Wins Race

TORONTO, Dec. 2— Navy Law scored in the first dash after a long, hard drive, in the feature of yesterday's harness racing at Dufferin Park. Navy Law just beat Lee Grattan Bars, Her Royal Highness, and Dan Wagner, the latter two possibly hindered by interference coming out of the turn.

Navy Law had it all alone in the final dash, scoring after a mild drive from Her Royal Highness and Little Charlie.

Peter G. Lee registered a handy double heat win for Wilmer Hillock in the first. The Peterborough pacer, owned by Charles Quinlan, toyed with his field, assuming the lead each time when Hillock was ready and never was in trouble.

Bourbon Abbey, owned by Mrs. Lucille McLaughlin of Cedar Rapids, Ia., scored his fourth win in a row by sweeping both ends of the second. Eddie Wheeler driving. Mighty Volo and Belmar Hi Scott divided the place.

Dr. Rice resumed his winning ways in the third, a pace fashioned for the medium class performers, scoring in each dash after a long journey on the outside Owned by Parker Lock of Williamsburg, Dr. Rice was driven by Cecil Champion.

A slow class band of pacers came out in the fourth, Todd Benedict scoring handily in the first dash, with Goodwill Dean a good second. The latter, owned by the Goodwill Farms of Maple, took the major portion of the purse by coming back to win the repeat dash, aided by a costly break by Todd Benedict at the top of the stretch when he was getting to the pacemaker.

Cradock Plans To Support Toronto Football

MONTREAL, Dec. 2 (CP). — The Gazette says in a newspage story today that Eric Cradock, a director of the Montreal Alouettes of the Big Four Football League, plans to move his interests in football to Toronto.

The story does not say "definitely whether Cradock would join the Toronto Argonauts, but says he would confine his gridiron support to Ontario's Queen City in the future."

Cradock is one of three major shareholders of the Alouettes. He admitted that he was intending to support football in Toronto.

"I feel," he said, "that as a resident of Toronto it might be better for all concerned if I turned my support to that city."

Cradock denied that there was any "differences" beween him and the management of the Alouettes.

He would neither confirm nor deny a report that Argonauts had invited him to join their directorate.

La Starza Tackles Brion In New York

NEW YORK, Dec. 2 — (AP).— Roland La Starza, unbeaten glamor boy of the young heavyweight crop, bids for international recognition tonight in a 10-round Madison Square Garden bout with Argentina's Cesar Brion.

This is the big fight in the careers of both these 22-year-old hopefuls whose eyes are trained on the gold and glory of the heavyweight championship. A decisive knockout win could earn a June title date with Ezzard Charles for either boy.

Even more intriguing than a Charles bout is the possibility that an impressive victory might lure Joe Louis out of retirement next summer. An outstanding young contender against the Brown Bomber would be a sure-fire $1,000,000 gate.

Before worrying about Charles or Louis, both of tonight's sluggers muste deal with the business at hand. It shapes up as a tough match with La Starza deservedly a 5 to 8 favorite.

GRAND CHAMPION OF THEM ALL—"Judge Roy Bean," a 1280-pound yearling Hereford, was named grand champion steer at the International Livestock Exposition in Chicago. Members of the Pecos County 4-H Club, Ft. Stockton, Tex., who raised the steer as a club project, are seen celebrating his victory. Will Slaten, 15, right, was the original owner of the prize beef.

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

The battle of Broda's bulge, choice conversation piece for Toronto school kids and business men the last three days, has been won. And it was done to the tune of screaming front-page headlines:

"Broda gets down to 189 pounds."

And Broda, told to scale down from 197 to 190 "or else" by managing director Conny Smyth of Toronto Maple Leafs in time for the Leafs' National Hockey League game against New York Rangers Saturday night, watched the scales stop at 189 and said: "I'm going home to bed."

Smythe's sudden outburst on Tuesday served a double purpose: (a) it gave Leafs—and Smythe columns of publicity, something that couldn't be accomplished the last week or 10 days when sports pages were filled with news of the Calgary-Montreal Grey Cup game, and (b) it got hockey's fat man down to fighting form.

The paper played up the Broda story with page one pictures of the Turk and his blonde wife, Betty, a compact, five foot three inch bundle who weighed 128 pounds four days ago.

Betty decided to string along with the Brandon, Man., netminder until he clipped the seven pounds off. She couldn't bear to think of Turk sitting out at meal times so she "decided to lose weight, too."

Purses for the King's Plate and four other important horse races were increased Thursday at the annual meeting of the Ontario Jockey Club at Toronto. Col. K. R. Marshall, president of the OJC, said the increases originally planned for 1951 will instead be put into effect next season.

The added purse for the King's Plate is increased from $10,000 to $15,000. The race carries the 50 guineas donated by the King and with entry fees will have a total value of around $20,000, top money value of any Canadian horse race.

The Coronation Stakes for two year olds has been increased from $6,000 to $10,000; the Princess Elizabeth Stakes for two year old fillies from $3,000 to $4,000; the Breeders' Stakes from $4,500 to $5,000 and the Maple Leaf Handicap, autumn race for three and four year old fillies, from $2,500 to $5,000.

Jack Kramer again showed his tennis mastery over Pancho Gonzales in their professional tour, defeating the 1948 and 1949 United States national singles champion 6-1, 6-1, at Toronto Thursday night. Kramer took his 21st victory in 25 starts.

In a preliminary match Francisco Segura whipped Frankie Parker 2-6, 6-2, 10-8 after Parker twice had match points in the final set. The victory was Segura's 20th against four defeats and one tie.

The next stop on the tour is Waterloo, Ont., tonight.

President Lou Perini of Boston Braves said at Boston Thursday his club would have the National League's largest crowd of rookies in the Tribe's training camp at Brandenton, Fla., next spring.

The Braves will have 11 youthful products of their far-flung farm system in camp for extensive tryouts under manager Billy Southworth.

Previously the Braves generally have had the smallest number of rookies in the league.

At Berne, Switzerland, the touring Hull Volants Thursday night handily won their second Swiss hockey engagement, blanking the Berne all-stars 6-0, Held to a one goal lead at the end of the first period, the Canadians ran up three counters in the second and two in the final frame.

Gaston Desjardins and Charles Bilodeau led the Volants with two goals each. Carman Marshall and Roger Leger got the others.

Al Rollins, obtained by Toronto Maple Leafs from Cleveland Barons in a cash-player deal this week, Thursday signed a contract with the National Hockey League club at Toronto. The contract was signed after Rollins, a goaltender, passed a medical examination which was a condition of the deal.

Rollins, purchased from the American Hockey League for a sum in five figures and four players, is a native of Kincaid, Sask.

Ratepayers Hear Achievements Of 1949 Council

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 2 (ENS) — Max Swanston, mayor of the Peterborough, was chairman of the ratepayers meeting held in Memorial Hall on Tuesday.

Comparative statements of village expenditure were given for the years 1949 and 1948.

Councillor Albert Buchanan gave the financial statement. The village assessment increased $25,000 in the past year.

Councillor William Whetung reported for the streets committee. The cost of maintainence of the streets had increased from $7,335, to $8,516. Accounting for this, councillor Whetung said 3,000 more gallons of road oil had been used. The culverts on Concession Street had been replaced and reinforced, to take the heavy Nepheline traffic.

Dean Street had been so bad in the spring that the residents of the area had been unable to get milk delivery by horse drawn wagons, so that entire road had been raised and a culvert put in. Edward Street had been extended to make it easier to snowplow. $1,000 had been spent on the sidewalks; the sidewalk at the extreme western edge of the village and a drain put in at the Lakefield Hotel.

A new grader had been purchased from the Department of Highways and four new lights put in in the park.

Regrets Resignation

Roy Brown, former councillor, expressed regret at having had to resign from the council in September. He had taken a contract with the District High School Board to transport pupils to school, which disqualified him from being a councillor.

The chief item of the property committee was the Memorial Hall. One hundred and fifteen seats had been repaired this year, costing $350. Mr. Brown told the villagers they should appreciate the village fire department.

Reporting for the recreation committee, Mr. Buchanan said the bathing house had been built and the beach had been extended. The cabins in the park had been painted, some grading done and some weed spray used in the park to get rid of the poison ivy.

Ratepayer Hear

Councillor Ken Morris, reporting for health and sanitation committee said it had been suggested that the garbage should be collected more frequently. After some discussion the meeting recommended that the council consider a weekly collection of garbage and ashes.

The new building by-law was discussed.

Queries Section

Mr. Arthur Taylor asked that clauses prohibiting the expansion of businesses in houses or residential sections of the town be deleted. Mr. Taylor stated that no such by-law existed in Peterborough as the Fisher-Gage works and the Goodwin Machine Shop were in homes.

Mr. Swanston stated these businesses had been established before the zone bylaw existed.

Rev. Delaney said the by-law should not be thrown out but asked if the plight of Mr. Taylor could be considered.

Norman Graham asked if, under this by-law, Mr. Taylor could not expand his present business on his present property.

Reeve Grant stated that Mr. Taylor could, but could not buy additional property for expansion of a business in a residential section.

Mr. John McKerchar suggested that the curves be marked at Memorial Hall and at the Tedford Funeral Home. Mr. Charles Beckell suggested white lines mark the curves.

Mr. Jack Ryan asked how the council was going to keep white lines on when they could not keep a surface on the roads.

It was eventually moved by Mr. Beckell and Rev. Delaney that the council take some action either with white lines or lights to eliminate the hazards at these points.

Reeve Grant said a special meeting would be called to discuss the waterworks question.

Mrs. W. Leonard, president of the Red Cross asked that a member of the Red Cross be named to the Recreation committee.

Lunch was served by the Red Cross.

Investigating Effects Of Radar On Flying Duck Formations

By ROBERT CLARKE

DELTA, Man., Dec. 2 —(CP)— The ducks flashed through the air in percise formation. Suddenly, for no apparent reason, they wheeled and circled in disarray for a moment and then regrouped to continue their journey.

This marked a phase in experiments earlier this year by Dr. H Albert Hochbaum, Director of the Waterfowl Research Stations here, into effects of radar on birds. Dr Hochbaum feels the experiments are in such an early stage it is impossible to attach any particular significance to the results.

A renowned ornithologist, Dr Hochbaum tried out the radar tests last spring with portable equipment provided by the Royal Canadian Air Force. He marked the reaction of flights of birds through an 11-day period.

"We obtained at least one dozen positive reactions when the birds flared and broke, much as if they had been shot, when they hit the radar beam. The birds appeared to become momentarily confused in their flight, then they would regroup and continue on their way."

Negative Results

Dr. Hochbaum said there were "a great many negative results." The positive results seemed to apply in the case of fast-flying ducks. The radar beam also appeared to have little or no effect on birds which might be considered local inhabitants in the vast marshes at the foot of Lake Manitoba, about 65 miles northwest of Winnipeg.

In London recently, Lt. Peter Scott of the Royal Navy hinted that the Delta tests might lead to radio control of living things A noted bird watcher and artist he visited Delta last spring on a trip to the Arctic.

He made the disclosure in a BBC broadcast, remarking later: "it slipped out—I shall probably be in the doghouse for mentioning it."

Dr. Hochbaum stressed, however, that possible effects of electrical impluses on anything living other than birds was outside his province. His reports on the experiments, still to be written, will be submitted to authorities of the American Wildlife Institute which directs operations at the research station here.

"It is possible to contend that some outside influence might have been responsible for the birds becoming confused in flight. Whereas this might be true in a single instance, we feel we received sufficient enough proof on the whole that the birds really were affected by the radar beam."

The ornithologist said scientists in the United States also have conducted similar experiments with findings still to be disclosed.

Walter Huston Won't Write His Memoirs

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 2 (AP)—Walter Huston of Toronto is one veteran actor with no plans to pen his memoirs.

Huston, who now is working on "The Furies," was informed that both Ethel and Lionel Barrymore are writing their life stories. I asked him if he had any ideas about writing his.

"No," he laughed, "I tried it once. I sat down with a fellow and he wrote up a couple of pages. When I read them to the family, they said, 'no, it doesn't sound like you.' So I retired for a couple of days and rewrote the two pages.

"I read them to the family and they said, 'good—that sounds like you.' Right then I knew if it took me two days of hard labor to write so little, it would be too darn much work to write a book. So I fave it up."

Friday Footnotes

Claudette Colbert wants to direct a love story, but she doesn't know what or when. Furthermore, she's getting tired of talking about her directorial ambitions. She won't give up acting. Now in "Blind Spot," she plans to act in two more pictures next year.

Jessica Tandy, wife of Hume Cronyn, The London, Ont., star, is back from her triumph in "Streetcar Named Desire" and playing Joseph Cotten's neglected wife in "September." She is on loan-out from 20th-Fox, which still has nothing scheduled for her.

Gertrude Lawrence may turn director after she finishes "The Glass Menagerie." she is thinking of directing and appearing in British pantomimes in New York York.

Capsule Review

"On The Town" (M.G.M.) is pure entertainment. It has no problems, no violence and no plot to speak of. Mainly it's a fast-moving collection of musical numbers by six lively and talented people: Gene Kelly (who co-directed), Frank Sinatra, Vera-Ellen, Betty Garret, June Munshin and Ann Miller. A bright Christmas confection.

1950 Marks Centenary Of Swanston Immigration

When the grandparents of Mayor Swanston arrived here from Scotland a century ago they were too concerned with the immediate problem of getting settled in the new country even to think of who was the first Mayor or who might be 100th.

But, it hapepns that in the centenary of that event their immigration into the young Canada whose arms were open to newcomers from the British Isles, a grandson of the original Swanston is Mayor of Peterborough.

The grandparents did not actually come to Peterborough. As friendly and friend-seeking Scots they headed for Ashburnham known locally then and for a long time, as the Scottish Village.

His Worship remarked the other day that he was more than happy that the ratepayers had given him the acclamation for the 1950 mayoralty. It is the centenary of the incorporation of Peterborough as a town, its separation from North Monaghan township, of which it comorised the north-est corner. And finally the grandsire Swanston came out to Canada in that year.

"How far from a 50-mill rate can we keep in 1950?" Mayor Swanston was asked.

"I don't know, and I don't know what the council of 1950 will do," he said. "But, I am certain that whoever are elected they'll do their best for the ratepayers I am trying to get some figures together that would indicate about what we might expect. The firemen are asking for a salary increase, and possibly the policemen might follow suit. This is a contingency that comes rather suddenly, and you don't know what the result will be."
